FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET CLOSED STRONG

NEW YORK, Dec. 23.—(AP)—Stock prices developed a sudden burst of strength this afternoon after an early period of irregularity. The rally was led by high priced industrial specialties and motors, several of which soared 5 to 10 points. Trading was moderate in volume, the day's sales running just above one and one half millions shares.

Reactionary price tendencies predominated in the commodity markets. Wheat broke sharply in the early trading on the announcement that the federal grain futures administration would investigate transactions in December wheat more closely, but prices made brisk recovery in the later trading, May futures showing an advance of nearly two cents on the day. Cotton futures lost ground, May, July and October deliveries sinking to new low levels for the year. Renewal of selling pressure against French francs reflected uncertainty over the stability of the Briand cabinet.

Hudson Motors was one of the sensational features of the session, soaring over nine points to 111 1-2 and closing half a point from the top on total transactions exceeding 105,000 shares. Chrysler advanced from a low of 183 to 195, closing near the maximum figure for a net gain over 10 points on the day. American Can touched a record high for all time at 266 or more than five points above last night's close.

Spirited bidding also took place for Commercial Solvents, A. Du Pont, Fleischmann, General Electric, Ingersoll Rand, Loose Wiles Biscuit, Mack Truck and U. S. Cast Iron Pipe, all of which closed four to 9 points higher.

Early selling was largely of a professional nature and presumably inspired by stiff call money rates and the apparent failure of the latest efforts to bring about a settlement of the anthracite miners' dispute. Some so-called "tax selling" also was in evidence, but it was confined to a relatively few issues.

Oils were rather slow in responding to reports of an increase of two cents a gallon in gasoline prices in California, although Barnsdale A moved up over a point to a new high record at 30 1-2 on the announcement that the company would retire $2,500,000 in bonds next month.

Strength of Hudson was associated with unconfirmed rumors that Ford interests had become identified with the property.

There were several soft spots scattered throughout the list. National Cloak and Suit common and preferred broke to new low records, for the year to 59 and 91 1-2, respectively on reports of disappointing earnings for the last half of the year. Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit showed an extreme loss of over 3 points, most of which was later recovered on the traditional "selling of the good news," following the announcement of the inauguration of dividends. Heaviness also was apparent in such issues as Postum Cereal, United States Distributing, Associated Drygoods, Colorado Fuel, Columbia Carbon, General Outdoor Advertising A, Union Bag and Paper and Ward Baking A.

Norfolk and Southern dropped 3 points to 36, but most of the other rails moved within rather narrow and irregular limits.

Call money renewed at six per cent., holding at that figure all day. Time money was in plentiful supply at 4 7-8 to 5 per cent., and prime commercial paper was unchanged at 4 1-4.

French francs broke nearly 10 points to 3.62 1-2 cents. Demand sterling eased slightly to $4.84 9-16 with selling presumably inspired by the announcement of heavy gold withdrawals for export from the bank of England. Other European rates moved within rather narrow and irregular limits.

NORWICH TOWN

The Community Christmas Tree celebration under the auspices of the Norwich Rural association is to begin at 7:30 o'clock Thursday evening on the Norwich Town Green. The church and chapel buildings located near by will be open at 7 o'clock for those who assemble early and want shelter. The program will open with group singing. The men will assemble at the D. A. R. building and open the program with an old carol "We Three Kings," accompanied by Swahn's instrumental quartet. The second number, "O Little Town of Bethlehem" will be given by the upper grades of Town and West Town Street schools at the northwest corner of the village green. The third number will be antiphonal, two groups of men rendering the song, "Watchman, Tell Us of the Night." The fact that this song was written just one hundred years ago brings it into special prominence in this its anniversary year. "O Come, All ye Aithful" will be used for the processional.

Following these preliminary features the main part of the program will be taken up and a half dozen of the best known and best loved Christmas hymns will be sung by the entire assembly, Joseph C. Worth leading and the brass quartet assisting. In the Community singing the women's voices will be especially needed. The antiphonal and community songs will be sung around a beautiful tree which is now in readiness with its hundreds of colored lights.

It is a privilege which comes to the citizens but once a year to assemble as a community and participate in these beautiful hymns of Christmastide. Carol singing at Christmas Eve is a custom coming down from the remote past, and it is especially appropriate for those who live among ancient surroundings to perpetuate a custom so honorable and pleasing as this. People who live in other parts of the town, so far as they are at liberty on the night in question, are being bidden to join in this celebration with heart and voice.

Very attractive programmes were distributed among the congregation, at the Christmas service of the First Congregational church, Sunday morning.

On the face of the leaflet was a cut of this historic church which was incorporated in 1660. The printing in Old English, was in red and green letters: the head lines read, Christmas Greetings 1925. On the inside was the order of worship for the day. Besides this were several newsy paragraphs concerning coming events in the interests of the church. The first paragraph which was in the form of a message from the minister, Rev. G. F. Bailey read as follows: Shall we not try to keep our hearts light and joyous in the Christmas spirit even though we find our tasks multiplying in these closing days of the year? Christmas is not intended to be a burden but a burden-lifted. Let us not degrade this beautiful festival by loading it with the trappings of commercialism. In simple ways, with thankful and generous hearts, let us find our joy in the gladness of others, and rejoice that the Lord has come.

Reference was made to the pledge calendars recently collected, to date they had netted $165.

Agent George A. Williams of Hartford, a representative of the Connecticut Humane society, sent out from the head office, was in conference with District Agent Frederick H. Wyant, of Norwich Town, Tuesday, in the interests of the society.

The main objective was Canterbury; but in making the approach from the Norwich Town end of the journey, road conditions were so bad that to avoid getting stuck in the mud, Agents Williams and Wyant went by way of Plainfield. Even over this route before getting into Canterbury, there were some trying moments because of the mud; and it was with difficulty that the destination was reached. About four hours was consumed in what should have taken only two hours to accomplish.

The Christmas Tree Concert of the First Methodist Episcopal Sunday school, is to be held on Christmas night. Superintendent Frederick H. Bushnell was appointed to procure the tree, while Miss Theodora Brown, president of the Young People's Christian Endeavor society was chosen to take charge of the concert. Mrs. Stanton W. Brown and Mrs. Albert G. Miner are the committee appointed to purchase gifts for the tree.

John C. Hinrichs Jr., from Brown university, is passing the holiday recess with his relatives on Town street.

DUWELL CLUB ENTERTAINS HUNDREDS OF EAST SIDE CHILDREN

The members of the Duwell club and the teachers of the Bishop school entertained hundreds of East Side children at a community Christmas party Tuesday evening at the Elks Home, Main street. It was the first community Christmas party ever held for the East Side children, and it far eclipsed any other community event of that nature. Fully 1,000 children and adults were crowded into the hall. There were worthwhile gifts provided for all the children through collections and donations from the residents of the East Side and in addition the Duwell club members remembered each child with a box of candy and a large apple. If any of the children of the East Side did not receive a gift it was not the fault of the Duwell club or the Bishop school teachers.

From the appearance of the hall when the programme started it looked as if every child on the East Side, from the three year old to the 13 year old class, was present. Many of them were accompanied by their parents and older brothers and sisters. The children attending the Bishop school had chairs arranged by grades at the front of the hall. They met at the hall at 6.45 o'clock while the children attending other schools met at the Duwell club rooms and about 6.30 o'clock and went from there to the hall.

Late comers found it difficult to get in the hall, the crowd was so great and once in it was just as difficult to get out. Children first, was the slogan for the night, people made way for the little ones, anxious to get to the front of the hall where the Christmas gifts and boxes of candy were piled high. Some of the tiny tots had to be carried through the crowd, in order to receive their gifts.

The programme opened at 7 o'clock with music by Thumm's orchestra, followed by an address of welcome by Judge Nelson J. Ayling, after which the Lord's Prayer was repeated in unison. The splendid arranged program of carols, recitations and vaudeville was given as follows:

Arrival of Santa Claus

Distribution of presents by Santa Claus

Music — Thumm's Orchestra

The gifts, done up in attractive packages, each bearing the child's name for whom it was intended, were distributed from the platform alongside a large and very beautifully decorated Christmas tree. The distribution was by grades, the various classes being called to the platform, starting with the kindergarten and working up to the older grades. It was ten o'clock before the gift packages, boxes of candy and apples had been distributed.

Compliments for the Duwell club and the teachers of the Bishop school on the success of the evening and the systematic way in which the gifts were distributed were heard on every side. It was the biggest event of its kind ever held in the city and the attendance exceeded the expectations of the very efficient committee of which James Pedace was the general chairman. The committees were as follows:

Turkeys, due to a slight increase in the wholesale price, will cost a few cents more a pound for Christmas than they did at Thanksgiving according to marketmen.

Prices range from 40 cents to 69 cents with a variety of selections. Native turkeys seem to be especially scarce, and are the highest in price. Vermont turkeys are the next while the lowest priced ones come in cold storage from the west.

As usual fruit seems to cost more at this time. A slight increase is noted in the price of oranges.

Smith, administrator of the estate of Dell Phillips, late of New London, has brought suit against Francisco Scialabba of New London according to papers served upon the defendant Tuesday by Deputy Sheriff Manuel J. Martin. According to the complaint, Scialabba owned the dwelling house which was arranged and designed to be occupied and was on June 21, 1925, occupied by more than three families living independent of each other but having a common right in the use of the halls, stairways and yards.

The tenement occupied by the plaintiff's intestate was on the second floor and a doorway led onto the veranda, which contained a wooden rail, and according to the complaint was in an unfit and dangerous condition by reason of insecure and improper construction, as was the floor, which was rotting away, according to the plaintiff.

According to the allegations of the plaintiff, she was in the Woolworth store Jan. 3, 1925, during business hours for the purpose of purchasing articles. JUDGE RESERVES DECISION IN $175 DAMAGE SUIT

Decision was reserved by Judge Charles B. Waller of the court of common pleas, in the $175 damage case brought by Paul Nejime, et al., this city, against Philip Ispen, this city. The plaintiffs seek to recover $175 damages for repairs which the plaintiffs allege were done to Ispen's car, several years ago and which the defendant has refused to pay.

In a counter claim the defendant asks $75 damages on the grounds that the plaintiffs owed him that amount of money for three weeks' work he had done at the plaintiffs' garage, at that time being in the old Lathrop barn on Main street, near the Y. M. C. A.

COOLIDGE AND BORAH ARE IN ACCORD ON DISARMAMENT

President Coolidge is Seeking the Views of Congressional Leaders as to the Best Method of Procedure to Accept the League of Nations Invitation to a Preliminary Discussion —Senator Borah Expressed the Opinion That an Appropriation For Conference Expenses Would Be Both Necessary and Appropriate.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—(AP)—President Coolidge in his efforts to find a way to accept the league of nations invitation to the preliminary discussion of a disarmament conference plan has sought the views of congressional leaders as to the best method of procedure.

He conferred today with Chairman Borah of the senate foreign relations committee, and Senators Moses, republican, New Hampshire, and Lenroot republican, Wisconsin, as to whether congressional sanction should be given even in advance of participaion in the preliminary Geneva meeting at which an effort will be made to draw up an agenda for the projected world arms conference.

The request for such sanction would take the form of a bill carrying an appropriation to defray the expenses of American participation. Opinion at the capitol as to the admissibility of this course appears to be divided, but Senator Lenroot told the president that most senators favored acceptance of the invitation.

Senator Borah and others of the irreconcilables in the league of nations fight hold that acceptance should be conditioned upon a very thorough understanding that the proposed disarmament conference would not consider European security pacts and that this country would not enter into any kind of agreement which the league of nations would be called upon ultimately to put into force.

The foreign relations committee chairman declined to discuss his visit to the white house other than to say that he and the president were in accord. Later, it was stated at the white house that he had expressed the opinion to the president that action by congress on an appropriation for conference expenses would be both necessary and appropriate.

In addition to the congressional leaders, President Coolidge had another conference with Secretary Kellogg, who said afterwards that he was leaving immediately for St. Paul to spend Christmas and that further action would be delayed until after the holidays.

If the president decides to ask the sanction of congress, he can not do so until after January, as it now is in holiday recess. Since the Geneva conference is not to be held until February 1, however, it is believed there will be ample time for action, even taking into account the probability of some extended discussion of the question by the senate.

One view expressed today at the capital was that Mr. Coolidge probably would name Hugh Gibson, American minister to Switzerland, as the American representative to the preliminary meeting, to be aided by technical assistants from this country.

The American representative would be expected to make clear at the outset the exact position of the American government with respect to its participation in a disarmament conference. It was pointed out that, if congressional sanction for his participation were given in advance, Mr. Gibson could speak with the full authority of both the executive and legislative branches of the government.

HEAVY TAXES CHRISTMAS PRESENTS IN FRANCE

PARIS, Dec. 23.—(AP)—Government bills demanding of the taxpayers several billion more francs annually will be one of the Christmas presents of the French people, if M. Doumer, the finance minister, succeeds in his present plans. He is exerting himself to get his financinal restoration scheme ready to present to the cabinet Friday morning, instead of waiting until after the holidays. His object is to have his bills introduced in the chamber before measures which are being prepared by the radical-socialist coalition see the light of day.

The total amount of additional revenue the government will ask for remains a secret, as well as the principal details of the scheme. It is affirmed in circles close to M. Doumer that the minister sticks to the idea of doubling the tax on the business turnover, but it is declared in the lobbies of the chamber of deputies of the left that he has made concessions on that point to the radical members of the cabinet.

The race between the finance minister and the groups of the left to get their projects out first promises a close finish. Some of the counter measures are already in shape, others will be finished within a day or two, it was said by the radical leaders today. Whoever wins the first, the final issue, which will come only after the convening of the regular session of parliament in 1926, is most uncertain.

The groups of the majority in the chamber will again make a stand on the capital levy and other features of their programme that caused the downfall of M. Painleve; the situation therefore promises to go back on the opening of the new session to exactly the point where it was at the end of November.

The socialists, seeking to get ahead of any prospective American offer for the tobacco monopoly, have introduced a bill for the exploitation of the sale of tobacco through a stock company with a capital of 30,000,000,000 francs. (About $1,150,000,000.)

The bill provides that the shares shall be called "bond shares," and participate in dividends, as well as bear interest at 5 per cent. The company would be managed by a mixed board comprising representatives of the minister of finance, tobacco planters and bondholders, and part of the profits would be set aside for amortization of the bond shares in thirty years; a fifth of the stock to be subscribed in cash, the remainder in government bonds.

MRS. COOLIDGE SOOTHED TINY CRIPPLE IN HOSPITAL

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—(AP)—Mrs. Coolidge, on a just-before-Christmas visit to children's hospital today, cuddled a tiny cripple who had been frightened at a photographer's flash light, kissed away his tears and made him about the happiest youngster in town.

Santa Claus was giving a party for the children, and the wife of the president went from ward to ward, spreading cheer and admiring their Christmas tree and gifts. She stopped at the bed of a little red headed girl, and a group of photographers suggested it as a setting for a picture with several children forming a back ground.

The preparations for a flash light frightened a three year old boy, and as two big tears welled out on his cheeks he timidly whispered to Mrs. Coolidge:

"I'm scared. Won't you take me in your lap?"

She did kissed away the tears, and brought an ear-to-ear smile on his face when she urged him to "look at the funny man taking the picture," as the flash flared.

NEW YORK, Dec. 23.—(AP)—A giant searchlight that will throw its rays 150 miles out to sea will be erected on the spire of the Broadway temple skyscraper-church building to be built on Broadway at 173rd street, it was announced today.

The tower bearing the searchlight will be thirty stories above the street.

ENCYCLICAL BY THE POPE ON "THE PEST" OF SOCIETY

ROME, ec. 23—(AP)—Pope Pius XI published an encyclical today, in which he especially decries what he terms "the pest" of society—governments organized without participation of the church and the clergy,and gives expression to the hope that if "Christ the king, be venerated by all the Catholics of the world," that pest with all its errors will be remedied.

The pontiff declares that for a long time the empire of Christ over all the peoples has been denied. Even "the right of the church, which springs from the right of Christ to teach the people, give them laws and rule them in order to lead them to eternal happiness," has been denied.

The Pope stigmatizes the fact that gradually the Christian religion has been reduced to the level of false religions, shamefully lowering it to their standard. Indeed, he adds, it has submitted to civil power, there having even been a state which thought it could do without God and whose religion consisted in "lack of religion, in contempt of God."

The consequence of such conditions was "discord among peoples, unchaining of the lowest passions, sometimes disguised as patriotism, greed of earthly goods, contempt of domestic duties, disorder and instabilities in families, and the whole of society pushed towards ruin."

The close of the holy year the Pope believes is opportune for the establishment of a special festival for Christ's kingdom, which must be "a symbol of incitement to a new struggle in order to awaken the faithful and encourage the faint-hearted, leading them all with courage under the banners of Christ, the king, animated by apostolic ardor to preserve the rights of God against all."

Pope Pius concludes by claiming for the church "full liberty and independence from civil power." He claims also the same liberty for all religious orders of both sexes, which greatly cooperate with the church toward the extension and improvement of the kingdom of Christ.

REPORT PACIFIC ISLAND SWEPT BY TIDAL WAVE

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 23—(AP)—A report that Yap, a small island of the Caroline group in the north Pacific had been swept by a tidal wave and practically devastated was published this morning in the Hochi-Sha, a Japanese language paper of Honolulu, no confirmation of the report has been received from any other source.

The cable between Guam and Yap has been interrupted since December 16. There is another cable between Yap and Nagasaki, Japan.

The Hochi-Sha report said not a single house on the island which has an area of 79 square miles and a population of several thousands, remained standing. Fear was expressed that other islands of the group had suffered a similar catastrophe.

Yap came into prominence during the Washington conference when an agreement was reached between Japan, which by the treaty of Versailles was given a mandate over the islands, formerly belonging to Germany, and the United States by which America was given equal rights with all other powers in all that relates to the landing and operation of the Yap-Guam or any other cable that might be laid by the United States or its nationals. Similar arrangements were made in regard to radio and other matters.

BUTLER ISSUES TIRADE AGAINST MAYOR KENDRICK

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 23—(AP)—Brigadier General Smedley D. Butler was dismissed today as director of public safety of Philadelphia, the marine officer however released for public inspection a mass of correspondence with Mayor W. Freeland Kendrick in which he accused the chief executive of lack of moral courage in enforcing the prohibition law.

General Butler asserted in a memorandum he gave out that the mayor ordered him to "lay off big places."

"There is a difference between a $7,000,000 investment and a cheap place which blackmails people," he quoted the mayor as saying.

Mayor Kendrick made no comment on the corespondence, but earlier in the day issued an appeal to the people to support him in enforcing the law.

General Butler as a parting shot today said he wanted the Ritz-Carlton hotel padlocked for liquor law violations and the dance license of Bellevue-Stratford and the Walton revoked for infractions of the prohibition law, but the mayor refused to give his consent.

Claims Chairman of Board Prejudiced

Dissenting Opinion by James H. Vahey on Decision of Trolley Arbitration Board.

BOSTON, Dec. 23—(AP)—In his dissenting opinion to the award of the majority of the arbitration board on which he served in the wage dispute between the Connecticut company and employes, James H. Vahey of this city sharply criticized the chairman of the board as prejudiced against the carmen.

"In all my experience, covering now a period of 14 years," wrote Mr. Vahey in his opinion which was made public late today, "I have never seen a more unsympathetic arbitrator than the chairman of this board, nor one who tried to lock the door of hope and opportunity as he has done.

"It became very apparent in the early stages of the hearing that the chairman was antagonistic to the employes and so far as he was concerned, the whole case was conducted with the manifest idea of trying to discredit the witnesses who were called in their behalf."

As an instance of what Mr. Vahey termed the "unfairness and injustice of the chairman's point of view," he declared that the latter "saw fit to take ancient rather than modern history" in considering the trend of wages and living costs as a basis for the award.

"He disregarded," Mr. Vasey continued, "the wage rate in the nearest comparable city which one of the experts for the company said was a fair comparison. He deals in figures of average wages which have no comparable basis because he takes into account neither the hours nor the number of days worked, nor the fact that in arriving at the average, one man is doing two men's work.

"During the hearings he seemed to think that it was an unpardonable sin for men not to be able to save money and yet he heard the testimony of 17 employes of the company who told what a struggle it was to keep body and soul together.

"His seeming solicitude for the interests of the working classes who mostly use a trolley car is pure bunk. The people who ride upon the trolley cars of the Connecticut company are fair-minded people. They do not want these men to work unconscionably long hours at low pay in order to enable them and their families to eke out an existence.

"Summing it all up, this award will result in exasperating the employes. They and I are comforted with the thought that this award expires May 31, 1926. We can live until then with the hope and belief that another man can be selected who will approach the consideration for the case without the prejudice and animosity which apparently actuated the chairman here.

"It isn't at all pleasant to have to record one's views in this language. It has been done after mature deliberation and reflection because in my opinion the nature of the case and the interests of the men, the future welfare of their families and themselves, a decent understanding of their outlook upon life and a fair comprehension of what industrial arbitration means imperatively demand it."

KLEINER SORRY VAHEY HAS STARTED CONTROVERSY

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 23.—(AP)—Charles Kleiner, chairman of the board of arbitration which handed down an award yesterday in the wage controversy between the Connecitcut company and its employes, and who was criticised today by James H. Vahey, of Boston, another member of the board, said tonight he did not care to engage in a controversy with Judge Vahey.

He declared, however, that in fairness to all concerned he should at least give an idea of the "true situation."

"I did not give the award to the public," Mr. Kleiner said, "because I was waiting for Mr. Vahey's dissenting opinion, so that it could be made part of the entire statement. Instead of transmitting his dissenting statement to me, Judge Vahey took occasion to criticise me. On the other hand, Mr. Berry (the third member of the board) while not agreeing with me in my views, at least consented to the finding.

"I am sorry that Mr. Vahey should have started a controversy. All through the hearing, I treated Mr. Vahey as a gentleman, and he treated me the same, hence I am surprised now. This is the first intimation that Mr. Vahey held the view that I was antagonistic.

"Figures disclosed that the average wage earning is $28 a week. The average of the trolleymen is $38 per week if this fact is not a justification for my position then I don't know what is. I went to work myself at the age of 14 and have been working ever since and still am, hence there is no reason for any such statement that I am unsympathetic towards those who work for a living.

"If I had not been sympathetic with the men I might have come to the other conclusion, which would have meant a cut in wages. Even under the position taken by both parties, I could have come to the conclusion justly so, that the men are not entitled to even that which they are now paid.

"Even the expert from Washington, who appeared for the men, disclosed that the trolleymen here are being paid five cents an hour more than they are entitled to under their own theory of the cost of living. I did what I believed to be right, and cannot see where Judge Vahey is justified in making a criticism.

NEW DRIVE AGAINST NEW YORK CLUBS AND CABARETS

Holiday "Padlock Parade" Was Begun Last Night With Scheduled Stops at 41 Resorts—New Campaign Under the Direction of United States Attorney Buckner—Each of the Places Will Have Twenty Days in Which to Answer Charges.

NEW YORK, Dec. 23—(AP)—A holiday "padlock parade," with scheduled stops at 41 cabarets, night clubs and restaurants including some of the most widely known in New York white light district, was begun tonight under the direction of United States Attorney Buckner.

Four deputy marshals, each armed with summonses and complaints, and each accompanied by prohibition agents and policemen, set out to institute padlock proceedings against the resorts on the basis of evidence already obtained by Mr. Buckner's aides and the local prohibition forces.

The drive is the largest yet undertaken by Mr. Buckner, although in two previous drives since he took office he proceeded first against 14 and then against 30 alleged violators.

The service of the padlock complaints is expected to be completed within a few days, and each of the resorts will have 20 days in which to answer the charges. Mr. Buckner said the cases would be brought to trial as soon after New Years as possible.

NO CAUSE FOR ALARM OVER VIOLENT EARTHQUAKES

NEW HAVEN, Conn., ec. 23—(AP)—That New England has no cause for alarm over the possibility of violent earthquakes in the next few years was the opinion expressed today by Prof. Chester R. Longwell of Yale, in charge of the university's seismograph installed in the New Peabody museum of natural history. The professor's views were given in reply to a prediction reported to have been made recently by Prof. Mather of Harvard. Mr. Longwell believes that Prof. Mather was misunderstood.

"While I believe that earth shocks will be felt here," Prof. Longwell said, "they will be nothing over which there should be alarm. Earthquakes and the predictions of their occurrence can be determined only by study of shocks by means of seismographic reports. More would have been learned of the shock of early this year if the Harvard seismograph had not registered so violently that the vibrating arm was thrown from the recording drum.

"I agree with Prof. Mather that earth shocks will be felt in New England again soon, but they will be comparatively small and moderate. A solid settled section, such as New England is, rarely experiences earthquakes which cannot be anticipated. There always is a possibility of earth movements, nevertheless, but the probability of serious quakes in this section are remote.

"I do not mean that Prof Mather is to be discredited. Rather, I believe that he has been misunderstood."

The Yale seismograph, one of three in New England, was dismantled when the old Peabody museum was torn down several years ago.

CAMPAIGN OF LONG LIFE SOCIETY IN ENGLAND

LONDON, Dec. 23.—(AP)—The memory of Thomas Parr, who set England's standard of longevity by living to be 152 years old, is being invoked in a campaign by the Long Life society in favor of simple living. The object lesson, however, is found as much in the cause of his death as in the manner of his living.

"Old Parr" lived under ten English monarchs, from 1483 to 1635, and the authenticity of the record is attested by a slab in Westminster Abbey, where England's great are remembered.

Until nearly the end of his life he lived on the simple fares, whole-grain bread, milk, cheese and fruit, and at 120 he was hale enough to marry a second time. But when he reached 152 his fame reached the ears of King Charles I, who invited him to London and feasted him so that he died.

His slab in Westminster is cited by the Long Life society "as a warning to those who suddenly and drastically alter the habits of a lifetime."

NEW BRITAIN MAN HELD IN CONNECTION WITH MURDER

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Dec. 23.—(AP)—The arrest of Michael Norcia today at New Britain, Conn., on suspicion that he may know something about the murder of Police Captain Albert Youmans here last year, is the result of four or five days investigation by the Schenectady police, Chief William Funston announced late today.

Although Norcia is not known to have been directly connected with the slaying, Chief Funston said that the man seems to be worrying about something, the exact nature of which the Schenectady authorities hope to determine.

Captain Youmans, head of the police vice squad, was shot last year as he was passing through a street notorious for its illegal activities, and the identity of his slayer never has been established, although many reputed leaders of the underworld of this and surrounding cities have been questioned closely.

TREATY REVEALS NEW LINE OF BRITISH POLICY IN ARABIA

JERUSALEM, ec. 23—(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)—The text of an agreement between Great Britain and Ibn Saud, sultan of Nejd and leader of the Wahabis, whose victories in Central Arabia recently caused the abdication of King Ali of the Hedjas, was published here today.

It is considered to mark a new line of British policy in Arabia resulting from the collapse of King Ali's dynasty, with which the British government has been in close contact since the latter part of the great war.

The first article of treaty fixes the frontier betwen the sultane of Nejd and Transjordania, which is under British mandate. The outlying territories of Wadisirhan are left within the territory of Nejd. Other articles are aimed to insure the safety of frontier, freedom of passage for travelers and pilgrims being guaranteed.

WILLING SPENCER WEDS MRS. CHARLES M. MACNEILL

NEW YORK, Dec. 23.—(AP)—Willing Spencer of Philadelphia and Newport, R. I., for 15 years a member of the United States diplomatic service, serving as first secretary of embassy at Tokyo, and first secretary of legation at Peking, was married today to Mrs. Charles Mather MacNeill, widow of the late copper magnate and financier.

BUSINESS OUTLOOK IS PROSPEROUS CONDITIONS

BOSTON, Dec. 23.—(AP)—The business outlook for 1926 is for continued activity and general prosperous conditions, is the opinion expressed by bank presidents in a country wide survey conducted by the Boston Commercial, which will publish the report tomorrow.

"Except in certain sections of New England, the Pacific northwest and the agricultural districts," the report says "business is in a sounder condition than at any time since the war. Labor is well and profitably employed, bank deposits are increasing, there are no clouds in the sky and although profits in some lines have been small, conditions are definitely normal and healthy in the shoe manufacturing districts of New England there has been only a moderate credit demand, but the outlook is for improved business. In the Pacific northwest business has not been up to the predictions made for it early in 1925, and operating experience, in lumber particularly, has been disappointing.

"Opinion in the agricultural districts varied. In the middle west conditions are not entirely satisfactory, although there has been a decided improvement during the past two years, with a marked decrease in farmer debts. On the Pacific coast crops have been well up to average in the northwest and excellent in California. Farmers and breeders in Iowa are getting good prices for livestock. Ohio agricultural interests have fared very well, but in the south farmers have not received the profits that have come to others.

"In certain sections of the south bankers say there is a possibility of a boom of extensive proportions.

"Without exception, the interviews with southern bank officials express confidence and optimism, and one states that for the first time since the Civil War, the south is coming into its own."

The survey shows the strong disapproval on every hand of the growth of the installment plan in the purchase of automobiles, furniture and other commodities and luxuries. Bankers decry the present tendency to pledge future income for present comforts, characterizing it as dangerous, deplorable, unwise and unsound, believing that it will accelerate business decline when conditions radically change, and that it is forcing consumption.

FIGHTING FIRE WHERE NINE MINERS PERISHED

BELLAIRE, Ohio, Dec. 23—(AP)—Eighty men, working in three shifts tonight were fighting a fire in the Webb mine at Shady Side near here, in which nine miners died. Officials expressed the belef tonight the fire would be extinguished within 48 hours.

Jerome Watson, chief of the Ohio bureau of mines, was directing efforts. The flames had eaten 200 feet back in the main, but were confined to the main entry. If they spread, which Watson considers unlikely, the mine will be sealed up.

Mine officials, led by Watson and six Ohio mine inspectors plunged into the fight against the conflagration as soon as the last body was removed early today. The nine miners who died had rushed to the main air shaft hoping to escape, but were suffocated in trying to climb to ground level, 240 feet above.

Sixty one other men, who were working at various places in the mine, made their way to safety through the main entry. Watson asserted the nine who died would have been saved had they flolowed the advice of Foreman Jacob Schramm, who told all these workers that their only way of escape was through the main tunnel.

The nine, Watson said, heedless of these suggestions, rushed to the air shaft and perished, in the thick of the fumes of the gas and smoke.

Officials determined definitely today that the fire was caused by a rock slide in the main entry, short circuiting electric wiring which fired timber supports.

The mine is owned by the George M. Jones Coal Company, of Toledo.

Officials of the company here said tonight no estimate had been made of the financial loss.

SEARCHING STEAMSHIPS FOR CONTRABAND LIQUOR

NEW YORK, Dec. 23—(AP)—A dozen searchers from the custom house boarded the steamship Paris when she arrived today and went throughout the ship in a search for contraband liquor, it having been rumored that bootleggers had a supply on board. No liquor was found. The same squad searched the Majestic last night with a similar result.

DANIELSON

ALL PLANS COMPLETED FOR COMMUNITY TREE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Dec. 23—This is the night of the Community Christmas tree festivities on Davis park. Everything will be in readiness at 5:30, when the program of the evening will begin. The Christmas tree will be a tree of light, made brilliant with scores of electric lights and an appealing sight to all of the hundreds expected to attend.

Distribution of fruit and candy to the children will begin soon after the opening of the program. Carol singers will add to the impressiveness of the occasion with the numbers they will present. Members of the American legion and its auxiliary have labored hard for the success of the Community Christmas tree. They have had and will have tonight valuable assistance from many quarters in making the affair a great success—a real community effort. All can do something to heighten the success of the program by being present at the park, if only for a brief time.

At the conclusion of the park exercises, the carol singers will go about town, singing in different sections, giving special attention to serenading shut-ins. After this tour the carolers will re-assemble at the park and go thence to the Congregational church, where refreshments are to be served.

POST OFFICE BUSINESS SHOWS 25 PER CENT INCREASE

DANIELSON, Dec. 23—When the postoffice closes this (Thursday) evening it will be closed until after Christmas. This means that Christmas this year really will be a complete holiday for the postal workers. No mail will be distributed in the office on Christmas day, nor will there be any city or rural delivery. The postoffice is actually going to suspend business for the day, excepting for despatching mails. This is the first Christmas under this new and agreeable arrangement and the observance of it will be nation-wide.

No one can gainsay that the Danielson postal workers will not have deserved their holiday when they have completed their work tonight. Postmaster E. H. Keach said Wednesday that the business this year is approximately 25 per cent. greater than it was a year ago at the Christmas season. This may be accounted for by higher postal rates as well by an increased volume of business. For instance, many cards that formerly carried one cent in postage now carries two cents.

Tonight the postal force will clear the distribution tables and complete their work before leaving the office. Except for sending out the Christmas day mails, that will be the end of it until Saturday morning.

Postmaster Keach and his staff look for the busiest day of all the holiday period today. This is the usual rule and it is not likely to be broken today.

The Quinebaug mill, closing tonight for the holiday period, will not be working in all its department again until a week from Monday. The Christmas holiday period in any event would extend through until next Monday. However, during the coming week only the fancy looms will be in operation, this for four days. The other departments of the mill will be idle during all of the coming week. This arrangement will give a large number of operatives a vacation through both the Christmas and New Year's period, and the relaxation from work will be welcomed by a great many of those interested.

Representative of companies carrying the insurance on the F. S. Kennedy building, damaged by fire at Dayville Saturday night, have adjusted the loss. It is understood that the adjustment was on a total loss basis insofar as the amount of the policies carried is concerned. Other losses sustained through the fire have been adjusted or are in process of adjustment.

Killingly will be represented Monday at the capitol in Hartford at a statewide gathering of tax collectors. Tax Commissioner Blodgett has arranged for this conference, one of a series being held from time to time, seeking to create uniformity in tax collection methods and tax record systems in Connecticut. James R. Walsh, town tax collector, and Attorney Louis A. Wolfsard, personal tax collector of Killingly, will represent this town at the meeting.

Heavy old winter, seemingly most complacent for two days previous, played a prank on humanity during the very early hours of Wednesday morning by sending along a cold wave, savoring of the real frigid season, on the heels of a little more than an inch of snow. Early risers Wednesday morning found Danielson's streets covered with snow and ice and sidewalks in similar condition. The snow sweepers and shovelers went into action for the first time this season. They had no great amount of work to do, but what they did served as training for what they likely will have to do later. A brisk northwest wind throughout Wednesday was another contribution to making the season seem more like Christmas time. Many people seemed to welcome the change, snappy though the weather was and getting about somewhat hazardous and attended by not a little difficulty.

Wednesday morning the funeral of Mrs. Marie Duval was held from her home on the West Side with services at St. James' church at 9 o'clock. Rev. Joseph Deschaux, M. S., Rev. James McCarthy, M. S., and Rev. F. X. Richards, M. S., were the officers of the solemn mass of requiem. Burial was in Holy Cross cemetery, where the committal service was conducted by Rev. Fr. McCarthy. The bearers were Gaspard, George A. Alexander and R. P. Duval, sons of the deceased, Joseph Marios and Louis Monjeau, sons-in-law, Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Fill your last minute shopping needs with a gift from our store. H. W. Chapin, Jeweler, Center St.—Adv.

Numbers of people in communities throughout the town of Killingly and in communities in other nearby towns will have brought home to them in fruitful way this day the significance of the word 'Benevolent" in the title of the order of Elks. No Elk, true to the tradition of his organization, will tell you anything at all about what his lodge is doing at Christmas time, but there are ways and means of knowing what this great organization does to help the needy, to cheer the downcast and otherwise bring the spirit of Christmas into out of the way nooks and corners where sorrow and misfortune hold away. A great and good work goes on today without ostentation, even with as great secrecy as is possible.

Danielson, as a whole, seems destined to feast abundantly on the holiday. Little les than amazing is the variety of things the shoppers have been picking up the past two days for their Christmas dinners. Not all of the housewives' time is spent these days while shopping on gift buying. Great thought and attention, it appears, is devoted to the holiday dinner and to the table settings and decorations. Here is one field where mere man—home sapiens, we think they call him—is about as useful as a spare eyebrow. Serving best in relation to these specific Christmas preparations, he retires to the garage or somewhere until he is called in to eat.

Many pretty things for Christmas gifts await you this last day before Christmas at H. W. Chapin's jeweler, Center St.—Adv.

The Christmas tree party at the Main street plant of the Pace Manufacturing company at five o'clock this (Wednesday) afternoon is to be held in a section of the big weave shed. Preparations for the party are completed.

From Mr. and Mrs. Gordon A. Johnstone at Winnsboro, S. C., Christmas greetings to old friends in Danielson came Wednesday. Mr. Johnstone formerly was agent here of the Danielson Cotton company.

Electrical supply houses here have had a heavy demand for Christmas tree lights, which have practically superceded candles for tree decorations.

At this time, without revealing much, it may be announced that many workers will share tonight in the distribution of Christmas gifts from their employers in Danielson and elsewhere in the town of Killingly.

"Not too good" was the comment of young people who like to skate and were considering what the snow and subsequent freezeup did to their favorite ponds Wednesday.

Attorneys here have received notices from State Attorney Howard C. Bradford of Putnam relative to conferences on criminal cases, that are scheduled for consideration at the term of the Windham county superior court opening the first Tuesday in January. Some cases of local interest are in the list.

Mrs. J. L. Renehan and son, Junior, have gone to Baltimore for the holiday season and for a stay of several weeks with Mrs. Renehan's relatives. Mr. Renehan accompanied them as far as New London.

In scores of homes in the borough tonight there will be Christmas tree parties, all of the old time customs being adhered to for this festive occasion.

In observance of Christmas, masses are to be offered at St. James' church on the holiday, the first of these at 5:30 a. m.

Danielson Wednesday upon the coming

Sales of sleds increased notably in of the first coasting opportunity of the season.

The store forces of Danielson complete their hard pre-Christmas grind tonight. Theirs, too, will be a well deserved holiday, for they will have completed the most trying period of the year.

L. L. DRAGON'S DEATH WAS CASE OF SUICIDE

PUTNAM, Dec. 23—In his certificate of death in the case of Ildege L. Dragon, who was found in his tailor shop Sunday morning with a gas tube turned on, Dr. F. A. Morrell, medical examiner for Putnam, gives the cause asphyxiation, the result of suicidal intent. Dr. Morrell could not be reached when the body was first discovered. It was given out that death was accidental, but when Dr. Morrell had arrived and made an investigation he decided that it was a case of suicide. The funeral was held at 9.30 o'clock this morning.

PECULIAR ACCIDENT TO ELLSWORTH MORSE

PUTNAM, Dec. 23—Ellsworth Morse was trying to solder a hole in a small gasolene tank when the fluid became ignited and the can burst. The front of Morse's shirt caught fire and in an effort to extinguish the blaze his hands were badly burned and his face slightly scorched. He is one of the local repair crew of the New Haven railroad and is familiar with the use of the acetylene torch in welding breaks in rails. His grandfather asked him to mend a break in the can that he used for carrying gasolene and Morse thought that there was so little of the fluid in it that it was safe for him to apply flames to the outside of the can. The explosion was heard for several squares in the neighborhood of North Market street, where his grandfather, Herbert Morse, lives.

Mrs. Dell F. Warren, 66, mother of Selectman William P. Warren, died Wednesday night at his home on South Main street. Mrs. Warren was a lifelong resident of Putnam. Her husband, William E. Warren, died three years ago. Until a few months ago she lived in a house on Oak Hill and took an active part in social and church affairs. In September last she gave up her own home and went to live with her son and daughter-in-law. Two weeks later she became ill and continued to grow worse until her condition reached an alarming stage. It was known two weeks ago that she could not recover.

One other son survives, Edward E. Warren of Providence who is with the Telephone Company of that city.

Because of the date conflicting with other meetings and because it is the holiday season the special meeting of the directors of the chamber of commerce called for next Monday evening has been postponed to Tuesday evening, January 5, 1926. The meeting is to consider the timeliness or advisability or necessity of talking over plans for revaluing property in the town for taxation purposes. If a workable plan is suggested, there will be a general meeting of the Chamber of Commerce or a meeting of citizens for further consideration the matter of revision.

Mrs. Sarah J. Pellett, 89, died Tues- day, at her home in Hampton. She was born January 11, 1836, being within two weeks of ninety years of age. Her nearest relatives are two grandchildren. Harry Stratton of Putnam and Mrs. Alfred Griggs of Abington.

At Dartmouth College there is an undergraduate dramatic association called The Dartmouth Players. Recently this association presented John Galsworthy's "The Silver Box." Harry Davis, son of E. L. Davis of Putnam played a prominent part in the production. Preceding the Galsworthy performance, as a curtain-raiser, there was a presentation of Richard Hughes listening play "Danger." The only woman's part in this was taken by Mrs. Willey, wife of Prof. Malcolm Willey, formerly of Putnam. The events in this little play are supposed to take place at the bottom of a coal mine, and the entire action is in utter darkness, the audience never seeing the characters. The play was originally written for the radio.

The following regarding George B. McClellan is of interest to people in Putnam and Woodstock. Like his father before him, Gen. George Burton McClellan, one of the famous Union generals of the Civil War, lived in Woodstock for many years, and until a few years ago the younger McClellan, who died about three years ago was his sister. The story sent out by the Associated Press follows:

"George B. McClellan, who has been elected vice president of the American Academy in Rome, is a former mayor of New York city, is now a member of the faculty of Princeton University, where he went when his political career closed. He is the son of the famous commander of the federal forces early in the war between the states. Prof. McClellan was born in Saxony while his parents were traveling in Europe and received his education in Princeton. He first turned to journalism for a vocation, then to law. He entered New York City politics under the patronage and sponsorship of Tammany, and gained election first to the board of aldermen in 1892, and then to congress in 1895. In 1903 he was elected to the mayoralty and held that office for six years. In the late war he was commissioned a major in the regular army and saw service with the ordnance department.

After lessons were over Tuesday night, the students of the Commercial department of the evening school held their Christmas entertainment under the leadership of Mrs. Macdonald and Miss Hoxan, the teachers. There was music and games and a gift for everybody. Each pupil furnished a present which limited to ten cents in price. Refreshments were served by the two teachers. This was the last meeting of this year, the next session being on Monday, January 4.

At Putnam High school, Harry Da- vis, a student at Dartmouth college gave a very interesting talk to the students on the initiation customs of the college which he attends. He is a graduate of the Putnam high school.

Raymond Robinson, a senior at Putnam high school was elected president of the high school athletic association, at a meeting held Wednesday. He is the son of E. L. Robinson, head master of the high school.

The Salvation Army is planning to make Christmas merry for many needy families in Putnam. The Army's red kettle is placed on Front street and the help of generous people is being sought to keep it boiling. Contributions have been coming in fairly well so far, but more is needed.

There is to be a midnight service at St. Philip's Episcopal church for Christmas eve. Holy communion will be administered and special music.

Allen Thayer, cadet at West Point Military Academy arrived home Wednesday for a vacation with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Thayer. This is his first vacation since he entered West Point, a year and a half ago.

John H. Corbett, formerly Y. M. C. A. secretary of Windham county, a post which he resigned in September, is now in Florida, engaged in the real estate business.

Two fire trucks were called Wednesday afternoon to extinguish a chimney fire on Woodstock avenue.

Leonard Gilman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Gilman, a student at Assumption College, Worcester, is home for the holidays.

Milton Perrin of Woodstock has gone to Florida to join his brother, Howard Perrin, at Fort Landarsdale. He will also visit his mother and brother, Frank, at Orlando, before he takes up his work as a carpenter.

James Connors of Detroit, is spending the holidays with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. P. Connors. Mr. Connors is a master plumber and went west several years ago.

William B. Sherman of Phoenixville is a patient at the Day Kimball hospital.

STORM IN FRANCE NOW SHOWS SIGNS OF ABATING

PARIS, Dec. 23—(AP)—The storm which has swept over France seems to have fairly abated. The trans-Atlantic liner De Grasse was able to depart from Havre after the subsidence of the violent winds and heavy seas which held her in port for several days and which prevented a pilot from boarding the liner Savoie before she reached the protection of the breakwater.

The coast of Brittany felt the full force of the gale, and navigation from Douarenenez, an important fishing town, was interrupted for two days, while at Lorient, on the south coast, the gale lasted ten hours, causing much delay to trains and considerable damage to vessels moored in the harbor.

The violence of the tempest at Casablanca, from which the Italian aviator, Count Casagrande, hoped to take off Monday in his flight to South America, suspended all shipping operations on the Moroccan coast.

The interior of France did not escape the ravages of the storm. At Amiens, in Picardy, the monument erected to Jules Verne was smashed beyond recognition by a falling tree, melting snows swelled the Saone river and flooded the fields. Drivers of automobiles in many cases met with disaster. Because of the flooded lands or uprooted trees. Several of them were killed.

Since yesterday no ship has been able to leave Bordeaux or enter the Gironde, and much damage was done to the city.

Telegraphic communications has been restored to something approaching normal at Paris, but a number of important lines are still only partially functioning.

SAW COLLEGE BOYS WITH FEATHERS ON THEIR LEGS

NEW YORK, Dec. 23—(AP)—Sailors on the Fort Victoria plying between New York and Bermuda, have seen many curious specimens of Flora and Fauna, but they stood aghast today before the latest phenomenon of the animal kingdom—college boys with feathers on their legs.

When Dame Fashion rules that "Oxford bags" were "what the well-dressed college legs will wear" she also banished garters from the campus calf. Students at Princeton bowed to the decree with enthusiasm and no official protest was raised by the faculty itself until a few days prior to the departure of the college songbirds for a concert tour in Bermuda. Then it was ruled that the correct costume for the concert stage, so far as Princeton students went, included garters.

And so today 58 Princeton singers boarded the Fort Victoria wearing socks made sagless by precisely 116 of the prescribed garters. But just to add a touch of originality to dull convention they had rolled their "Oxford bags" above the knee and in every garter was stuck a frill of hen feathers by way of adornment. The plumage of course was orange and black, the college colors.

STEAMSHIP PRISCILLA SMASHED ONE SIDE WHEEL

NEW YORK, Dec. 23.—(AP)—The steamship Priscilla of the Fall River line was temporarily put out of commission today, when, in mooting at her dock she struck a piling and smashed one of her side wheels. No one was injured.

NEW LONDON MAN FILED $1,000 BOND IN STAMFORD

STAMFORD, Conn., Dec. 23—(AP)—Louis Ranistella, of New London, refused a suspended jail sentence on conviction for transporting liquor after Judge Samuel Young had found that his statement was false that his father was dying, filed an appeal and furnished a bond of $1,000. This kept him out of jail. His case will come before the common pleas court unless the appeal is withdrawn.

CARRIER OF TYPHOID GERMS HAS DISAPPEARED

LANSING, Michigan, Dec. 23—(AP)—James Soper aged 70, sentenced to isolation by the state board of health charged with being a carrier of typhoid germs and a menace to public health is missing from the farm home near Lainsburg, where he was ordered detained. The aged farm laborer was held responsible for more than 20 cases of typhoid.

Mrs. Harry Drake, wife of the farmer into whose care Soper will be given by the state, did not know where he went.

According to Dr. R. M. Olin, state health commissioner, Soper, because of his advanced age, probably must spend his remaining years on the Drake farm. There is no known remedy to counteract that characteristic that makes him a constant carrier of typhoid germs.

ROBERT QUILLEN SOLD HIS PUBLICATION FOR ONE DOLLAR

GREENVILLE, S. C., Dec. 23—(AP)—Preference for the home town citizen was shown today by Robert Quillen humorist-publisher, who sold his paper, the Fountain Inn Tribune, for the stipulated price of one dollar to W. W. Kellett of that place.

Quillen, who recently erected a memorial to one, was besieged with offers by telephone and telegraph, many coming from distant points, but he let the newspaper go, lock, stock and barrel," as he had advertised, to Kellett.

The new owner will continue the publication, while Quillen will devote his time to paragraphing the feature writing.

THE TIDE IS TURNING

Of no small significance is the action of Senator Pepper of Pennsylvania in abandoning his stand against the court of international justice, casting aside his plan for a world court and announcing his support to the adherence of the United States to the world court as proposed under the Harding-Hughes-Coolidge plan.

Senator Pepper has not been the king pin of the opposition to the court, but he has been contributing much comfort to the enemy. As long as he insisted upon the Pepper plan he was against the administration's plan. He was doing quite as much hard for those who were fighting any plan as he was for his own and he has apparently come to or been brought to the conclusion that he was making a mistake, that there was no excuse for the attitude he was taking that a mountain was being made of a molehill and that it was time to get down to business and do something constructive in behalf of an object for which this country has long argued.

Senator Pepper has decided to let common sense prevail. He is no longer willing to lend his effort to splitting hairs but on the contrary will devote his endeavors to getting somewhere instead of putting obstructions in the way. He has apparently given due weight to the opinions of men who stand high in the eyes of the country.

The change in the attitude of the senator from the Keystone state is no doubt indicative of the feelings of others who have stood in much the same position concerning the world court. It is to be expected that it will have its influence, and particularly so after it is realized on what slight ground Senator Borah, the arch opponent of the court, bases his stand.

Without a doubt it is a reaction that comes from a study of the sentiment of his constituents by Senator Pepper, or an appreciation of the feeling that is being voiced throughout the country that the old fight against the league of nations should not be allowed to deprive us of the benefits of the world court, under such safeguards as have been set forth.

MISSISSIPPI'S LYNCHING

With a grand jury investigation ordered concerning the lynching of a negro who had just been acquitted of a charge of murder in Mississippi, the judge of the court acted promptly and commendably. This is a case where those concerned should be given the penalty fitting the crime. It is one of the most flagrant displays of race feeling that has come to light in a long time and reflects the greatest discredit to the state of Mississippi until those involved are fittingly punished.

While strong disposition to indulge in mob rule and to lynch merely on suspicion has prevailed for a long time in the south, the lynching record for the last year had caused those fighting the lynching evil to believe that it might be but a few years before the no-lynching year would arrive. That is certainly a remote possibility as long as the Mississippi sentiment is allowed to go unrestrained.

Here was a case where the negro was not only lynched on suspicion but after he had been brought before a court and as the result of the evidence produced he had been found not guilty. Thus an innocent man under the laws of that state was deliberately murdered with malice aforethought.

Such a disgraceful and cowardly act harks back to the savages. Organizations have met and demanded an investigation of the highhanded murder. It is only reasonable that indignation should run strong in the state which must bear the stain of such a blot, but it remains to be seen what effect the grand jury inquiry and the other investigations will produce. Conditions are bad enough when an accused person is denied a hearing, but the situation seems next to hopeless, when after a trial and an acquittal, lynch law is brought into operation and terminates the life of a human being. Unless public sentiment in Mississippi rises to the point of making an example of those responsible there could be no better argument for the enactment of the proposed federal anti-lynch law. The better element of Mississippi should do something more than blush over the acts of the lynching element.

SOME TIMELY ADVICE

While the district attorney of New York is declaring that all but one per cent. of the liquor today is poisonous, the director of the bureau of vital statistics in New York is likewise calling attention to the need of avoiding the home made hard liquor.

It has not been forgotten how, a few years ago at Christmas time, many through the Connecticut valley lost their lives by drinking liquor that was poisonous, and there have been many instances since that time to demonstrate the danger in the liquor which the New York director of vital statistcis points out.

It hasn't as yet been shown that either Attorney Banton or Director Guilfoyle are bone dry, or that in issuing their warnings they are talking as prohibition advocates. They are interested in the protection of humanity against the hidden perils in the 'hooch" of the present day.

Dr. Guilfoyle believes that the least danger is to be found today in home made wines or in beer if it can be obtained. He declares that imported whiskey, if there is any assurance that it is imported is not likely to leave any worse effects than a headache, even though it is "green". But when it comes to home distilled liquor his advice is to "shun it as you would the plague. An inexperienced distiller will get a death-dealing dose of fusel oil into his product about two times out of five, and will get enough fusel oil four times out of five to be harmful if not fatal."

On the eve of the holiday there is advice contained in such a statement that costs nothing, but it is certainly worth heeding. With the horrible concoctions that are being disposed of these days it is folly to disregard such warnings. They come as the result of experience and investigation. They are offered for the purpose of prevention and considering the fact that there is often a disposition to accept most anything in the way of a drink on a holiday a word to the wise should be sufficient.

CONSERVING RUBBER

In connection with the coal situation there are those who have advised, "Stop wasting coal and sift the ashes."

Secretary Hoover has much the same advice to offer in regard to the rubber situation by which the people of this country are being made to pay something like two thirds of a billion a year above normal.

His advice concerning the rubber situation is "Patch old tires and save rubber." By so doing, or by the practice of economies, he believes there can be a reduction of 25 per cent. in our consumption of rubber without decreasing the use of our cars a single mile.

We have been so in the habit of discarding old automobile shoes and tubes that it is almost second nature to do so. Quantities of them have been thrown away because under low priced rubber it was not profitable to undertake to reclaim the rubber in them. But the situation has changed. Rubber has gone skyhigh and that which was once being thrown away can now be profitably reworked. It likewise pays to have a tire patched or a shoe repaired where it would have been laughed at a few years ago. We have got to the point where there is a chance to stop the waste that has been going on. We have been brought to a realization of what we were doing by the high price of rubber. We squirm at the advance but when it is pointed out how we can do something to escape a quarter of our rubber bills it seems to be time for a general participation in the good work. A chance to do something for ourselves ought to be worth considering.

ANOTHER POLAR FLIGHT

Because one has failed in any big undertaking does not mean that others will be discouraged and refuse to try.

In the past year efforts have been made by Amundsen and MacMillan to use the airplane in reaching the pole and exploring the polar regions. The result were not satisfactory. There was not accomplished all that was sought and in the case of the former fears were entertained that he was lost. Both explorers have indicated that they would not employ the airplane in such efforts again.

But that doesn't mean that others will be deterred from trying their luck. They have the benefit of the experience of these explorers and that will be used to the best advantage, so that no great surprise will be manifested at the announcement of Stefansson that he is to head a committee that will arrange a flight across the pole to be headed by Captain Wilkins who accompanied Stefansson on his last trip.

Crossing the polar region in the air means flying no greater distance than has been done at other points, but it is to be realized that the advantage of having vessels giving information is not to be expected in the far north and it is going to be decidedly different from flying over this country for a similar distance. Such attempts are going to be made, however, until some one succeeds. There is no minimising of the risk for it exists in large measure and those who set forth on any such undertaking know well in advance what to expect both as to climate and landing conditions, to say nothing of storms and the lack of repair and fueling stations. It is an effort which only a small number would care to participate in.

FROM LUCILE'S DIARY

When I dropped in to see Lillian Drews yesterday I remarked to her that I had noticed that the apartment two floors beneath hers was vacant. I asked her why she did not move into it.

"It would save you carrying little John up all the stairs," I said.

"Jack and I did speak of it, but he said that he would feel safer about us when he is away if we were not in the first flat."

"So," I laughed, "for a whim of his you're condemned to hoisting that darling by weighty infant up the stairs every time you take him out. Aren't husbands funny? Just as if any one were going to run away with Jack's wife and child?

"Our landlord asked me this morning," she replied, "what we had decided to do, for he is expecting some tenants from the country tomorrow for one or the other of these flats. They don't care which. I told him that we would stay where we are. I suppose it's the best thing to do."

"I don't think so at all, Lillian. It would be much better for you and Johnny to be accessible to the street, instead of being cooped up here. You should both get out and have all the fresh air you can. I'll wager that the main reason Jack has for not moving is a dislike for the confusion. Men detest anything that disturbs them."

"Oh, Jack isn't like that, Lucile. He always thinks of my comfort first. If he thought that I really wished to move he wouldn't make the slightest objection."

"Then why don't you move today and surprise him? You can get the janitor to do the heavy lifting and I'll help you carry the lighter things. It will be just a lark," I said.

In no time at all we had the place dismantled and the moving under way. I felt that I was doing Lillian a real kindness, for I think she has got into a way of giving into Jack too much, and I felt that this little demonstration of independence would be wholesome for him, so I worked with vim.

"Heavens!" gasped Lillian about 4 in the afternoon. "Do you think we shall ever get this place in order tonight? The way things are just dumped around here looks hopeless. Aren't you hot and tired, Lucile?"

"Yes," I replied, "I'm a little weary I'll run out and get some ice cream. That will refresh us."

It was so good to be out in the fresh air after all the dust and turmoil that I took a little walk before purchasing the ice cream. When I did return with it I was astonished to find Lillian sitting on a roll-up mattress with baby John in her arms. She was the picture of despair.

"Why, what's all this gloom?" I asked cheerily.

"We have to move back upstairs tonight, or we'll lose our old flat," she answered, weepingly. "Jack's gone out janitor won't work another stroke. Oh, janitr won't work another stroke. Oh, dear, I never was in such a mess and Jack is wild."

"Why?" I inquired with dignity.

"Because of all this horrible upset. Lucile, the apartment here is one room smaller than ours upstairs, and we couldn't possibly get along with so little space, and that's the reason we couldn't find spaces to put things. Jack says he knew all the time that it was smaller and he thought of course, that I did, and I really ought to have noticed it, and I never thought for a minute that I had the ghost of an idea of moving. He says he can't imagine what in the world put it into my head today so suddenly," and she looked at me accusingly.

"Well, dear, it's too bad that we did go to all the trouble of moving down here if you aren't going to stay put. But as you know just where everything belongs in your old flat, it won't take you long to get back to normalcy," I said consolingly, with a little laugh, for the situation was amusing. "I'm afraid I can't stay to help you on the return trip, because I have a dinner engagement and should be running along right now. I—"

"No, Lucile, don't stay to help any more," said Jack, who suddenly appeared with a slim youth in tow. "I think you have done your bit for one day."

His glance and tone were both so sardonic that I joyously reflected as I walked home that Jack had married poor, little reckless Lillian instead of me.—Chicago News.

From Small Beginnings

Anton Bruckner, Who Taught Himself Music

"I never had the chance to learn to play well! You see, I took only a few lessons, and then I gave it up. But pepole say that if I had kept on I might have made a first class player."

Well, there was Anton Bruckner, who lived over in Austria less than a hundred years ago. In 1924 the people who love organ music, and who delight in symphonies and masses and requiems, may celebrate the one hundredth anniversary of the birth of Anton Bruckner, one of the greatest organists and one of the greatest composers of organ music. Anton Bruckner came before the world in a most dramatic manner.

In the town of Linz in Austria there was open a place for an organist. The authorities announced that the place would be given to the man who could play the organ best. Many celebrated musicians came and played—men who had years of training under the best masters. Then there stepped forward young Anton Bruckner. He was nobody at all. He had had no master worth the mention. His father and mother had died, leaving him to the mercies of a selfish world.

The lonely boy liked music as he liked life. He actually picked up the art of playing. Then he set himself to it, and, without much help, mastered the organ. He was unknown, poor, friendless. He won the competition, for no one could play better than the celebrated musicians who had come. He studied more and lo! he became the organist for the Emperor up in Vienna. The year went on, and before he died, in 1896, at the age of 72 he had traveled through Europe, playing his own great compositions. His music arose in cathedrals. His symphonies delighted great audiences. He had taught himself, and he had made himself a master! Why try to excuse shortcomings by saying that you never had a chance to do better. The chance lies in yourself and in outward circumstances!

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

The Rev. Dr. Charles Stelzle, who declares that the United States is facing a most critical situ regarding prohibition, is a prohibition leader of national reputation and an authority on labor subjects. He is a native of New York and began his career as a mechanic. Becoming interested in religious work, he entered the Presbyterian ministry and held pastorates in Minneapolis and New York city, all the time specializing in service that kept him in touch with organized labor and with the artisan element. Then he resigned the pastorate and began a career that has continued to be one of adviser and special investigator for some of the largest social movements of the time supported by the Protestant churches of the country. In some respects he has been the most important personal link between the churches and the wage earners.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

UNIMAK

While America faces a coal shortage this winter prospectors in the interior of Alaska are anxiously awaiting the end of summer-like weather, so the rivers may freeze and they can make their way out. Unusually high temperatures for November have followed the reported activity of Mount Shishaldin, a volcano on Unimak Island.

"Unimak Island, the largest of the Aleutian 'stepping-stones,' is a focus of volcanic activity second only to the Katmai district, scene, in 1912, of one of the greatest volcanic eruptions the world has known," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society. "Although it has an area only a little larger than Rhode Island, so many craters occur on Unimak Island that there is often a great deal of confusion as to the location of the various eruptions reported.

"Mount Shishaldin, the peak recently reported active, is the most striking and beautiful of the eleven major craters of the island. It has one of the most nearly perfect cones in the world, seeming to float suspended in the air above its cloud-girt base. Because of its white symmetry it has been called the most formidable rival of the celebrated Fujiyama. Fortunate, however, is the visitor who has seen this Alaskan queen in all her beauty, for most of the year Unimak, and the rest of the Aleutians, are enveloped in a heavy blanket of fog and low-lying clouds.

"Despite Unimak's size and its separation from the mainland 'panhandle' of Alaska by only a narrow strip of water, it is of little importance. There are no good harbors around its shores and only one settlement, Cape Alsit Village, is listed.

"Cod fishing on the great banks to the south of the island, which are similar to those of Newfoundland and the mining of small quantities of sulphur and pumice stone are the principal industries. The inhabitants are mostly the remnants of the original native tribes found here by the Russians in the 18th century.

"There is no tourist trade, partly because there are no accommodations for them, but mainly because the beauties of the island can be seen to advantage with binoculars on shipboard. West coast steamers bound for Nome and other places on the Bering Sea, or for the Arctic Ocean, pass almost around the island, for the narrow strait separating it from the mainland is not as safe as Unimak Pass, the strait between it and the rest of the Fox group.

"Like its sister islands Inimak is in general desolate and scraggy along its rocky, grass-covered lower slopes. It is treeless, and, except for its heavy rainfall and fogs, has a delightful climate. Summers in Unimak are cooler than places farther north, while in winter the weather is milder than that of Tennessee or Kentucky, 20 degrees of latitude farther south. The warm Japan Current, which sweeps up the coast of Asia and around the Aleutians, gives it a January average of 30 degrees above zero.

"Grasses of all kinds grow in abundance on the lowlands all year round but the climate is too damp to mature grain. Although the soil is rich, being composed of a vegetable mold mixed with volcanic ash, the land is rugged and there are no places where farms of any size can be made. Small though the island is, the interior has never been thoroughly explored, and reports of a lake of sulphur in solution there have never been confirmed.

"Unimak and other islands of the Aleutian chain, believed to be the route by which man first migrated to the Western Hemisphere, should be better known to the world at large, for they are on the shortest route between our northwestern states and Japan. The great expanse of the Pacific and the curvature of the earth places Yokohama almost due northwest of Seattle, if one follows the most direct path.

"The American World Flyers remember Unimak as part of one of the most difficult stages in their globe-circling trip. Port Moller, the community to which Martin made his way on foot after his plane crashed, is about 150 miles farther east. The district presented the same pitfalls for aviators as Unimak; conical peaks and sharp ridges rising suddenly out of dreary fog-hidden tundras and marshes. Portage Bay, where a forced landing was made, is on the mainland opposite Kodiak Island, but is similar to the few indentations of Unimak's shoreline, with rocky cliffs and treacherous sand shoals.

"The Aleutians, however, have an added handicap in the 'willie-waws,' cyclonic winds peculiar to the region and probably attributable to the meeting of the cold winds from the north and the warm breezes from the Japan current.

"In addition to Mt. Shishaldin, Unimak has several other exceptional peaks. Pogromni Volcano, the mile-high sentinel of Unimak pass in the western part of the island, today is but the broken shell of a vast crater which is said to have 'burst' in 1795. Other violent eruptions are reported between 1827 and 1830. Lately it has been a very well behaved volcano. A thin, slow wisp of smoke is a constant reminder, however, of its lurid past. The Isanotsky Peaks are credited with a violent eruption within the last century, but, as is the case with so much of the rest of the history of the island, there is no confirmation. Their appearance suggests a long period of erosion rather than frequent activity."

Stories That Recall Others

A Half Stew

On a crispy morning he approached the restaurant with his mind made up to have an oyster stew. Going inside he said to the waitress: "A half-stew please."

"When the steaming plate reached me I saw the girl had certainly brought me a 'half stew' as six halves were floating about instead of six whole oysters," said Jimmy in telling about it.

More Lost It

Harry tells this story as if he was certain he was right:

"My wife and have just resumed diplomatic relations," he confided. "Recently we were looking at some statuary when we came across a draped but headless woman.

"'Where is her head?' my wife asked.

"'Oh, she's a woman and has lost it,' I replied unthinkingly."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Casting Bread On the Water.

Mr. Editor: Those of your readers who can possibly do so, will be helping a grand good cause by enclosing 25 cents and a Christmas post card in an envelope directed to Edward Randall, The Haven, Abington, Conn. Let's make the Christmas of this poor unfortunate man an interesting if not a merry one.

A hopeless invalid nearing the end of his funds, as a fitting mark for your overflow of Christmas good cheer.

Perhaps you may not all be as lucky as I, but you'll feel better anyway. I had just finished directing a letter inclosing a one dollar bill to him from my family, when my wife handed me a letter fresh from the post office. Part of the letter was: "You have probably forgotten that I owe you $5, but I haven't so, send it along with this Christmas card."

That's what I call casting bread on the water, for it was many years ago I parted company with that $5, and most surely forgot to kiss it good bye so long ago. I cannot remember the date.

I mention this as in my long life I have never yet been able to give anything for a worthy cause without its return many fold.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. THAMES RIVER REPORT GIVEN TO COMMITTEE

A report from General Harland Taylor, chief of engineers, favoring the expenditure of $350,000 to improve the Thames river, was received Tuesday by the house rivers and harbors committee at Washington.

The report before the committee recommends a modification of the existing Thames river project to provide for a channel 200 feet wide, with increased width at bends, and eighteen feet deep at low water, at an estimated cost of $350,000, with $20,000 annually for maintenance.

This was recommended by the local engineer who however, submitted three alternative projects, one for sixteen, another for eighteen and a third for twenty foot depth at respective estimated costs of $159,000, $253,000 and $420,000. The division engineer was doubtful of the cost estimates and favored an increase in until figures which would raise the cost of the eighteen foot channel to $350,000.

He does not believe that the benefits resulting either from more economical movement of bulk commodities or from the possibilities of further package freight would be enough to justify the necessary federal expenditures and recommended against the improvement. The board of engineers, however, concurred with the district engineer as to the advisability of understanding the work and type of channel and agreed with the division engineer as to cost.

"After due consideration of the above mentioned reports," General Taylor states, "I concur in the views of the board. The present project from Allyns Point to Norwich was adopted many years ago at a time when the size and type of carriers was quite different from that now prevailing. Under present conditions its depth is insufficient for the economical movement of such bulk commodities as coal and lumber or for the operation of modern Sound steamers.

"In spite of the handicap of insufficient depth, the locality has built up a very considerable commerce which while it decreased during the war and succeeding years, reached in 1923 a tonnage equal to that of 1914 and a value larger than ever reported. The city of Norwich is an important industrial and business center and distributing point.

"In view of this fact and of the very large prospective savings, the United States is justified in revising the project of accord with present day conditions."

The federal government has provided a channel thirty-three feet deep and 600 feet wide in the Thames river up to New London with a subsidiary channel along the waterfront of that city, a channel twenty feet deep and 200 feet wide for six miles from New London to Allyn's Point, a distance of six miles, and a channel fourteen feet deep and 200 feet wide to Norwich.

The district engineer estimated that an adequate channel would result in a saving of 50 to 75 cents per ton on southern coal and of a total of $20,000 a year on lumber and pulpwood. He also estimated an increase in the annual package freight traffic as a result of the contemplated improvement of at least 20,000 tons with a minimum saving of $1.20 to $1.40 a ton.

SEEKS $3,000 DAMAGES FOR INJURIES IN FALL

Martial Russi, Voluntown, is made defendant in a $3,000 damage action, brought against him by Lafayette Albino, Voluntown, and which was filed Wednesday with the clerk of the superior court in this city. The action is the result of injuries sustained by Mr. Albino in a fall at Mr. Russi's store.

The store is located near the corner of Lillibridge avenue and the main highway in Voluntown and the accident happened on December 26, 1924. Mr. Albino claims in his complaint, that he had been in Mr. Russi's store about 7.30 o'clock that evening to transact business with him. Leaving the store he walked across the veranda, raised above the level of the ground, and in the darkness walked off the veranda, falling to the ground.

The plaintiff alleges that he received internal and external injuries, that the bones in his right foot and ankle were injured and that the ankle is permanently impaired. Negligence on the part of the defendant in not having the veranda properly lighted is alleged.

LOCAL POSTOFFICE ESTABLISHES RECORD IN HANDLING HOLIDAY MAIL

Unless the incoming mail today (Thursday) is larger than is anticipated every parcel and letter received at the local postoffice will be delivered before Christmas, making a record unsurpassed at the local office in a number of years.

Hard work by the entire force at the postoffice, coupled with cooperation and willingness to assist has made this possible. Wednesday afternoon every package received before 3 o'clock was sent out and that department was caught up. The mail deliveries, although extremely heavy, have also been kept up and it is hoped that everything will be delivered before Christmas day as there will be no delivery Friday, except for special delivery matter. Special delivery parcels and letters will be delivered as usual according to a bulletin received from headquarters.

An idea of the vast amount of work done at the local office is seen when the figure of 300,000 two cent stamps sales in December, is noticed. Over 100,000 of these stamps have been sold during the past few days. Practically all of these stamps have been used on single letters, meaning that approximately 300,000 letters have been handled at the local office during the past month, the great portion of them during the past week, besides other letters sent from other sources, stamps having been procured outside the postoffice. These are outgoing letters and parcels alone, the incoming being about as heavy.

Incoming mail was heavier Wednesday than it was on Tuesday but the men speeded up in their work and rushed the mail through. The incoming mail handled at the windows was much smaller during the day and this relieved three men from that duty allowing them to help on sorting and sacking the letters, thus keeping up with the mails. Rural mail is also caught up and all packages will go out today.

Wednesday night there were thousands of letters in the office, to be mailed away, or to be faced, stamped, sorted and set up for the carriers for morning delivery, but the men were busy with them and had them all faced and stamped, and many of them sorted and set up for the carriers before they left for home.

The changes in the office had much to do with the keeping up with the mails, there being more room in which to work and a better cooperation between departments. Postmaster Casper K. Bailey, speaking of the situation Wednesday night, said that practically everything in the office would be delivered Thursday, unless the incoming mail on that day was larger than is anticipated.

Local people have been fairly good about mailing early, he said, although there are a few who still think they can mail a package Thursday and have it delivered the same day. People should bear in mind that no deliveries on Christmas day mean that there is one less day for delivery and if they want to help the office they must mail two days earlier than in the past.

Few articles were received in damaged condition this year and practically all were in condition for immediate delivery, thus showing that people are addressing plainly and tying securely, in compliance with postal instructions.

DENIES BUS ROUTE THROUGH WINDHAM COUNTY

The public utilities commission gave out Wednesday decisions on several applications for bus routes on which hearings had been held.

The application of the Waterbury and Mildale Tramway company for a certificate to operate jitney or motor bus service between Mildale and Hartford via Plantsville, Southington, Plainville, Farmington and West Hartford is denied. The commission finds that the granting of a certificate to the New England Transportation company, subsidiary of the New Haven road, to operate over the route creates a situation which does not show that public necessity and convenience required the granting of the application of the Waterbury and Mildale company. For the same reason the application of the Interstate Busses corporation for a certificate to operate a route between Hartford and Providence via East Hartford, Manchester, Bolton, Andover, Willimantic, Cedar Corner, Brooklyn, Danielson, East Killingly, to the Rhode island state line is denied.

The commissioner has decided to issue a certificate to the New England Transportation company authorizing the operation of a motor bus service between Quinnebaug to the Connecticut-Massachusetts state line, on a schedule subject to the approval of the commission. The amendment for an alternative route between Quinnebaug and Putnam via Woodstock was not filed in time to be considered.

The application of the Interstate Busses corporation over a route through Windham county from Putnam to the Massachusetts state line was denied.

The application of George J. Gary for a route from Quinnebaug to the Rhode Island state line was granted.

NO MIDNIGHT MASS TO BE PERMITTED THIS YEAR

Rt. Rev. Bishop John J. Nilan has issued orders to the pastors of this Diocese of Hartford prohibiting midnight Christmas mass.

Last year the Bishop granted the extraordinary privilege of this service on account of the opening of the Holy Year.

There had been no midnight mass for a quarter of a century up to 1925, the previous permission having been granted at the opening of the new century, when midnight masses were celebrated on New Year's eve, to usher in 1900.

In the Norwich churches Christmas day there will be masses at the same houses as on Sunday, with the addition of an early service, which will be at 5:30 in St. Patrick's and at 6 in St. Mary's Memorial church. The other hours in both parishes are 7:30, 9 and 10:30.

LOCAL AUTO COLLIDES WITH PARKED MACHINE

An Essex coach owned by Herman Mueller of Merchants avenue and driven by his son, Charles O. Mueller, received a damaged left rear mudguard Wednesday evening, when a machine driven by Charles Podziewski of this city collided with it while it was parked by the side of the highway. The accident happened near the Taftville bridge.

It is said that Podziewski, who was driving a Studebaker coupe, was blinded by the glare of an approaching machine and did not see Mueller's car. Mr. Podziewski's machine received a bent front axle and a damaged right front mudguard.

ST. PATRICK'S CHILDREN HAVE HOLIDAY PROGRAMME

The annual Christmas party for the 450 children of St. Patrick's parochial school was held at the school on Wednesday morning. Each room had its programme of carols and recitations and following the programme, the children assembled in the school hall, where gifts of candy, cake and fruit were distributed to them under the direction of the rector, Rt. LOCAL TEXTILE CONDITIONS SHOW AN IMPROVEMENT

That textile conditions are improving in Norwich is shown by this months' issue of the Industrial Employment bulletin of the federal department of labor. With regard to Norwich the bulletin says:

Norwich—While part-time schedules continue in effect in the textile mills, the number of released workers was somewhat reduced during November. The local supply of building tradesmen is adequate for the demand. Little call for farm labor at this season.

Conditions in other nearby cities are shown as follows:

Willimantic—There is still a surplus of workers in the thread industry, but the number of unemployed is gradually being reduced. All plants are running. Building activities under way keep resident craftsmen well engaged. Very little demand for farm help at present.

New London—All plants are running and there is very little unemployment evident. Building activities furnish work for several hundred men.

General—All industries throughout the state are running to full capacity and with full working quotas, in one section there is a shortage of bricklayers. Scarcity of skilled workers in the metal trades was reported from four difefrent points. Increased activity in the hat industry noted during November. Building programs all through the state afford work for a large number of men. In one section only was there a shortage of farm help reported.

MAY HAVE BUREAU IN NEW LONDON

It is probable that the smokeless coal service bureau will open up a station in New London according to Charles L. Wright, director of the Hartford bureau.

Members of the bureau are giving talks in other cities and towns, explaining the use of the low volatile, semi-bituminous coal which Governor Trumbull and the mayors of various cities have recommended as a satisfactory substitute for anthracite coal during the shortage of the latter.

The governor has advised the public to lay in a six weeks' supply of fuel at once, Wright says, to avoid possible suffering in case of traffic tie-ups due to storms when dealers' stocks might not be able to meet the sudden demand.

COMMUNITY CHRISTMAS TREE LIGHTED UP

The community Christmas tree erected at Union square by the Norwich Chamber of Commerce, the gas and electrical dept., and Eaton Chase Co., co-operating with the chamber, shone forth in all its glory for the first time Wednesday night. The wiring has been completed and the varied colored electric lights, strung from the tree across the square, were turned on after dark, remaining lighted throughout the evening. It is the most attractive community tree the city has yet had.

CHRISTMAS GREETINGS FROM HEALTH DEP'T

To one and all a Merry Christmas! Station H-e-a-l-t-h is "on the air" says this week's issue of the health bulletin of the Connecticut State Department of Health. Since 1878, when this station first broadcast in a wee small voice, the message has been growing in volume and importance until today, 1925, the air is filled with health.

Every corner of the state is now "listening in." Health messages are coming from every direction, now close at hand from health officers, nurses, teachers; now more remote from state wide and nation wide leaders. But the voices are loud and clear. They ring out with assurance that health is free to all. They give the secret by which health may be attained. They reveal the methods by which health can be restored. They stimulate a desire for health.

And the response to these voices is everywhere apparent. A health atmosphere has been created. More and more people are 'listening in"!

So station H-e-a-l-t-h extends to all health leaders the best wishes of the season and declares with pride that it is through the efforts of each that this has been the healthiest year Connecticut as ever known.

On Tuesday, December 29, a conference for swimming pool operators will be held by the state department of health, at the Hotel Bond, Hartford. The meeting is for the purpose of discussing methods of improvement in the operation and construction of swimming pools. The morning conference will begin at 10.00 o'clock.

STATE SPENT $20,000 ON THAMES RIVER BRIDGE

A total of $934,008.19 was spent for the maintenance of trunk line bridges, draw bridges and ferries in Connecticut by the state during the last fiscal year, a statement prepared by the state highway department shows. The chief bridge expenditure was on the Middletown-Portland drawbridge over the Connecticut River, where $128,160.35 was spent for reconstruction of the structure which had been found to be in a generally weakened condition. Other expenditures for salaries, labor, supplies and maintenance made the total disbursement on this bridge alone to $174,231.91.

On other bridges the expenditures were as follows for the twelve months.

Saybrook, Lyme Bridge $21,076.29; Haddam-East Haddam bridge $7,860.57, Thames River Bridge $20,680.93, Milton-Stratford Bridge $5,350.98, Groton-Stonington Bridge $2,804.60, Niantic Bridge $1,897.32, Westport Bridge $2,024.94.

For the three ferries over the Connecticut River, the expenses were as follows:

Chester-Hadlyme, $13,932.85; Glastonbury-Rocky Hill $4,562.77; Bissell's Ferry, Windsor Locks $222.43.

The statement also shows that for maintenance of numerous other bridges on trunk line highways, $72,471.56 was spent and on state-aid road bridges the expenses aggregated $23,436.78.

MCTIGUE GIVEN JUDGES' DECISION IN FURIOUS BOUT WITH FLOWERS

NEW YORK, Dec. 23—(AP)—Mike McTigue, New York, former world's light heavyweight champion and Fidel La Barba, new flyweight titleholder, battered their way to victory in two furiously fought ring battles at a Christmas fund show in Madison Square Garden tonight.

Discarding his usual defensive style to trade punches in terrific exchanges throughout the final match of ten-rounds, McTigue was awarded a judges' decision over Tiger Flowers, Atlanta negro, which drew mingled boos and shouts of approval from a throng of 15,000 spectators. LaBarba's triumph, a clean-cut verdict over Lew Perfetti, New York bantam, was more impressive. After a sharp attack in the first two rounds by Perfetti, LaBarba rallied strongly in the last four rounds, which found his foe dangerously near a knockout at the close.

McTigue was the target for a vigorous two handed offensive on the part of the southern battler, but he faced the assault cooly with terrific right hand hooks to the body which repeatedly doubled up Flowers. The latter persistently maintained his attack, however, and McTigue appeared to be weak at the end, while both men bled from cuts over their eyes.

Flowers went to the front in he first rounds, backing McTigue around the ring with sweeping lefts and rights to the head.

In the fifth, the former champion cut loose a counter offensive, directing his fire at the negro's body and compelling the latter to hold and cover. Both men received their cuts over the eyes in the sixth, and the fighting thereafter was less vigorous. In the last two rounds, however, Flowers carried the fight to the New York man so strongly that many observers expected the rally would decide the battle in his favor.

Fighting without recognition at the hands of the New York state athletic commission as titleholder because he has not yet attained his majority, LaBarbara made a favorable impression in his first appearance here since his conquest of the former champion Frankie Genaro. The Los Angeles boy, whose title was not at stake in the match, rallied sensationally in the last two rounds after Perfetti had earned the honors in the first with a clever and effective jabbing attack. Pouring a terrific volley of lefts and rights into his foe in the sixth and final round LaBara not only clinched the decision, but won himself a tremendous ovation from the crowd.

LaBarba went to the canvass in the first round under a left hook, which caught him off balance in his own corner. He later had Perfetti in trouble repeatedly, however, from sweeping hooks to the stomach which almost floored him in the last minute.

LaBarba weighed 114; Perfetti 116.

George Godfrey, 223 pound negro heavyweight challenger of Leiperville Pa., outpointed Martin Burke, of New Orleans, in a second ten round contest, but failed to impress a crowd of 5,000 by his triumph. Burke weighing only 177 1-2 pounds and fighting purely on the defensive, escaped a knockout which had been anticipated by the throng and the ineffective efforts of the two men were booed throughout.

Ernie Jarvis, flyweight champion of England, boxed a fast draw with Izzy Schwartz, of New York, in the first of three ten-round bouts at a Christmas fund boxing show in Madison Square Garden. It was their second meeting in two weeks. Schwartz having won the first fight by a judges' decision.

ATTENDANCE IN AMERICAN LEAGUE FELL OFF IN 1925

CHICAGO, Dec. 23.—(AP)—The American League closed its second best year since its organization in 1925, President Ban Johnson said tonight in discussing the attendance at the American League games this year.

This season's mark fell some 68,000 short of the banner year, 1924, Mr. Johnson said, he did not reveal the figures. The only year which approached the 1925 figure was 1920, he said during which season it was thought that baseball would suffer because of the 1919 baseball scandal.

Most of the interest last season was due to the magnetism of the two flag contenders, the Washington Senators and the Philadelphia Athletics. Each of these clubs set a record by drawing about a million customers. The Athletics he said would have fared better had they not gone into a slump in August and dropped a dozen games in a row.

The work of the Chicago White Sox in the closing days of the campaign also tended to knock off the attendance. The injury of Manager Eddie Collins hurt the Chicago club, and attendance suffered as a consequence. Had Collins remained in the game, President Johnson said, last season, would have been the banner year of the junior circuit. Sunday postponements also tended to depress attendance. The only club to lose attendance was the Boston Red Sox, although they did not suffer a financial loss.

KAPLAN MUST STAY IN FEATHERWEIGHT CLASS

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—(AP)—The New York state athletic commission today denied permission to Louis (Kid) Kaplan of Meriden, Conn., world's featherweight champion, to engage in bouts with boxers of heavier divisions and exonerated Gene Tunney and Bartley Madden in connection with a complaint which attached suspicion to their heavyweight fight several months ago in St. Paul.

In refusing Kaplan's request, the board adhered strictly to its policy of requiring champions to confine their activities to their own classes, except where they engage in bouts with other titleholders. Kaplan contended through his New York representative, Scotty Montieth, that a dearth of 126-pound challengers would compel him to remain inactive in this state during the indoor season. This argument was considered insufficient by the board to warrant a departure from its rule.

Tunney and Madden were cleared the commission announced, because the charge that Madden had not given his best efforts in the bout was unsupported by sufficient evidence. On a complaint that Tunney's bout in Kansas City with Human Jack Herman last July was also staged under suspicious circumstances, an adjournment of sixty days was granted for the submission of additional evidence.

The board indicated doubt with regard to the charge by restoring Herman to eligibility. Both Herman and Madden were cleared out by Tunney.

Bobby Garcia, featherweight of Camp Holabird, Md., was suspended for thirty days for fouling Honeyboy Finnegan of Boston in a recent fight at Madison Square Garden.

NUTMEGS FIVE HAS STIFF SCHEDULE FOR NEXT WEEK

The Nutmegs basketball squad will have a busy week ahead according to the schedule mapped out for them. There will be three games in the next eight days and all with the best in these parts.

On Friday (Christmas) night at 7:30 at Parish hall, the Nordics of Taftville, will be met. Next Wednesday the Nutmegs travel to Baltic where they play the Bantams of that place in the preliminary game of that evening. On New Year's day the Nutmegs will meet the fast C. F. C. team, last year's city champs, at the "Y" gym in the afternoon.

The local quintet has come through its early season games with flying colors, winning two games in as many starts, the first from the Crescents and the second from the Vatlanta. Both of these teams while not having had its members play together had some good players in their rosters but they were able to do nothing against the Nutmeg's whirlwind attack.

Return games with all of the above teams will be played at the armory later in the season.

MINNESOTA TO BAR THE RABBIT PUNCH

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Dec. 23—(AP)—Barring of the "rabbit" punch in Minnesota rings has been decided on by the state boxing commission.

Use of hard hand bandages was canned. The fighters will be permitted to use only soft gauze bandages held by one wrapping of surgical adhesive tape. In the past an unlimited amount of black tire tape has been used to make their hands hard.

The commission will enforce a rule that out of town boxers must be on hand 72 hours before they are scheduled to appear in the rings. Promoters were ordered to have at least one substitute bout ready should a referee be forced to stop a fight because of stalling or in the event of a too one-sided match.

FAMOUS MATADOR TO SHOW HIS WARES IN TAMPA

TAMPA, Fla., Dec. 23—(AP)—Ralph Gomez, "El Gallo," said to be premier matador of Spain, has been engaged by the Cuban and Spanish clubs of Tampa to face the shaggiest and wildest bulls that can be brought here on New Year's day, officials of the two Latin-American clubs announced today.

Twenty-seven bulls have been purchased for the fight and are said to be on their way here from Mexico. With them will come eight matadors.

The Spanish national hero will be deprived of the sport of the final thrust in Tampa. The state and national laws forbid that he take the life of a bull.

The use of horses in the arean is also forbidden here, and the bull fighting will be done on foot, which officials say will be a spectacle calling for the display of extraordinary skill and courage.

Officials say that a demonstration of how the final thrust is made, however, will not be lacking.

A "spring sword" which is harmless to the bull will be used.

PRO OFFICIAL TO CALL FOR AN INVESTIGATION

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Dec. 23—(AP)—Officials of the National Professional Football league are investigating alleged implication of the Chicago Cardinals, a member of the league, in the professional football scandal in Chicago high schools.

In a statement tonight, Joe F. Carr president of the league declared he had about completed investigation of the Milwaukee-Cardinals game and would announce findings and penalties the latter part of the week.

Mr. Carr has been out of touch with the situation, he said tonight, owing to his recent illness. He has been away from his desk since the middle of last month when he suffered an attack of appendicitis.

ROY FILLMORE FAVORS, THE THREE-CORNERED TOURNEY

Roy Fillmore, of the Aetna Alleys in discussing the plan of Frankie Barber, of Danielson, for a three-cornered tournament expressed himself as being very much in favor of a tournament to be held this winter. Mr Fillmore offered several suggestions among which was that Hallisey, of New London, be invited into the tourney, making it a four-cornered affair. He also spoke of the matter of prizes favoring a four-cornered tourney with a first and second money rather than a winner-ake-all basis.

The local bowler hopes that he, Barber and Dugas can get together and arrange a tournament. Dugas is the only one that has not expressed an opinion on the suggestion of Mr. Barber.

OFFICIALS ELECTED IN WESTERLY BASKETBALL LEAGUE

At a meeting held in Capt. John F. Datson's room at the Rhode Island state armory in Westerly on Monday evening additional officials were elected by the captains and representatives of the various basketball teams which are making plans for the starting of a basketball league to play under amateur rules. Capt. Datson was elected vice president of the league and Herman P. Driggs, who acts as referee and is also secretary was elected treasurer in the meeting which lasted over two hours plans were talked over for the league formation and the adoption of a playing schedule. The lack of suitable playing balls to be available for basket ball games is proving somewhat of a handicap.

"LEAVE FOOTBALL ALONE" IS ADVICE OF R. C. ZUPPKE

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Dec. 23—(AP)—The present game of football is a good one and should be left as it is, Robert C. Zuppke, University of Illinois football coach, declared today. He will depart Saturday for New York to preside as president at the annual meeting of the National Association of Football Coaches.

"I am voicing just my personal view and not that of the association," said the coach. "However, I believe that many coaches are opposed to tinkering with the rules. Of course, the rules may need some clarifying and we will consider this on our program.

BIG MUNN TAKES THE COUNT IN FIRST ROUND

BALTIC, Dec. 23—Baltic overwhelmed the Westerly basketball five here tonight keeping their string of victories intact. The 32 to 17 score does not really show the nice work that the Baltic boys displayed. The outstanding player of the evening was Swanson who played a brilliant defense game and figured in the scoring at opportune times. Baltic was never in danger throughout the game. The summary:

FITZSIMMONS TO DO NOTHING UNTIL AFTER THE HOLIDAYS

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 22—(AP)—Floyd Fitzsimmons, boxing promoter who is here negotiating with Jack Dempsey for a title fight with Harry Wills, negro challenger, does not expect anything further to be done toward arranging the match until after Christmas.

"The fight will be held in September—that is definite," he said last night. "But there are arangements to be completed and it can't be done in a day."

He said that George Lauerman, whom he described as head of his Chicago syndicate of backers, is in the city and that negotiations are progressing without a hitch.

Referring to Governor Groesbeck's assertion that there would be no title fight in Michigan, the promoter lined up squarely with the governor, declaring that because of numerous obstacles he had never considered the state for the match.

PLAINFIELD TOWN TEAM WINS EASY VICTORY OVER TRI-CITY QUINTET

PLAINFIELD, Dec. 23—Plainfield kept its slate clean tonight at the Communit club here by defeating the Tri City collegians of Pittsburgh 54 to 31. This team does not play professional rules and was severely handicapped by these circumstances. Captain Fay of the visitors played with two broken fingers as their subs were limited because of the coach forbidding some of the men from playing. Gustafson showed some real basketball and outshone the rest of the team, scoring six baskets and a foul. The team was made up of three Grove City college men and two Cornwall-on-the-Hudson men. The decision of the Groce City coach was the reason why such a poor game was exhibited here tonight.

The Plainfield basketeers showed their usual good form, scoring 26 baskets during the fray. Normandin and Bissell took the high honors, scoring nine and seven baskets respectively. Harry Benson, star guard of the local team, was hurt in the first half and was replaced by "Red" Thornton.

At the last minute a telegram was received from Eddie Tryon that it would be impossible for him to take the trip on account of sickness. The lineup.

In the preliminary game the Plainfield Buddies defeated the Celtics from Taftville by the score of 22 to 20. Bromeley, a coming basketball star of the Buddies, brought the ball from his own basket through the five Celtic men and scored a basket several times. The crowd gave him a tremendous hand for this feat. In the last half the Celtics gained a little on the Buddies and tied the score 20 to 20. In the last few minutes Bromely shot the winning basket just before the game ended.

FOUR HIGH SCHOOL PLAYERS ARE BARRED FROM AMATEURS

CHICAGO, Dec. 23—(AP)—The professional football scandal of the Chicago high schools reached its climax tonight when the 24 members of the board of athletic control voted unanimously to debar permanently four Englewood High school boys from athletics. They admitted playing with a make-shift professional team supposed to represent Milwaukee, against the Chicago Cardinals on December 2, but they said they were told it was only practice and the game itself confirmed that belief.

The four boys—Charles Richardson William Thompson, Jack Daniels and James Snyder—constituted the backfield of the Englewood High school football team last fall. As far as school athletics is concerned, two have finished their high school careers, as they graduate by spring, but they were concerned about the board's decision on their amateur standing as it might effect their chances of making college teams.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

Ban Johnson, president of the American league, has announced that his circuit felt only 68,000 short of record attendance figures in 1925. Washington and Philadelphia each drew about 1,000,000 persons. Exact figures for the various clubs are withheld.

Jose Capablanca, world chess champion, says the game may be broadened in the next fifty years. By broadening, he means the production of a larger playing surface with two or more extra pieces for each player. Few have gained expertness handling the sixteen pieces alloted under the present rules.

Chicago loses the 1926 football game between the army and navy because it is one degree of latitude north of New York. The service teams have an agreement that no games shall be played north of New York or south of Baltimore. The limits east or west are not mentioned but they cannot go far to the eastward without getting wet.

Tennis stars who participated in a benefit exhibition in New York Saturday have been warned to play only under sanction of the United States Lawn-Tennis association hereafter. The situation, it was explained, arose from a misunderstanding.

Joe Moore and Charley Jewtraw will renew a skating rivalry of several years when they meet on the ice at Madison Square Garden early next month. Jewtraw retired from the sport two years ago to finish his education at Harvard.

Clas Thunberg, Finland's meteor of the ice, showed an especially long stride in his first workout in New York Tuesday after fifteen days on the Atlantic ocean. He expects to gain his best form in a few days.

The Metropolitan Golf association has set the following dates for its tournaments; amateur, June 9-12, at winged foot; open date undecided, at Salisburg; junior, June 30, July 1-2, at Cherry Valley.

Roland Todd, English welterweight will encounter Dave Shade of California in Madison Square Garden January 1. Sailor Friedman of Chicago and Tommy Freeman of Cleveland may meet on the same card.

Every Indiana university basket ball game this season has been sold out. Enough tickets have been disposed of to fill the gymnasium at each game.

Walter Hagen, professional golf champion, is going to make a golfing trip around the world next year. It will start with an invasion of the British Isles at the time of the British open and will include the French open, and other European tournaments available, in Ja. Japan, Australia and the Hawaiian Islands.

EXPANSION OF PLANS OF CONGRESSIONAL FARM BLOC

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—(AP)—The congressional farm bloc will not be content if the administration confines its program for solving the farmer's difficulty to the pending co-operative marketing measure.

Leaders from the western farm belt are preparing to wage a fight for some direct means of disposing of farm surplus through an export corporation.

Their plan apparently goes much further than any either President Coolidge or Secretary Jardine has been willing to approve. Both have expressed opposition to proposals involving price fixing or the buying and selling of surplus crops through a government agency. That the administration is considering the surplus crop problem, however, was disclosed last night with the announcement by Mr. Jardine that he intended to call a series of conferences with leaders in agriculture and economics to seek a solution through co-operative organizations of farmers.

Before any move is made in congress by the farm bloc, efforts will be made to get the support of President Coolidge for their idea. Senator Capper, republican, Kansas, one of the recognized leaders of the movement, declared today that they still "hoped to get President Coolidge behind legislation to create an export corporation."

POLICEMAN WOUNDED IN GUNFIGHT WITH ROBBERS

NEW YORK, Dec. 23.—(AP)—A gunfight with three robbers tonight sent a patrolman and a poultry dealer to the hospital with bullet wounds, while three other gunmen robbed a jewelry store of $10,000 in gems after the proprietor had saved $300,000 worth of stock by agility of thought and action.

The wounded men were Patrolman Edgar Cook, who was shot in the abdomen and reported in critical condition, and Harry Semmel, wounded in the thigh. Their three assailants, balked in their attempt to rob Semmel's east side poultry store, escaped.

The good memory and quick action of Folmer Prip, Nassau street wholesale jeweler, saved the greater part of his valuables when three armed men entered his eighth floor establishment.

Prip recognized one of the men as a visitor last week who had acted in a suspicious manner. He ran into a rear office and slammed the door of a safe containing $300,000 worth of jewelry. A moment later one of the men runing after him, knocked him unconscious with a pistol butt, while another robber beat Miss Roslyn Pollack, a clerk, into unconsciousness.

Seven other persons, one of them a customer, were tied hand and foot, and one of the employes was knocked down when he attempted to disarm his assailant. The men robbed the customer of $250, took $10,000 in gems from a small safe and, mingling with shopping crowds, escaped.

FOOD SECRETS VALUABLE

$1,650,000 PAID FOR ONE

A fortune awaits the lucky inventor of a new food, drink or relish.

No less than $1,650,000 was once paid in the open market for the recipe of Chartreuse, that delectable liquor whose secret was known only to the monks of Le Grande Chartreuse.

Expelled from France the fathers of this order were wise enough to take their jealously-guarded recipe with them. This "scrap of paper" originally consisted of a single sheet, but numerous additions and alterations, together with more detailed directions regarding the manufacture of their precious liquor, caused the parchment to grow eventually into a book containing 100 pages.

A goodly proportion of English breakfast bacon has been cured by the famous Brandenburg method. The secret of this process was purchased for $50,000 by an enterprising firm of Wiltshire bacon curers, and their outlay must have been returned to them many times over.

Worcester sauce was invented by a retainer serving in a large country house. Finding that his relish was appreciated by the family and their guests he sold his recipe for a few pounds to the original head of a famous sauce making firm.

Although this transaction took place 200 years ago, no variations has been made in the ingredients.

WHEN FRANK A MUNSEY BOUGHT WESTERLY PRESSES

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Dec. 23—The death of Frank A. Munsey in New York Tuesday recalls the fact that Westerly people profited indirected from Mr. Munsey's activities as a publisher, when he was the purchaser of Cottrell printing presses, built in Pawcatuck, for the printing of his magazines.

Charles P. Cottrell, president of the C. B. Cottrell and Sons company press works, stated Wednesday that he doubted if Mr. Munsey ever visited in Westerly although at the time of his business operations in New London, representatives of the Cottrell company often visited him there. One of the earliest magazine presses ever purchased by Mr. Munsey, said Mr. Cottrell, was a press which the Cottrell company had difficulty in disposing of to any publisher. This was at a time when his production of a 10 cent magazine created such a demand that it was with difficulty the mechanical end could keep up the ever increasing supply required. The circulation grew by such leaps and bounds that ten presses was the ultimate order from Publisher Munsey. Supplying this demand meant work for Westerly machinists.

Concerning Mr. Munsey's sudden determination to remove his printing plant from New London to New York, Mr. Cottrell said that Mr. Babcock of the printing press company was in New London at the time that a press had just been erected, when Mr. Munsey appeared and much to Mr. Babcock's surprise asked what the price would be for taking the press down, which presaged his return to New York city. Westerly workmen recalled that before sunrise the next morning parts of the press were on their way to be shipped to New York. When Mr. Munsey left the magazine field to become more active in newspaper publishing, his requirements for magazine presses diminished correspondingly.

In the Welch block in Westerly is located one of the chain of Mohican Market stores in which Mr. Munsey was supposed to be a heavy stockholder.

In an automobile collision Tuesday night about 11:30 o'clock, a Ford touring car, driven by Antonio Pucci of 244 Canal street, and a Cadillac sedan, owned and operated by Joseph Pickering, bumped at the junction of School street and Chester avenue. Pickering was alone at the time of the accident and Pucci was accompanied by Joseph Pucci and Pat. Pucci. Officer George H. Champlin investigated the accident. No one was injured.

FISHERS ISLAND

The churches on the island will celebrate Christmas with special programs confined to Christmas day, with the Catholic and Episcopal churches, whereas the Union chapel will hold service the Sunday following.

Rev. John Finn read early mass at 8:30 o'clock at Fort H. G. Wright Sunday and regular mass at Our Lady of Grace church with confessions before each mass. The Christmas tree celebration was at the Sunday school hour, 11 o'clock, when the children received their gifts. Three masses are planned for Christmas day.

At Forth H. G. Wright chapel regular Sunday school services were held at 9:30 o'clock and morning worship conducted by Chaplain J. Knox Bodel at 10:45 o'clock. Christmas Eucharist is to be held Friday morning.

Sunday school at the Fishers Island Union chapel was at 10 o'clock and the morning services at 11 o'clock, at which time the Rev. J. Warren Hastings spoke on Dickens' Christmas Carol. Wonderful Story was the choir's special selection. In the evening Mr. Hastings held the unusal Snuday night service for men in the lodging quarters of the workmen at the east end of the island, a work Mr. Hastings has taken up on his own initiation.

MANSFIELD CENTER

The Christmas sermon Sunday morning was preached by Rev. Mrs. Florence Jones There were Christmas anthems by the choir. The church was decorated with small pine trees, hemlock boughs and wreaths. The flowers were white chrysanthemums, given in memory of Evelyn Shippe Young, by her husband, parents and sisters.

The Sunday school and community Christmas tree and entertainment is to be held at the church this (Thursday) evening at 7:30.

The Every Member canvass of the First Congregational church will be conducted next Sunday, with the church meeting following on New Year's day.

The illustrated lecture, The Golden Rule, dealing with the work of the Near East Relief, was given at the church Friday evening, by Rev. T Hawthorne Jones.

The Ladies' Aid scieties of the Center and Hollow held a quilting party at the church Thursday. They tied three quilts. A hot dinner was served at noon.

Ready Just in Time

Who for the future doth prepare
Doth save himself a load of care.
—Paddy the Beaver.

Yowler the Bob Cat, kept away from the dam of Paddy Beaver. He kept away because he didn't dare to go over there again. Something or some one had struck him from behind as he crouched on a big, gray rock near the middle of that dam watching for a chance to catch an unsuspecting Beaver. Yowler had been both hurt and frightened, so frightened that on the instant he had jumped and landed in the water. As he scrambled out on the dam and then rapidly sneaked ashore he kept looking over his shoulder. But he neither heard nor saw any one. It was so mysterious that Yowler decided then and there that he didn't really want a Beaver dinner after all, and would keep away from there.

As for Hooty the Great Horned Owl, who had struck at Yowler's twitching stubby tail, without knowing what he was striking at, well, Hooty just naturally flew away without so much as saying excuse me. He didn't want any one to know what a mistake he had made.

So it was that Paddy the Beaver, Mrs. Paddy and the two nearly grown children were hunted no more. Old Man Coyote having long since decided that it was a waste of time to go way over there with the chances all against him. So Paddy and his family worked, ate and slept, slept, ate and worked day after day, and wasted no more time at all. The trees were cut on the shore of the big new pond, towed down to the dam, dragged across this, and towed down to the food pile in the old pond. Big trees were trimmed of their branches and cut into logs. Then these and the big branches were taken down.

Once or twice the young Beavers complained because they had to work so steadily. They thought they ought to have some time for rest and play. But Paddy kept them on the job.

"You will have all winter in which to do nothing," said he. "But if winter catches us without food enough to carry us through you will wish you had worked twice as hard as you have."

"Other people get along without storing up a lot of food, so I don't see why we cannot," grumbled one young Beaver.

"Who?" demanded Paddy.

"Peter Rabbit," replied the young Beaver.

Paddy laughed right out. "True enough," said he. "But Peter can travel about to hunt for food, and if he can't find the food he wants he can make another do. At that, he goes hungry often enough. The same thing is true of others who do not lay up food and who do not sleep through the winter. You never find any of them fat in winter. It is a lean time, a hard time, and stomachs are really filled only once in a while. But last winter there wasn't a day that you went hungry. Why? Because we had been thrifty. Because we had worked hard at the proper time and stored enough food to last until spring even if it should be late. If you should have to travel over snow and ice to get food Yowler the Bob Cat or Old Man Coyote would soon have the Beaver dinner both are forever dreaming about."

"You will have all winter in which to do nothing," said he.

The young Beaver grumbled a little to himself, but he kept right on working and did his full share. Then came a day when after working a good part of the night Paddy insisted that they should work through the day. Several times that day he swam around that food pile looking it over with the greatest care. Then he would urge the others to work a little faster. As jolly, round, red Mr. Sun disappeared behind the tops of the trees on his way to bed behind the Purple Hills the last stick was added to the pile and Paddy once more looked it over.

"I think it will do," said he. "Anyway, it is time we rested."

"I should say it is!" exclaimed one young Beaver, and started straight for the house.

The next morning when that young Beaver came out of the under-water doorway and started for the surface he bumped his head. The pond was frozen over. Then he understood why his father had kept them at work so. Winter had arrived and they were ready just in time.

VICE PRESIDENT DAWES' ADVICE TO PAGES

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23—(AP)—Gagged in the senate, Vice President Dawes today found a forum in the "little senate," an organization of the [illegible].

Unwritten law decrees that the vice president shall hear senators talk but shall make no speech in the chamber himself except at his inauguration. Consequently, the vice president has been hearing senators talk about his proposed changes in the rules and has been unable to talk back.

Today, however, the little senate had a session. It adopted the vice-president's proposed amendment of the rules by a vote of 14 to 2 and heard Mr. Dawes speak on the subject at a luncheon later. The vice president, however, did not confine himself to the rules. He dispensed some of the homely philosophy for which he is famous among the kids of his own home town.

Laying aside the celebrated Dawes pipe, he told the pages not to smoke, swear, chew or become "hip flask" boys if they wished to amount to something.

"Be clear, be yourself, stand against the crowd," he urged. "There is no man who is worth the powder and shot to blow him up who does not set himself against the crowd, especially in his younger life. It is the fellow that runs after the crowd and smokes and drinks and dissipates, that does not amount to anything."

"Never mind how many fellows are behind you. Always keep your eyes on the fellows that are ahead of you. Compare yourself with them, compare yourself with the runners at the head of the race and then you will keep humble. Another way to keep humble and get a reputation for modesty is to tell the truth about yourself. Anybody can get a reputation for modesty in that way. I have not got it. Don't wear a pasteboard front."

Characterizing the present senate rules as "something like topsy—they just growed," the vice president expressed hope that they would be changed, but added that they are in the hands," as the old Romans used to say, of the Gods, but we say now, in the hands of the senate."

MAKING AN APPEAL FOR TAX SIMPLIFICATION

A startling picture of the inconveniences, uncertainties and delays to which taxpayers have been subjected in the administration of the federal tax laws is drawn by the committee on public affairs of the American Institute of Accountants in a letter-bulletin on "Tax Simplification" received by local accountants, bankers and business men. The letter-bulletin is being circulated as a public service to taxpayers and to the government, in an effort to bring about an improvement in procedure. It recommends changes that should help, it says, to make the yearly tax contact of the individual or firm less of an ordeal and more of a business transaction.

The practicing public accountants of the country, represented by the institute, hope that the making of tax returns and the payment of taxes may become an affair which can be handled expeditiously and precisely and which can be closed definitely within the required time. William H. West, of New York, is president of the institute, Homer S. Pace, of New York, heads the committee on public affairs which had in charge the preparation of the letter-bulletin.

The burden which can be effectively relieved at this time, according to the letter-bulletin, and to which the institute has directed its attention, among other items, is that caused by inadequate and clumsy procedure in tax administration.

"Many inequities arise under the present law and regulations," says the letter-bulletin, "and many procedures are cumbersome and impose an undue burden upon the taxpaying public. In thousands of cases, the commissioner of internal revenue has made additional assessments which have been annulled by the commissioner himself or reversed by the board of tax appeals after long and expensive contests on behalf of the taxpayers. These annulments and reversals of assessments have been obtained at a cost to taxpayers that assumes great proportions—a cost that has materially added in many cases to the legal amount of tax which the taxpayer has paid.

Improvement may come in part by the revision of the feedral revenue act—a work that is now in progress. It may come in part by an improvement in procedure in the bureau of internal revenue in the administration of the law, and it should come in part by voluntary action on the part of corporations and others in taking proper care to prepare returns on a verified basis of accounts and in accordance with the law and with the regulations. It will come moreover, from the continuance of the board of tax appeals on its present basis, subject to an increase of its jurisdiction to cover all tax matters including refunds.

The institute takes to itself credit for being the first to advocate the creation of a board of tax appeals, in 1920.

The work performed by the board is regarded by the practicing public accountants of the country as very satisfactory. They recommend the retention of the board in its present form with increased jurisdiction, but oppose its transformation into a court on the ground that no additional court is needed, but that the business man does wish a tribunal with relatively simple procedure to which he can go to obtain prompt relief from what he believes to be unjust levies of taxes.

Statements are included by Andrew W. Mellon, secretary of the treasury, by George O. May, of New York, one of the prominent members of the accountancy profession in this country, by J. G. Korner, Jr., chairman of the United States board of tax appeals, by Arthur A. Ballantine of New York, formerly solicitor of the bureau of internal revenue, and by Edward E. Gore of Chicago, chairman of the institute's special committee on taxation.

GEN. BUTLER TO REMAIN IN THE MARINE CORPS

were recently raided by Police Magistrate Edward P. Carney who has been insisting that the "big fellows" be made to obey the laws as well as the "little fellows."

A quantity of alleged intoxicating liquor was seized and other evidence obtained of such a character that General Butler decided to proceed against the hotel. Edwin M. Abbott, counsel for the department, prepared padlocking papers and they were presented to the mayor.

"The mayor stated he did not feel like proceeding against the Ritz, that it was a big hotel, that he needed room space for the Sesqui-Centennial, that Joe Widener had threatened to close the hotel, anyway; that it was not necessary to padlock it; that there was a big difference between the treatment of a place like the Madrid (a local cafe) where they could go in off the street and have a party and a big hotel like the Ritz where people give private parties. All three of us stated that we could not see any difference between little places and the biggest one."

The result of the interview was that action was to be delayed until after the police magistrate's hearing against the manager of the hotel who had been arrested.

On December 21, the memorandum states, General Butler again pressed for action without result.

In another memorandum General Butler stated:

"The mayor, in the presence of City Solicitor Gaffney, said to me in a sneering way: 'Have you got any news of those bandits who robbed that bank?' and I said 'No, sir' and explained the conditions to him. Then he said: 'If you stopped going after those big investments and have the police on the streets, there would be fewer robberies. You are going too strong on these $7,000,000 investments. There is nothing wrong with that Hotel Walton: they are running their business as well as they can. I was down there a little while ago and saw the manager and the manager said they were doing everything they can to run the business respectably.'

"The mayor added: 'You have got to lay off these big places. There is a difference between a $7,000,000 investment and a cheap place which blackmails people.'"

Other papers made public by General Butler indicated there had been friction between the mayor and the director for some time, the mayor frankly stating to Butler that he did not like the way he was conducting his department and did not approve of some of the appointments he had made.

The hostilities of the day opened with a letter from the mayor dismissing General Butler, effective at noon.

"While I am not required by law to give a reason for dismissal of a director," said the mayor, "in order to comply with your request, I may say that you have not a proper appreciation of the obligation which you hold to the mayor as your superior officer.

"The confidence and harmonious relationship which should exist between us as mayor and director of public safety has by your actions been completely destroyed."

General Butler in his reply, said in part:

"When I was induced to accept this office by your promise to back me to the limit in law enforcement, I believed you meant what you said, and that you sincerely desired impartial law enforcement against all violators, big and little, rich and poor. You have not interfered in the enforcement against powerless violators or those in whom you are not interested, but when you balked and directed your city solicitor not to proceed with the padlocking proceedings against the Ritz-Carlton, against which establishment there was as much and as vicious evidence as against any other places we have closed, and when you refused to revoke the dance licenses of the big hotels, such as the Ritz-Carlton, Bellevue-Stratford and the Walton, controlled by your friends, and on evidence as damaging as has caused the revocation of many other licenses, all of which action was urgently recommended by me, and when on ecember 21st I again pressed you to act and indicated that I would find other means of doing so if you did not, you, on December 22nd, dismissed me from office.

"You call it disloyalty because I press you to be a man and carry out your oath of office, your publicly declared pledge to the people of Philadelphia who elected you, and your oft repeated promises to me.

"In order that the people of Philadelphia, who are your superiors, may know that the failure to take action on my part is due to your lack of moral courage, and through no fault of the police department, and in order that they may know that your reason is simply camouflage, I am submitting to them the correspondence in these cases for their judgment."

Mayor's Appeal

Later the mayor issued his appeal addressed "To my fellow citizens." In it he said:

"I reiterate the assurance I gave upon my inauguration to office that I intend, with all the power and strength that within me lies, to enforce the laws and to protect the persons and the property of the citizens of Philadelphia, and I ask you, my fellow citizens, to uphold me in this sincere effort. I have not deviated one iota from my original declared intention to reduce crime and banditry, enforce law and order, and permit no outside influence of any kind to affect the activities of the department of public safety.

"We are now entering the holiday season, where there is a temptation to laxity on the part of the good citizens, and, to them, I especially appeal that the force of their example may assist me in my efforts to maintain respect and obedience to the law.

"The citizens of Philadelphia are as law abiding as any citizens to be found anywhere, and I feel confident that they will co-operate to the fullest extent with the mayor and Acting Director of the Department of Public Safety Elliott.

"The Sesqui-Centennial year is about to open, and, during the next 12 months, thousands of visitors will come here to assist us in commemorating the greatest event in American history. It should be our pride to demonstrate to them that Philadelphia is a safe, sound, patriotic American city and that its citizens will be compelled to do so. Philadelphia has not been and is not a refuge for evil-doers and nothing will be left undone to safeguard our citizens and protect their property."

In moments when General Butler was not shaking hands with friends who regretted his departure the general cleared his desk. With his letter acknowledging the mayor's letter of dismissal, General Butler sent a decorated revolver, bearing the inscription "to my friend, General Butler, from Mayor Kendrick, Jan. 6, 1924."

When Assistant Director Elliott came into the office after accepting appointment from the mayor as the director's successor, General Butler threw his arm around him and told him he would not say good bye, adding that they had fought together for two years and that they would see each other often.

General Butler left city hall amid cheers from a crowd. He travelled to the U. S. Marine Depot here in a marine corps automobile, discarding the police motor car. Later he received a medal from the Penn Athletic club for his interest in fostering athletics and then drove to his home.

Assistant Director Elliott took the oath of office this afternoon.

DECLARE MINERS ARE TIRE OF THE SUSPENSION

SCRANTON, Pa., Dec. 23—(AP)—Sixteen Catholic clergymen, "representing, in a pastoral capacity, 85 per cent of the miners of anthracite coal," in letters to W. W. Inglis, chairman of the anthracite operators negotiating committee, and John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, tonight, declared that the great majority of mine workers were "tired of the present suspension, and wanted to return to work."

The letters stated that the miners "want the authorized representative of mine workers and operators to resume negotiations at once," and that in the event of their failure to reach an agreement "both sides refer all disputed questions to impartial arbitration."

The letter was framed at a conference of the clergy of non-English speaking peoples of Luzerne and Lackawanna counties in Wilkesbarre on Tuesday. The priests asserted that their parishioners represented 85 per cent., of all workers engaged in the hard coal mining industry.

After deploring the failure of the mine workers and operators "to get together and reach an agreement," the letter recited a statement of conditions brought about by the anthracite strike. Itemizing on results, primarily among which are: "An economic loss of millions of dollars to mine workers, operators and public, from which recovery will be absolutely impossible.

"A national prejudice against the anthracite region.

"A loss of faith in the future prosperity of our nation.

"Danger in loss of life among our men, etc."

"Danger in loss of life among our men, women and little children among those least able to stand the conflict much longer.

"A state of idleness that is producing demoralized citizenry.

"Public discouragement over the failure of mine workers and operators to promote a program of peace and prosperity in industry when nations of the world are working together for the prevention of international war."

The letter then proceeds, in resolution form, to call attention of mine workers, operators and the general public to the "following statement of facts:

"That our intimate relationship with at least 85 per cent of mine workers shows, despite any statement to the contrary, that the great majority of the mine workers are tired of the present suspension and want to return to work.

"That a large majority of the mine workers want the authorized representatives of both mine workers and operators to resume negotiations at once, without ceremony or influence, as they have on other occasions, to equalize wages in the anthracite industry and to settle all other questions at issue.

"That in the event of the representatives of both mine workers and operators failing to agree upon questions in dispute, that both sides refer all disputed questions to impartial arbitration, the board of which shall be selected in a manner agreeable to mine workers and operators.

"That when we realize that European nations of the world within the past month subscribed to the principle of arbitration as a practical means of preventing international war, no reason satisfactory to the public can be given by either side of the present controversy why Americans should wage war against each other in the anthracite coal region and not also subscribe to the principle of arbitration, which is religiously and economically sound, when both parties to an industrial dispute cannot settle through collective bargaining.

"Finally, we representatives of the clergy of non-English speaking people of Luzerne and Lackawanna counties, hereby assembled, respectfully request mine workers and operators to get togeher for the sake of the anthracite region; for the sake of the anthracite industry; for the sake of humanity and for the sake of honesty, fairness and righteousness. In the name of Almighty God, get together and go back to work and settle the controversy as Americans should."

AN ALLEGED POOL ROOM RAIDED IN NEW HAVEN

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 23—(AP)—Sergeant William Dwyer, heading a small squad of police, late today raided the National Sporting club at 47 Orange street, arrested the keeper of the place as well as an assistant on charges of pool selling and 17 alleged bettors, all of whom were charged with frequenting and gaming. A large supply of horse-racing paraphernalia was confiscated by the police.

The alleged owner of the place, John A. McKee, was held under $2,000 bonds as was Samuel Baltaxa. Both were charged with pool selling. The 17 alleged frequenters arrested were released under bonds of $500 each.

In an inner room, according to the police, McKee and Baltaxa were sitting at desks with telephone receivers over their ears, receiving reports from horse races throughout the country.

PLOTTING IN ECUADOR AGAINST THE GOVERNMENT

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador, Dec. 23—(AP)—Discovery of separate liberal and conservative plots against the government was officially made known by the government today.

Foreign Minister Jose Rafael Bustamente has resigned and his resignation has been accepted.

Among those arrested were: Alberto Guerrero Martinez, president of the senate; Jacinto Jipon Caamano, Manuel Sotomayor Luna, Jausto Navarro, Eliodoro Avalles, Pompilio Ulloa and the publishers of the newspapers La Prensa and El Guanta respectively.

CHRISTMAS PARDON DENIED H. HAROLD GILPATRIC

HARTFORD, Dec. 23.—(AP) — A Christmas pardon for former State Treasurer H. Harold Gilpatric of Connecticut, recommended by Warden John W. Snook, of the United States penitentiary at Atlanta, has been denied by the department of justice, according to a speeail dispatch to the Hartford Courant from Washington.

Gilpatric has served fourteen months of a 15-years' sentence for embezzlement of funds of the First National bank of Putnam, of which he was the cashier at the same time he served as Connecticut state treasurer.

The action of the department of justice, in declining to include Gilpatric's name in the list forwarded to President Coolidge for consideration for Christmas pardons, was based largely on emphatic disapproval of the plan by the district attorney's office in Connecticut. Warden Snook's action was due to the fact that Gilpatric is blind.

POLITICAL UPHEAVAL IS LIKELY IN BUDAPEST

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Dec. 23—(AP)—A social and political upheaval in Budapest is likely to be the outcome of the recent arrest of three Hungarians, said to belong to distinguished families, who are charged with uttering forced French 1,000 franc notes to the extent of millions, and grave developments are looked for. Observers believe that the reconstruction of the cabinet is unavoidable because of the alleged indifference of the government to the activities of certain political cliques. One of the men under arrest, Jankowitch is said to be a brother-in-law of the Hungarian war minister, while another, Dr. Marchovsky comes from an old diplomat family.

TUGBOAT FIREMAN'S WAD MELTS WHEN HE'S ASHORE IN NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 23—Joe Wilson would be wise to make a new year's resolution that he will get on the water wagon and stay there. His experience with liquor will convince him that such a course would be a wise one to pursue. Joe is a fireman on the tug W. F. Hughes, an occupation that yields him good wages. He said he came ashore Tuesday morning with $86 in his pocket, but that this morning he had only 25 cents. All his cash had gone for booze. He was arrested last night when complaint was made against him by a woman in Brewer street. Joe today admitted his offense against the laws of the state. He was objected and said so. The price he had paid was regarded by Judge Prince to be a severe penalty for foolish conduct, so he suspended judgment and allowed Joe to go aboard the craft on which he has a good job at good wages.

TRAIL'S CORNER MAN HAD A LITTLE STILL IN HIS HOME

NEW LONDON, Dec. 23—Louis Komensky, of Trail's corner, Groton was in the Groton town court this morning charged with violation of the prohibition law in maintaining a still at his home. Deputy Judge Charles F. Willard imposed a fine of $50 and costs, which the accused paid. Komensky was taken into custody by State Police Officers Schweikert and Bobrick last night, the officers receiving a complaint from Mrs. Komensky that her husband had beaten her. Going to the Komensky home the officers found evidence of the manufacture of liquor and a search of the house resulted in the finding of the still. Instead of Komensky being apprehended on a charge of wife beating he was taken into custody for the more serious offense.

Gustavo Bevilaqua, a laborer, but the owner of an Essex touring car, was fined in the police court this morning for reckless operation of his machine. He was on the way down Howard street a few days ago when he was hailed, according to the testimony given in the court this morning, by Mrs. Mary Buska and asked to give her a ride to her home in Smith street. Gus at the time had a woman of good size on his right while he attended to the steering wheel on the left. There was a little space left on the driver's seat so Mary was a good sport and occupied the lap of the woman already comfortably seated. The Essex was speeded along the highway till it reached Hamilton street, and just below there the Ford roadster of Milton Rice, a coast guard sailor, was emerging from a garage. The Essex did not slow down, and when the Ford got into the middle of the highway there was a crash. The Ford went over and Rice was buried in the wreck. He was hauled out and sent to the hospital where he remained till yesterday. Gus and Mrs. Buska denied that there was any carelessness in the collisk on the part of the driver of the Essex, but the facts did not bear out their contention and a fine of $25 was imposed on Gus.

James P. Murphy was fined for reckless operation of an automobile. He was operating his car in a way that led the officer who took him into custody to believe he was drunk. It was a certainty that he had been drinking intoxicants, and he had a gallon jug of wine in the car at the time. So a complaint was made to the prosecutor and Murphy was in court this morning. He was fined $25 for reckless driving and $50 for transporting intoxicating liquor. That was getting out of a bad mess pretty well. Murphy was represented by an attorney.

Charles Schumen, a leather goods dealer, is slow in coming to the conclusion that he must obey the traffic ordinances of the city. He was in the court this morning for a second time, charged with parking his car in front of his store for an unlimited time. He was to have appeared in court at 9:30 this morning, but he did not heed the summons and was sent for. When he did appear he was fined $10 and was told that he would do well to appear when ordered to do so in the future. The fine is the maximum and has not before been imposed.

Peter L. Ackens of Poquonoc road, Groton, was fined $5 for operating a car without having a license in his possession. Ackens was a bit stupid, for after he had pleaded guilty and had settled he declared that he was innocent of the offense.

John Thomas Kane, a coast guardsman, went into a public dance last night without going through the formality of paying for a ticket. He was halted by Policeman Martin, who was on duty at the dance. Kane became abusive and to subdue him the officer had to use the force of a blow. That was all there was to the trouble for Kane was arrested for cheating his way into the place. He was fined this morning. He represented that he had never before offended, said he had been in the coast guard service but a few months and in New London but ten days.

MOTHER MAY ESCAPE JAIL BECAUSE OF CHILDREN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 23—Edith Palma is the wife of a Filipino. She has two children, is young and has been going the pace that leads only to misery. She is accused of inducing young girls to [illegible] of delinquency and is guilty, according to all the information the police have gathered which includes the confessions of girls who have travelled about with her. The confessions are in writing. The girls who made them have been placed in reformatory institutions. Mrs. Palma and her younger friends have been the patrons of dance halls, they have partaken of intoxicating liquors and they have been in automobiles and visited places of questionable repute. Indeed Mrs. Palma is charged with having harbored at her home the girls sent away. The Palma woman was to have been tried for her offense this morning, but on the representation made by the prosecutor the hearing did not take place. It went over till Saturday that a conclusion may be reached as how to best take care of two small children whom disgrace will come if the woman is sent to jail. Judge Prince is inclined to dispose of the case by sending the woman into penal confinement, but he will not do that if he is convinced that she is to change her method of living and that to confine her in jail would bring distress and hardship on the children Mrs. Palma deserves a severe penalty and will receive it if the court can realize that her children will not suffer by it. Judge Prince is determined to clean out places that come to his attention as did the Palma home.

TODAY'S EVENTS

Christmas eve!

There is an old tradition that bread baked on this date will never grow mouldy.

Among the peasantry of Europe there is a belief that if the light is let go out on Christmas eve some one in the house will die within a year.

In Trinity churchyard, New York city, a wreath will be placed on the grave of Clement Moore, author of "Twas the Night Before Christmas."

Today, for the first time, all government departments and independent establishments in Washington, D. C., are to close for a three-day holiday.

The president and Mrs. Coolidge tonight will again demonstrate their neighborly spirit by attending the dedication of a big community Christmas tree and taking part in the carol singing.

According to announcement made at the headquarters of the National Bureau for the Advancement of Music, some 2,000 towns and cities of the United States have arranged for organized Christmas carol singing tonight.

This evening Pope Pius is to close and seal the holy door in the basilica of St. Peter's, thus announcing in the presence of pilgrims from all ends of the earth, the close of the 23rd jubilee year recorded by history.

The navy's traditional "sweethearts and wives" Christmas eve toast will be given at 8 bells tonight in the wardrooms of American warships wherever they may be on the seven seas. Undoubtedly the Christmas spirit will run just as high aboard the war vessels as in the days before it became necessary to drink the toast in distilled water.

Coming to the Breed.

A million dollars for a single moving picture thrill! That was the cost of one scene in The Half Way Girl, which will be shown at the Breed theatre, Friday and Saturday.

The Half Way Girl, which features Doris Kenyon and Lloyd Hughes, is an original drama of Singapore and the Indian Ocean. The biggest scene in the picture shows a huge vessel blown to atoms at sea when a cargo of benzine explodes.

The director wanted a thrill that would surpass anything film fans had yet witnessed, so he purchased the former United States shipping board steamer, Corvallis, built by the government during the war at a cost of $900,000. The steamer was taken out to sea 125 miles off Sandy Hook, where fire was set to the hold and some of the scenes shot.

Through an over-display of zeal on the part of the extras, a panic became the real thing with the result that Miss Kenyon was severely burned. For the climax of th epicture, several tons of dynamite were placed in the bow and one thousand pounds of blasting powder placed in the superstructure, the whole being joined by fuses and electric wires. Two expert dynamiters handled the blasting. They were solitary passengers on the vessel the night that the explosives had been planted in her hold. A terrific electrical storm broke during the evening, the lightning flashing about the doomed boat while the crews of the tugs carrying the cameramen and actors, remained awake fearing the load of death would be struck.

The ship, however, rode safely through the storm and just as preparations were being made the next morning to touch off the blast, the coast guard cutter Seneca appeared and ordered the steamer twenty-five miles further out to sea.

It was after seven o'clock in the evening when the steamer reached the location selected by the coast guard officials and the sun was behind the clouds. The captain of the Seneca insisted that the ship be blown up before dark because of the danger to shipping on the high seas. The two men operating the wires tramped in a small rowboat and when a safe distance, set the spark, blowing the huge steamer to atoms. It was a spectacle the like of which has been seen by few persons. Huge timbers were hurled hundreds of feet in the air and when the smoke had cleared, the nose of the Corvallis was beneath the surface and she was slipping rapidly to her final resting place. In five minutes she had disappeared, a nine thousand dollar structure sunk to the bottom of the Atlantic for one thrill in a picture. The tugs that had towed the Corvallis to sea, turned about and started for port.

Palace Theatre.

Lois Wilson traveled more than 5,000 miles to join Thomas Meighan's company in Ireland for the principal feminine role in "Irish Luck," which will be the feature at the Palace theatre today, Friday and Saturday.

When Mr. Meighan and his associates sailed from New York on the Leviathan Miss Wilson was in the Painted Desert of Arizona, finishing scenes for "The Vanishing American," with Richard Dix. Negotiations for a leading woman were carried on by radio between the Leviathan and the Famous Players-Lasky offices in New York, and thence by telegraph to the west coast.

Just about the time the Leviathan was nearing the coast of France word came that Miss Wilson had finished her last scene in the Painted Desert and would be available for "Irish Luck." Then began a race against time.

Lois had to ride 75 miles by motor across the desert to the nearest railroad station, thence by train to California, where she hurriedly packed her studio trunk and gathered together a few belongings for the trip. Hurrying eastward on the Sante Fe Limited, she paused in New York only long enough to complete her wardrobe on a hurried Fifth avenue shopping trip, then she boarded the Olympic for England.

Miss Wilson left London by a midnight train and arrived at Dun Laoghaire, port of Dublin at 6 o'clock Sunday morning. There were no Sunday trains between Dublin and Killarney, so the last lap of her journey, like the first had to be made in an automobile.

The story is an adaptation by Luther Reed of the Saturday Evening Post serial, "An Imperfect Imposter," by Norman Venner. Victor Heerman directed and Tom Geraghty wrote the screen play.

The vaudeville is headed by Angel and Holts in a comedy singing and dancing Revue with lavish settings and gorgeous gowns.

The feature of gifts for the annual Thursday nights presents night will be the drawing for turkeys and chickens.

Humanity is equally divided between those who can't stand prosperity and those who can't get any to stand.

$150,000,000 PUBLIC BUILDINGS BILL COMING BEFORE HOUSE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23—(AP)—The house public buildings committee will start work soon after the Christmas recess on the $150,000,000 public buildings bill which has been introduced by Chairman Elliott.

Similar measure was passed at the last session by the house, but was not acted upon by the senate. The plan has the support of President Coolidge, who said in his budget message he was ready to approve a lump sum appropriation for public building construction.

More than 750 bills proposing individual buildings in various cities at a total cost of about $350,000,000 have been introduced thus far as the present session of the congress, but Chairman Elliott is prepared to fight for the general bill, which would place control of new construction in the hands of the secretary of the treasury and the postmaster general, as desired by the president.

The bill also would authorize appropriations of $15,000,000 for completion of buildings previously authorized. Congress has not authorized any extensive public building program since the beginning of the war, and leaders in both branches of congress have expressed intention of pressing for such legislation.

While a fight is expected to be made in committee for a return to the old form of legislation, specifying in each bill the sites of the new buildings, Chairman Elliott is confident the measure providing a lump sum, to be controlled by the two department heads, will be approved.

The $150,000,000 appropriation is not expected to meet all the demands, and of this amount only about $250,000,000 is expected to be made available annually for building construction in a report to the committee James A. Wetmore, supervising architect of the treasury, has declared $245,000,000 to $250,000,000 will be necessary to construct all the public buildings needed by the government.

STOLEN CAR RECOVERED AT FITCHBURG WEDNESDAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 23.—An automobile, a Rickenbacker coach, owned by Montague H. B. Heigham, Bedford Hills, N. Y., which was stolen in New London several weeks ago, was recovered this forenoon when Louis Brown, of Fitchburg, Mass., was taken into custody in that city. Brown was found in possession of the stolen automobile. Besides charged with having brought a stolen automobile into the state of Massachusetts, Brown will also be charged with carrying a concealed weapon for he had a revolver in his pocket when apprehended. Brown will probably not be returned to New London for the theft of the machine as the Massachusetts laws provide for an exceedingly heavy penalty for a person convicted of having brought a stolen automobile into the state. If, however, Brown is not prosecuted in Fitchburg, he will be brought back here for trial. Brown stole the machine from in front of a State street store while Heigham was absent from the car for a few minutes.

BROADWAY THEATRE

WE'RE DOING MORE THAN WISH YOU A "MERRY CHRISTMAS"—WE'RE GOING TO HELP YOU MAKE IT ONE.

—SO, FOR TONIGHT ONLY—

—FREE TURKEYS—

YOUR "GOBBLER" IS HERE, READY FOR THAT CHRISTMAS DINNER. WHY GO WITHOUT A REAL FEAST FOR THE HOLIDAY WHEN YOU CAN GET ONE FREE TONIGHT. COME ALONG AND CARRY ONE HOME.

—STARTING TODAY MATINEE—

WE TAKE GREAT PLEASURE IN PRESENTING A GRAND FESTIVAL OF VAUDEVILLE—ARTISTS BRINGING GOOD CHEER IN ABUNDANCE FOR THIS SPECIAL OCCASION.

FIRST, we have a famous comedy team, direct from Keith's Hippodrome, N. Y.—

JEAN McCOY & RALPH WALTON

about whom the critics said "The best comedy offering in months." They present "A FEW MOMENTS WITH THE SPIRITS" and it will be a few moments that you'll never forget.

SECOND, is an unique offering, presented in a handsome setting by entitled "VARIETY." As expounded by this clever company of four artists, it is a pot-pourri of song, dance and music. Of course some comedy is introduced by this big time offering.

THIRD, that personality girl, known wherever good shows are shown—

CARRIE LILLIE

In a new group of songs with a barrage of fun to keep them company. You can't help but admire this singing comedienne.

FOURTH, blossoming fourth in gay color, in bright assortment

ETHEL SHATTUCK & WARD

offer "A BRIGHT BOUQUET" in "THE FLOWER SHOP." The scene is laid in a flower shop where songs, talk and juggling hold sway.

AND LAST BUT NOT LEAST, two European thrillers—

H. and M. POWER

appear in a delightful offering, giving them the coveted title of Peers of Perch Performers. It is not exaggeration to say that their feats are the most difficult ever attempted.

And by means of the silver screen, you'll take a delightful trip on

"ROMANCE ROAD"

With RAYMOND McKEE and a splendid cast. A rollicking romance of a returned doughboy.

BIGAMIST POSED AS MAN OF GREAT INFLUENCE

CHICAGO, Dec. 23.—(AP)—John V. Weidemeier, identified by women in Chicago, New York and elsewhere as their husband, represented himself as "Arthur Brooks," a wealthy motion picture director when he was married to him in Des Moines, Iowa, Mrs. Esther Wexler Brooks testified today in asking an annulment. The marriage took place on November 11, 1924. Superior Judge Lewis indicated he would grant her a decree for annulment.

Five months afterward, she testified, her husband disappeared after defrauding her foster parents of $13,000 which they had obtained by the sale of property.

"I'm sure he has a million dollars by this time for from each he married he took from $500 to $20,000," Mrs. Wexler Brooks said.

Weidemeier was arrested in St. Louis some time ago with Mrs. Leonard Hoffman, wife of a furrier, who said he had promised to make her a motion picture star. He was charged with violation of the Mann act in a federal charge filed at St. Louis.

MARKET WAS BULLISH

NEW YORK, Dec. 24—(AP)—A sensational advance of over 17 points in American Can, which touched a new high record for all time at 233, featured the resumption of the broad upward movement in today's stock market. Trading was on a slightly larger scale than yesterday's sale falling just below 1,600,000 shares.

Bullish enthusiasm was created by reports of heavy steel consumption contained in the weekly trade reviews, continuance of million-car weekly freight loadings and a spirited advance in wheat prices. Continuance of the six per cent. rate for call money was disregarded. After the close of the market the New York Federal Reserve bank announced that its rediscount rate of 3 1-2 per cent., was unchanged.

The heavy demand for American Can was based on reports that current earnings on the new stock were running at the rate of about $7 a share, and that there was a possibility that dividends would be paid at a rate in excess of the $2 annual payment tentatively fixed by the management. Strength of General Electric which showed an extreme gain of 5 points at 320 and then eased to 327, was associated with rumors of another special distribution to stockholders.

Buoyancy also developed in a number of other high priced industrial specialties. American Ice, Coca Cola, Loose Wiles common and second preferred, Nash Motors, Sears Roebuck, United States Cast Iron Pipe and Woolworth, all crossed 3 to 9 points higher. Chrysler touched 201 3-4 and then fell back to 195 3-4 for a net gain of 1 1-4 points.

Copper shares developed a new lease of life on prospects of unusually heavy sales of the red metal in the first quarter of next year. American Smelting jumped nearly four points to 136 the highest price in about eight years. Federal Mining and Smelting preferred crossed 99 to a new high record for the year and the common jumped nearly six points to 83 3-4. Oils responded to constructive trade conditions, both the Barnsdall and Pacific Oil issues again mounting to new peak levels for the year.

United States Steel common was held up over two points to 135 7-8 and then eased to 135. Mathieson Alkali, American Steel Foundries, Standard Milling, Devoe and Reynolds and Ingersoll Rand all broke through their previous 1925 maximum prices.

Atlantic Coast Line was the feature of the railroad group, soaring over 12 points to a new high record at 266 1-2 on the announcement of the completion of the $100,000,000 improvement program which is expected to result in materially increased earnings next year. Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic moved up over 2 points to 11, its highest price in five years. Good buying also was noted in Atchison, Chesapeake and Ohio, Rock Island, Union Pacific, "Nickel Plate" Delaware and Hudson, Louisville and Nashville and Wabash preferred "B" all of which closed 1 3-4 to 3 1-2 points net higher.

Call money held steady at 6 per cent. all day. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

A rally of nearly 7 points in French rates to 3.69 cents and a jump over 10 points Spanish pesetas to 14.23 cents were the outstanding features of the foreign exchange market. Demand sterling held steady at 4.84 9-16 and other European rates moved within narrow and irregular limits.

LOCAL INSTITUTIONS PLAN SPECIAL DINNERS FOR CHRISTMAS

Over 2500 people, families at the various hospitals, homes and institutions of Norwich, will enjoy parties Christmas day (Friday) and local organizations have joined with the staff at the various institutions in planning to make the day one of the happiest in the year. Turkey chicken or roast pork dinners will be served, following the usual custom, and every institution will have its Christmas tree and the annual party which is always looked forward to with a great deal of pleasure by the families.

The largest family is that at the Norwich State hospital for the insane, where a family of 2000 patients and the large staff employed, will enjoy the annual treat. Next in size comes the family at the Norwich Tuberculosis Sanatorium (Uncas-on-Thames), where a good time is planned.

The William W. Backus hospital has a large family this year, patients numbering between 60 to 70, one of the largest families ever at the hospital for Christmas. Other institutions where parties planned and where Christmas dinners will be served include the Sheltering Arms, Rock Nook Home, New London County Home, Alms House and the New London County Jail.

Local societies and individuals have followed their usual custom and have provided turkeys, candy, fruit, gifts and other good things for the several institutions, while ex-service organizations, with other organizations, will see that disabled veterans are cared for in the way of presents, this being the usual Christmas custom.

William W. Backus Hospital

As in past years the William W Backus hospital is beautifully decorated for Christmas and everything possible is being done to make the holiday one of comfort and cheer for the family of about 70 patients now at the institution.

Through the kindness of many friends, former patients and several local organizations, the funds and materials for this beautiful display were donated. The officials at the hospital, feeling proud of the decorations, this same feeling being manifested by the patients, have extended invitations to friends to visit the hospital during the regular hours to enjoy the beautiful decorations with them.

The main corridors, reception room and main part of the hospital have been decorated with laurel wreaths, prettily decorated trees have been set up in the main corridor and window decorations of ever green and red poinsettias this being the work of Mrs. Walter T. Camp, chairman of the holiday committee of the women's auxiliary, assisted by Mrs. Joseph A. Cummings, chairman of the flower committee and Mrs. Henry D. Buckley.

Under the supervision of Mrs. Frederick T. Sayles, prettily decorated trees have been set up in the children's wards and boxes of garments for these wards have been placed beneath the trees by the production committee of the woman's auxiliary.

The public wards, private floors and other wards have been decorated by the student nurses and officers in charge of the wards and a tree has been set up in the isolated ward by nurses, this being for the children who will be confined there over Christmas day.

Miss Jane E. Bill, chairman of the purchasing committee of the woman's auxiliary, assisted by Mrs. John B. Hall, has packaged over 30 gifts for the ward patients, all of whom will receive gifts, as well as presents of baskets of fruit on Christmas morning at 10 o'clock. These gifts will be distributed by Superintendent F. Leon Hutchins and Miss Katherine Dowd, superintendent of nurses.

At noon Friday a turkey dinner with all the extras, will be served all patients able to enjoy it.

On this (Thursday) evening at 8.15 o'clock the annual Christmas tree party will be held for the nurses, the party to be held in the reception room of the new nurses' home. A pretty tree has been set up and the hall has been decorated, a huge Christmas bell, the gift of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Saxton, being hung at the main entrance to the hall. Refreshments will be served during the party and the nurses will receive many fine gifts, remembrances from their families, friends, local organizations and former patients at the hospital.

Tonight (Thursday) at the hospital, previous to the nurses' party, Mr. and Mrs. Santa Claus will visit every ward in the hospital to bring happiness to the patients.

Norwich State Hospital

The family of 2000 patients at the Norwich State hospital will enjoy the usual Christmas treat tonight (Thursday) when a Christmas party and entertainment is to be held in the theatre at the institution. There will be a showing of motion pictures, after which Santa Claus will arrive and distribute the gifts among the patients.

Christmas day the annual dinner will be enjoyed, the menu comprising roast chicken, for patient and staff, mashed potatoes and turnips, boiled onions, cranberry sauce, pies, fruit, candy and nuts.

ROTARY CLUB HEARS TALK ON "THE ADVANCE"

A Christmas atmosphere hovered over the weekly luncheon of the Norwich Rotary club held Wednesday noon at the Wauregan hotel. The tables were artistically decorated in Yuletide colors and at each place was a small toy which furnished no end of amusement for the Rotarians. At the conclusion of the luncheon it was voted to give the toys to the children of the County Home and the Rock Nook home as has been the custom for a number of years.

The greater part of the musical programme of the luncheon was devoted to Christmas music and Christmas carols. A double quartette, Eben Learned, F. Russell Smith, E. A. Harris, James Roantree, Joseph C. Worth, William G. Park, Dr. H. B. Campbell and Grosvenor Ely, sang a number of Christmas carols, they being Joy to the World, Silent Night, O Come All Ye Faithful, It Came Upon a Midnight Clear, and O Little Town of Bethlehem. The singing of this quartet was greatly appreciated and they received hearty applause.

As another pleasing feature of the musical program was the mandolin and banjo duets by Miss Haefner and Signor Purcini. They played several difficult numbers much to the delight of the club members. Miss Haefer and Signor Purcini were the guests of Charles F. Wells.

At the business session at which Pres. J. N. Weymouth presided, matters of routine business were discussed and an invitation from the Hartford club to be the guests of that club at the 15th anniversary dinner was read and accepted and a number have expressed their intentions of attending.

A letter of Christmas greeting was read from International President Don Adams of New Haven. President Don was sent a letter containing the season's best wishes to himself and Mrs. Don from the Norwich club.

The speaker of the day was Rotarian Rex. Alexander H. Abbott who brought a very worthlike message to the club members. He took as his subject The Advance. In speaking of the advance Rev. Mr. Abbott said he was not so much impressed by the birth of Christ as the growth of the boy into manhood and maturity. It isn't so much the start of anything that counts as it is the growth and advance. This is true in almost everything whether of religious, political or the sciences and arts. There are two processes. One is attrition and the other accretion, the first being the throwing off of certain things and the second by taking on or accumulating other things. The advance of religion is an example of this process. Not so many years ago religion and government were interlinked, religion and art and religion and the sciences, but now there has been a dropping off of these things and each has a special interest in itself.

This not only applies to religion but also to the personal equation, to the life of the child. Years ago we thought that because parents had once been children they could govern and direct the lives of the youngsters but we find it different today in this age of youth. What was well for us may not be good for the child of today. Some things must be lopped off and other things must be added in the program for the growing child if we would have him arrive at the age of understanding fully equipped with the mental status that is necessary to well being. We should become students of the child, we must know ourselves. There are wells of knowledge that have been opened up within the past five years and these we should take an interest in. There are present day books that we should delve into and a hundred other things that a person can probe into and gain useful knowledge. Let us consider not the birth of Christ at this time but think of the advance in the life of Christ and profit by it.

ACTIVE NURSE HELPS NORWICH SAFETY RECORD

Under the heading, Active Nurse Helps Norwich Safety Record, the December issue of Finishing Topics, published in the interests of the employes of The United States Finishing Company says;

The value of our first aid station is emphasized by the figures which show the steadily increasing service which it is rendering to our employes. In 1922 Miss Fitzpatrick gave an average of 300 treatments per month, which has increased each year, until the average for the present year is 1,500 treatments per month. This remarkable growth means that our employes are realizing more and more the wisdom of having minor injuries attended to and also that the kindness and considerate treatment given them by Miss Fitzpatrick encourages them to return for treatments as often as necessary. And this early treatment of minor injuries prevents them from developing into serious ones, which means suffering and loss of pay to employes.

At the monthly safety committee meeting, Johnson Hepburn of Sterling Branch, gave a very interesting report of his trip to the national safety council at Cleveland. Mr. Hepburn emphasized the fact that the safety attitude of mind must be acquired by every employe before we can cease having accidents and cited several instances from the speech of Admiral Sims to bring out this point. The committee greatly enjoyed Mr. Hepburn's talk and hopes that he will come again.

PRODUCTION ON INCREASE IN STORRS EGG CONTEST

Production continues to increase in the Storrs egg laying contest, when, during the seventh week the 1,400 pullets shelled out a total of 3,831 eggs, or a lay that was slightly over 39 per cent. This is sixty-three eggs more than were laid last week and 533 eggs more than were laid for the corresponding week a year ago. A grand total of 22,534 eggs have been laid to date. For the third successive week White Leghorns and Rhode Island Reds have monopolized the honor roll positions. Two pens of Leghorns entered by Mount Hope Farm from Williamstown, Mass., and Toivonen Leghorn Farm from Girard, Pa., tied for first place for the week with a lay of fifty eggs each. The Rhode Island Red entry of John Z. LaBelle from Ballouville, Conn., came a close second for the week with a production of forty-nine eggs. Third place for the week saw a tie between the White Leghorn entry of the Marquis Poultry Farm from Toms River, N. J., and the Rhode Island Red entry of R. D. Sargent from East Ryegate, Vt., each with a lay of forty-eight eggs. A pen of Leghorns entered by Homstead Farm from Homesdale, Pa., was fourth for the week with a production of forty-seven eggs.

Three changes took place among the leading pens in each of the principal varieties, in the Barred Rock class the pen entered by Harriet Smith from Newburyport, Mass., went up into second position, displacing the entry of Edgar Stoughton from Wapping, Conn. In the White Leghorn class, the entry of Toivonen Leghorn Farm from Girard, Pa., went into fourth position displacing the entry of Ruehle's Sunnyside Farm, Pleasant Valley, N. Y. In the "All Other Varieties" group, the Dominiques entered by Thurlow Travis from Peekskill, N. Y., went into third position, displacing the White Rocks entered by S. Bradford Allyn from Hollliston, Mass.

With a lay of 371 eggs to date, the Leghorns entered by Mount Hope Farm from Williamstown, Mass., continue to lead the way for all other pens in the contest. They gained one egg this week on their nearest competitor, the Rhode Island Reds entered by John Z. LaBelle, from Ballouville, Conn., which to date have laid a total of 360 eggs.

GIVEN FINE AND SUSPENDED JAIL TERM

In city court, Wednesday morning, Henry C. Russell, of Farmington, charged with obtaining goods under false pretences from the Henschel Tire and Rubber Co., to the amount of $25.67 pleaded guilty. He was fined $25 and costs and given a jail sentence of 30 days. Judge Arthur F. Libby asked the accused if he had learned a lesson and received an affirmative reply. He then suspended the jail sentence.

The jail sentence was not asked for, inasmuch as Russell had just completed a four months' sentence in Brooklyn jail for the same offense. City Attorney Lee Roy Robbins asked for a fine and suspended jail sentence.

A Mr. Brown of Farmington paid the court bill which amounted to nearly $50 and also made restitution for the goods taken from the Henschel Tire and Rubber Co. He also made good for other small bills Russell had incurred in the city and had not settled for. Mr. Brown stated that he was going to give Russell employment in Farmington.

One man charged with intoxication was fined $5 and costs, a total of $14.50, but as he lacked the funds he went to jail to serve time.

NORWICH TOWN

Arrangements have been completed and everything is in readiness for the Community Christmas Tree celebration this evening, at 7:30 o'clock, on the Norwich Town Green. It is expected that every citizen will do his or her part in the community singing. Following are the songs to be used:

O Little Town of Bethlehem. The First Noel, Silent Night, It Came Upon the Midnight Clear, Joy to the World We Three Kings of the Orient and O Come All Ye Faithful.

The Old Town Green seems a particularly suitable place to hold a festival of this kind, as it was the original meeting place of the first settlers. Talk is by no means a sectional affair for Norwich Town, only; but a festival for the entire town of Norwich.

The annual Christmas tree exercises of the First Congregational Sunday school were held Wednesday evening in the chapel, with a very large attendance. Following the programme the children sang Christmas songs until the arrival of Santa Claus, who distributed gifts for every member of the school, from a prettily decorated tree, laden with Christmas packages, candy, etc.

Santa Claus, was impersonated in fine style by Ralph H. Marsh, one of the most active members of the Sunday school, and teacher of a class of small boy.

CHRISTMAS CELEBRATION IN THE NATIONAL CAPITAL

President Coolidge Pressed Button Lighting a Community Christmas Tree—At the Salvation Army Home Mrs Coolidge Handed Out the First Christmas Basket Given to the Poor—White House Grounds Were Thrown Open to the Public.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24.—(AP)—President Coolidge took the lead tonight in getting Washington away to a start on its celebration of Christmas.

Accompanied by Mrs. Coolidge, he motored from the white house to Sherman square, south of the treasury, to press a button lighting a community Christmas tree planted there. The ceremony, at which the United States marine band provided music for the singing of carols, took place early in the evening.

The president then returned to the executive mansion, which was visited later by the choir of First Congregational church, where the president and Mrs. Coolidge worship. White house gates were open and thousands of people, taking advantage of unseasonable balmy weather, swarmed into the grounds to hear the carols, among them, "Bells of Christmas," composed by the Rev. Ilason Noble Pierce, pastor of the church, and dedicated to Mrs. Coolidge.

At the Salvation Army home, where she handed out the first Christmas basket given to the poor, Mrs. Coolidge made a brief speech. She admitted that, although the wife of a president, she never had learned "how to make a speech and confided that her Christmas would be made happier because she had helped spread cheer among the needy of the capital.

Christmas day will be spent quietly by the president and Mrs. Coolidge. Their son, John, is home from Amherst college but they will have no house guests. In the morning they plan to attend community services at the First Congregational church, at which a sermon will be delivered by the Rev. W. S. Abernethy of Calvary Baptist church, at which the late president Harding worshipped, and then will retire to the seclusion of the executive mansion.

In decorating the white house for the holidays, mountain laurel and branches of ash have been used instead of the traditional holly. The change was made at the request of Mrs. Coolidge, who has interested herself in the campaign to preserve holly. Pine cones and [illegible] add to the color scheme in the white house windows.

A lengthy program, in which the many voices of the choir were accompanied by a marine band brass quartette, was rendered outside the Pennsylvania avenue entrance to the president's mansion. It carried out a custom re-established when the Coolidges first entered the White House and as in the past they listened from the seclusion of the mansion, later inviting the choir in for an informal reception. With government employes required to put in a full day before a three-day holiday suspension of activities, President Coolidge spent most of today in his office. He was on the job earlier than usual, and apparently was unable to curb his curiosity as to what he had been given for Christmas.

He went into a room near his private office, sorted the day's first delivery of mail, selected a few letters and packages addressed to him, evidently recognizing handwriting, and instead of waiting until tomorrow opened the packages.

In addition to supervising the Christmas decoration of the White House, which included a tree, Mrs. Coolidge found time in the morning to go to a theatre to assist the Central Union mission in distributing gifts to poor children, and later went to Salvation Army headquarters to take part in a similar ceremony.

GOOD CHEER DISPENSED TO HORSES IN BOSTON

BOSTON, Dec. 24—(AP)—There was a festive spirit in the air today. The horses that haul the heavy drays and trucks and carts through the crowded narrow streets knew it. Drivers went out of their routes to bring their horses to post office square where, as high as six horses and ornamented with carrots, apples and ears of corn, stood the horses' Christmas tree. This was the eighth season this remarkable tree has appeared, arranged by the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

Laundrymen, tired milkmen, expressmen, delivery truck drivers and many others who still drive the horses used on the short hauls about city came so that their animal friends might have a delicate bite and know that it was Christmas. The square had been cleared of the automobiles usually parked there and the icy slopes had been sanded to invite every work horse that came to explore the gift box.

Scores of bushels of oats, carrots, apples, hundreds of pounds of corn on the cob and other dainties, sweet toothers' palate, were distributed. The drivers received doughnuts and coffee. The feast was augmented by men and women who go each year to the square to make friends with the horses that gather there. Lump sugar was a popular addition to the provender offered. A mounted traffic policeman assisted by his horse Dan, patrolled the scene to keep the automobiles in their place. Many of the horses have been prize winners in work horse parades and some can do clever tricks.

But Daisy, who used to be a regular participant in the festivities, didn't come. Daisy used to tell her age by pawing the ground so many times. Daisy would shake hands. She would eat sugar held between the lips of her driver. Daisy was getting along in years last Christmas and not so long ago she died. The people missed her. Her driver is sadly broken up over her death they say.

NEW YORK THRONGED WITH HOLIDAY RUSH

NEW YORK, Dec. 24—(AP)—New York struggled tonight in the final throes of the holiday rush. Pennsylvania and Grand Central stations were particularly crowded, and around the tinner hour both stations were filled with seething masses of humanity.

At Pennsylvania station the swirling masses several times came perilously near engulfing the huge Christmas tree which has been erected at the center of the huge waiting room, and only the vigilance of trainmen saved it. Packages of all sizes and descriptions were much in evidence. Squadrons of "red caps" marched hither and thither with military precision, answering whistles and doing their best to accommodate the throngs. Although there was much jostling, there were few frowns.

The Pennsylvania operated twenty-one west bound extra trains, and eleven east bound specials. Extra sections were carried by all regular trains, and eleven east bound specials. The traffic for the south was particularly heavy. All extra equipment possible was used by the New York Central, and all other roads were taxed to capacity.

Relief workers were busy reuniting separated families. Special policemen were on duty to control the crowds.

The Christmas spirit permeated other parts of the city as well. Through the use of $326,000 collected through the aid of newspapers of the city, Christmas cheer was brought into many needy homes.

HOLIDAY SUSPENSION OF FINANCIAL ACTIVITIES

NEW YORK, Dec. 24—(AP)—All activities in the financial district came to a halt tonight in observance of the Christmas holiday which in many cases will embrace the entire weekend. The New York stock exchange and all other local securities and commodities markets will remain closed both Friday and Saturday. Banks will be required by law to open on Saturday but it is expected that only routine business will be transacted.

BRITONS ARE MAKING MERRY OVER CHRISTMAS

LONDON, Dec. 24—(AP)—That same throb of contentment which thrilled earlier Britons through ages of war and peace is beating again within the people of these islands tonight, for they have thrown off the cares of bad trade and heavy taxation to be merry over Christmas.

The country will be at rest. There will be no newspapers, no trams, no busses, no work tomorrow, nor on Saturday, Boxing day, for the English carry on the festivities of Christmas for another twenty-four hours after.

As is usual, the royal family have gathered at Sandringham with relatives to pass the next few days, its Yuletide saddened this year by the death of Duchess of Devonshire. In Alexandra House, while millions are stowing at home in London for the quiet English Yuletide, thousands have department for the continent for the winter sports.

There has been curious English weather to suit all tastes. In the north of England the snow is many feet deep. In Devonshire there has been an unusual snowfall for this time of year, but Londoners escaped the snow and have been treated with alternate showers and brilliant sunshine.

GAYEST CHRISTMAS IN PARIS SINCE PRE-WAR DAYS

PARIS, Dec. 24.—(AP)—Santa Claus slipped into Paris tonight on what promised to be one of the gayest Christmas eves since pre-war days, but those who hoped for an old-fashioned white Christmas got nothing but a light drizzle with a forecast of rain tomorrow.

All the big theatres were sold out, and the cabarets and restaurants from Montmarte to the Champs Elysees expected one of the most dazzling nights ever witnessed, and accordingly prices mounted for midnight supper, varying from 2 to 50 francs in the Latin quarter to 500 francs in the fashionable Champs Elysees places. Great crowds swarmed the boulevards from late afternoon, and, if custom is followed, every worthy Frenchman will stay there until dawn.

The American ambassador, Myron T. Herrick, speaking before the Christmas eve luncheon of the American club, hoped for good things for Premier Briand.

CARDINAL HAYES SENDS A CHRISTMAS MESSAGE

ROME, Dec. 24—(AP)—It is exceptional that the archbishop of New York is far from his diocese on Christmas day, but Cardinal Hayes considered it a moral duty to be next to the pontiff at the closing of the holy door. He has sent through The Associated Press the following message to America:

"Kneeling this holy night in the Eternal City, I naturally present to the new born King the homage of the Catholic people of New York, while I cannot be unmindful of all others not of my faith of the great metropolis.

"May both the power, as well as the light of the Christmas festival prove an inspiration to America for even greater fidelity to the eternal principles of justice and charity."

NEW CANAAN DOG WARDEN "ROPES" A WOLF HOUND

NEW CANAAN, Dec. 24.—(AP)—For the past three years a Russian wolf hound has been living in the woods in the south end of this town and has done considerable damage, killing chickens, attacking cows and chasing calves. Efforts have been made to capture the animal in the past but has been unsuccessful. Today, however, Charles Bradley, dog warden here, entered the woods and succeeded in catching the animal with a rope. The dog was then given poison.

The wolf hound ran away from a man named Churchill who moved to California and has since roamed about the woods. It was found that the hound had a litter of two puppies in the woods and the warden will go after these tomorrow.

Fire last night destroyed the wire mill of the Carpenter Steel company, Reading, Pa., at a loss estimated by company officials at about $200,000.

Christmas Message By Gov. Trumbull

No Real Happiness in Our Own Firesides Unless Our Neighbor's is Alight.

BRIDGEPORT, Dec. 24—(AP)—Executive Secretary Edward L. Kelly tonight made public a Christmas message from Governor John H. Trumbull to the people of Connecticut. The message follows:

"We are most of us busy people. Perhaps it is that very quality of keeping busy which makes us a prosperous and contented and happy type of folk. But we are finding more and more occasion to be busy in a very special kind of way at Christmas time. We are realizing that there is no real happiness in our own fireside unless our neighbor's hearth is alight; that the spirit of the founder of Christmas is that of an open hand and a large heart and a light in every window. May we keep that spirit. So that when we come to grow old, we may say with old Marley: 'Mankind was my business; the common welfare was my business; charity, mercy, forbearance and benevolence, were all my business; the dealings of my trade were but a drop of water in the comprehensive ocean of my business.'

"I am hoping that through the untiring work of our splendid relief organizations, and through the kindly co-operation of the press and of thousands of generous men and women, there will not be a person in this state who will lack a bit of cheer this day; not one child who will not awaken Christmas morning, happy in the certainty that the spirit of another child is still warm in our hearts.

"A merry Christmas and a happy new year to you all! Christmas, 1925."

LEADER OF MINERS IS READY FOR CONFERENCE

SCRANTON, Pa., Dec. 24—(AP)—Announcement that International President John L. Lewis, of the Miners' union, had notified Mayor John Durkan today that the union leaders are willing to confer with the anthracite operators on any and all plans tending to restore peace, was received with rejoicing by the rank and file of the union.

The impression prevails among the thousands of idle miners that their leader has now paved the way for a resumption of negotiations and the end of the tie-up. The Christmas spirit, which was one of gloom in the hard coal fields, was suddenly turned to one of joy when the news got out.

Mayor Durkan, immediately after receiving the message from Mr. Lewis dispatched a letter to W. W. Inglis, spokesman for the operators, in which he said 'the door is open." Mayor Durkan suggested to Mr. Inglis that Alvan Markle, chairman of the operators' and miners' joint committee, call a conference at a time and place suitable to both sides. Major Inglis as yet has made no reply.

A telegram from President Lewis has raised the hopes of the mine workers that an early resumption of mining will result if the two sides get together soon.

Marshal Yu's Troops Have Entered Tientsin

Foreign Troops and Volunteers Are Guarding Entrances to Foreign Countries.

PEKING, Dec. 24—(AP)—Marshal Feng Yu Hsiang's long fight for complete mastery of Chihli province moved near a successful termination today when his troops entered Tientsin, the great port and commercial center of North China, having brushed aside the last barrier, the army of General Li Ching-Ling, civil governor of the province.

General Li, named to his post by Chang Tso-Lin last year when the Manchurian dictator was also ruler over most of North China below the great wall, is reported to be a refugee in the Japanese concession of Tientsin, with his staff. His soldiers, beaten and in general retreat, have been looting and spreading terror in the Chinese part of the city.

Foreign troops and volunteers, guarding the entrances to the foreign concessions, stand ready to prevent the spread of war and lawlessness to those districts of the city where thousand of American, British, Japanese and other non-chine residents live and own business and industrial properties worth millions of dollars.

The garisons of Tientsin include one battalion of American infantry.

The last phase of the battle for Tientsin was brief but sanguinary, thousands having been killed and wounded. Recoiling Monday from a repulse by Li's defending forces, Feng Yu-Hsiang sent his men into a new and heavier assault on Tuesday that ended with the capture of the prize today.

Early today it was reported that Li was making a last desperate stand, counter-attacking with such vigor that his men progressed three miles in the direction of Pehtsang, 10 miles northwest of Tientsin. The success was only temporary, however and a renewal of Feng's attack broke the back of the resistance.

Feng has appointed Sun Yueh, formerly one of his division commanders, civil governor of Chihli in Li's place.

Hyde, only sister and nearest relative of Mr. Munsey, arrived in New York from her home in Florida at six o'clock tonight for her last view of the body before it is placed in a receiving vault in Woodlawn cemetery. The bronze casket containing the remains was returned to the chapel of St. Ansgarius in the cathedral after the services to lie in state until Mrs. Hyde's arrival.

In deference to Mr. Munsey's anxiety for her advanced age and her health, Mrs. Hyde was not notified of her brother's illness until after his death.

The funeral rites were conducted by Bishop William T. Manning, in accordance with the publisher's expressed wish, there was no sermon. Approximately 1,700 persons attended, included among the mourners were high officials of the state and city government, persons prominent in professional, business and social life, and scores of employes engaged in the various Munsey enterprises.

This estate, estimated at between $20,000,000 and $40,000,000, includes Mr. Munsey's two New York newspapers, the Sun and the Telegram, three magazines, his interest in a system of chain grocery stores, and various other financial enterprises. A Christmas Carol.

What means this glory round our feet,"
The Magi mused, "more bright than morn?"
And voices chanted clear and sweet,
"Today the Prince of Peace is born!"

"What means that star," the shepherds said,
"That brightens through the rocky glen?"
And angels, answering overhead,
Sing, "Peace on earth, good will to men!"

All round about our feet shall shine
A light that the Wise Men saw
If we our loving will incline
To that Sweet Life which is the law.

So shall we learn to understand
The simple faith of shepherds then,
And, clasping kindly hand in hand,
Sang, "Peace on earth, good will to men!"

And they who do their souls no wrong
But keep at eve the faith of morn,
Shall daily hear the angel song,
"Today the Prince of Peace is born!"

SEC'Y HOOVER CORRECTS THE LONDON MORNING POST

Defending the British Monopoly of Rubber, the Post Stated That the United States Sought to Restrict Wheat Production When the World Was Starving—Mr. Hoover Declares the American Government Has Never Passed Any Legislation Restricting Production—Large Surplus of Wheat Was Given European Countries in Actual Charity and the Remainder Was Sold on Credit.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24—(AP)—Secretary Hoover contradicted today an assertion by the London Morning Post, which said, while defending the British monopoly of rubber, that the United States government had itself sought to restrict wheat production at a time of world need.

"The London Morning Post seems to be misinformed when it states that the United States government endeavored to restrict wheat production in the face of a starving world," said Mr. Hoover.

"The facts are that in 1917 congress in order to supply the allies and the starving world guaranteed the price of wheat to the American farmers. Under the guarantee the normal of 52,000,000 acres was expanded in the 1918 crop to 64,000,000 acres, and in 1919 crop to 76,000,000 acres an enormous surplus resulted.

"The British government, after the armistice in 1918, however very naturally turned to the large accumulation of cheaper wheat which had been held back in Australia and the Argentine. In consequence the American government was compelled to buy large amounts of wheat in order to make good its guarantee.

"These surpluses were disposed of to starving countries in Europe, a large proportion of them in actual charity, and the remainder were sold on credit which under subsequent debt settlements proved to have been about 50 per cent of what the wheat cost the American government.

"The American government has never passed any legislation restricting production. This story probably originates from the fact that the department of agriculture, a year after the armistice, and after the world famine was passed, did warn the American farmer that there was an over-production of wheat in the world and that they should get back to normal. Such over-production proved true, and under it the American farmer for at least two years sold his wheat to Europe for less than the cost of production."

INTEREST IN GENEVA OVER RUBBER MONOPOLY

GENEVA, Dec. 24—(AP)—Considerable interest has been stirred up in Geneva over the decision of the United States congress to appoint a committee to investigate the world distribution of raw rubber. The opinion is voiced that the question of the world supply and distribution of raw materials will inevitably find a place on the agenda of the proposed international economic conference.

Both Americans and Russians are to be invited to membership in the preparatory economic committee, and it is now suggested that the United States as a government may be invited to sit temporarily on the league of nations council No. 2. This council will act in a sort of advisory political capacity both to the preparatory commission on the disarmament conference and to the economic conference preparatory committee.

League officials make the suggestion that if the United States is interested in the equitable distribution of necessities like rubber, woodpulp and quinine, she could profitably join with certain European countries which are likely to insist upon discussion of this subject at the Geneva conference.

Lodge No. 1 is known as the mother lodge of the order in this country. It owns a clubhouse valued at $3,000,000 and has approximately 3,000 members.

ACCIDENTS DAMPENED ARDOR OF YULETIDE

BOSTON, Dec. 24—(AP)—Winter laid a heavy hand on New England on the day before Christmas, taking a toll of six lives and property loss of nearly half a million dollars. It brought snow and slippery roads that sent three fire-trucks, Mass., firemen to their deaths when the truck skidded. It brought thin ice through which five boys in Boston suburbs were plunged into icy water, three being drowned.

Heating systems were speeded up to keep building warm and fires resulting in part at least, from over-heated equipment, caused injury to a score of men, firemen and workers, and resulted in losses in Maine, New Hampshire and Massachusetts totalling between $400,000 and $500,000.

Early in the day the Scituate fire department truck overturned on a slippery road in Norwell, Mass. George Barrows, Hugh McDermott, and Frank Hall were killed. FRENCH PARLIAMENT ADJOURNED TILL MONDAY

Paris, Dec. 24—(AP)—Both the senate and chamber adjourned this evening until Monday morning, with the financial problem still far from settled. M. Doumer's projects will probably be ready for discussion by the cabinet tomorrow, but the finance minister refuses to give any precise indication as to their terms.

Friends of the government say however, that M. Doumer will stick to the plan of a double tax on business turnover. This, it is expected, will furnish the main point of contention between the government and its majority in the chamber.

Premier Briand is quoted as saying that he has had enough opposition from his own friends, and is determined to fight it out; he will accept a majority from the centre and right, if necessary to get the government programme through.

The groups of the left coalition today completed the measures on which they will take up their fight against the government. They are more conservative than anticipated. Providing for the levy of just enough new taxes to balance the budget and omitting the provision for a sinking fund to retire the short term bonds.

CHARGED WITH BEING A SPY FOR GERMANY

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—(AP)—Mrs. Ella Briggs, an American woman architect, sent to Sicily to make pictures of Italian Renaissance architecture for the Architectural Publishing company, of New York, is under arrest in Palermo, Sicily charged with being a spy for Germany, it was learned today.

A cable from Mrs. Briggs brother, who also is in Italy, stated that Mrs Briggs was being held in jail incommunicado. Paul Wenzel, head of the publishing firm, said. The cable, he asserted, was the first information the publishers had concerning Mrs. Briggs since she went to Sicily last summer.

She left here last March with a commission to draw plans for some public buildings in Vienna, and the commission to do photographic work for the Architectural Publishing company. She first went to Vienna, and after completing her drawings there, went to Sicily.

On receipts of the news of her arrest, Mr. Wenzel said, his firm had made affidavits as to the purpose of Mrs. Briggs' mission in Italy, and forwarded these to the state department, together with a request that official steps be taken to obtain her release.

Mr. Wenzel said Mrs. Briggs has had nothing whatever to do with the German government.

DANIELSON

PACO MFG. CO. EMPLOYES HAVE BIG CHRISTMAS PARTY

DANIELSON, Dec. 24—Four hundred employes of the Paco Manufacturing Co., with overseers, superintendents and agent, assembled for a Christmas Eve party in a section of the great weave shed of the Main street plant, at 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon set an example of splendid spirit of co-operation and good will that was really inspiring. It was the first time that anything just like this had been done in Danielson and it was a complete and all-embracing success. Nothing just like this would have been regarded as profitable in Danielson in the earlier history of manufacturing. But things have changed for relations are decidedly better. Everyone connected with the plant seemed as happy as could be. They were like a bevy of delighted children. Laughter and gaiety prevailed.

A great square section of the weave shed that later is to be filled with looms, had been decorated with all the emblems of the holiday season and in this pretty setting presentation of gifts and acknowledgments thereof took place. Later, an orchestra composed of company employes played for dancing.

P. O. Caron of the weaving department, on behalf of the employes, presented the agent Herbert H. Peppler and Superintendent Dolard A. Grenon beautiful white gold watches, chains and cigar cutters, the watches being duly inscribed. In their responses Messrs. Peppler and Grennon paid tribute to the fine spirit and good will that prompted the gift and gave assurance of their sincere appreciation.

Other gifts from the employes were a brown walrus Gladstone bag to Supt. C. F. Alexander, a handsome pipe set and tobacco to Superintendent Fred T. Taylor, a mahogany clock to Mrs. Orise Bernier, forewoman of the curtain department, cuff links and charm to James Goodness of the cloth department, fountain pen and pencil to Octave Plantier of the weaving department, similar gifts to Mario DelPesco of the winding department, pen, pencil and watch chain to P. O. Caron of the weaving department.

In turn, the Paco Co., acting through Mr. Peppler generally provided refreshments of sandwiches, ice cream, soda and candy. There was also a little gift for each employe, these of a kind to create amusement. A Santa Claus dominated the entire affair. It was a great party and a very happy one.

LEONARD H. HILL, NEW HAVEN, MAY BE COUNTY Y SECRETARY

DANIELSON, Dec. 24—Leonard H. Hill of New Haven may come into Windham county as secretary of the county Y. M. C. A. He has been tendered the office, which would pay him $3,000 a year, and the county committee is hoping that he will accept. At present Mr. Hill is doing Y work at the New Haven Y. M. C. A. building. He is an especially capable and experienced man in boy's work and is particularly interested in county Y work. If he accepts, he will come to Windham county as the successor to John H. Corbett, who resigned several months ago, the county work since having been in charge of Principal Childs of Woodstock academy. Clifford H. Starkweather and Sidney P. Marland, representing Danielson, attended the recent meeting of the county committee in Putnam when it was voted to invite Mr. Hill to become Windham county secretary. Mr. Hill is about 30 years of age, is married and has two children.

No complete checkup was possible up to Thursday afternoon on the number of Christmas seals sold here through the agency of the civic federation. However, reported sales appear to be about 30,000. Full reports from schools handling the seals and from other sources are not yet available, but when received will materially increase the total of sales toward the 50,000 mark, which was the goal set for this year, though it may not have been reached.

Undoubtedly sales of competing seals, sold for decorative purposes only, injured the sales of Christmas seals in Danielson this year. Some firms that sent these seals through the mails into this territory allowed the vendors of them as high as 40 per cent. commission. It was but natural that children, anxious to earn a profit, should be a bit more enthusiastic about selling the competing seals in preference to the Christ seals. Instances have come to light where children had Christmas seals in one pocket and the competing seals in another pocket—both kinds for sale, the profit-paying one getting the benefit of the most earnest salesmanship.

By advance announcements next year, it is hoped to put the public on guard against mistakingly buying the competing seals for Christmas seals.

Press discussion of high prices of crude rubber and admonitions to repair old tires and tubes and make them serve longer centers attention here on the big business now being done in old, discarded tires. A motor truck piled to the height of its capacity was seen here Thursday. It was loaded with old tires. A year ago these old tires were practically worthless. Junkmen were not interested in them. But things have changed. Garages, tire repair shops and individuals are now being canvassed by men who want to buy the old shoes and are willing to pay interesting prices for them. One man got a $5 bill Thursday for a considerable collection of old tires that he has been accumulating for several years. Buyers of these tires are disposing of them to concerns that reclaim the rubber in them.

Once more a hope of East Killingly for regular transportation service to Danielson has been shattered by the denial of the petition of a motor coach company to run from Willimantic through Danielson to East Killingly and the Connecticut-Rhode Island line just beyond. However, only a slight hope ever existed that this petition would be granted, for the Danielson-Willimantic section of the route is already adequately served by motor coach lines.

William Ray, 57, who came to Killingly Center from Pascoag to make his home the past fall, died during Wednesday night. Mr. Ray was a native of Millville. He lived in this town for years and had also lived in Rhode Island communities. Mr. Ray, whose funeral is to take place at Harrisville, R. I., leaves his wife, three sons, Thomas and James of Dayville, Andrew of Mohegan and a daughter, Annie of Harrisville.

The Community Christmas tree party on Davis park, under the auspices of the American legion, Christmas eve was a delight to a great many people, especially to the children who shared in the distribution of candy and fruit. Very pleasing was the singing by the Carolers. Their visits about town after the exercises on the park brought the spirit of the great holiday home more vividly to all who heard them, especially to the shut-ins, who were especially remembered.

After getting away to a slow start in early December, the Christmas business was very satisfactory to the majority of Danielson business men in the last ten days of the year's most hectic shopping period. Numbers of splendid sales records were reported. Danielson merchants again demonstrated that excellent things may be had here at very reasonable prices and that as merchandising center this place is alert and progressive.

In numbers of Danielson homes bounteous Christmas feasts are to be enjoyed today, through the generosity of kindly people who gave funds to purchase cheer distributed through the federation of churches. Though all who gave may never hear directly from those who received the goods things planned for them, the givers have as great a spiritual satisfaction from their contribution as may be had from any giving at Christmas time. They made possible a real holiday for numbers of worthy people.

The postal workers here cleared their work Christmas eve, after another hard day and today (Friday) are having their well earned rest.

Numbers attended the midnight celebration of Holy Communion at St. Alban's church on the eve of Christmas, Rev. Leonard Richards, the rector, officiating.

With the first of the year hunting and fishing licenses will expire. If one so desires, a combination hunting and fishing may be had for 1926. Either sort of license also may be obtained separately.

Mr. and Mrs. James Monohan of Riverview are entertaining relatives from Providence over the holiday.

Several hundred children in St. James' school have started on their holiday vacation.

Unusually heavy travel on trains, motor coaches nad in private automobiles Thursday was significant of impending Christmas reunions.

Indicative of the special care with which the motor coaches of the Connecticut company are operated on the line through this town is the fact that every coach comes to a full stop before going over a railroad crossing.

The Union Baptist church at East Killingly has a program of Christmas exercises for today.

PUTNAM

LOCAL TOURISTS LIKE OR DISLIKE FLORIDA

PUTNAM, Dec. 24—Major A. D. McIntyre has returned from Florida. He thinks that the country is overrated, that the chances for getting rich over night are very slim and that one must be a near-millionaire to stay there during the present winter.

E. C. Rogers, who drove down to look over his property in the Lake Okeechobee region, has returned by train, to be here over the holidays and will then go back. In his judgment the artificial period of the inflation of values has about passed and land is being bought and sold at something like its actual worth. He also thinks that the state is entering on a great era of development.

Ernest L. Davis is at Safety Harbor, where he has spent several winters. He likes the climate during the cold season only.

W. S. Johnson, who is at Tampa, had an attack of illness from which he has not fully recovered, but he thinks that the climate is better than that of Connecticut in which to get well.

John H. Corbett, formerly Y. M. C. A. secretary for Windham county and Mrs. Corbett are at Orlando. Mr. Corbett is doing what a large percentage of the population is engaged in—selling real estate. In a letter received from him a few days ago he expressed himself as confident of the continuance of the Florida boom.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy L. Baker are at Tamper where the former is with an automobile firm.

Fayette Wright with his family is at St. Petersburg, where he owns a large tract of land.

Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Prince have returned from Florida. They expected to spend the winter there, but the climate did not agree with Mrs. Prince.

Putnam like all other cities in this section of the country, has an interest in Florida because of the number of its citizens who are spending the winter there or are planning to go there.

OVER 100 MEMBERS PLEDGED FOR NEW MASONIC CLUB

PUTNAM, Dec. 24—The meeting between the representatives of the new Masonic club with the members of the Arcanum club association was adjourned until next Tuesday evening, December 29, in order to give the new Masonic club more time to perfect its organization, prepare by-laws, etc.

Judge M. H. Geissler, Cortland D. Arnold and Lucius P. Merriam were named as a committee of the new organization to consummate the lease of the club property with the association trustees. Judge Geissler, as spokesman for the committee, outlined what had been done and then suggested a week's adjournment. For this evening of next week the committee and other promoters of the club will endeavor to notify every member of the Masonic order in Putnam of what is proposed and invite each to attend. They will also try to get in touch with the members of Putnam lodge, of Woodstock, and Cornerstone lodge, of North Grosvenordale, and extend them a similar invitation—to be present at the meeting and to join the club.

The committee, Messrs Geissler, Arnold and Merriam, has announced that every Mason in this community will be welcomed at the meeting, when detailed information will be given as to the plans and hopes of the new organization. It is stated that the formation of the club is an assured thing, that more than 100 members have been secured and that there will be a very substantial increase of this number within the next week.

William E. Moss was assigned the task of providing refreshments for the meeting, which is to be in the clubhouse on South Main street, Tuesday evening, December 29.

Putnam high school teachers are spending their holidays as follows:

Miss Abbie Keith, Miss Elizabeth Smith, Miss Edith Kent, Miss Irene Bernier and Principal E. L. Robinson will remain in Putnam.

Miss Jeessie Maynard, a teacher at Paxton, Mass., and Miss Ruth Maynard, who teaches at Lebanon, Conn., are home during vacation.

Miss Matilda and Adulcia Dumas, of Hartford, are spending the holidays with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Dumas.

Miss Rhea deCoudres, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas deCoudres, who is taking a special course at Brown university, is attracting attention there by the quality of her poetry. In the Sepaid, the magazine published by the Woman's college at Brown, are four of her poems.

The Record, another Brown magazine says that they give indications of poetic talent and are remarkable for a girl of nineteen. The Record further says:

"Miss deCoudres is a new name among the contributors and readers of the magazine are very favorably impressed both by her technique and by the things that she has said. It is to her poem, "Full Moon," certainly that the honors of the issue must go. But in her other verses she shows a nice poetic spirit and possesse to a marked degree the facility that is usually lacking in the young poet."

At the last meeting of the Putnam lodge, I. O. O. F., two of the grand officers of the state were present, it being their official visitation to district 25, which includes Putnam, Danielson and Central Village. Large delegations from the other two lodges were present. Alfred L. Lilley, of Hartford, grandmaster of the state, and William S. Hutchins, of New Haven, grand secretary, both spoke of the infirmary, now being built as one of the units of the state home. They told of the progress that is being made, the value of the building to the members of the order, and of the necessity for contributing funds for its completion. After the meeting a chicken supper was served by the Rebekahs.

The Christmas concert of Brandy Hill Baptist church was well attended. An interesting programme was given as follows: Song, O Worship the King, congregation; prayer, Rev. STONINGTON

IMPROVEMENTS MADE AT "STONE ACRES"

STONINGTON, Dec. 24—Among the recent improvements at "Stone Acres" the farm of Eugene Edwards here is a new milk house. The building is 32 by 18 feet and is divided into four rooms. The wash room is equipped with a washing machine with which and electric bottle washer is used. All bottles and cans are thoroughly washed rinsed and then sterilized in live steam. A small room at the end is where an eight horsepower upright boiler is installed which heats the building and furnishes plenty of hot water and steam. The room at the back of these two contains the separator which is run by electricity, a bottle filling machine and a large cooling tank with cover. There is also storage space for bottle crates, etc., in the room at the other end the truck is kept. Doors from both wash room and bottling room open into this so the truck can be both loaded and unloaded under cover which means a great deal, especially in bad weather. The floor is of cement, the lower half of the walls are ceiled up, the upper part being a hard white finish.

David Nason has just completed his fourth year as manager of the farm and during that time much has been done to improve and increase the herd which now numbers 37 milking cows, all tuberculin tested, Guernseys and Jerseys are being added from time to time. During the past few weeks in the time that could be spared Mr. Nason with his helpers have been blasting and getting out rocks in some of the fields so they will be much easier to work and will present a better appearance. Last year he used quite a bit of commercial fertilizer on some of the fields with the result he had some of the nicest fields of grass in this section. He plans to use much more this year.

Mr. Edwards is much interested in his farm and spends most of his time there with the exception of three months which he spends in Florida. He is trying at all times to make conditions more convenient and agreeable to those employed at the farm.

THE CHRISTMAS SPIRIT

Once again the Christmas spirit has gripped the land. Once again we are witnessing the display of good will, good fellowship, sympathetic and helpful friendships such as the day and season call for. There is that kindlier thought for fellowmen, with gifts to the young, the well, the poor and the suffering poured out in unstinted measure.

Charles Lamb has well said in his appeal to the piping time of Christmas, "Never let us permit thee to degenerate into distant courtesies and formal salutations. But let us shake our friends and familiars by the hand, as our fathers and their fathers did. Let us look of the time, cheerful and generous, and endeavor to make others as cheerful and generous as ourselves."

But there cannot be forgotten the real meaning of the anniversary, the birth of the Christ-child whose love has so enriched the world and at whose coming the angels sang, "Peace on earth, good will to men." There is the need for insuring the extension of this good will and making permanent the peace.

Let the good will, the peace, the rejoicing and the jollity be genuine and generous. Let there be nowhere in our land today a suffering man, woman or child, poor and needy, in the home or in the hospital, in health or in sickness to which no word of Christmas cheer and Christmas joy has been brought.

Much is said about the Christmas spirit. This is the time for displaying the real Christmas spirit, and in doing so to have it make such a strong and lasting impression that it will prevail not only for a day, a week or a fortnight but be extended throughout the year. There is no danger that it will be overcultivated and grow too prolific.

THE ERIE STAMPEDE

What happened in Erie, Pa., is what invariably happens anywhere when there is an alarm sounded in a large gathering. Because a bench broke letting down a number of children who were part of the 5000 attending a Christmas party in the arena, some one started to run, others joined in and soon there was a stampede with the result that when the building was cleared three children had been trampled to death and a number of others injured.

There was no justification for such a panic. Had those who led the rush taken the same commanding position in regard to restraining the crowd and urging an orderly retirement, if in fact any retirement on the part of the crowd was necessary at that time, there would have been no trampling of children. The instability of the bench which gave way should not have existed, and its condition seems to be indicated when its occupancy by children brought about its collapse, but there is nothing more dangerous under such conditions than the starting of a rush for the doors.

A crowd is about the most unruly thing imaginable. It takes little to get it started at times and yet the warning on the part of a few cool heads at the right time will do much to control it.

Such affairs as that at Erie must serve as a warning to all gatherings where children are concerned, or in fact celebrations of most any kind where unsafe construction or unsafe conditions of other kinds such as Christmas trees lighted by candles are involved. There is no chance of too much care being taken to insure safety.

Prevention is much better than a cure every time. Precautions should be considered before something happens. Safety provisions are far less costly than the results of undesirable but none the less deplorable accidents. Such a sad ending as that at the Christmas celebration at Erie might have been avoided.

ACCEPTING THE INVITATION

The report which comes from Washington to the effect that the president intends to accept the invitation of the league of nations to be conference of nations for the preparation of a programme dealing with disarmament is no more than what was expected. He has already stated in his message that this country always stood ready to help Europe in the adjustment of international matters when possible, and the invitation to this country to join in the disarmament conference, even though it is a preliminary one, is certainly open to such an interpretation.

Naturally the other countries are going to be interested in the attitude this country is going to take in regard to disarmament. A number of them were impressed by what we had to say and urge in regard to disarmament, and were read to follow our lead. While we have no such opportunity in regard to the reduction of armies, for other countries maintain much larger ones than this country whose standing army is negligible, there is the moral influence to be offered in support of such action and the further reduction of naval armament if a general agreement can be effected.

Being interested in the matter of disarmament and standing for it, there is no good reason why we should refuse to join in such a movement just because the coming conference has been called by the league of nations. It is a common cau to which we have the best of reasons for lending our assistance, and in doing so to fully set forth our position concerning how far we could be expected to go in European affairs, what our agreements would be expected to cover and what our attitud is relative to the league and the enforcement of such understanding as might result.

Naturally the other countries are going to want to know the policy of this country in connection with such a proposition, and it is certainly a time when that can be set forth to the best advantage through such representation as this government will have at Geneva.

CAUSE FOR ELATION

For a long time Georgia has been pointed to as a state where the negro has few rights and where it is next to impossible to have the law operate to his benefit or protection. Georgia has been judged by the manner in which it has indulged in lynchings in the past. It has created the impression by its own conduct that a colored person could be taken out and hanged without hearing of any kind and without those concerned becoming entangled in the law.

Georgia for years piled up an unenviable reputation. Thus it can be expected to point out, as it does in the case of a negro taken back from New Jersey for trial, that laws and courts do function in that state. The young man opposed extradition. He was charged with murder and it was maintained that he could not get a fair trial in Georgia. The extradition was accomplished, nevertheless, the young man was taken back, tried and acquitted, all of which prompts the governor of Georgia to write the governor of New Jersey that "Georgia and its people are no worse than other states."

The record of Georgia may not hinge entirely upon that one case. It is not easy to forget what has happened in Georgia in the past, but it is gratifying to know in this and in other instances Georgia is aiming for higher ideals. That state has had reason to cringe under the criticism that has been heaped upon it following the manner in which lynch law has been tolerated in that commonwealth. Repeatedly it has been stated that such acts did not represent the better sentiment of the state. That better sentiment has required some time to get into action and assert itself. But no one can blame Georgia for pointing out the change in conditions whenever it gets the chance. It represents an improvement which the rest of the country will be ready to applaud.

REDUCE THE NUMBER

With 19,000 persons killed by automobiles in 1924, a gain of 4,000 over the previous year and 7,000 over the second previous year a similar gain this year will mean almost the doubling of motor fatalities in a period of three years.

When such fatality figures are presented it is invariably the case that they are accompanied by others which indicate the large increase in the number of motor vehicles and because of that a lowering of the ratio of fatalities to the number of cars. This is to show that if the accidents had continued in the same ratio of earlier years the increased number of cars would have caused an even greater number of deaths.

For such reduction as there is in the ratio there is cause for gratification, but what is even more desired is a decrease in the total number of automobile fatalities in spite of the increase in the number of cars.

This is possible but it calls for care, and care is not always easily obtained. It calls for care on the part of everyone concerned. It is not solely a matter for the auto driver, for the pedestrian must have an eye and a regard for his own safety, but a situation which calls for less recklessness and more care on the part of both drivers and pedestrians.

There is no use to overlook the dangers that have come with the automobile. They should not be minimized. It is time for everyone to give consideration to the rights of others and to the safety of all. This tremendous annual loss of life most of which is absolutely needless, should be decreased if it is not enough that the ratio is dropping. The aim should be for reducing the number of fatalities in the highways.

EDITORIAL NOTES

A merry Christmas for each and all.

The road to a merry Christmas lies in making it a merry one.

Every year shows that there are a few of the last minute men still among us.

The indications are many that Santa Claus arrived according to schedule.

Christmas comes but once a year, but it always has the same effect on the pocketbook.

The man on the corner says: Have you done your part to make it a merry Christmas?

Once more it is the day of surprises, fits and misfits, joy and happiness.

Had the chimney been cleaned so that Santa can get in without disturbing too much of the soot?

It is invariably so. Those who now appreciate that their packages should have been mailed earlier realize it too late to get results.

No one cares how much the weatherwise dispute about the kind of a winter we are going to have so long as it is a nice one.

When you miss the usual Christmas morning mail you should remember that the sacrifice means a Christmas holiday for the postoffice force.

THE WIND-UP HORSE

Santa Claus Land was in a state of great excitement. It lacked but a few days of Christmas and here was poor old Santa sick in bed with a hard cold, and Mrs. Claus would not let him get up to finish some work, although he pleaded so hard. And now, to make bad matters worse, a letter had just arrived from a little boy in Chicago, asking for a wind up horse with a bobbing head—like the one in Mr. Blank's store.

Mrs. Santa shook her head sadly. "It is too bad to disappoint little Robert," she said to Twinkles, the little messenger who had brought the letter. "He has tried so hard to be kind to everyone."

Twinkles nodded his head. "Yes, and his mother was not feeling well yesterday," he said, "so he played very quietly all day, while his mother slept. At lunch time he got some bread and milk for himself, and took a glass of milk and some crackers to his mother. Then he lay down on his little bed and took a nap. He certainly has tried very hard." Twinkles, too, was sad.

"But I cannot allow Mr. Claus to get up today," Mrs. Claus replied. "We must think of some other way. Why couldn't you go to Mr. Blank's store and buy this horse? I have a little boy's suit of clothes you could slip into, so no one would know you."

Twinkles agreed that he might try, anyway. And it wasn't long before he had started on his journey south, to Mr. Blank's store. As you know it was a long trip from Santa Claus Land to Chicago, and Twinkles, though he went as speedily as he could, was not able to reach the store until Mr. Blank was closing for the day.

"Can't you wait just a moment, Mr. Blank?" said Twinkles. "I must get the horse tonight." Mr. Blank was tired after his busy day, but he went back to the counter where his horses were and Twinkles looked them over. "Where is the one which bobs its head?" he asked finally. "That is the only kind I want."

Mr. Blank looked them over carefully. "I'm afraid I had only the one and I sold that to a lady to-day, for her little nephew for Christmas. Wouldn't this one be just as good?"

Twinkles shook his head sadly. What should he do? And what would Mrs. Claus think of him if he did not bring back that horse? And worst of all, how disappointed poor little Robert would be on Christmas morning when there was no wind-up horse with a bobbing head! Mr. Blank felt sorry for the disappointed little boy—for he did not guess it was Twinkles, one of Santa's trusty messengers. "Perhaps you could get one at Mr. Grey's store," he suggested. "It is only a block or two away."

Twinkles hardly took time to gasp a "Thank you, sir!" and away he sped. But disappointment awaited him again. Mr. Grey's store was in darkness. Poor Twinkles was most unhappy. What should he do now? Suddenly he had a happy thought. He would find out where Mr Grey lived. He hurried into a drug store at the corner and looked through the directory. He located the residence of H R Grey, who owned the store, and was soon ringing the door bell. Mrs. Grey opened the door. "What do you want, little boy?" she asked as Twinkles hesitated.

"I wish to get a horse at Mr. Grey's store," he said.

"You must wait until to-morrow then." Mrs. Grey replied, not unkindly. "Mr. Grey is very tired, and does not wish to go out again." And Twinkles was confronted with a closed door. Poor Twinkles! He sat down on the doorstep to think. Never before had it been necessary to disappoint either Santa or Mrs. Claus.

But he soon jumped up smiling. "It won't hurt to try," he said to himself, his hand clasping something in his pocket. And he climbed to the roof of Mr. Grey's house. Yes, there was a chimney! Twinkles carefully slid along the sides of the chimney, for he was used to that. But suddenly a loosened brick slipped from his foot and crashed down to the open fireplace. Twinkles was frightened into stonelike stillness. He heard a jump, and some one saying, 'There must be an awful wind out to blow bricks down like that!" Then there was a yawn, and a muttered, 'Guess I must have fallen asleep here!" Twinkles hurriedly pulled his thinking cap from his pocket. Then he thought very hard of the horse in Mr. Grey's store and how he wanted Mr. Grey to go to the store, so he could get it.

Twinkles heard a gentle snore, and feared his thinking cap would not have any effect, when he heard a scuffling near the fireplace, and a voice saying: "Oh, kicketty-kick! I do believe I forgot to send that horse of Mr. What's His Name, and he said he must have it tonight." Twinkles chuckled to himself; but he did not leave the chimney until he heard Mr. Grey reminding him to "hurry right back and get some rest." Then he hastened around to the front door; and Mr. Grey never looked behind to see a little boy tagging almost at his heels. Twinkles waited until Mr. Grey had entered the store, and turned on the lights. Then he followed and hastily looked over the horses. There was just one wind up horse with a bobbing head.

"I'll take this," said Twinkles eagerly, and handed the horse to Mr. Grey.

Mr. Grey looked at the tag on it; then at Twinkles. "Sorry, my boy," he said, "but that has been sold. Just came over to wrap it. to send away. Pick out another, sonny."

"But, another won't do," sighed Twinkles. "It must have a bobbing head."

"A bobbing head, eh?—a bobbing head? Yes, I guess I have one that came apart, and I hadn't gotten round to fix it." And he brought forth from under the counter, a windup horse with the head off. "Can you wait while I fix it?" he asked. "It isn't broken—the head merely slipped out of place."

But Twinkles knew more about toys than did Mr. Grey. Wasn't he Santa's chief helper? "That's nothing," he said, "I can fix that in a jiffy; and so it will stay fixed." Mr. Grey looked at Twinkles queerly, while Twinkles reached in his pocket for the money. But the money was lost! Or had Mrs. Claus forgotten to give it to him? Twinkles couldn't remember. However he found Santa's pass card, which every storekeeper knows, and he showed that to Mr Grey. "Just charge it to Santa Claus, until I come around again," he said Mr. Grey nodded and smiled. And Twinkles was off with his horse under his arm.

Christmas eve came. Santa Claus had fully recovered, and Mrs. Santa and all the helpers were busy loading the sleigh. Not one single person had been forgotten—there were presents for every one. And as a special privilege Twinkles had been allowed to go with Santa.

When Santa and Twinkles—and Dasher and Dancer, and all the rest of the reindeer—had arrived at Robert's house, Santa let Twinkles go down the chimney with him. Twinkles placed the windup horse with the bobbing head right under the glittering Christmas tree. Santa hung a tag on the horse's neck. What do you suppose it said? "To Robert, from Twinkles (Santa's Messenger Who Listens).

The next morning, when Robert awoke, he ran to see if Santa had visited him through the night. There under the tree, he found his dear windup horse with the bobbing head that he had so wished for. He hugged and kissed it many times. Then he unwrapped his other presents. There, before his eyes, were two more windup horses with bobbing heads. One tag said, "With much love to darling Robert, from Aunt Sue." The other said, "Merry Christmas. Old Top, from Uncle Jim."

Robert was bewildered. What should he do with three horses.

But when Aunt Sue and Uncle Jim arrived Christmas day they solved the difficulty. He should keep the horse which Twinkles had given him—and he had already named him Twinkles. The other two horses he gave to less fortunate children. One to a sad-looking little boy whom he met on the street, and who said Santa couldn't get into his house because they had no chimney large enough and his mother had forgotten to leave the door open. The other horse he gave to a little lame girl who lived around the corner. Both the boy and the girl were so pleased with the gifts that it made Robert happier still.

That night Robert took his Twinkles to bed with him, and when the real Twinkles, Santa's trusty messenger, looked through the open window and saw the happy smile on Robert's face, he was repaid for all the trouble he had in getting the windup horse with the bobbing head.—Chicago News.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

The Christmas Spirit

The Christmas spirit of good will
The hearts of all this day should fill:
The rich, the poor, the great, the small—
The Christmas spirit is for all.
—Farmer Brown's Boy.

It was Christmas morning. Jolly, round, bright Mr. Sun smiled down from the blue, blue sky, and although there was not much warmth in his smile it was bright and full of good cheer. The Green Meadows and the Green Forest were not green, but white with the purity of spotless snow. Millions of crystals sparkled and flashed at the touch of the Jolly Little Sunbeams. Jack Frost had put snap in the air, but Rough Brother North Wind was taking a day of rest.

Now, of course, the little people of the Green Forest and the Green Meadows and the Old Orchard and the Smiling Pool and the Old Pasture know nothing about Christmas as you and I know it. Of course not. But no one is quicker to feel happiness than these same little people, and happiness was in the very air. Of course, Tommy Tit the Chickadee and Drummer the Woodpecker and Yank Yank the Nuthatch and Sammy Jay had found an extra supply of good things to eat put out for them by Farmer Brown's boy. And they were not the only ones. Goodness, no! The first thing he had done after breakfast was to go down to the dear Old Briar-patch and leave some goodies for Peter and little Mrs Rabbit. Then he had gone straight to the Green Forest and left some wheat, buckwheat and sunflower seeds for Mr and Mrs Grouse. Bob White and family were not forgotten, nor was Reddy Fox. Farmer Brown's boy left a splendid breakfast right near Reddy's home. Even Blacky the Crow found some tidbits where he would be sure to find them. That was Farmer Brown's boy's way of wishing all the little people a merry Christmas.

Now merriment and happiness are two things which are very catching. With so many made merry and happy it is no wonder that this Christmas feeling soon spread all through the Green Forest. The Christmas spirit was abroad and it crept into the hearts of all.

On the pond of Paddy the Beaver the ice was clear, for the snow had fallen before the ice formed. So it was that as Paddy swam out to his food pile under the ice to get a stick of poplar for his breakfast he could see as clearly as if there was no ice. He didn't look up until a dark lump above him caught his attention. There, looking down at him with the greatest curiosity in his big, soft eyes, was Jumper the Hare. As Paddy swam along Jumper followed on the ice with such a queer expression on his face. You see it was the first time he ever had had a chance to look right down on Paddy like this, and Paddy did look queer.

Paddy reached the food pile, got a stick and started back to his house. Jumper thumped lightly, it was his way of saying Merry Christmas! There was something about the very sound of that thump that was happy. Paddy went back with a glad feeling.

Later as Mrs. Paddy went out for a stick. As she swam she looked up and there, staring down at her through the clear ice, was—who do you think? It was Old Man Coyote. He seemed so near that for just a wee second Mrs Paddy was afraid. Then Old Man Coyote grinned at her, and it was a perfectly good-natured grin. It wasn't even a hungry grin. It was a grin of neighborly good will. Before she thought Mrs. Paddy grinned back. It was the Christmas spirit again. It was even under the ice. Why, they didn't know, but it was a fact that the Beaver family felt strangely happy all that day in their snug, safe house. It was just like every other day, yet somehow it was different. And that difference was the spirit of Christmas.

It was so everywhere. Even great big Buster Bear, dreaming away in his long sleep, made funny little happy sounds there in his cave with no one to hear. It was the same way with Bobby Coon. There was happiness and contentment and good will everywhere for it was Christmas Day and the Christmas spirit filled all hearts.

So may it fill your heart this day Merry Christmas everybody!

From Small Beginnings

James Ferguson, Who Made the Sun and Moon Go Round

"Loke at that! Look at the moon go! And just see those stars whirl around! And that's the sun in the middle! Isn't it interesting?" That is the way people whispered to one another about 1750.

James Ferguson, serious, intent, was actually making the moon and the planets revolve and the sun go around—everything in its place; everything in its proper time—but it was all a clever piece of mechanism; an arrangement of cogs and bars and balls that gave people a very clear conception of the movements of the heavenly bodies.

While his machinery was in motion James Ferguson lectured on astronomy. His face glowed as he talked, for this was a subject that he loved and he wished other people to love it also. Year after year Ferguson went on with his lectures on astronomy. He studied all that he could find on the subject. He sat up nights peering through his telescope. He wrote articles and books and he became one of the most learned of all men.

And only a few years before "Jim" Ferguson, the Scotch boy, had sat out watching his sheep and wondering what there was in life for him. When evening came on and the stars began to come out he looked at the sky and wondered what it all was. Did he go to college? No, indeed! He did not even go to school. For some 10 or 12 weeks one year he went to a poor little school; but that was the only educational training he ever received. When he was a youth he found he could sketch and draw pictures. People liked to buy their own pictures or pictures of their houses, so he made enough money to live on. He contributed also to caring for his father and mother at home. Meanwhile he kept on looking at the stars and trying to find out more about them. He gave his lectures because it was fun for him to give them. At 53 he was made a member of the Royal Society, the highest of all scientific honors in England. He had literally "hitched his wagon to a star" and driven himself into fame. It is a good thing to study anything—and to study it hard!

Boston Needed It

Lydia went to Boston to visit her married sister and was a guest at a dinner party. During the first and second courses of the dinner she was the center of the conversation with her glowing expressions. When for the third course the servant entered carrying a huge fish a Boston lawyer turned and said to her:

"Now you must admit that your town is a back number. Who in N—— ever saw a fish of that size?"

"Oh, that's all right," she replied, "the Lord in His infinite wisdom put the brain food where it was most needed."

Followed Instructions

Fred's teacher asked him to write out a proposition and then present it for correction.

"When you finish it, Fred," the teacher said, "just write your John Hancock at the bottom of the page and lay it on my desk."

Fred performed the task, and then, obeying the literal instruction of the teacher, wrote at the bottom of the page:

"Your John Hancock."

Ralph Marsh impersonated the distinguished citizen of the north pole region in the forth. The collection for Near East children amounted to $33.56. Through the courtesy of Porteous and Mitchell Santa Claus was attractively costumed in red and white.

Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, pastor of the church, read the scriptures and offered [illegible] March, who impersonated Santa Claus was assisted in distributing gifts by the committee in charge, Miss Rose Durr, chairman. Misses Marion and Louise Bailey won compliments for their part in coaching the children.

Under the general supervision of the matron, Miss Jennie Murray, the thirty-seven children of the Rock Nook Children's Home, and twenty or more visitors, including several members of the board, enjoyed Christmas Tree exercises Thursday afternoon at three o'clock.

The large dining room was cleared for the exercises, which at the solicitation of the children had been arranged by themselves. The room had been decorated with festoons of red and green crepe paper, and the large tree was laden with gifts for every one. The children marched in single file to the music of O, Come All Ye Faithful, played on a Victrola. Amelia Farnoski was the leader, the children of all ages coming in from their big play room.

The programme comprised about a dozen recitations and ten songs mostly Christmas carols.

Peter Drabek, a member of the family was master of ceremonies. Among those who took part was one little soloist, John Hurd, aged five who sang a Christmas song of two stanzas. When the distribution of gifts took place Miss Murray and her assistants were aided by members of the board. Every child received several gifts. The members of the board present included the president, Mrs. Edward D. Fuller, Mrs. Wallace S. Allis, Mrs. Willis Austin Mrs. John D. Hall, Mrs. Benjamin H Palmer, Miss Mary C. Lucas and Miss Amy F. When retiring, all hung up their stockings and today (Christmas) this happy little company under the care of Miss Murray will be served a turkey dinner with the regulation Christmas good things.

Wednesday afternoon all the pupils of the West Town St. school met in the senior room for a Christmas program, which consisted of quotations, poems and songs. Miss Sara McClellan played the piano, and accompanied the children for the Christmas carols.

Each room had a gaily decorated Christmas tree from which gifts were distributed Thursday forenoon.

The Telephone Employes' association of Connecticut has been formally organized for the year and enters upon what many of us believe will be a twelve-month of even greater helpfulness to employes and to the business, says the December Telephone Bulletin.

Interest increases in the association as time passes and its purpose and accomplishments are more widely known and better understood.

To the general officers, to the conference board members and to all others in the association falls the task of making this the association's best year. And they will not fail.

POLICE CAPTURE MAN AFTER AUTO CHASE

Edward Horwitz, 27, New Britain, wanted by the New Britain police for alleged theft of $70 in that city, was captured by Police Sergt. Matthew Delaney and Officer Quinn about 12:15 o'clock this (Friday) morning. The local police had been asked to keep a lookout for the man and about midnight Sergt. Delaney and Officer Quinn spotted him driving a Ford coupe through North Main street, near Bogue's garage.

The officers got into a passing automobile in order to give chase after Horwitz who was headed north. The machine stalled however and couldn't proceed any further. The officers then hailed another machine and put after the Ford. They gave chase as far as Versailles, thinking that Horwitz was headed in that direction.

After proceeding as far as Versailles without overtaking him they started back to the city and near St. Mary's cemetery came up with Horwitz, who at that time was headed toward the city. The officers held up his machine and arrested him.

While he was being booked at police headquarters he was asked to produce his driver's license and his registration. His driver's license was all right but he ran up against trouble when Capt. Thomas Murphy scanned his registration. The registration was all right as far as the numbers went but it called for a Paige machine and Horwitz was driving a Ford. So he was booked for the local police froce on a charge of driving an unregistered automobile.

OBITUARY

John Kelley

Following a short illness the death of John Kelley, 88, occurred Thursday at the home of his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Calande, of 109 Roosevelt avenue, who had given him devoted care during his illness.

Mr. Kelley was born in Ireland in 1837 and came to this country when a young man. In Norwich he was united in marriage with Miss Ann Byrne, who died in this city over 35 years ago.

For many years he resided on Summit street, on the West Side but for the past ten months he has made his home with his daughter on Roosevelt avenue. In early life he followed the sea, making many voyages out of Norwich on vessels engaged in the West Indian trade. For over 30 years he was employed as watchman at the plant of the United States Finishing company.

Mr. Kelley was vigorous in body and mind up to a very short time before his death. His years rested lightly upon him and he kept young in thought and interests. He was very industrious and had skill in many ways. At an age when many a man would have retired from active work, he cultivated his garden and showed great ambition in his work. He was a friendly, helpful neighbor, highly esteemed by all who knew him.

Following the division of St. Mary's parish and while he resided on the West Side, Mr. Kelley was a devout member of St. Patrick's church, also a member of the Holy Name Society of that parish.

His daughter, Mrs. Calandra, is his only surviving near relative.

Miss Nora Sullivan

Miss Nora Sullivan died at the home of her sister, Mrs. Charles Dougherty, of Trading Cove, at 8:30 o'clock Wednesday evening, after several weeks' illness. Miss Sullivan was born in Lewiston, Maine, the daughter of the late James and Mary Corcoran Sullivan, but came to Norwich when a young girl. She was employed at the J. B. Martin company plant for many years. She leaves her sister, Mrs. Dougherty and a brother, James Sullivan, both of this city, besides several nieces and nephews. She was a member of A. O. H. auxiliary No. 54, of the Hibernians, and a member of St. Mary's parish.

The passing of Miss Sullivan leaves a void in the happy home circle and the family will have the sympathy of a large circle of friends.

HUNDREDS ATTEND CHRISTMAS EVE PROGRAMME AT NORWICH TOWN GREEN

Many hundred people from Norwich and suburban districts assembled on the Norwich Town green, Thursday evening (Christmas eve), for the third community Christmas tree celebration, under the auspices of the Norwich Rural association, Walter T. Camp, president.

Glorious weather prevailed all day Thursday, previous to the evening's programme, which commenced at 7.30, during which the December moon with all its brightness shone clear on the interested gathering. With the snow fall of the preceding night and the gorgeously illuminated tree, the spectacle was one long to be remembered. Although the air was crisp and frosty, it was not at all tedious. The participants on this joyous occasion were exceedingly enthusiastic and the big chorus of voices comprising men, women and children, could be heard for some distance, as the melody of the beautiful Christmas carols rung through the air, accompanied by Swahn's instrumental quartette, with Joseph C. Worth, Jr., as song leader. Several new features were introduced this year, which revealed an atmosphere of impressiveness in making the affair the profound success that it was.

Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey was general chairman of the elaborate program which was arranged as follows: In the opening number, the group of men singers congregated near the old Red school and sang "We Three Kings," the horns playing the prelude and the music of a cornet leading the voices on four verses. Following this the men proceeded to the chapel corner, while singing the first verse and chorus of "O, Come All Ye Faithful."

At the chapel corner of the Green, the school children sang "O Little Town of Bethlehem," with band accompaniment. While the instruments were playing, with the men leading and school children following, the special singers proceeded to the tree, (which was the center of attraction), singing the first verse and chorus of O Come All Ye Faithful. Approaching the tree, the men opened ranks while the musicians and school children continued to the tree, and gathered around it for the community singing.

The closing number on the introductory program, antiphonal, "Watchman Tell Us of the Night," by the men was most pleasing. The musicians while facing the west, played through each verse with a pause as per leader at the end of each couplet.

This was followed by the community singing, when everyone present was privileged to unite in the singing of Christmas carols, while gathered around the tree. The songs were O Little Town of Bethlehem, The First Noel, Silent Night, It Came Upon the Mid-Night Clear, Joy to the World, We Three Kings of the Orient and O, Come All Ye Faithful.

The tree was beautiful. Under the direction of Herbert L. Yerrington, the chairman of the lighting and other features about the tree, more than 200 colored electric light bulbs were used in its decorations. Six small cedar trees were temporarily set around the main tree, also six posts five feet high, on which at the tip of each was a porcelain globe six inches in diameter, which concealed an electric light bulb. From the peak of the tree leading to the six posts were electric wires, with colored light bulbs attached and a string of lights also encircled the entire arrangement, suspended in the air ten feet above the tree was a five pointed star filled with many white lights, making a most brilliant setting, with the sky as its setting. The wiring was by the Eaton Chase Co.

An attractive feature all along the route leading to the green, was the many homes in various locations beautifully illuminated with candles, which lent a glow of the Christmas spirit and sufficed as a formal introduction to the program.

It was announced at the close that the celebration Thursday evening had the largest number present of any celebration of its kind thus far. The roads were filled on all sides with automobiles and many were parked on the green. Two state police from the Groton barracks were in attendance to assist the traffic.

The music leaflets were distributed by the high school girls.

Mr. Worth who so capably led in the singing received many compliments for his valuable assistance, while the arrangement of the musical program by Rev. Mr. Bailey could not be surpassed for its excellence.

Alluding to the antiphona., "Watchman of the Night," Philip Jeanson was captain of the group of travelers and Arthur Blackledge, was captain of the group of watchmen.

The musicians were cornetlsts, first, John M. Swahn, leader, and Fred T. Bunce, second; trombonists, tenor and bass were Martin Krauss and Frank Galligan.

The hospitality of the First Congregational church, which had its doors thrown open to the comfort of the people was an appreciated favor.

Miss Bessie M. Grant and Miss Jennie L. Congdon, were in charge of the school children who had an important part on the program, there being a large delegation from both Town street and West Town street schools.

The association very much appreciates the courtesy of the Gas and Electric department of Norwich for its generous provision of electric current in lighting the tree.

The tree has been greatly admired for its brilliancy and has been a source of cheer to many passers-by, as well as residents on the Green; not only on the evening of the celebration, but during a few previous nights.

Robert Boisson was treasurer of the Christmas tree fund.

MUNSEY'S EARLY ACTIVITY AT NEW LONDON

The death of Frank A. Munsey Tuesday, at New York, revived memories among older residents of New London and vicinity of the days when his magazines were published in that city. In fact the middle aged residents recall the excavations for the foundation and subsequent construction of the Mohican hotel building which at that time was regarded in business circles as too far away from the actual business section.

Removal of the magazine publishing plant to New York city, subsequent establishment and later abandonment of the umbrella manufacturing plant in its stead, conversion of the property into a modern hotel and building alterations that followed in rapid succession are matters of history, familiar to many New Londoners. Incidentally the various visits and turns in the plans of the noted publisher furnished employment for many workmen of New London and vicinity.

Westerly residents likewise profited, for Mr. Munsey bought many of his printing presses at the Charles P Cottrell plant in Pawcatuck.

Charles P. Cottrell, president of the C. B. Cottrell & Sons company press works, stated Wednesday that he doubted if Mr. Munsey ever visited in Westerly, although at the time of his business operations in New London representatives of the Cottrell company often visited him there. One of the earliest magazine presses ever purchased by Mr. Munsey, said Mr. Cottrell, was a press which the Cottrell company had difficulty in disposing of to any publisher. This was at a time when his production of a 10 cent magazine created such a demand that it was with difficulty the mechanical end could keep up the ever increasing supply required. The circulation grew by such leaps and bounds that ten presses was the ultimate order from Publisher Munsey. Supplying this demand meant work for Westerly machinists.

The first inkling Westerly people had of the intended removal of the Munsey plant to New York city came when the publisher gave orders to a representative of the Cottrell Co., to dismantle a new press which had just been assembled. Before morning parts of the press were enroute for the metropolis. In later years Mr. Munsey's attention was centered more in the newspaper field and his orders for presses from the Westerly plant constantly diminished.

LIGHTS IN MAIN STREET STORES OUT FOR HALF HOUR

During the height of the "last minute" Christmas shopping late Thursday afternoon, a transformer fuse on Main street, blew out and threw a number of Main street stores into darkness for a half hour. The fuse blew out about 4:45 o'clock and a repair gang from the gas and electric plant immediately started to remedy the trouble which was accomplished in about a half hour, so that the stores again had lights by 5:30 o'clock.

The stores that were without lights for the half hour included: The Boston Store, Alling Rubber Co., Woodstock Dairy, Smith's drug store, Savard's store, Schulte's cigar store, Sellas Spa, Sellas restaurant, Ferguson's Jewelry store, Madden's cigar store and the National drug store.

SEASIDE SANITARIUM LITIGATION HELD UP

HARTFORD, Dec. 24—(AP)—Difficulty encountered by the state in making legal service on one of the heirs of the late Eliza T. McCook has tied up litigation instituted by State's Attorney Arthur M. Brown, of New London county to take by right of eminent domain a portion of McCook Point at Niantic, for an extension of the Seaside sanitarium for bone tubercular children.

Mrs. Eliza Roots, a missionary in Hankow, China, is the heir to make legal service upon whom the state has struck the snag. Efforts to serve the papers by mail have proved unsatisfactory, Mr. Brown said today, and other means, the nature of which he preferred not to disclose, are being employed to accomplish the purpose.

The property which the legislature decided to have the state acquire is held by seven heirs of Mrs. McCook, and, under the law, it is necessary to serve notice upon each of them before the court may proceed to the appointment of a committee of appraisal as requested in a petition filed by State's Attorney Brown in September. Five of the heirs live in Hartford, being Rev. John J. McCook, Captain Anson T. McCook, Dr. John B. McCook, Miss Frances A. McCook and Miss Lucy E. McCook, all of number 936 Main street.

Service has been made on all of them, Mr. Brown said, leaving only Mrs. Root and Supreme Court Justice Philip McCook, of New York, to be served. From the fact that State's Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn, of Hartford county, and Charles Welles Gross, counsel for the McCooks, have entered appearance for only the Hartford heirs, it is thought possible that the defense counsel considers it likely that the state will have difficulty making service upon Justice McCook.

State's Attorney Brown is acting for the state in the case by appointment of Governor Trumbull. He said today that, although the defense will fight the case at every point, even to the point of questioning the constitutionality of the legislative act directing the condemnation of the property, he was confident the state would win its case. If the matter should be delayed in the courts until the next session of the legislature, it is thought likely that a bill to repeal the act of the last session of the legislature will be introduced.

RHO ALPHA MU DANCE AT WAUREGAN HOTEL

The 41st. annual Rho Alpha Mu dance was held at the Wauregan house Thursday evening, over 40 couples enjoying the dance programme which began at 9 o'clock and continued until 1 o'clock Christmas morning. The music for dancing was furnished by the Dixie Serenaders and many novelty numbers were featured. The ballroom was tastefully decorated for the dance, which proved one of the most enjoyable ever held by the fraternity.

EARLY MORNING SNOW FALL OVER NORWICH THURSDAY

An early morning snow fall which started in about 3 o'clock Thursday morning, gave promise of a real white Christmas but the storm petered out before the falling snow had made much of an impression and a temperature of one or two degrees above freezing during the middle of the day caused the greater part of the snow to disappear.

MIDNIGHT SERVICE HELD AT CHRIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH

A large congregation representing the several creeds in Norwich attended the midnight service at Christ Episcopal church, Christmas Eve and welcomed Christmas day with a beautiful musical and song service, the first of its kind held in this city in a number of years.

The service was in charge of Rev. C. Montgomery Budlong, rector of the church and began at 11:45 o'clock with a wonderful organ recital by Stanley Pierce, organist of the church, with orchestral assistance.

The congregation entered into the spirit of the service and the choral Eucharist was delightful. The church was beautifully decorated for the service the altar being flooded in candle light, making a most attractive appearance in its floral setting with many poinsettias to make it a thing of beauty.

The Christmas carols, sung at the birth of Christmas day were joined in by the men's and boy's choir and the Women's and Girls' choir, accompaniment being by the orchestra. Among the special numbers was the beautiful hymn, Silent Night, Holy Night.

The sanctuary procession was a beautiful spectacle, members of St. Vincent's guild, of Hartford, taking part. Another attraction was the manger, which was cleverly represented at the altar. The voluntary and postlude, two most effective numbers were delightfully interpreted by Organist Pierce. The service was most pleasing and there was much favorable comment on the manner in which the programme was arranged and carried out.

HENRY KENEY POMROY OF COVENTRY DESCENT

Henry Keney Pomeroy, 71, for many years active on the board of governors of the New York Stock Exchange and for three terms its president died Tuesday evening at his residence, 137 East Fortieth street, New York. He had been ill with heart disease for five weeks and his death came suddenly.

Mr. Pomeroy was a prominent figure in the financial affairs of the exchange. His death was announced from the rostrum of the exchange by E. H. H. Simmons, the president, who said:

"Gentlemen, again it is my sorrowful duty to announce from this rostrum the passing of one of the great figures of the exchange, a man beloved by us all. Henry E. Pomroy is dead. This is not the time for any eulogy except that which spontaneously springs from all hearts and which is deeper and more eloquent than can be voiced in words or phrases."

The death of Mr. Pomroy, according to his associates, marks the greatest loss to the exchange since the sudden death of the late Seymour L. Cromwell, a former president of the exchange.

He was born in New York city, Aug. 14, 1854, the eldest child of Daniel Pomroy of Coventry, Conn., and his wife, Fanny Belden of Simsbury, in this state. His father died when he was 13 years old after which he lived with his mother, brother and sisters at Stamford, Conn. Then he attended boarding school at Mount Carmel, Conn., and Quaining, N. Y., studied for a year at the Columbia School of Mines, spent some time in Europe with his family and joined his uncle, A. Hamilton Pomroy, a dealer in commercial paper, in 1875. Jan. 3, 1878, he was elected a member of the exchange and from then on his whole business life was associated with that institution.

Mr. Pomroy married in 1881 Miss Annie Tufts Moseley of Boston, who died six years ago. They had no children. He is survived by a brother, H. Arthur Pomroy, who has been closely associated with him in business, and a sister, Mrs. Ellwood Hendrick.

THIS WAS TOY YEAR IN NEW LONDON--- STORES HAD GOOD CHRISTMAS TRADE

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—(AP)—Babe Ruth, not only will stage a comeback next season, but also will enjoy one of the greatest years he ever has had on the diamond, in the opinion of Arthur McGovern, veteran physical instructor, at whose gymnasium the big Yankee slugger has started his training battle for 1926.

Two weeks of faithful and perspiring exercise have borne results worth while. Ruth's 223 pounds may not seem exactly sylph-like, but this represents a loss of eight pounds, besides which the royal waist-line has been reduced more than four inches. The Babe is dieting conscientiously for the first time in his career, abstaining from all stimulants, and the progress he has made so far toward getting into condition convinces McGovern that the big fellow will win his strenuous battle.

Most of baseball fandom is watching Ruth's comeback efforts. It was something of a national calamity, in the minds of baseball fans, when the Babe collapsed last spring from the effects of the "flu" and his subsequent slump. After returning to the game, was a hard blow to the game as well as to the Yankees. This slump, however, was not due to loss of his batting eye, for when he was physically fit to play his best he was banging the ball over the fence with his customary abandon.

In this condition McGovern expressed the opinion that "when the Babe goes out of condition, which he does very easily, it is not because of any form of dissipation which he has been continually accused of, but simply because he has let up on his exercise, which he has to keep up at all times to stay in condition."

The temptation to shirk the "drudgery" of hard training is the thing that costs many champions their form, McGovern pointed out. It is especially so in Ruth's case because of his unusual proportions. He requires at least one hour's workout daily to avoid taking on fat and having his muscles become soft and flabby.

"Ruth can gain as much as 10 pounds in 24 hours," McGovern revealed. "This may seem exaggerated but I have known pugilists who weighed only 115 pounds on the day of the contest but weighed 125 the following day. It is a generally known fact that Johnny Dundee, who has held several boxing titles, changes 15 pounds in 24 hours. Of course, such weight fluctuations are mostly body liquid, because if we were to abstain from liquid for two days we would vary from three to ten pounds."

In ten years of baseball Ruth has lost the equivalent of about two and one-half tons in weight, more than any other athlete who is forced to train consistently, McGovern figures. This is based on an estimate that the Babe loses an average of three pounds daily during the training and playing seasons about 180 days a year. At this rate, a loss of 540 pounds yearly, Ruth's ten-year aggregate is 5,400 pounds.

Ruth's training course during the past two weeks under McGovern's direction has consisted of two hours of varied exercise daily, tossing the medicine ball, playing handball and boxing. He expects to keep up the program until about February 10, when he will go south to complete his conditioning.

The Babe is declared by McGovern to be one of the fastest big men he has ever trained. This speed frequently has enabled him to outlast two opponents at handball. Boxing is one of the big fellow's hobbies and McGovern believes he would have made a good ring record if he had chosen that game instead of baseball.

"He is one of the shiftiest big men I ever have worked with and, being naturally left-handed, he has a very snappy left jab," McGovern said.

FEATURE TRACK EVENTS PLANNED FOR SPRING

NEW YORK, Dec. 24—(AP)—A special spring series bringing together four of the fastest dash men in the world will be a feature of the annual indoor track meet of the Millrose A. A. at Madison Square Garden February 4.

Millrose officials announced today they already had received the signed entries of Hubert Houben, crack German sprinter, and Dehart Hubbard, Michigan all-around star and western conference titleholder. In addition assurances have been received that Loren Murchison, now wearing the colors of the Illinois Athletic club, and Frank Hussy, National A. A. U. 100-yard champion and now a student at Boston college, also will compete.

This quartet of stars will meet at 40 and 60 yards, after which, in the event of a tie on points, a third and deciding heat at 50 yards will be run.

These races will mark the first American as well as initial indoor test for Houben, who has scored triumphs abroad over Murchison and Charley Paddock. Murchison has held the indoor spring crown and for several seasons and hopes to square accounts with his German rival at the Millrose meet as well as retain his laurels on the boards.

WALKER UNDERGOES OPERATION CAUSED BY INFECTED TOE

NEW YORK, Dec. 24—(AP)—Mickey Walker, world's welterweight boxing champion, today underwent an operation caused by a toe infection.

The operation, involving removal of the entire toe-nail, which had frequently caused Walker trouble, was performed by Dr. J. H. Amey at his hospital.

The champion will be laid up for a week, according to his representative, Teddy Hayes, but expects to resume training at the end of that time in preparation for defending his title against Tommy Milligan of England on January 22. Unless complications develop, Walker will not ask for a postponement of that fight, Hayes says.

WORRY CLAIMED TO BE CAUSE OF MUNN'S DEFEAT

CHICAGO, Dec. 24—(AP)—Wayne "Big" Munn, the heavyweight wrestler who tried boxing last night in Kansas City with disastrous results was knocked out by Andre Anderson in two minutes not so much because he was inferior to Anderson, but because of worry, his friends said here today. They declared the big Nebraskan is expecting an increase in his household soon.

Munn's manager said today that he is satisfied that the wrestler is not yet ready for the fighting ring and should confine his activities to the mat. He said that after Munn might develop enough science to make good as a fighter, and that the knockout did not mean necessarily that he will not again don the gloves.

But, temporarily at least, Munn is through fighting and will come here in a day or two to train for a wrestling match with Pat McGill on New Year's night.

RAY DECLARES HE IS THROUGH WITH AMATEURS

CHICAGO, Dec. 24—(AP)—Joie Ray, veteran mile runner, declared here tonight he is through with amateur track competition. Ray, who is employed in the sporting goods department of a local department store, denied reports that he would commence training in January for his seventeenth year of amateur work.

"I have heard a lot of reports to the effect that I am returning to the track but they are unfounded. I have not issued nay statement to this effect and don't intend to do so.

"I have made money for other people, and have decided it is high time I made some for myself."

He intimated he hoped to obtain a coaching position.

LOMBARDO SAILS FOR PANAMA FOR SHORT REST

NEW YORK, Dec. 24—(AP)—Jose Lombardo, featherweight boxer, sailed today for his home in Panama. Upon the advice of physicians he is taking an extended rest from ring activities to permit the healing of severe cuts on his lips which figured in his defeat recently at the hands of Glick here. According to his manager Boy Levy, he intends to return to the United States in February or March to resume ring action.

CHIP DUGAS EXPRESSES HIS OPINION ABOUT TOURNEY

Chip Dugas, leading bowler of Taftville, in a letter to the sports editor, expresses his opinion about a bowling tourney to be held to decide the championship of eastern Connecticut. His letter is as follows:

Sports Ed:

I have been waiting a long time for this talk about a tournament to come up and now I would like to say just a few words about it. There are several bowlers in the eastern part of the state who are anxious to hold a tournament to decide the championship. All right, that's fine, but what chance has a man got to hold his title if he wins? The man who finishes last in the tournament can challenge the winner in a special match and if the champion is beaten in this special match he loses his title. This does not seem right for the man who has bowled all through the championship tournament and has high average and is undoubtedly the best bowler in the tournament to lose his title by a few pins to the man who has been the poorest bowler in the league.

This very thing happened to me and the title was taken from me. In the tournament held a year ago I won everything in sight, taking all the honors and beating every man decisively. I won 12 games from Morin and lost nine, 13 from Barber and lost 8, 14 from Fillmore and lost 7, 15 from Dodge and lost 6, Barber, in this tournament, finished in last place, but in a special match he beat me by nine pins and claimed the title that I had won in tournament.

Before I enter another tournament I want to know whether the man that wins the title will hold it for a year or whether he can be challenged for a special match and lose it that way. I think if a man wins the title in a tournament he should hold it for a year until the next tournament and not lose it in a special match. That seems the fair way to me.

Yours in sports,
CHIP DUGAS

BROWN TO HAVE NEW COACHING STAFF NEXT YEAR

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Dec. 24—(AP)—Undergraduates, alumni and friends of Brown were startled by the abrupt announcement today that Head Football Coach Edward N. Robinson and Backfield Coach Reginald W. P. (Reggie) Brown would not be re-engaged for next year. The abruptness of the announcement contributed as much to the element of surprise as its content, for although re-organizion of the coaching staff was not wholly unexpected there had been no intimation of immediate action.

A committe of alumni and faculty members headed by Attorney General Charles P. Sisson will select the new coaches, of whose identity there is no present indication. It is expected, however, that the committee's choice and the conditions under which agreement is reached will be affected by the lively post-season discussion of Brown athletics and athletic policy, including such matters as the character of schedules, the direction of the team by coach or captain, and the part faculty and coach may have in selecting captains.

Coach Robinson has directed Brown gridiron activities almost continuously for nearly 25 years. Coach Brown, who was strategist with the late Percy C. Haughton at Harvard, came to Brown when Haughton left Cambridge. Neither would comment today on their abrupt dismissal.

Buyer, director of physical education and coach of girls' basketball. Four games will be played at Storrs, and four on foreign courts.

INDOOR BASEBALL GAMES SCHEDULED FOR NEXT WEEK

The games scheduled for the Norwich Indoor league next Monday evening, December 28 at the Armory will be as follows: 6:30 Stars vs. Nutmegs; 9:30, Tigers vs. Battery.

The schedule calls for a repitition of the games played last week except that the times are changed. Last week the Tigers fell before the Battry 18 to 2 and the Nutmegs were defeated by the Stars 12 to 9.

The following are the runs scored, the Battery leading by a safe margin:

	Runs	Op. R.
Battery B	37	11
Nutmegs	37	22
Stars	21	28

CHARITY GETS $24,986 FOR BOXING SHOW

NEW YORK, Dec. 24—(AP)—The Christmas fund of The New York American, for whose benefit the boxing show at Madison Square was conducted last night, received $24,986 today from the state athletic commission. This sum represented fifty per cent. of the gross receipts, the minimum for charity required by the rules of the commission.

Baseball Statistician in Norwich

Al Munro Elias, official statistician for the National league, with Mrs. Elias, a former Norwich girl, dropped into the Bulletin office on Christmas Eve to exchange the season's greetings. Al and Mrs. Al are spending Christmas with relatives of Mrs. Elias in Norwich.

HARTFORD CRESCENTS CLASH WITH TAFTVILLE FIVE THIS AFTERNOON

A banner holiday attraction is in store for the basketball fans in this vicinity when the Hartford Crescents clash with the Taftville Five in the Parish Hall this afternoon.

This is the second meeting of these two teams this season, the first encounter it will be remembered was one of the most exciting seen on the local court in years as the score was deadlocked at 26 all, when the final whistle blew and a five minute overtime period was played to determine the winner in which the boys from the Capitol City emerged with victory by the scant margin of a single basket. This afternoon's game has every indication of being a duplicate performance as both teams are in the pink of condition and can travel at top speed to the limit.

In the forward berths for the Crescents will be "Abe" Silverman, high scorer for the Dixie five, and one of the flashiest forwards in the city of Hartford. Balfour will be his running mate, "Dutch" Leonard, a veteran of the chalked court and one of the most popular players of the game will jump at center, "Tim" Cronin, former Kacey star will do back court duty with "Goldie" Friedman guard extraordinary as a running mate.

The local five are having a lot of difficulty getting into the winning column but after a stiff workout last evening declared they were all set for today's battle, "Rabbit" Gauthier, "Mondi" Normandi or Jim Murphy will take care of the forward positions, Eddie Murphy will do the hopping while Tom Coleman and Bus Murphy will act as guards, George Coleman who was on the injured list and "Tex" Bordon will be in reserve.

The preliminary encounter also has promise of being a humdinger. Red Bureile's All Stars will stack up against the Celtics in the second game of the series. The initial contest went to the All Stars by a slim margin and the Celtics will endeavor to even up the score.

GRANGE I SNURSING A BLACK EYE

In his first scrimmage on Dixie soil, Grange ran afoul of a team mate's elbow today and bruised his left optic. Aside from a temporary limitation in vision, the famous red head is in perfect condition for his game here, it was announced. Grange and his comrades following a belated arrival feel slightly handicapped in not having become as fully acclimated to Miami weather, as their opponents, but are none the less confident of winning this clash.

Interest in this game is at high pitch in Mimia and throughout this section, and a capacity crowd of 16,000 persons is expected to witness the game.

GRID TEAMS GETTING INTO SHAPE FOR SATURDAY

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Dec. 24—(AP)—Football cleats punished two gridirons today as some of the greatest stars in the country went through stiff workouts for the east-west game to be played here next Saturday.

It will be a benefit contest and the proceeds will go to the Shriners' hospital for crippled children.

The eastern squad, captained by Bill Ingram, former navy star, went through practice both in the morning and afternoon. All of the players were in good condition following their arrival yesterday from Chicago.

The western eleven also romped through workouts in the morning and afternoon. Every man on the team appeared to be in the best of shape and Coach "Pesky" Sprott sent the players through formations for several hours.

NUTMEGS CLASH WITH NORDICS THIS EVENING

This Friday evening the Nutmegs basketball squad journeys to Taftville where they meet the fast Nordics five of that place at Parish hall. The game will begin at 7:00 p. m. sharp.

Manager Pingree was undecided about his starting lineup Thursday evening but it is expected that the Taftville five will be of the best.

On the other hand the Nutmegs will pick their lineup from the following: Segal, Tombari, Bergeron, Kelly, Burns, Burdick, Murphy, Couture and Williams.

Tonight's game should be the first real test for the local boys and it is expected that they will come through with flying colors.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

George Godfrey, negro heavyweight, learned only Wednesday that old Madison Square Garden in New York had been torn down. Scheduled for a fight at the new arena, many blocks to the northwest, he was discovered by friends viewing the ruins. He was three quarters of an hour late at the scales for his bout with Martin Burke.

Jake Schaefer, confident that he will regain the 18.2 balkline billiard crown from Edouard Horemans of Belgium in Chicago, January 4, left for the Windy City, Thursday.

Louis ("Kid") Kaplan, featherweight champion, has been denied admittance to the junior lightweight division by the New York state athletic commission.

The forward pass in football is all right as it is, says Gil Dobie, Cornell coach, in answer to a New York newspaper's questionnaire. Dobie should know, for Dartmouth used it with great success against his team the last two seasons.

Bobby Garcia, soldier featherweight from Maryland, has been suspended for thirty days for fouling Dick ("Honeyboy") Finnegan of Boston in a recent New York bout.

Indications are that Willie Ritola will take up the Finnish attack on Joie Ray's American track marks when Paavo Nurmi left off a year ago. Ray and Ritola are likely to meet in the Western Union games in New York in February.

Alabama Team Arrives

PASADENA Cal., Dec. 24—(AP)—Alabama's Crimson tide, footballers from the southern university, rolled into this inland city today. On New Year's day they meet the huskies of Washington university at Rose Bowl here.

Coach Wade reported no illness in his squad, which is banking on similarity in weather conditions in California and Alabama to give the tide an edge over the crew from Washington.

So far little betting on the game has been recorded, but following reports from Seattle of unfavorable practice conditions there, not a few of the local experts are looking to the boys from Alabama to take the scoring lead.

"Has she retired now?"
"Yes. The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals stepped in."

THE OBSERVANCE OF CHRISTMAS.

(Written Specially for The Bulletin.)

This, if nothing happens to the calendar meanwhile, will be Christmas morning. That is, I assume that it will be. You see, I have to write some days in advance of publication, often a week before, and it won't do to be too sure of even the immediate future. Some cog may slip or some sequence cease to function, or some cataclysm take place. But, if nothing greatly out of the ordinary happens, and things take about their usual course, you will open the paper which contains this on Christmas morning.

And I suppose you'll sort o' expect some degree of Christmas-y flavor in it.

Well, there are two quite distinct sorts of Christmas flavoring which are at hand. One is in the old familiar soothing syrup bottle. The other is marked "Ginger, Extra hot." The orthodox thing to do is to take down the syrup bottle, shake gently, and pour the oozy treacle over everything within reach. But I'm not entirely orthodox. Never have been and never shall be. At least not till accepted orthodoxy means something more than docile and credulous acceptance as infallible truth of A's explanation of B's discussion of C's commentary on D's guess at what E held to be truth. Wherefore I am not attracted by the possibility of writing an orthodox and conventional blurb about "the Christmas spirit," etc.

Mind you, when the Christmas spirit means giving comfort to the needy, and happiness to the little ones, and joy to one's friends, I have nothing but moist-eyed approval for it. Such a spirit is not only admirable at Christmas time and on Christmas day, it would be a glorious counsel of perfection if carried into every one of the 364 other days of the year. Don't think I'm going to minimize the joy of giving, the happiness self-won in making others happy, the practical advantage of living, if only for one day a year, in peace and good will with all the world.

But

There is another phase of recent Christmas observance which people who are accustomed to walking all round the stump before they sit down on it can't help seeing. And one which isn't so impeccably admirable. An adorable festival is in great danger of being perverted into a conventional and even irritating formulary.

I hear a great many people talking about it out of the sides of their mouths, but very few who seem willing to open up and say things right out loud. Nor do I recall many references to it in print. Which is why I am going to try and voice, in my feeble way, some of the criticisms and complaints which come faintly to my ears from almost every direction.

It seems to be a prime characteristic of human nature to "slop over" at every eligible opportunity. It fills its pail brimming with purest springwater and then goes hopping and skipping and leaping and stumbling over the fences and through the woods, spilling quarts and gallons on the landscape at every jump. It carries everything to excess. In dress the tendency is for fitness and becomingness of garb to subordinate itself to "fashion;" in politics party loyalty is apt to degenerate into partisan intolerance; in religion what was once a beautiful and spirit-informed rite often becomes a formal and mechanical ritual.

So, in modern Christmas observance, there are manifest and growing tendencies towards making the glad season which should be one of beautiful, because spontaneous and free, expressions of good will, one of almost business-like "swappings". Instead of being a "merry" season, Christmas has already become to many a "worry" season, which they approach and meet and pass in a state of constant fear lest they shall not have "returned" this one's or that one's last year's holiday gift.

In many households the weeks immediately preceding Christmas are occupied, first, with making long and meticulously arranged lists of those "whom we ought to remember"—not those whom we "want to remember" and do remember and can't forget, but those to whom we feel bound to send some quid pro quo, something equivalent to their last gifts: something which will make us feel, in the language of the small boy, that "we don't owe nobody nothin'." Then, the lists being completed and re-edited and revised for the hundredth time, comes a mad chase from store to store, often from city to city, to run down the somethings or the anythings which it calls for. After which they must be packed and the mail possibilities eagerly studied so as to make their arrival at the right time fairly probable.

In the old days it was a distinct pleasure to you to give the small son something to make his Christmas merry. It was even a greater pleasure to stand in the door-way, and watch him as he pulled out from his hung-up stocking the oranges and the bag of candy and — grandest of all the shiny new knife with three blades—"Oh, gee, t-h-r-e-e blades, count 'em," and the plunge which he made into boots and breeches to hurry off and triumphantly display his treasures to his pals. That was Christmas at its best, its best for you and for those you loved.

But the 1925 Christmas is apt to include, not only a packing-case full of flimsy and soon broken toys for the children, but a wheelbarrow-load of miscellaneous gifts for everybody on earth who last year sent you something or who is likely to send you something, next year, if prodded up to it.

The season for spontaneous and joy-provoking giving is becoming, if it has not already become in too many homes, a season of hurry and worry and cold-blooded calculation as to what one shall sent 'Tom, Dick or Harry: Mayme, Lizzie or Gladys: Aunt Jane, Uncle John or Grandpa Josiah, without danger of each one thinking himself or herself slighted or undervalued.

The same thing which is true about actually valuable or useful gifts is true about Christmas cards, those mere remembrances which are supposed to be sent to those from whom gifts are not due or expected, but to whom the senders think they "owe" some sort of temporal recognition. Calling on a neighbor, the other day, I found the woman of the household carefully sorting over a pile of last year's holiday cards and noting down addresses in a well-filled memorandum book of those whom she simply "mustn't forget this time."

In other words, several functions of Christmas are being "run into the ground." They are being carried to very unChristmasy excess. What were once voluntary and unconstrained manifestations or expressions of benevolent good will have become regulated and required formalities.

Christmas is in imminent danger of being commercialized.

At is fast becoming a season for "exchanging" gifts, instead of scattering them. (Query for the purist in language: Can a "gift" ever be a matter of "exchange"?)

It is being debased from a beautiful festival of all that is sweetest and best in human nature to a ceremonial ritual of carefully balanced expectations and returns.

How many people, especially in the cities, will welcome this Christmas morning, not for its opportunities of creating or dispensing joy, but with a sigh of relief that the "fuss" of getting ready for it is at last over for another year?

Christ commemorates the birth of the Babe of Bethlehem. It is, by all arguments of fitness, "the children's day." Of all the year it is their own,—and should be kept such. This means also that we older ones should on that day revert, so far as our gray or graying hair will permit, to as near as we can attain of the child spirit. When, instead of that, we bring into its observance the calculating computations of the counting-room, make it over into a date for formal exchange of ceremonious tributes, substitute for the "Ha-ha" of its boisterous mirth the affected smile of society functions,—then we have desecrated a sacred day and "bitten off our own noses" in the unworthy act.

I would not in the least degree lessen or contract the observance of Christmas-time. But it certainly seems to me a pity that it should lose its spontaneity and its hand-made homeliness and be turned into something factory-made and mechanical.

Good will and kindliness are hardly matters to be credited or debited for future payment or collection. They are of rarer and purer essence. They flow in tortuous channels of their own making and are not to be diverted into straight-banked ditches of formal layout.

There cannot be too much of them. Not only at Christmas-time but all the year 'round.

The world would go into mental and nervous as well as financial bankruptcy every day in the year were a Christmas day of the twentieth century pattern. But it would rise to nobler heights and breathe the air of more Delectable Mountains if something of the real Christmas spirit could be injected into its every day life.

King Arthur's Round Table, seated only with knights of proven valor and honor, was undoubtedly admirable. Yet after they had fallen in battle around their king, himself wounded to the death, even he, according to Tennyson found good reason for their passing.

"Lest one good custom should corrupt the world."

The history of humanity is full of exalted ideals and glorious inceptions almost invariably followed by failure as soon as human nature has had ample room and scope enough to misshape them according to its own crookednesses.

It would be a sore pity if Christmas should be doomed to similar decadence through the folly and vulgarity of its friends.

Forbid it, Heaven!

THE FARMER

ANTIQUE HUNTERS FORCE UP PRICES

So many American antique hunters have carried across the Atlantic old-fashioned English copper bed-warmers that the price of these articles in London has trebled in recent months. The Americans seize upon the warmers as fine things to hang beside an open fire place or to use as chestnut roasters, or corn poppers. The ordinary warmer is about the size of a wash basin, with a lid and a three-foot handle. In its heyday it was filled with live charcoal and thrust between the sheets at night to take off the chill.

These warmers were part of the winter equipment of almost every English home until the arrival some 40 years ago of the stone hotwater bottle, said to have been conceived by Mrs. William E. Gladstone, wife of the famous prime minister. The "Grand Old Man" used to wake up thirsty during the night and drink the water nearest him, usually that in the stone bottle beside him. To give him something more palatable his wife filled the bottle each evening with boiling tea, sweetened. Stone bottle warmers, although replaced by rubber articles in the cities, are still used in English country districts, where they are known as "Gladstones."

ITALIAN PRESS CENSORS BAR SENSATIONAL NEWS

Obscene and blood-curdling news reports, as well as unorthodox politics come under the ban of the Italian press censorship. One Rome newspaper was sequestered for having recounted, with too great a wealth of detail and insinuation, the circumstances of a local murder. Mussolini's newspaper, the Pouolo d'Italia, intimates that this incident, which is not unique, is likely to be repeated until Rome reporters learn to censor their own news stories. Deeds of violence and "crimes of passion" seem to have a special fascination for Italian journalists and presumably for their readers. Sometimes whole pages of newspapers are filled with detailed and often fanciful descriptions of the murdered man's wounds, the murderer's emotions and the anguish of the relatives. The present government has said that, for the sake of the young readers, this must stop.

As a moss gatherer, the rolling joke heads the list.

McGOWEN PREDICTS THAT BABE RUTH WILL HAVE THE GREATEST YEAR EVER

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 24—The stores of New London have generally been fortunate in having Christmas trade. Some of them were not so fortunate, but that was to have been expected. It was a "toy" year without doubt, for the patronage in this class of goods was greater than it has often been. A disappointment for the young folks was that there was neither skating or coasting, something unusual for the Christmas holiday. But there are other days to come and undoubtedly there will be enough of snow and ice to satisfy all.

Charles Garth came here yesterday and by night was intoxicated and became involved in a row, in front of the Star restaurant. Policeman Philopena, doing traffic duty at Bank and State street witnessed the trouble and sought to separate the belligerents and put an end to the row, but Garth was in no mood to call an armistice and attacked the officer. Of course that was an unwise thing for him to do, for when a policeman seeks to quell a disturbance nothing will deter him. He got hold of Garth and tried to persuade him to desist but that seemed to inspire the fellow with an idea that he was a victor in the scrimmage. He attacked the officer with his fists and with his tongue. That brought out the night stick of the officer and Mr. Garth soon realized that he was up against it. He tore the coat of the officer in the scuffle. He was landed in the police station and this morning was presented in court for intoxication and resisting and abusing an officer in the performance of his duty. Garth was fined $5 for intoxication and as he agreed to pay for the damage to the policeman's coat, he was fined only a dollar for that offense. He settled, claiming that he did not realize what he had done.

John J. Reilly, charged with intoxication, pleaded guilty. That was wisdom on the part of John for there was evidence to convict him if he had not acknowledged his guilt. His truthfulness won for him a suspension of judgment. He has been employed at Fishers Island and has never been in the court prior to this morning. The gang in which he has been at work was idle because of the weather yesterday so he came to New London and here became intoxicated.

Charles Carpenter, who claimed he had been employed at Whitinsville, Mass., was charged with intoxication, though there was a strong probability that he also was begging in the street. He was not penalized for the latter offense, but pleaded guilty of intoxication. He was fined $5, which penalty took him to jail. Last April Carpenter was in court for the same offense and then he was shown leniency and judgment was suspended.

Lee Murray was fined $5 for violation of the parking ordinance. He left his car on Main street at the foot of Masonic street where the curbing is painted to show autoists that they are not allowed to park there. When he was approached by Policeman Clyde Murphy he became abusive. His fine today was the result.

Miss Catherine McMahon, 410 Williams street, a nurse at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, is a patient at the institution as a result of injuries sustained last night by being struck by an automobile owned and operated by Roger W. Davidson of Waterford. Miss McMahon was crossing Williams street near Mohegan avenue, when she was struck by the machine and knocked down. Davidson had the young woman enter his machine and drove her to the office of Dr. George P. Cheney, who caused her to be transferred to the hospital, where an examination of her injuries revealed bad bruises, contusions and scratches.

George Webb of 158 Garfield avenue; Harry Watterson, 23 Summer street; Prof. Wallace Gallup, 9 Thatcher street; Mrs. Carl Brooks and infant son, 213 Montauk avenue; Mrs. Arthur Goullard and infant daughter, 76 Harrison street, and Master Norman Bonner of Mystic, patients at Lawrence hospital were discharged today.

Bridgeport authorities today requested the New London police for a second time within three months to be on the lookout for Edward Miller, alias Marmula, who is wanted by the Bridgeport police on a charge of embezzlement. Inquiry at Miller's former home on Shapley street, revealed that he had not been in this city for a month and at the time he left New London Miller was aware of the fact that the Bridgeport police were seeking his apprehension.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles R. D. Stockel today caused the operator's license of Frank Campagna, 63 Jefferson avenue, to be suspended.

Jacob Frink, 8, residing with his aunt, Mrs. Randall, 10 Methodist street was found asleep on a bench at the Union station last midnight by Sergeant David Marks, of the force of special agents of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad. The youth was taken to the police station where he declared that he was parentless, as both his father and mother were dead. Patrolman Frank Philopena was assigned to see to it that the boy was able to get into his home. Hardly had the officer started for the Methodist street house than Mrs. Randall appeared at the police station seeking the whereabouts of the boy, who, she declared, had run away early in the evening.

Constable H. J. Steffenberg, of Hazleton, Pa., came to New London this afternoon with a warrant for William Stanton, alias Christ Sauers, a member of the United States Coast Guard, station pier, charging Stanton with non-support and desertion. Constable Steffenberg and his prisoner left New London for Hazleton at 4:34 o'clock. Stanton was arrested by the local police several days ago following a request for his apprehension being made by the Hazleton authorities. Stanton was willing and anxious to return to Hazleton, for he declares that he and his wife entered into a separation compact two years ago and that the wife agreed in granting the separation that she would never seek support from him. This agreement Stanton claims he has in writing, with the names of witnesses attached and sworn to before a notary public.

Alexander Gamalo, of Waterford, was arrested by Patrolman Walter Rehn and John Foley this afternoon charged with violation of the city's parking ordinances and is scheduled to be in the police court tomorrow morning. Gamalo parked his car on the south side of State street, near Bank, which was recently made restricted area for the purpose of accommodating patrons of trolley cars.

An automobile owned and operated by Mrs. Edna Weaver Manwaring, of Oswegatchie, Waterford, and a machine owned and driven by Mrs. Julia C. Walker, 396 Williams street, were in collision late this afternoon, corner of Channing and Vauxhall streets. Neither automobile sustained serious damage.

Celebrators of Christmas by indulging in "joy water" started early today, for before noon two drunks had been picked up by the police and are now occupying cells at the police station. One of the victims of too much drink was found on North Bank street and the other was picked up on State street.

Frank B. Walker, manager of the Hotel Mohican and in charge of realty here owned by the late Frank A. Munsey, was in New York today and attended the funeral services for Mr. Munsey. From 10 until 10:30 o'clock this afternoon, the hour set for holding the funeral services, the Mohican store remained closed.

Capt. Jesse Wilcox returned to his home, in Quiambaug, today, having been a patient at Home Memorial hospital for two weeks. Capt. Wilcox was injured so seriously by a fall on the stairs of his residence that he was compelled to obtain hospital treatment.

Mr. and Mrs. James A. McCann, New York, arrived in New London this evening and will spend the holiday with their son and daughter-in-law, Lieut. and Mrs. Allan R. McCann, 494 Ocean avenue.

Sergeant Samuel Hick and Patrolman Frank Philopena visited two Bank street lodging houses last night for the purpose of inspecting the places as the officers were of the opinion that liquor was being sold there. The officers did not attempt a search of either place for they had no warrant to do so, but they scrutinized several of the rooms most thoroughly. When inquiry was made of the officers as to their mission at the lodging houses the proprietors were informed that they were "looking for a fellow named Smith."

The absent-mindedness of automobile drivers, which has been illustrated numerous times of late, was again evidenced this evening when a man who had made purchases for the Christmas table deposited the food-stuffs in a car other than his own. When Adelbert J. Richards, 44 Chicago avenue, Groton, arrived at his home at 7:30 o'clock he found he had two parcels in his car that did not belong to him, so he returned to New London and delivered the goods at the police station. Richards stated that he had parked his car on Masonic street for some time and that he did not observe the bundles not his own in the car until he started to remove some of his purchases on arriving home.

LOCAL ELKS PROVIDE CHEER FOR 150 HOMES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 24.—Some one hundred and fifty families will be beneficiaries of New London lodge of Elks on Christmas day, for that organization distributed a hundred and a half baskets of food among the poor families of the city yesterday. In each basket was enough food for four or five persons, and each basket contained meat and vegetables in variety. The Elks hold the place of honor in providing for the needy at Christmas time, and indeed they hold the same place in all generous deeds when there is a call for assistance from the public. During recent weeks, members of the lodge have been solicited to contribute to this worthy cause. They responded generously, so that Thursday Santa Claus went among those who needed the food distributed. The giving was without ostentation, so that no one other than the committee that made the distribution knows who were the recipients of charity. If the generosity of the lodge of Elks was represented by a stated sum that would accurately make known the benevolences the lodge has bestowed it would astonish even those who have the opinion that they are aware of all that has been done.

FOUR CASES OF BUTTER STOLEN FROM STORE DOOR

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 24.—Somebody obtained a quantity of butter last evening that should be sufficient to keep a household the balance of the winter, if not longer. Shortly after 4 o'clock a truck of the Swift Beef company drove to the store of Max Soltz, 93 North Bank street and because of the place being closed, four cases of butter that had been ordered by the store propietor, were left on the entrance. The store was not opened until this forenoon and when Soltz inquired for the butter from the beef company, he was told of its having been delivered the day before. It was then learned that the butter was stolen from the store entrance sometime between 4 and 6 o'clock Wednesday.

SAILORS GO CALLING AND ARE LOCKED IN

Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 24.—Two sailors, R. S. Riggan and M. C. Theaubaut, members of the crew of the United States Coast Guard destroyer, Cummings, state pier, were found prisoners in the Patterson building, 76 State street, last midnight by Patrolman Philopena. In order to liberate the men an employe of the Patterson store, on the ground floor, was located at the Crocker House and going to the building Riggan and Theaubaut were released upon the entrance being unlocked. Riggan and Teaubaut stated that they entered the building for the purpose of interviewing Gus Kellas, agent of the property and that while they were on one of the upper floors the store employe locked the entrance for the night.

The Congregational church Christmas concert was held at half past seven. The children in the primary department gave the following numbers, under the direction of Ethelle Parkhurst:

Welcome, Harold Tomlinson; Our Program, Logan Gray; Daddy's Present, Eileen Nichols; The Christmas Flower, Corrine Zeger; A Brief Speech, Bernice McNicol; Santa Finds a Way, Martha Gray; My Broadcast, Junior Webster; A Day of Joy, Arlene Symington.

Two songs were given by Mrs. G. Keene Gray's class—The Christmas Spirit and The Bethlehem Lullaby.

A pageant, The Angels' Message to the World, was given by members of the Sunday school. The story was read by Mrs. C. D. Wolf. The background was an immense scenic production in colors. It transformed the back of the platform into a panoramic view of Bethlehem and the plains of the shepherds. It was made from recent photographs, showing landscapes, buildings, trees, etc., as they appear at the present time, but little different from the scenes were at the time of Christ's advent. It gave beauty and dignity as well as reality to the presentation of the pageant. For the opening scene the entire company, many in costume, entered singing, "It Came Upon the Midnight Clear." The shepherds were impersonated by Edward and Harold Faust, and Rev. Mr. Gray took the part of an elderly man. The carols used during the pageant were sung behind the scenes by women's voices. A lighting effect was arranged which showed the angels appearing in the sky, at the appropriate time during the reading. Before the pageant, Miss Irene Stewart played an arrangement of Silent Night, as an organ prelude. The audience joined in singing "Joy to the World," at the close. Supt. E. L. French, assisted by Mrs. E. A. Faust, Mrs. F. E. Robinson and Mrs. E. H. Hiscox, was in charge of the pageant. Sidney Melvin did the electrical work. A Christmas tree was placed in the vestry, and William Marshall impersonated Santa Claus.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Meyer of New Britain, and Miss Mailie Burleson of East Orange, N. J., are at E. T. Burleson's; Richmond P. Gardner of New York at B. R. Gardner's; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Strickland and children of Middletown at Mrs. H. E. Paul's; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Harvey and son of Holyoke, at F. E. Robinson's; Mr. and Mrs. John Jennings and son of Boston, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Watt and son, of Groton, at Dr. G. E. Jennings'; Miss Winifred Scates of Willimantic Normal school and Mrs. Mary Stott of North Billerica at Rev. E. E. Scates'.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Tracy are at their daughter's in Hartford today (Christmas).

Mrs. E. H. Hiscox will be a guest at Mrs. E. J. Farrell's in Wauregan today (Friday).

TODAY'S EVENTS

Only about a third of the world's population has ever heard of Christmas.

Tradition says that it is unlucky to give a neighbor a live coal to kindle a fire with on Christmas morning.

In some lands it is a belief that a person born at sermon time on Christmas morning has the power to see spirits.

In the Balkans it is believed that to die on Christmas day is of ill omen as regards one's place in the after-death life.

In some countries it is regarded as unlucky to carry anything from the house Christmas morning until something has been brought in.

In other countries there is a superstitious belief that if you steal anything at Christmas without being caught, you can steal safely for a year.

The peasants of Germany believe that if the fire burns brightly on Christmas morning, it betokens prosperity during the year; if it smoulders, adversity.

That bathing on Christmas day ensures freedom from both fevers and toothache during the coming year is one of the old-time superstitions which still exist in France.

Christmas day falls on a Friday or Saturday 57 times for every 56 times it falls on a Monday or Wednesday and 58 times it falls on Sunday, Tuesday or Thursday.

During the whole of the Christmas holidays it is a custom among the French peasantry to leave a portion of bread out on the table night and day, in the belief that the Madonna may come in to share it.

Persons of note born 100 years ago, on Christmas day in 1825, included Stephen F. Chadwick, who became governor of Oregon; Dr. Henry R. Linderman, director of the U. S. mints and author of the coinage act of 1873, and Newton Booth, governor of California and U. S. senator.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

CARGILL TRUST COMPANY ROUNDS OUT SUCCESSFUL YEAR

Indicative of the manner in which Putnam is buoyantly recovering from a train of unfortunate industrial reverses and the collapse of one of its banks—The First National—in August of last year, is the remarkably fine showing made by the Cargill Trust company in its first year of business.

The company one of eastern Connecticut's newest financial institutions which received its charter from the state bank commission and opened for business November 12th, 1924, has just rounded out its first fiscal year. It has been successful from its very opening and has fulfilled its mission in Putnam's industrial and financial structure.

In spite of extraordinary expenses incidental to its organization it declared July 1st, its initial dividend at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum. At the directors' meeting the past week its second dividend for the period ending December 31st was declared at the same rate, namely 5 per cent. and in addition a Christmas dividend at the rate of 1-2 of 1 per cent per annum was voted.

The report submitted to the directors by Treasurer Boyce showed that the dividend had not only been earned but a very substantial amount will be left over to carry to the profit and loss account. One of the directors said that this would amount to at least $10,000. Such being the case it is evident that the institution has had a most successful year, and has proven itself worthy of taking its place with eastern Connecticut's financial institutions.

Byron D. Burbee for many years a successful retail dry goods merchant has been president of the organization since the charter was granted L. M. Keith, another of Putnam's successful business men is Vice President Clarence A. Boyce, for many years a banker, has served most efficiently as secretary and and treasurer.

The trust company's quarters though small, have taken on a very busy appearance during the past few months, more particularly so during the past ten days on account of new enrollments for the 1926 Christmas club. Already it is reported that the company has twice as many members in the new year's club as in the 1925 club. All this will be reflected in the building up of Putnam's business institutions and restoring it to its former place as one of the most prosperous cities in eastern Connecticut. When, at the end of another year, it is time for the dispersal of another Christmas club the weekly savings which have been put away by the individuals in the new Christmas club will surely find their way into various stores.

Some gigantic sets were built for Norma Talmadge's new First National picture to be shown at the Breed theater Sunday.

The first is a complete English theater of the 1909 period. This theater is perfect in every detail and was done from old photographs obtained in London. It includes the stage, dressing rooms, back stage, orchestra pit, boxes, galleries and lobby of the theater where Floradora was first presented in London.

Next were reproductions of the Hotel Metropole and the exterior and interior of the Casino at Monte Carlo. The gambling rooms also were done from photographs sent over from France.

Another important set was a French Apache resort in the toughest waterfront section of Marseilles where the dregs of society of all nations gather. The peopling of this set was a doubly difficult task requiring the greatest accuracy of detail. All the costumes were secured in France by Jacques d'Auray for it was necessary to have them such as were worn in that particular section of Marseilles about 25 years ago.

Still another huge set was that showing the House of Parliament in England and London Bridge. This scene, with the London fog dimming the whole set, was a triumph of architecture, lighting and camera work.

Breed Theater

Imagine, if you can, a ship on fire at sea. A leopard has escaped from a cage on the deck and is driving the panic-stricken passengers into the water. One man and one woman are left aboard and when they rush to the last remaining lifeboat they find the leopard crouched in it ready to fight for possession.

That is only one of the many remarkably thrilling episodes in The Half Way Girl, First National's latest feature picture, which comes to the Breed theater today and Saturday. Even more thrilling is the spectacle of the ship being blown to atoms, stirring fights between men over a woman, a beautiful love story, colorful settings and extraordinary photoplay. This is one of the best pictures Earl Hudson has ever made for First National.

In the featured roles are Doris Kenyon and Lloyd Hughes. Supporting them is a cast consisting of Hobart Bosworth, Sam Hardy, Tully Marshall, Teddy Sampson, Sally Crute and Charles Wellesley.

Palace Theatre

"People who are funny are people who are sincere. Never do you find successful comedy makers among the shysters of the stage or screen," said D. W. Griffith recently while completing his latest production, "Sally of the Sawdust," a United Artists Corporation release.

This great comedy of circus and home life, marks Griffith's highest flight; and is proving one of his greatest successes. It comes to the Palace Theatre.

Never has Griffith contributed laughs so liberally as in this delightful work, say critics everywhere. With Carol Dempster and W. C. Fields, he has provided some of the funniest scenes ever filmed, uniting them with a story of warm pathos and zestful action that cataracts to an exciting close.

As the most successful of screen directors, his comments on comedians are of interest.

We have fortunately captured many laughs in "Sally of the Sawdust," it was done without great effort. That is because the characters of Sally McGargle and her lovable old "Pop," the great Prof. Eustace McGargle, are real.

"Miss Dempster has played the role with sincerity and W. C. Fields, who plays the professor, is undoubtedly one of the greatest comedians, whether on stage or screen.

RADIO WILL PIERCE JUNGLE FOR NEW GUINEA EXPLORERS

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 24—(AP)—Radio, faithful comrade of the explorer, undaunted to heights or depths, ice or heat, will follow the Stirling expedition to the unknown jungles and mountains of Dutch New Guinea.

The party has sailed from San Francisco for the roundabout voyage that will terminate on the shores of Papua, where the real journey will begin.

The half dozen scientific adventurers, taking the airplane in which they hope to fly over vast uncharted stretches, have arranged to establish three radio stations. The first will be on the coast, at their base camp, the second at an advance camp which they expect to make at a point in the interior, and the third aboard the plane.

The expedition will be augmented at Singapore with an escort provided by the Dutch government. It is planned for the coast and interior camps to keep in touch by wireless and when the plane goes on jaunts for reconnaissance it will talk to the camps and possibly to the outside world.

Matthew W. Stirling, anthropolgist, heading the expedition, hopes to speak direct from the plane to Singapore, Manila or some other outside station that may inform the world how the explorers are faring and what they have found. The plane is fitted for photography and aerial map making. It carries all the latest safety devices.

By using the plane to hop from the coast to the interior the party will eliminate much of the hardships that attended previous expeditions. Yet there will be greater hazards than the air ordinarily involves. The men will be sailing over a country of which they know nothing.

Mr. Stirling hopes to study the strange pygmy race reported to dwell in the mountains of the interior. These pygmies have been seen by other expeditions, but never at close enough range for detailed examination. They are described as shy people, dwelling in trees and so primitive as to be little above animals.

Other objects of the expedition are:

To reach the great precipice of the Nassau range, said to be eighty miles long, with an absolutely vertical height of 10,000 feet.

To land on Lake Habbema for the first time, and to explore the neighboring territory.

To study the ethnology of the coast and mountain Papuans.

To obtain a representative ethnological collection from the different tribes visited, for the United States National Museum.

New Guinea is the largest island in the world except Australia. For centuries it has resisted the efforts of explorers. Today it is one of the least known portions of the world.

Besides Mr. Stirling, who lives at Berkeley, Cal., the members of the expedition include Stanley A. Hedberg, Chicago; Richard K. Pock, St. Petersburg, Fla.; Hans Hoyt, New York, and Albert Hamer, Coulter, Ia.

MARKET WAS STRONG

NEW YORK, De. 24—(AP)—Heavy week-end and Christmas profit taking checked another sharp advance in prices toward the close of today's stock market. Final quotations were irregularly higher, with a long list of issues showing net gains of one to nearly eleven points on the day.

American Can was again the sensational individual performer, scoring an extreme gain of nearly 14 points to 236, a new record high and then easing to 233-78. Considerable speculative interest also was manifested in Pacific Oil which jumped six points to 70 3-4, the highest price since the stock was admitted to trading on December 2, 1926, on total transactions of nearly 160,000 shares, or about one-tenth of the day's entire volume of business.

The weekly mercantile reviews declare that holiday business was better than was generally expected. Bradstreets reports that "heavy sales of holiday goods at retail furnished the dominating note in the week's trade reports." Dun's sets forth that "recent expansion in important department of trade is firmly held and indications are that the customary slowing down at the end of the year will be less marked than usual," adding that "distribution in retail lines this week was dominated by last minute shopping, and this, stimulated by the payment of many Christmas bonuses, reached dimensions never previously recorded."

Commodity markets were irregular. Wheat futures registered another substantial advance in further reflection of the bullish government crop report, and unfavorable crop developments in the Argentine. Cotton prices closed 9 to 42 points higher with January contracts up about $3 a bale at one time. Coffee and sugar futures closed lower on the day.

Publication of additional favorable November earnings reports infused new strength into the railroad shares. Atchison scored an extreme gain of 5 points by touching 137, the highest price in its history, and then easing to 135 3-4. Atlantic Coast Line and New York Central broke through their previous top prices for the year.

United States Steel common closed about a point higher at 135 7-8 after having sold as high as 137. Baldwin showed a small fractional gain at 131 Among the score or so industrials to move into new high ground for the year were American Smelting, Art Loom, Bansdall A and B, Continental Can, Federal Mining and Smelting common and preferred, Fox Film, Ingersoll Rand, Loose-Wiles common and first preferred, Sears Roebuck and Twin City Rapid Transit. Railway Steel Spring soared 10 3-4 points to 130 and Postum Cereal showed a net gain of more than 8 points at 119 1-2.

Call money which has ruled at six per cent., for amout two days, eased to 5 1-2 early this afternoon, closing at that figure. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Trading in the foreign exchanges was extremely quiet, business for the day being practically suspended shortly after noon, all later quotations being of a nominal nature, as will be those of Saturday when most of the world's principal money markets will be closed. Demand sterling held steady around $4.84 5-8, but French francs eased slightly to around 3.07 cents.

The annual Christmas exercises of the Taftville Congregational church school were held Wednesday evening at the church with an attendance that filled the edifice to capacity. When Santa Claus visited the school, he promptly distributed the gifts to those present assisted by a number of the young men of the school. A box of candy was given to each child at the door.

General oversight of the entertainment was by Miss Gertrude M. Young and Mrs. Adam Leopold.

Christmas exercises were held Thurrday at the Wequonnoc School. Many of the pupils' parents attended. The party was held in the kindergarten rooms, where there was a prettily decorated Christmas tree. Santa Claus visited the school and distributed gifts and candy to the pupils.

Mr. and Mrs. Allan Bogle of Providence street are in New Bedford, where they are spending the Christmas holidays with Mr. and Mrs. William Brierley and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Brierley.

George Pilling of Providence street was injured Wednesday, when he fell, dislocating his shoulder. He was attended by Dr. J. J. Donahue of Norwich.

Miss Margaret Hunt, Miss Dorothy Hunt and Ralph Hunt of Norwich avenue are in New Bedford, for the holidays.

CIGARS FOR POLICE AND FIRE DEPARTMENTS

The Terminal and Chelsea lunches have remembered every member of the Norwich police and fire departments with a box of cigars. The gifts were deeply appreciated by the officers. Besides the individual gifts from the above there will be the usual gifts of cigars from organizations and friends and for the next few days at least, every policeman and fireman will be well stocked with smoking ammunition.

Alderman Patrick F. Sweeney of the police committee has received a check for $25 from the Dime Savings bank, to be added to the police pension and relief fund. This gift is in appreciation of the work of the department during the past year. The present has been turned over to City Treasurer Charles S. Avery and the members of the department express themselves as pleased with the gifts.

The American Thermos Bottle Co., as in past years, remembered their employes with containers in which sums of money were placed.

Numerous other local concerns remembered their employes with gifts Thursday and the Christmas spirit seemed at its height throughout the city.

Local florists have had a big trade. Hawkins was obliged to make a hurry trip by motor to Providence at 8 a. m. Thursday to replenish supplies.

LOCAL WOMAN WITHDRAWS $9,000 CLAIM AGAINST NORWICH ESTATE

Notice of the withdrawal of the $9,000 damage suit brought by Mary Jones Bishop of this city against John B. Jones, executor of the estate of Edward Albert Jones, late of Norwich, was filed with the clerk of the superior court Thursday. The plaintiff brought the suit as the result of a claim she made against the estate for services which she alleged she had rendered for the late Edward Albert Jones. The plaintiff represented that her services were reasonably worth $8,000. Her claim was disallowed by the Norwich probate court and she then filed suit for $9,000 in the superior court.

The supreme court, which rendered a number of decisions at its sitting in Bridgeport Wednesday found error in the case of Mrs. Winifred Douglass of New London against Sidney Hart, a member of the firm of Hart's Fur Shop, of New London and Hartford. The higher tribunal ruled that a judgment be rendered upon the verdict of the lower court, which was for $460.55 in favor of Mrs. Douglass.

The plaintiff sued for damages to a Hudson seal fur coat, alleging that on or before January 1, 1924, she deposited the same with Hart's Fur Shop in this city, to be altered and re-delivered to her within a reasonable time. The coat, she alleged was worth $1,000.

Mrs. Douglas further alleged that the defendant in violation of his duty, treated the garment in such a careless, negligent and unworkmanlike manner that the coat was ruined and worthless. She also alleged that she was obliged to make eight trips to Hartford, costing her $40, the coat having been in both stores.

The defendant, in a counter claim set up that the plaintiff, Mrs. Douglass, was indebted to Hart's Fur Shop in the amount of $83.45.

On Dec. 9, 1924, a jury in the superior court at Norwich, returned a verdict in favor of Mrs. Douglass for $466.55. On January 19, 1925, by a memorandum of decision, Judge George E. Hinman, upon motion of the defense attorney, A. S. Weissman, of New Haven, granted the motion to set aside the verdict on the ground that the verdict was excessive and against the weight of evidence.

Attorney George Curtis Morgan, counsel for Mrs. Douglass, filed a note of appeal on January 28, 1925, to the supreme court of errors and perfected the appeal on Jan. 24, 1925. The case came before the higher tribunal several months ago and was argued by attorneys for both sides.

In accordance with the supreme court decision, Attorney Morgan's next move in the final chapter of the case, will be to have judgment entered in the superior court for this county, where the case was tried.

LIONS TO ENTERTAIN CHILDREN NEXT WEEK

The regular meeting of the Norwich Lions club held Thursday noon at the Wauregan House with President William A. Anderson in charge. George Madden officiated as song leader, being assisted at the piano by Miss Gertrude Platt, in the absence of the club pianist, Peter Etheir. Among the musical numbers were several Christmas carols and the usual variety of group and club songs. Christmas favors, in the shape of toys, were placed at each plate and at the close of the meeting it was voted that they be sent to the children in the county home.

The attendance contest prize, a handsome shaving mirror, donated by Lion George Fullerton, was awarded to Lior Rudolph Henschel. Various committees rendered reports of progress and the committee on the Christmas show for children reported everything "all set." The entertainment takes place at the Palace Theatre next Wednesday morning at 10:30 o'clock. There are to be souvenirs for the children, who must be accompanied by their parents or have a note from their parents authorizing Manager E. L. McEvoy to have custody of the children while in the theatre.

The speaker of the day was Rev. Edward C. Dunbar, pastor of the First Baptist church, whose message was relative to the Christmas spirit. Faith, Love, hope, justice, truth, courtesy, sympathy, patience, fidelity, conscience and truth, were mentioned as important things in life. The whole world, said Rev Mr. Dunbar, is independent on co-operation for success. In closing the speaker stated that these principles are essential in the true Christmas spirit of giving in each one's individual community. The speaker was given a rising vote of thanks for his instructive message.

President Anderson announced that the meeting next week would be for business only. Christmas greetings were received from the president of the Lions international, and from the district governor. It was voted that Secretary Rich wire appropriate greetings in return to each of the above mentioned officers. The meeting closed with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

THIRTY TOWNS EXCEED LAST YEAR'S SEAL SALES

Returns from fifty of the seventy local agents of the state tuberculosis commission Thursday indicated that thirty towns would probably equal, or slightly exceed last year's Christmas seal sale total, while seventeen may fall slightly below. While no unit has greatly increased its amount over last year, nearly all will nearly or entirely duplicate their 1924 campaign achievement. The largest per cent. increases were reported from Darien, Stratford, Watertown and Wethersfield.

In the case of Hartford, which has led the state in its seal sale total for several years, the returns so far secured seem to indicate a considerable falling-off from those of last year; but for several weeks returns will continue to be received by the local units in their own cities and towns.

Definite estimates of the state total were not given Thursday but the commission called attention to the fact that, throughout the state, cities and towns have in general continued their high standard contributions to the anti-tuberculosis campaign; that an amount close to last year's total $89,053 seems assured.

Connecticut has always been in the first rank in its per capita sales. Last year it stood third with a record of 6.5. Only New York state with 7.5 and New Jersey with 6.9 showed a higher percentage.

ELKS WILL DISTRIBUTE CHRISTMAS CHEER

Norwich Lodge of Elks, following out their usual Christmas custom will distribute over 150 baskets of chicken, potatoes, turnips, onions, tea, coffee, sugar, milk, bread, Katzenjammer crackers, oranges and candy, among the needy families in the city. This will insure a happy day for many families in the city, who otherwise would be without the good things which go to make the day most eventful and cheerful for those in happier circumstances.

The expenditures for Christmas have been over $750 making over $1200 given in this charitable work for Christmas and Thanksgiving, an act well worthy of public commendation.

The Salvation Army this year, under the direction of Captain and Mrs. William Cashman has distributed about 45 baskets of good things for Christmas among needy families in the city.

The annual Christmas party will attend the party this year as guests of the army officials.

COULDN'T PAY FINE SO WENT TO JAIL

A local man makes the 36th member of the family at the New London county jail, who will receive a roast pork dinner today, Christmas day. He was before the city court, Thursday morning, and was found guilty of intoxication and fined $5 and costs. He could not pay his court bill, hence his trip to jail where he will enjoy a fine Christmas dinner and a present from Jailer Oscar Main.

KINDERGARTEN CHILDREN MAKE GIFTS FOR PARENTS

The kindergarten pupils of the Greeneville school held their Christmas exercises in their classroom Thursday morning at which there was a large attendance of parents and friends. The room was prettily decorated with Christmas suggestions all of which were made by the pupils during the past few days. A lighted and decorated Christmas tree set up in a corner of the room was ladened with Christmas gifts that the children made for their parents. These consisted of desk calendars, candle holders, thread containers and other simple but useful articles that the older folks can make use of.

Each little tot had a "piece" to recite or a song to sing, with group singing and dancing being one of the most enjoyable features of the programme, both from the viewpoint of the pupils and the spectators.

All classes in the school were suspended for the Christmas vacation which will end on January 3rd.

WILL ATTEND UNCLE'S FUNERAL AT TRUXTON

James H. Casey, foreman of the water department left town Thursday morning for Truxton, New York, to attend the funeral of his uncle, John T. Casey, who died Wednesday morning. Mr. Casey was 88 years old, and had always enjoyed perfect health until about a year ago when he developed heart trouble. He was only seriously sick for the past five days.

He had been a resident of Truxton practically all his life and was highly respected throughout the community, of a congenial nature and pleasant personality he was a general favorite with the children of the village. Surviving him are 3 daughters and 3 sons and several nieces and nephews.

UNION SERVICE TONIGHT AT CENTRAL BAPTIST CHURCH

A feature of the union Christmas service to be held this (Friday) evening at the Central Baptist church will be Christmas selections, vocal and instrumental, by the new Ortrophonic victrola. This is made possible through the courtesy of the Plaut Cadden company. The Rev. Edward C. Dunbar, pastor of the First Baptist church, will deliver the Christmas message. The Rev. J. Harlow Graham, pastor of Trinity M. E. church, will also have part in the service. Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D., pastor of the Central Baptist church, has issued a general invitation to all to attend the service.

UNIQUE HOLIDAY WINDOW AT SELLAS RESTAURANT

A Christmas window decoration that attracted much admiring attention Thursday was an immense candy basket in the window of the Sellas restaurant on Franklin square. Roses in red and white and the leaves in green are formed with the candy as decorations for the basket, all being moulded with remarkable naturalness which makes the basket a real work of art by George Ferry, the French pastry maker who recently came here from New York. It took about six hours to make the basket, each flower being moulded separately by hand.

PAGEANT SUNDAY NIGHT AT CENTRAL CHURCH

A Christmas pageant, "Followers of the Star" is to be presented on Sunday evening at 7:30 p. m., at the Central Baptist church by forty-five of the young people, assisted by the organist and choir. The pageant consists of a prologue and four scenes:

An eastern locomotive recently built contained 203 tons of steel.

TAX COLLECTORS TO MEET AT HARTFORD

State Tax Commissioner William H. Blodget has announced that an informal meeting of tax collectors will be held in the hall of the house of representatives at Hartford next Monday morning and afternoon. Commissioner Blodget has sent to the tax collectors of the larger towns in the state the following letter:

Dear Sir:

You, as a collector of one of the larger Connecticut municipalities, are hereby specially invited to attend a conference of collectors to be held on Monday, December 28th., at the state capitol. This meeting will be convened in the hall of the house of representatives at 10 o'clock.

In the fall a get-together of the collectors of the smaller towns was held. That meeting was such a success that many in attendance have requested that they be invited to attend the meeting of the larger towns. Accordingly, an invitation is to be extended to the small town collectors as well to be with us on December 28th.

At the fall meeting provision was made for an advisory committee to the tax commissioner. This committee has been of great help in getting up the programme for the meeting next week, a copy of which is enclosed.

One of the features of the autumn conference was the question box. It has been suggested that if you have any question which you particularly wish to ask, you send it in to the state tax commissioner in advance of the meeting. The question will then be answered at the meeting.

The investigation of collectors' records in use throughout the state has just been completed. It is hoped that one of the fruits of these conferences will be an improvement of collection procedure by the bringing to the attention of all the best methods now in use in the state.

Please make a special effort to attend the meeting of the 28th. With best wishes and the season's greetings

Very truly yours,
WILLIAM H. BLODGETT,
Tax Commissioner.

The programme for the meetings will be as follows:

Meeting called to order by Otis J. Hart, tax collector of Hartford; introduction of Hon. Joseph G. Hyatt, temporary chairman, tax collector of Westport; appointment of temporary clerk; address, His Excellency John H. Trumbull, governor of Connecticut: The Tax Collector and the Bondsman, Hon. Howard B. Wessenberg; general discussion: The Alias Tax Warrant, William H. Blodgett, state tax commissioner; general discussion; The Personal Tax, Frederick L. SLOT MACHINES GO BACK TO OWNERS

Attorney Thomas M. Troland, of New London, who represented the owners of candy slot machines, who were arrested for violating the gaming laws, has succeeded in having the machines returned to eight of the owners, the ninth machine having been destroyed because the owner waived his rights.

The state police sought to have the machines destroyed by condemnation proceedings on the grounds that they were a nuisance and were a gambling device City Attorney Lee Roy Robbins waived the 48-hour right in which to bring the condemnation proceedings for the destroying of the machines, with the result that the machines were returned without a legal struggle.

City Attorney Robbins stated that the machines were simply used as evidence in the cases which he prosecuted and that when the matter was settled it was out of the jurisdiction of the city court to condemn the machines.

Each machnie is worth about $100 and there was some $500 in money in them when they were seized.

MERCIER ASSEMBLY PLANS FOR CHRISTMAS TREE

The committee in charge of the Christmas tree and entertainment which is to be held at the armory on December 27th, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, under the auspices of Mercier Assembly, held a meeting Thursday evening and made final plans. It is expected that a large number of children will be present. The chairman Miss Eleanor Donovan, and her committee have worked hard trying to secure all the names of the children of the community who are to be given presents at the exercises. Each child is expected to present their invitation at the door and the members of the assembly will see that they are taken care of. As this is an annual event with the assembly, they take great pride in remembering the deserving children of the community.

LARGE INCREASE IN AUTO REGISTRATIONS

Connecticut stood fourteenth among the states of the union in point of percentage of increase in motor vehicle registrations last year. The 1924 gain in registration certificates issued by the state motor vehicle department over 1923 was 19.5 per cent. which was 10.8 per cent. less than the gain made by Louisiana, the state showing the largest increase. Only one other New England state, Rhode Island, showed a bigger gain than Connecticut. Massachusetts came out four places below Connecticut in the record of states, showing an 18.8 per cent. increase, and New York state stood nine notches below, with a record of 17.3 per cent. increase in registrations.

Following Louisiana, the states which made gains in excess of Connecticut's, in their proper order, are: New Mexico, Mississippi, Florida, South Carolina, Arkansas, Rhode Island, Alabama, North Carolina, West Virginia, Oklahoma, California and Virginia.

When the states are listed according to numerical increase in the registration figures for the past calendar year, Connecticut, although one of the smallest of the union, stands twenty-first. The registration increase for this state in 1924 reached 35,479, as compared with an increase of 28,771, or 19 per cent., in the previous year.

Rated according to gross registration, this state, with 224,771 registrations in 1924, stands twenty-second in the line of states, being preceded by states of much greater population, but followed by Colorado, Georgia, Tennessee, Maryland, Florida, Oregon West Virginia, Louisiana, South Carolina, Alabama, South Dakota, Arkansas, Mississippi, Maine, North Dakota, Rhode Island, District of Columbia, Montana, New Hampshire, Idaho Utah, Vermont, Arizona, Wyoming, New Mexico, Delaware and Nevada, in the order named.

POETRY

Our Christmas

When the shades of evening gather
And the Christmas time is here,
And you go home from your labor
To enjoy the Christmas cheer—
When the Christmas tree is lighted
And the children gather 'round,
There is one thing must be present
If the greatest joy is found.

There must be inner conscience
Telling you with truthful voice
That you've done something for someone
That will help that one rejoice—
Some poor stranger, widow, orphan,
Someone that you did not owe,
Ah, the gift need not be costly
To relieve another's woe.

And the greatest gift at Christmas
That a person e'er received
Was to know that through his efforts
Someone's suffering was relieved;
For the Master, on whose birthday
All the Christmas gifts are given,
Will see that act and send to him
A Christmas gift from heaven.
—Thomas G. Andrews in Kansas City Star.

Old Santa Claus

Old Santa Claus sat all alone in his den,
With his leg crossed over his knee,
While a comical looked creeped out at his eyes,
For a funny fellow in he.

His queer little cap was tumbled and torn,
And his wig all awry;
But he sat and mused the whole day long,
While the hours went flying by.

He had been as busy as busy could be
In filling his pack with toys;
He had gathered his nuts and baked his pies,
To give to the girls and boys.

There were dolls for the girls and whips for the boys,
With wheelbarrows, horses and drays
And bureaus and trunks for Dolly's new clothes,
All these in his pack he displays.

Of candy, too, both twisted and striped.
He had furnished a plentiful store;
While raisins and figs and prunes and grapes
Hung up on a peg by the door.

"I am almost ready," quoth he, quoth he,
"And Christmas is almost here;
But one thing more, I must write them a book,
And give to each one this year."

So he clapped his specs to his little round nose,
And, seizing the stump of a pen,
He wrote more lines in one little hour
Than you ever could read in ten.

He told them stories, all pretty and new
And wrote them all out in rhyme;
Then packed them away with his box of toys
To distribute one at a time.

And Christmas eve, when all were in bed
Right down the chimney he flew;
And, stretching the stocking leg out at the top,
He clapped in a book for you.

CHRISTMAS CELEBRATION MOST REVERENT SINCE 1914

Church Services in Many Cathedrals Were Broadcast to Millions—The Whole World Seemed to Lay Aside Economic and Political Burdens in Joyful Celebration of the Day—In Washington the Observance Was Whole-Hearted and Quiet—In Every European Capital Christmas Sermons Hailed the Locarno Pact As a Harbinger of Peace and Cause For Universal Cheer.

(By the Associated Press)

The Christian world laid aside its economic and political burdens today and celebrated after the various fashions of its people the gayest Christmas it has known since 1914.

From Washington, Paris, London, Berlin, Rome, Moscow and even the heart of Africa—from wherever Christians were gathered on the land or the sea—telegraph and wireless chanted litanies of merry making and cheer.

Church services in many cathedrals were broadcast to millions and those who spent the day at sea were also united by radio in their celebration.

Paris, where the shadow of the fallen franc might have darkened the day, was by far gayer than it has been since the war. Berlin, likewise faced with an economic crisis, echoed the French capital's revelry to a less degree, and Moscow welcomed the return of prosperity after lean years of famine, with the gayest Christmas since the Czarist days.

The United States celebrated more quietly. The north and middle west had a white Christmas, and there were flurries of snow along parts of the Atlantic seaboard and through some of the south.

President and Mrs. Coolidge, in Washington, set the fashion for the nation with morning church, Christmas dinner and a quiet day in the white house with their son, John, home from Amherst; New York and Chicago, after Christmas eves of unwonted gayety, deserted the streets for the day, except for church or charity.

In Washington, New York, London, and practically every European capital, pulpit speaker in their Christmas sermons hailed the Locarno pact as a harbinger of peace and a cause for universal Christmas cheer.

A just peace was the subject of a Christmas sermon delivered by the former German Emperor Wilhelm in his chateau at Doorn, Holland, where Christmas festivities were attended by his family, the staff of his former court, and members of the Dutch nobility.

Although religious services were held throughout the Christian world, there was no lack of worldly scenes. In Moscow long lines of thirsty Russians waited their share of the new forty per cent. vodka, and outside the labor exchanges were other lines of unemployed and hungry.

Paris cafes were crowded with revelers, while the liberal press reviled the costly celebration and denounced "the scandalous scenes in Montmartre while soldiers are dying in the Riff and Syria."

Berlin suffered a Christmas tree famine. Many of those who could afford it went to the country for winter sports. London streets were generally deserted during the day, but theatre crowds sallied forth in the evening and dances were held ni many of the hotels.

In Rome, the pope spent Christmas with members of his family visiting him. He received thousands of messages from all parts of the world.

In New York, there were gifts for the poor, feasts for the sick and church services after the denominational traditions of the polyglot millions.

Thousands of presents were given to children at special Christmas tree entertainments arranged by various organizations. At Bellevue hospital three hundred in the children's ward received gifts from Dr. M. L. Fleming, the superintendent, acting as an impromptu Santa Claus. Adult patients in Bellevue and in practically every other hospital in the city, were served turkey dinners, innumerable radio sets were installed in wards, and in several instances special programs of music were given.

Every mission served dinners to hundreds of the homeless and jobless. In the jails, the usual discipline was relaxed, turkey dinners were served and religious services held. Dinners were served and gifts presented to 4,300 inmates of institutions under the department of correction, and two magistrates adjourned court early to pay a Christmas morning visit to the prisoners in west side jail.

The first religious ceremony of the day was the midnight Christmas mass at St. Patrick's cathedral, attended by 6,000 persons. The mass was celebrated by Monsignor M. J. Lavelle, and a cable message of greeting was read from Cardinal Patrick Hayes, who is in Rome. A special pontifical mass was celebrated at the cathedral at 11 o'clock this morning.

The Christmas sermon delivered by Bishop William T. Manning at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine was a plea for entry into the world court, and a denunciation of the "political machines" which he said "are at present holding us back."

WHOLE-HEARTED, BUT QUIET CELEBRATION IN WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, Dec. 25—(AP)—The national capital, from President Coolidge to the poorest urchin, observed Christmas today in quiet but whole-hearted fashion. Even the absence of snow, which had been promised by the weather man, failed to detract from enjoyment of the day.

Business houses which had enjoyed perhaps the greatest period of Christmas buying in history were closed, as were all government departments. The holiday, by act of congress, will continue over the week end.

President and Mrs. Coolidge led in the quiet celebration of the day. They had no house guests and there were no unusual activities at the white house.

Although clerks in the executive offices had been given a day off, the president after his customary early morning walk, went to his desk to look over mail. Later in the morning, with Mrs. Coolidge and their son John, who is home from college, he went to First Congregational church to attend a union service.

The Rev. W. S. Abernethy, pastor of Calvary Baptist church, which the late President Harding attended, delivered a sermon on "The Wondrous Name," referring to world conditions today, he expressed the iew that the Locarno treaty had been an almost immeasurable step toward peace.

From the church, the president and his family returned to the executive mansion, where they remained in seclusion throughout the remainder of the holiday, except for a short walk taken by Mrs. Coolidge just after nightfall.

GAYEST CHRISTMAS EVE IN PARIS SINCE 1914

PARIS, Dec. 25—(AP)—Paris turned its back on the fallen franc and the country's financial despondency and celebrated the gayest and most unrestrained Christmas eve the capital has seen since 1914.

In spite of the gloomy forecasts made by many newspapers even as late as yesterday afternoon, the traditional Gaelic joyousness and spirit of Christmas took Paris by storm early in the evening and aided by the mildness of the weather and the absence of rain kept the citizens crowding the streets and the cafes until the early morning hours.

Long after the rest of Paris had struggled sleepily to bed, independent Montmartre continued to celebrate, and the street around the Place Pigalle were still filled with boisterous merry makers at eight o'clock this morning. the gaiety was everywhere, in rich and poor quarters alike.

Montmartre, to which the Americans were especially diverted, was crammed to the bursting point, many cabarets hanging up the sold out sign by 1 o'clock. The starry sky was the limit for turkey and goose suppers, and champagne, commencing at $4, finished at prices which looked to most Americans like the figures of the French debt.

The cost of a supper averaged 500 francs (about $20) in the districts along the Champs Elysees and around the opera, but prices in the Latin quarter and Montparnasse were more reasonable.

Midinettes filled the Bal Bullier, the Bal Tabarin and other great dance halls. Workmen kept their own little Bal Musettes going in full swing.

The midnight mass provided the only break in the universal revelry and packed Paris' most famous churches. This morning the streets were deserted until 11 o'clock when the Parisians, in sobered mood, sallied out to attend services.

Every newspaper today agreed that this Christmas celebration was quite as gay as any pre-war revellon on record, although La Liberte sneers at "a dollar and pound Christmas" and the communist L'Humanite waxes indignant over "the scandalous scenes in Montmartre while soldiers are dying in the Riff and Syria."

The average Parisian, however, feels that he has treated himself to the merriest Christmas he has seen for a long time.

Campano also was granted a continuance until next Wednesday.

Considering Liquor Treaty With Cuba

To Give United States Broader Power Between the Florida Keys and Cuban Waters.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 25—(AP)—Smuggling conditions affecting liquor, aliens and merchandise, with the possibility of a liquor treaty with Cuba as one result, are questions to which representatives of the state and treasury departments will address themselves within the next few days.

Assistant Secretary Andrews of the treasury and Assistant Solicitor Valiance of the state department left tonight on the first leg of a two weeks tour, during which they hope to obtain definite information as to ways and means of meeting the situation throughout the south. The officials will visit half a dozen customs ports of entry and will also confer with officials of the Cuban government at Havana.

With his reorganization of internal prohibition forces as planned last April now completed, Mr. Andrews has arranged to iron out kinks in the customs service. He proposes first to study conditions in the south with a view to facilitating passage of merchandise through the ports and, at the same time establish a more complete liason between the customs, coast guard and prohibition services against liquor smuggling. Mr. Andrews has control of all three units for the treasury and his thought from the start of his official duties has been to work a closely knit system of operation.

As for the Cuban visit, little has been officially disclosed. There have been rumors, recurring from time to time, of a move to arrange a liquor treaty with Cuba similar to those already signed with Canada and Mexico and including provisions which would grant the United States a little broader power between the Florida Keys and Cuban waters.

NOT AT VARIANCE WITH CHAPMAN CASE DECISION

HARTFORD, Dec. 25.—(AP)—The ruling by Judge John C. Pollack in the United States court at Kansas City that a presidential commutation of sentence of a prisoner is not binding unless accepted by the prisoner, is not at variance with the decision by Judge Thomas in the Gerald Chapman case, according to Assistant U. S. Attorney George H. Cohen, who represented the government at the Chapman habeas corpus hearings here.

In the Kansas City case, Mr. Cohen said, the petitioner, Vuce Perovich, a Montenegrin nobleman, has been convicted of murder in Alaska and sentenced by the federal court to be executed. President Taft commuted this to life imprisonment and Perovich was confined in Leavenworth prison, in spite of his refusal of the commutation. The case came before Judge Pollock on Perovich's contention that he was illegally imprisoned for life and the judge ordered his release.

In the Perovich case, Mr. Cohen said, Judge Pollock acted in accordance with previous decisions which hold that changes in sentence, when not merely a lessening of the amount of the original sentence, require the acceptance of the prisoner. In the Chapman case, Mr. Cohen says, the change in sentence is clearly a lessening of the sentence imposed for mail robbery, a change in degree and amount of sentence, but not in kind. In the Perovich case, the issue as Mr. Cohen sees it, is the change in the kind of sentence, from death to life imprisonment.

MINERS ARE HOPEFUL OF OUTCOME OF CONFERENCE

Regard Meeting to Be Held in New York Tuesday Afternoon as an Indication of an Early End of the Four Months' Strike—Announcement of Pending Conference Came as the Only Form of Yuletide Cheer in the Homes of Many Destitute Workers.

SCRANTON, Pa., Dec. 25.—(AP)—The scheduled resumption of negotiations between the anthracite miners' representatives and the operators in New York city on Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock is looked upon in the hard coal region as an indication of an early end of the four month's strike.

The call for the meeting of the negotiators, as announced by Alvan Markle, of Hazelton, chairman of the anthracite sub-committee, shortly before midnight on Christmas eve, was received throughout the coal fields with jubilancy. In the homes of many destitute mine workers on Christmas morning the announcement came as the only form of Yuletide cheer, but one that was regarded as compensation for the loss of the good things which are always associated with Christmas.

Neither representatives of the operators nor the miners would make comment tonight on Mr. Markle's call for a resumption of negotiations. Both parties will be on hand, probably at the Union League club in New York, on Tuesday for the meeting.

The first move to be made in the conference, it is believed, will be a request by the operators that the miners be allowed to return to work pending the negotiations. This request will be asked in letters forwarded to both Mr. Lewis and Major W. W. Inglis, of the operators, by twenty-seven priests of the anthracite field. The letter urged an immediate resumption of work and arbitration of disputed points Such a course, the priests said, would have the approval of at least eighty-five per cent. of the mine workers at least.

Following the acceptance or rejection of this request consideration will be given peace plans proposed by various organizations and individuals during the course of the suspension The Pinchot plan of settlement, which would award a modified check-off to the miners and arbitration of wages upward provided the price of coal would not be affected, will be presented by the workers' representatives. The Luzerne county legislators' plan of settlement, which provides, primarily, for a renewal of the expired contract to be effective until September 1, 1926, and negotiations for a long term contract to follow the renewed agreement, will most likely be presented by the mine owners.

With a meeting of the non-English speaking priests scheduled in Wilkesbarre on Wednesday, interest again centers upon the clergymen, who a few days ago urged an early end of the strike. The spokesman for the priests declared that "drastic action" would be taken by that body, if necessary, to insure a resumption of mining by the middle of January. What action is contemplated by the clergymen is not known. It is expected that about 100 priests will attend the meeting.

Eleven pastors of Irish-American Catholic congregations throughout the region, who endorsed the letter of the non-English speaking priests, are not expected to take part in the Wilkesbarre meeting.

The call for Tuesday's conference at New York was issued by Mr. Markle at Hazelton several hours after President Lewis had informed Mayor Durkan on Thursday of his conference to "consider peace plans," it was Mr Lewis' second reply to the invitation and was a clarification of his former answer which was interpreted in some quarters to mean that he would resume negotiations only on the basis of the Pinchot plan of settlement. Upon receiving the communication from President Lewis, Mayor Durkan informed the operators of the miners leaders attitude and requested the operators to ask Mr. Markle to call a conference. This was done.

On December 18, at a meeting with Governor Pinchot in Harrisburg, executives of the cities, towns and boroughs of the hard coal field framed the invitation to the operators and miners to resume negotiations. It was accepted without reservation by the operators, who, however, later declined to enter the conference without written assurance that other than the peace plan of Governor Pinchot could be discussed. In his second answer, Mr. Lewis made the peace move successful.

PLANNING EXTENSIVE NEW YEAR RADIO PROGRAM

New York, Dec. 25—(AP)—With the chimes in the tower of parliament in London helping to ring in America's new year, the most extensive and elaborate international radio broadcasting program in history is being planned for the advent of the year 1926.

General James G. Harbord, president of the Radio Corporation of America, announced plans today for world-wide broadcasting which in this country will have its local point at the high-powered experimental station of the corporation at Bound Brook, N. J.

Operatic stars in New York, the Marine band in Washington, and the Symphony orchestra in Rochester, N. Y., will be among the features of the program which will be broadcast across the seas, rebroadcast for the British Isles and the continent by the British Broadcasting company and again rebroadcast in Germany, atmospheric conditions permitting. A chain of stations throughout the United States will rebroadcast the program for Americans.

The program, according to General Harbord, is intended as a world-wide demonstration of radio communication and radio's possibilities in the international field. For the gathering of technical data as to reception conditions throughout the world, official "listening posts" will be established throughout the United States and in such points as London, Paris, Berlin, Rome, Warsaw, Honolulu and Tokyo.

COLD WEATHER IN THE NORTH CENTRAL STATES

WASHINGTON, Dec. 25—(AP)—Jack Frost as well as Santa Claus chose Christmas, this year, to make his rounds.

The lowest temperatures of the season were reported to the weather bureau tonight from some stations in the north central states. While considerably colder weather generally was the perpetually spy Jack's Christmas gift throughout the lake region, the great central valleys and the interior of the west Gulf states.

The icy fingered imp found so much to occupy his attention there, what with knocking the mercury down to ten degrees at Chicago and Fort Wayne, Ind., and even below zero in North Dakota, Manitoba and northern Ontario, that he ignored sections of the Rocky Mountain and southern plateau regions and the southern part of California, where unseasonable warm weather prevailed maximum temperatures of 82 and 84 degrees respectively, were permitted at Los Angeles and San Diego.

Light snows fell in the Ohio and upper Mississippi valleys, in the lake region and in the Atlantic states north of Virginia. Considerable cloudiness overspread the southern state and the Missouri valley, but elsewhere, the nearest approach to the heralded "white Christmas" was bright, sunshine.

Snow flurries were forecast for tomorrow in western New York and western Pennsylvania, with fair weather in prospect at all other points east of the Mississippi river for the next 48 hours. Even lower temperatures throughout this part of the country also were predicted, and the northern sections east of the Mississippi were warned that the coldest weather of the season was indicated tomorrow night.

RABBI GUP AGREES THAT JESUS IS NOT A MYTH

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Dec. 25.—(AP)—Speaking in his sabbath address tonight in temple Beth-el on "What the Jews think of Jesus," Rabbi Samuel M. Gup agreed substantially with Dr. Stephen S. Wise of New York, that Jesus is not a myth, but an "ethical light which Judaism gave to the world."

Rabbi Gup declared that no Jews took part in the actual trial and crucifixion of Jesus, and asserted that "If Christian people were to cease telling their children that the Jews crucified him and to tell them instead that it was the Romans who did it, we would begin in childhood to make for a better understanding between members of the two great faiths."

"Jesus is for the Jew," Rabbi Gup unequivocally declared, "an eminent teacher of morality, original, imaginative, sublime; he was a religious genius of the first rank. Stripped of mythological accretions the gospels are a product of the people of our own flesh and blood."

Arguing that the Jews were a subject people and had no autonomy in matters of life and death, Rabbi Gup said that "the gospels have ascribed the crime of the crucifixion to the Jews because, when they were written, Rome ruled, and to declare that Pontius Pilate had crucified Christ would have given the Roman authorities great offence.

"The most amazing page in the history of injustice in the world is that the Jewish people should have been held responsible during 2,000 years for the death of Jesus. They were no more guilty of his death than the Greek nation was guilty of the death of Socrates."

In explaining why the Jews in Jesus' day did not accept him as their spiritual leader, Rabbi Gup said it was because the main position of his teachings was opposed to the main position of the prevailing teachings of Judaism in that day; because he had compromised the Jewish idea of a pure god by feeling himself to be an ultimate source of authority and thus presuming to introduce a more or less idolatrous belief which violated the tone of the commands of Moses, compromising pure monotheism; and because he emphasized an other-worldly religion, believing that the Messianic age was in the present, that God was to usher in a new creation and that the day of judgment was at hand.

"Let it be said positively that Jesus was not a Christian," said Rabbi Gup, "that is he did not aspire to establish a new faith. He became a Christian in the eyes of later Christian development."

DOUBLE SUIT RESULTS FROM COVENTRY ACCIDENT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 25—Deputy Sheriff Allison L. Frink, of Andover, has placed attachments on real estate and other property owned by Clarence S. White, of Andover, in satisfaction for a civil suit of $10,000 instituted by Peter F. Maneggia and another for $5,000 brought by the latter's father Andrew Maneggia of Bolton. The double suit grows from an accident about 7 o'clock in the evening of January 12, 1925, when Peter Maneggia, aged 19, was struck by a Ford car owned and operated by White, as he was walking near the Wrights Mill road in Coventry. The allegation is that White failed to exercise proper care, to have legal headlights and to have his car under control. Maneggia was picked up on the radiator of the machine and then thrown to the ground. The wheels of the car passed over his right leg, fracturing the bone and straining the tendons. The young man was fully incapacitated up to June and is still partially incapacitated. The case is returnable in the Tolland county superior court January 5, 1926.

Ernest Breault, 14 year old son of Philip Breault, of Hop River, sustained bruises to his legs when the bicycle he was riding skidded on the slippery surface of Columbia avenue at 11:15 o'clock, Friday forenoon and was struck by a Chrysler sedan owned and operated by Arthur Tatro of 827 Park street, Hartford. The bicyclist and the machine were both headed toward this city and as the car approached to within a short distance of the bicycle the latter vehicle skidded and fell on the road, throwing young Breault heading to one side. As the boy struggled to regain his feet Tatro swung away but only partially succeeded in avoiding a collision. The bicycle was smashed and the boy's leg grazed. Breault was taken to a local physician's office and given treatment after which he was returned to his home. Tatro said that he would settle for the damage. Chief of Police Allan McArthur was called and after an investigation pronounced the accident unavoidable, there being no indication of reckless driving on the part of the Hartford man.

Christmas leniency prevailed in the police court, Friday morning, and resulted in the suspension of judgment in three minor cases. Levi Upton was charged with breach of the peace. The second case was that of Louis Gunderson of Pleasant Valley who was arrested shortly before 5 o'clock Friday morning by Lieutenant McLean and Officer Arthur Hurley on a charge of intoxication. A complaint had been registerd with the police that Gunderson was prowling about the postoffice, just across the street from police headquarters. Gunderson pleaded not guilty. As there were no costs in the case, Judge Foss merely suspended judgment but added a warning.

Victor Hamel, a resident of this city up to about a year ago, when he moved to New York, asked for a chance to return to New York, when presented in police court Friday morning, on a charge of intoxication. Hamel drank himself into a battling mood and when arrested on Union street, at 2:30 o'clock Friday morning, gave the officers a tussle. Judge Foss suspended judgment for twenty-four hours.

Levi Upton, arrested for the seventh time since 1917, was charged with breach of the peace, when in police court Friday morning. He pleaded not guilty. His daughter, Mrs. Viola Whitney who resides at 17 Clark street, in a tenement just over the Upton home was the complainant in the case. When called to the witness stand she said that she had her father arrested because he had been drunk all week and was using vile language around the house and in the presence of her young children. She failed, however, to prove a breach of the peace violation conclusively. Upton was told that judgment in his case would be suspended for six months, provided that he pay the costs of the court.

Friday was Christmas Day, of merits, weatherwise, churchwise and socially. Snow fell, but although it was a moist mixture, the flakes were greeted as seasonable, as the ground was covered. Traveling especially in automobiles was very dangerous and judging from the light amount of traffic it was evident that a great many motor car trips were cancelled.

Eleventh hour shopping which remained dull during the day Thursday, broke out in considerable of a rush during the evening and the Christmas business closed with a bang. The business section of the city presented an attractive appearance Thursday night. Special 1,000 candle power lamps installed by the Rockville-Willimantic Lighting company brightened up the streets The show windows and stores were illuminated with high candle power lights which effectively brought out the beautiful window decorations. Main, Church and Union streets were avenues of Christmas trees which had been placed about the electric poles and inserted in the Shenandoah flag display sockets along the curb. To all points along Main street the big municipal Christmas tree set up at Lincoln Square, sent out a glowing greeting to shoppers from the five hundred multi-colored electric bulbs which adorned it. In windows and doors of residences about the city holly wreaths and poinsettias added a cheery note.

Parishioners filled the churches, at the various services Christmas Day. The earliest church-goers were the hundreds who attended the 5 o'clock mass at St. Joseph's church. The fifth and last service at 10:30 at both Catholic churches were solemn high masses, with the pastors, Rev. J. J. Papillon and Rev. Henry E. Quinn as the respective celebrants.

A holy communion service was conducted at St. Paul's Episcopal church at nine o'clock by the rector, Rev. F. C. Williams. Later in the forenoon special Christmas services were conducted at the First Congregational church by Rev. Arthur S. Wheelock, at the Methodist Episcopal church by Rev. A. Stanley Muirhead and at the Baptist church.

Thursday night and Friday morning three belligerents were landed in jail, necessitating a Christmas morning police court session. In the meantime officers were striving to check the flow of illicit liquor and succeeded in making one big haul from the home of Mrs. Rose Spencer, 74 Meadow street. In the opinion of the authorities nearly all the holiday liquor disposed of and consumed was hurriedly made moonshine and alcohol splits, it being the opinion that liquor which could truthfully boast of being over two or three months old was decidely scarce in the city.

An Essex touring car owned and operated by Charles M. Thompson, of Prospect street, Willimantic and a Jordan touring car owned and driven by N. B. Copeland of 177 Church street, New Haven, collided with some damage to fenders, on Main street, shortly before twelve o'clock Friday forenoon. Both cars were headed east. Mr. Thompson had already started to turn left around the silent policeman with the intention of entering Church street, when the New Haven machine cut in between the local car and the signal cop. The rear left fender of the Essex and the right front fender of the Jordan were damaged. After exchanging names and registration numbers the New Haven man drove off. Mr. Thompson reported the accident to the police.

The police department received another Christmas gift Friday morning, when E. L. Mansure, millionaire manufacturer of Chicago, and a summer resident of North Windham, presented Chief of Police Allan McArthur $25 in crisp bills. The gift was in appreciation of courtesies extended him in the past. The money will be applied to the pension fund.

DRIVER BOUND FOR NORWICH DISAPPEARS AFTER MISHAP

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 25.—Constable Alfred P. Abbe, of Windham Center, was doing considerabl scouting about this section Friday, while endeavoring to locate the driver and alleged owner of a Studebaker touring car bearing Connecticut registration No. 103-840, which was abandoned, after it had skidded in rounding Porter's curve, in South Windham at 3.45 o'clock in the afternoon. The machine plowed up an embankment and went over a stone wall into the yard of the E. W. Avery home. The driver got out and ran off although his car was undamaged and he had injured no property or persons. Two young men who gave their names as Wilfred Lessard and Alphonse Turcotte, both of Hartford, were passengers in the machine. They said that the driver and owner of the car was Joseph Paulin, of 872 Zion street, Hartford. They had hired him to take them to Norwich and were on their way to that city when the accident occurred. Paulin's tracks were traced to the banks of the Shetucket river which runs through South Windham, over half a mile from the location of the accident. From that point he was traced along the river bank, indicating that he was making his way back to Willimantic by following the river. The search for him is being continued.

WIDOW IN HARD LUCK STARTED TO SELL BOOZE

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 25.—Mrs. Rose Spencer of 74 Meadow street was in the police court Friday morning, charged with keeping intoxicating liquor with intent to sell, to which charge she pleaded guilty. She said that she had nothing to say for herself, other than she had been on strike for several months She is a widow and not being able to find work anywhere she went into the booze business to save her two children, aged 8 and 13, from starvation. Judge Frank H. Foss imposed a fine of $200 and costs and a ten day jail sentence, which he suspended for one year. Mrs. Spencer paid the assessment of $213.75 and agreed that the seized liquor be destroyed. She was given a warning that a second violation would mean a stay in jail. The raid was made about 10:30 o'clock Thursday night by County Detective William E. Jackson, Federal Officers William S. Congdon and Stanton L. Briggs and Police Officers Roderick Lariviere and William Hurley. The search for the contraband booze led the officers into every nook and corner of the house. From underneath dressers, beds, floor boards and other hiding places the officers collected nine full pints of ready mixed alcohol splits, made of alcohol and water, two full quarts of supposedly pre-war Gordon gin and forty-eight bottles of homebrew, contained in two wooden cases. In addition to this about two dozen drinking glasses of various sizes, trays, recently emptied liquor bottles and other evidence of a profitable business were uncovered. The contraband stuff was arrayed on the prosecutor's table in court, Friday morning. Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Frank P. Fenton appeared for the state.

Detective Jackson, Federal Officer Congdon and Chief of Police McArthur testified that they had previously received complaints that the Spencer home was disreputable and that liquor was benig sold there.

LEONARD BRIDGE MAN CAUGHT IN SPENCER HOME

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 25.—When County Detective W. E. Jackson, Federal Officers Congdon and Briggs and Police Officers Lariviere and William Hurley raided the home of Mrs. Rose Spencer at 74 Meadow street for liquor Thursday night they also placed under arrest Leslie Hill, 32, of Leonard Bridge, to answer to a charge of frequenting a reputed disorderly house. As the officers entered one of the rooms searching for booze they came upon Hill and a girl who said she was Edna Roy of New Britain. Hill was lying on a bed fully clothed but the girl was in scanty attire and was lying with both arms round the man. The sudden appearance of officers did not appear to disturb her and she remained until commanded to rise. In police court Friday morning Hill re-enacted this scene by word adding that he had no intention of doing wrong. When questioned further he added that he was a married man. He said that he met the Roy girl at the Wayside Inn in New Haven several weeks ago. Later he met her again and took her to a room at the Spencer home so that she could get a job in a factory here. He pleaded not guilty to the charge but Judge Foss and Assisting Prosecuting Attorney Fenton were of a different opinion. Hill was fined $10 and costs, amounting to $2.15 which he paid.

After a conference with First Selectman Ernest P. Chesbro arrangements were made to send the girl back to her home in New Britain.

OLD-FASHIONED WHITE CHRISTMAS IN BRITAIN

LONDON, Dec. 25—(AP)—Two-thirds of the British Isles had an old fashioned white Christmas. But London's record for green ones is still unbroken, and today made the nineteenth Christmas without snow in the metropolis. It was a muggy day outdoors, but, within, the fires blazed cheerily and all the time honored festivities were carried out more extensively than in any year since the war.

There is a distinct note of peace and good will in industry as the new year approaches. This is evidenced by the provisional agreement in the ship building industry for the avoidance of disputes in the future. The miner's ballot, which is not progressing, on a scheme intended to settle the questions without stoppage of work, and the probable avoidance of a crisis in the railway world.

MEDFORD, Mass., Dec. 25—(AP)—Christmas candles which set fire to the window curtains of a dwelling here tonight resulted in injury to five Medford firemen when the truck on which they were responding to the blaze, skidded from the road and overturned in a clay pit, 20 feet below the highway. The men were tossed into a salt marsh. All escaped serious injury except Albert Nicoll, a horseman, whose head was cut on a rock. He was taken to the Lawrence Memorial hospital, where his condition was regarded as serious but not critical.

The news sheet will be sold, and, as the government is not permitted to profit by its sale, any pecuniary gains will go to charity.

The decision of the government was officially made known after an interview between Premier Primo De Rivera and a committee of newspapermen.

WAY TO CONCERT SUCCESS HARDER NOW THAN OF OLD

NEW YORK, Dec. 25—(AP)—The road to success on the concert stage in the olden days was difficult, but now it is even harder. More hopes of ambitious artists than ever are being crushed into disappointment.

This, in the opinion of several prominent New York managers, has come about because of increased competition and the attendance of more intelligent audiences.

"Why, when I brought out Paderewski in London," said Daniel Mayer, who was the first manager of the great artist, "there were only ten or twelve famous pianists in the world. Today, there are 30 or 35 and hundreds of others trying to reach the pinnacle."

Not only is the route harder, but it also is more expensive. When anyone is ready for concert work, it costs at least $10,000, and oftentimes more to get started, exclusive of funds expended through the long years of training.

In making this estimate, executives of the Philharmonic Society of New York pointed out that there is the cost of expert teachers to correct mistakes previously overlooked. An accompanist is necessary, except when the artist is a pianist. Promotion and advertising also are expensive.

Then the artist must rent halls for his debut performances, which usually are given in New York, Boston and Chicago. On many of these evenings in New York, the hall is packed with persons, but the chances are the tickets were presented free gratis by the artist, or a wealthy sponsor was of assistance.

Concert managers here are in touch with managers and music organizations in hundreds of cities and towns throughout the country. When tours are arranged, the virtually unknown artist is guaranteed a small fixed fee for each performance.

Unless the artist proves an unusual success—and overnight successes are few and far between—the New York manager does not, in his opinion, receive a fair renumeration for his services until after the first or second year.

Mayer, who in addition to bringing out Paderewski also was the first manager of Melba, Yaye Parlowa, Bauer, Elman and Giannini, does not believe it is proper torefer to a manager as having "made" an artist.

"You can not make an artist," he said, "but you can use the gifts of an artist if they are real; to produce them before the public in such a manner that the artist becomes famous.

"Take the case of Dusolina Giannini, whose success is one of the few coming overnight. It was in March, 1923, that Anna Case became suddenly indisposed and was not able to appear at the Schola Cantorum, conducted by Kurt Schindler, at Carnegie Hall.

"Schindler had only a few hours' notice and was desperate. Some one told him of Madame Sembrich having in unusually good student in Giannini. The soprano happened to be familiar with the selections and after playing them over, agreed to help Schindler.

"It happened to be in the audience that night and heard her wonderful success. I was able to put her on the concert stage immediately, but if she had not been able to live up to the reputation resulting from her first night's performance, my services would have been worth nothing."

The old-fashioned temperamental artist is passing from the American concert stage and instead comes the artist with an eye for business. Audiences of today demand fine performances and there also is a natural desire on the part of artists to give their best. A few eccentricities or an occasional outburst of temperament no longer can help across a program which may have been marred by the slurring of notes or the slapping of several wrong keys.

When success comes, the worry of poor audiences and small fees pass. The managers then guarantee big fees in advance and have little fear of so doing, for nearly always the attendance is large.

All these things, and many others, the young artists know. So they go through lean years with the hope that some day in the future fame's spotlight with accompanying fortune, will find them.

WOMAN JUDGE URGES MORE PARENTAL TIME TO CHILD

NEW YORK, Dec. 25—(AP)—American fathers are giving too much time to business and not enough to their children, in the opinion of Judge Jean F. Norris, who has presided in New York courts six years.

What is true of the fathers also is true of the mothers, except business is not taking most of the women's time she said, adding that this situation is largely responsible for the increase in crime.

As magistrate of the first district criminal court, the jurist is a striking example of the progress made by woman suffrage and of modern day life. But she still is old-fashioned enough to contend that "respect for law and order begins in the home."

Housing conditions, under which there is little privacy; lack of religious training and ignorance of self-control are some of the other stepping stones to crime mentioned by her.

"Our mothers and others should stress respect of parental authority," she asserted. "If children are not taught to obey their parents, certainly it is not surprising for them to refuse to obey the law."

Miss Norris was appointed magistrate three years ago. Mercy plays an important part in most of her decisions, for in all except trivial cases she takes 24 hours for personal investigations through probation officers to learn pertinent circumstances relating to the defendants.

"I do not want to impose jail sentences on women and children unless I am fully satisfied it is the best course," she said. "Often there are other means of meeting the situation."

She knows how to inflict punishment without hesitation, however, as three men who recently appeared before her in traffic court will testify. They were charged with speeding, and as a result had the licenses revoked permanently and received straight jail sentences of five days each.

In 1919 when Miss Norris was appointed judge in the woman's day court and also the family court, where social cases mostly are heard, she had been a practicing attorney ten years.

As assistant counsel to the state comptroller, she organized the delinquent tax bureau. She formed the trust corporation to handle the $1,000,000 left by Mrs. Frank A. Leslie to Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt for the furtherance of woman suffrage.

A box of goodies from the white house was among the Yuletide gifts received by Col John C. Coolidge father of the president.

DANIELSON, Dec. 25—There is a great deal of satisfaction in recording this morning that not an arrest had been made in Danielson during the holiday season up to the time the sun had set, Christmas afternoon. The years bring changes, numbers of them pleasing ones. It is not beyond hte memory of thousands in Killingly to recall Christmas seasons when one was accustomed to wonder how many might get within the toils of the law. All of that seems to be over the dam. It happens, too, that people seem to enjoy themselves just as whole-heartedly these days as they did in those days, which is as things should be. The world may not be any better, but, apparently, it is more sensible, peculiar as that may sound.

CALL TO REV. H. W. GAYLORD HAS BEEN ACCEPTED

DANIELSON, Dec. 25—On the eve of Christmas, it was announced that Rev. Harding W. Gaylord, of hte Grand avenue Congregational church, of New Haven, has accepted a unanimous call to the pastorate to the Westfield Congregational church, of Danielson. The call to Rev. Mr. Gaylord was voted extended at a special meeting of the Ecclisastical society, Sunday evening last.

Rev. Mr. Gaylord, a graduate of Yale Theological school, preached here December 13, and made such a splendid impression that the call later extended was then forecasted. He will begin his pastorate here February 1.

The coming of Rev. Mr. Gaylord and his family to Danielson is of special interest to South Killingy, where stands the oldest Congregational church in Killingly, closely allied with the Westfield Congregational church of Danielson, and where the new Danielson pastor was also heard earlier this month.

The state highway department organization in this territory has been doing its bit during the first icy period of the winter by sanding hills and grades and curves where there is an excess of danger of skidding. Motor car drivers have not been slow to appreciate this efficient service and public acknowledgment of it seems proper at this time. The work done has very probably prevented serious accidents.

Postal workers here, with Postmaster E. H. Keach at their head, made a great Christmas record of efficiency in handling the avalanche of Christmas mail at the Danielson office. Notwithstanding the fact that there was approximately a 25 per cent. increase in the business over any previous year, there were no jams and no delays. Postmaster Keach was pardonably proud of the fact that the "decks" were cleared at 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon, and the force all set to handle the one and last incoming mail of the day. Over 50 sacks of mail matter arrived here Christmas morning, presenting another bit of work for the boys when they get back on the job this morning. Of course, a considerable amount of work was done on Christmas day, though the office was closed and all supposed to be free for the day. The mails were despatched as usual. This morning the late arriving mail will be distributed—and there may be a few belated Christmas gifts for many people. You never can tell!

The Community Christmas tree party on Davis park Christmas eve was all that it was expected to be. It reminded one of a saying of a man who had particularly enjoyed an outing—"I'd like to go again, sometime." It seems likely, from what could be observed, that the hundreds who were at the park for the tree exercises would like to see the Community tree program repeated from year to year. A jam of cars blocked the streets about the park. All who came appeared to be especially happy. The evening was delightful—mild and moonlight and with just enough snow to make the landscape look traditionally Christmasy. Later there was the pleasure the carol singers brought to shut-ins and others as they went about the borough after the exercises at the park. To the American Legion and to the cooperating churches and organizations who helped to make the event such a success, Danielson as a whole owes a debt of gratitude.

With specified restrictions, the children of the town of Killingly under the age of 16, are heresfter to be allowed free transportation to and from school. Among the restrictions is one that pupils enjoying this privilege must live at least two miles from the school they are attending. It is also stipulated by the town school committee that each pupil's claims to free transportation be considered individually and that the health and ability of a pupil to reach school without the special consideration mentioned will be taken into account. The school committee has asked for bids to handle the transportation on the routes that are to be established. Bids received will be opened at the meeting of the school committee January 7.

ROTARY CLUB'S TREE PROVES BIG SUCCESS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Dec. 25—The Rotary club's community Christmas celebration met with unqualified approval. In Union square Christmas eve, a vast crowd listened to the singing of carols under the direction of C. D. Eharpe. The music was made more effective by the mammoth Christmas tree which the club has erected in the center of the square. With its hundreds of incandescent lamps in red, whit and blue it made an impressive spectacle. After the programme in the square, groups of singers in motor buses visited the different sections of the city and sang Christmas carols.

ELKS PROVIDE CHEER FOR SIXTY HOUSEHOLDS

PUTNAM, Dec. 25.—The thanks of many families in Putnam will go out to the local lodge of Elks for the Christmas dinner that otherwise would have been a very limited one. It was learned, although not from a member of the order, for as the Danielson correspondent said yesterday, they are sincere in their desire to avoid ostentatious charity, that baskets were sent to sixty families and contained more than one dinner.

This is the largest number for which the lodge has ever provided and is a reflection of the financial disasters that Putnam has passed through. To have brought Christmas cheer and substantial comfort to but one family would be justification for the systematic and thorough way in which the Putnam Lodge, B. P. O. E., carries on this work. This year the justification is multiplied sixty-fold.

L. Edward Hill of New Haven has been offered and it is believed will accept the office of Y. M. C. A. secretary for Windham county, to succeed John H. Corbett who resigned to go to Florida. Maurice F. Child, principal of Woodstock Academy, has been filling the place temporarily and the office in the Bradley building will be kept open, with Miss Ruby Payne in charge. Mr. Hill is married, and will move to Putnam at once if he decides, and it is thought that he has practically done so, to accept the appointment.

OPINION OF OTTO S. WULF ON HOLIDAY BUSINESS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Dec. 25.—Beginning Saturday and continuing until closing time Christmas Eve, business at the retail stores was almost equal in volume to the holiday trading of former years. Prior to Saturday, there was a very substantial shrinkage as compared with the years since 1920.

This was the opinion expressed by Otto E. Wulf, of the department store of Bugbee & Wulf.

"That is true of our own trade," he said to the Bulletin correspondent," and I believe that it is a fair estimate of local business in general. There are several reasons to account for this falling off. The biggest one, of course, is the failure of the First National Bank and we know that the effects of it cannot wear away in a year, or two year. Then there was the slump in textile manufacturing, the failure of our biggest mill and the closing of another one. In the latter case the plant, which was a cotton mill, has been bought by a big silk concern, the Edward Bloom Silk company, which will eventually mean a much more desirable and much more substantial industry; but because there has not been time for the installation of machinery, Putnam has not yet begun to benefit from it.

"The occupancy of the long idle mill property on Church street and its gradual development is another encouraging feature, but we will begin to realize the advantages of this mill the next holidays more than we do at present.

"Then, there is the condition to be faced," continued Mr. Wulf, "that is general throughout this part of the country, I think in the entire New England territory, to judge from what we hear from salesmen, there has been a marked decrease in what may be termed strictly Christmas business.

"Realizing what they have been through, and with the fear that all available extra money might be needed because of the coal strike, our people have bought more frugally. Also, I think that the merchants of the city will agree that there has been less of a demand for luxuries and the money that has heretofore been spent largely for Christmas presents, was invested in necessities.

"Another factor that has had its effect has been the practice in vogue here during the past year more than ever before of selling articles that cost a considerable amount on the installment plan. When the weekly or monthly payments of $1 or $5 or $10 or more have been taken from the pay envelope there has not been so much left for the usual Christmas expenditures. That is a fact that I believe is already passing.

There are many encouraging signs, such as the successfull establishment of two banks in place of the one that was wrecked, a steady if not a large gain in the production of textiles and the prospect of greater production for the year, especially the assured fact that the new silk company plans to utilize all its capacity."

Urogen

New London Proof.

I suffered from lumbago for a long time, trying many remedies, and treatments without relief, and change of weather resulting in no benefit.

In the midst of a very bad attack I was induced to try UROGEN, and at the first was relieved, and now feel that I am cured, as I have not had an attack for over a year, and I firmly believe that "UROGEN" is the TRUE REMEDY for LUMBAGO.

MEDALS FROM AMERICAN GEOGRAPHICAL SOCIETY

NEW YORK Dec. 25—(AP)—Announcement of the names of seven scientists to receive medals from the American Geographical society was made today by Isiah Brown, director of the society.

The three gold cullum medals were given to Harvey C. Hayes of the navy research department at Philadelphia, Pedro C. Sanchez, distinguished Mexican geographer and Lucien Gallois of the University of Paris.

Hayes was rewarded for supplying science with a new instrument for measuring the ocean floor.

Sanchez received a medal for conducting a series of geographic measurements and topographical surveys in Mexico, thereby laying the foundation for the scientific study of the geography of that country.

Gallois received his award "for notable contributions to the history of geography" and his interpretation of the spirit of science. He is professor of geography at the University of Paris, France.

The David Livingston centenary medal "for scientific achievement in the field of geography in the southern hemisphere", was given to Luis Riso Patron, director of the Officina de Limites of Chile in recognition of his contributions to Chilean cartography and to Erich Von Drygalski, of the University of Munich, for his work in the south polar regions.

Senor Patron headed the first Chilean commission to make a precise survey of the Cordilleras of the Andes. Dr. Von Drygalski carried out notable glaciological investigations in the Arctic as the leader of the Greenland expedition of the Berlin Geographical society 1891-1893 and of the German Antartic expedition in 1900-03 on which he has since published extensive scientific data.

The Charles D. Daly medal has been awarded to Captain Robert A. Bartlett for his services to Arctic exploration as commander of the Roosevelt 1905-09, in Peary's expedition to the pole, and the Canadian Arctic expedition of 1913-18, and to Brigadier General David L. Brainard "in recognition of his notable achievements on the Lady Franklin bay expedition under Greely in 1881-84 in which he took a leading part.

Captain Bartlett now lives in the San Remo hotel, New York and General Brainard lives at the Army and Navy club in Washington.

HOW THE FORMER KAISER CELEBRATED THE HOLIDAY

DOORN, Holland, Dec. 25—(AP)—Gales which continued unabated today did not interfere with the former German emperor's Christmas festivities. They began in the great hall of the chateau this morning with a sermon by William, who, with black skull cap protecting his head from draughts, discoursed on the Nativity and a just peace before an audience which included his wife, Princess Hermine, and her children.

The invited guests included members of the Dutch nobility, the chief of the Duch gendarmes and the staff of the former emperor's court, from the highest official to the lowliest servant, all of whom stood and sang a hymn.

One of the guests later said that William delivered his sermon with the gestures of a dramatic actor.

At five o'clock in the evening, in the uniform of a Prussian general, William, accompanied by his wife, visited the quarters of the servants and retainers and distributed gifts. Tonight in the grand hall the couple sat on a throne, behind which was the statue of Frederick the Great, and William directed the lighting of the Christmas trees and personally distributed gifts to the children, his guests, and Princess Hermine, she receiving a traveling case equipped with toilet articles. The celebration was ended by all joining in a hymn.

The former war lord cut his Christmas tree with his own axe. For several days he was busy distributing gifts, each including a signed photograph, to the poor families of the village. Some of them also received consignments of wood chopped by William on his estate.

SUGAR WAREHOUSE WAS DESTROYED BY FIRE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 25—(AP)—Fire today destroyed the warehouse of the Utah-Idaho Sugar company here causing loss estimated at $300,000.

The warehouse contained 123,000 sacks of sugar, valued at $700,000.

At 1:45 o'clock the fire was still burning. The loss represents the entire 1925 output of the plant. Officials said spnotaneous combustion probably caused the fire.

THE MODIFICATION FIGHT

There can be no profound feeling of surprise that there is to be a determined effort made in the present session of congress to bring about a modification of the dry law. Prohibition was fought. Its opponents did not believe it would succeed. They didn't believe such a thing was possible, and yet it was in harmony with a surprisingly large part of the country. Perhaps the wets were taken by surprise, but if they were they haven't been caught napping since. They have fought the enforcement of the dry law from the very beginning, and even though decisions have been against them repeatedly they still persist.

To back them up in the efforts for modification there are many conditions to aid their cause. There is the fact that liquor is obtainable in most any quantity if there is the price.

There is the fact that there never was such a rank lot of stuff being used in comparison with what was obtainable under licence. The claim that 99 per cent. of the hard liquor today is poison is strictly correct. Because there is an illicit trade on having it at any cost and regardless of results.

There is the fact that there is such a general disregard for the law on the part of the young as well as old, the youth, girls as well as boys, are demanding it, as to increase corruption and disregard for all law.

There is the fact that what used to be beer drinkers have today become the consumers of hard liquor, and liquor of vile character and deadly content.

Whether the seekers after modification can give any assurance that modification would end the deplorable conditions which have developed concerning the rotten hard stuff that is being used is another question. They, are nevertheless making the most of the situation to help their cause and they are gaining the support of many former prohibitionists who have been forced to change their attitude as the result of the conditions which they have witnessed.

The fight against prohibition may be as uphill as was that in its behalf but there is no indication that it is going to lapse through lack of interest or dwindling support.

CANADA SHOULD BE INTERESTED

There can be nothing but gratification over the announced interest of Canada in Pan-American affairs. This does not mean necessarily that Canada has not been interested in the past, but when it is set forth at the Pan-American Commercial Congress by Trade Commissioner Hudd of the dominion that it was the purpose of his country to correct the impression that Canada was outside of Pan-American circles and that only Latin American countries were concerned therein it evidences a disposition to be more closely identified therein than it has been in years gone by.

Pan-American affairs should have the attention of all countries of North South and Central America. Each should desire to be included and each should want the others interested. This country has not undertaken to stand for all of North America There is no reason why Canadian sentiments should not be expressed or why it should not establish close relationship with the American republics There is in fact every reason why it should, and in the belief that the statement by Commissioner Hudd means that it is going to there is cause for satisfaction.

Why shouldn't the nations of these two continents work in the closest harmony and show the cooperation that means better relationship" One will have to do some hunting in these days when there is a growing demand for international peace to discover any excuse for avoiding such ties. The fact that Canada is part of the British empire doesn't justify exclusion or holding aloof. Canada is a part of the western hemisphere and it has reason to be as much in touch with the Pan-American affairs as those countries in the lower part of South America. And there are reasons for believing that Canada would bring good counsel to Pan-American circles. It's decision is to be welcomed.

DEVELOPING ALASKA

Many recommendations are made each year in the annual department reports. Some of them will get more attention than others. Some will be heeded promptly and others will have to wait. Some will get slight consideration.

In the annual report of the department of the interior Secretary Work points out the need of "a prompt and sympathetic study by congress of Alaska's natural resources and their possibilities, as well as of the methods of government in operation in the territory and their effects on its development."

In the last decade or two Alaska has been coming in for a steadily increasing amount of attention. This is because of its natural resources. Provisions have been made for uncovering them and utilizing them. Added facilities for communicating with the outside world have been provided, encouragement has been given to new industries and protection provided for others. But during it all, or as the result of some of it, it has been fully realized that while Alaska is a huge storehouse of riches it must undergo a steady and constructive development rather than a quick one.

Where the need for expensive railroad construction in Alaska was seen some years ago there has since been recognized that its cost and the expense of maintenance are extremely heavy for the tonnage carried and there are those who are urging the abandonment of this enterprise.

In the matter of natural resources Florida cannot hold a candle to Alaska, but there is no danger that the latter will have to establish embargoes on goods destined for that territory in order to provide adequate foodstuffs for the great number flocking there Alaska hasn't the climate for stimulating overpopulation, but it will improve and develop as the demands for its resources increase Surveys may do no harm. They may do some good regarding methods of government, but it will be the normal development in the long run that will count.

NEARER A CONFERENCE

What must be regarded as an encouraging prospect is the announcement from the president of the miners to the mayor of Scranton to the effect that the union leaders are ready to confer with the operators on any and all plans tending to restore peace

At this distance that would seem to indicate that they are not restricting the discussion, but are ready to place the cards on the table and get down to real business in the matter of adjustments, and if is to be hoped that the conference will follow.

It is the most promising miners' statement looking to a resumption of deliberations since the deadlock was reached last August, but it is believed that nothing more has been conceded than the situation called for There is no reason why either side should go into a conference under a handicap and yet that is what the operators would have done had they agreed to discuss only the Pinchot plan to which the miners have recently been committed.

When the operators offered to arbitrate, or when they offered to meet and turn over such matters as they were unable to agree upon to arbitration, no unfair advantage was sought for either side Their insistance upon adjustment under no other terms has been unwavering. They have even flatly refused to enter a conference under a misunderstanding. The miners have no reason to expect anything else than fairness from any conference that will result, as it seems likely to do, from the new attitude indicated by the statement from the head of the miners.

A ROOSEVELT MEMORIAL

Certain preliminary efforts have been made for a memorial in Washington to Theodore Roosevelt. While there is bound to be a widespread interest in such action it seems unlikely that it will be carried out immediately. Precedent is in the first place against it and it has been indicated that Mrs Roosevelt's run along the same line when she is reported to be unfavorable to the movement at this time because it is too soon after his death.

That any such memorial should be located in Washington is logical, but it will be remembered that it was 49 years after the death of Washington before the cornerstone for his memorial was laid and 46 years after the death of Lincoln before provision was made for the Lincoln memorial.

According to the plans under which winning design for a proposed memorial was made it is desired to place the colonnade at a location near the Washington monument which will call for the approval of congress.

In the meantime the suggestion has been advanced instead of erecting a useless type of memorial for the former president it would be more in keeping with his activity and love for outdoor sports if a bowl or stadium were erected. Before any decision as to location is reached this idea may get consideration. Unless greater speed is shown in memorializing President Roosevelt than was done in the case of the two great national figures before him it will be some time before a start will be made on anything of the kind.

The design of such a memorial rests with those who are going to provide it. It is the desired location which rests upon the decision of congress.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

The other day a tired, pale-faced woman met an acquaintance on Franklin square and asked, "How are you getting along with your Christmas shopping?" Languidly she replied: "Oh, I'm worn down to a frazzle, and I'm not half done yet. I shall be mighty glad when this Christmas business is over!" Some who overheard this conversation could not help wondering just how far this spirit was typical of the general feeling. If it measured the popular pulse accurately then, beyond all question we are carrying the Christmas practice too far along material lines. The beauty, the romance, the spirit and generosity of The Wise Men from the East who laid their precious gifts at the feet of the Christ Child is lost when it becomes a trade. Are we making Christmas smell too much of the factory? Let us continue our Christmas giving, but let us put less cotton cloth but more frankincense into it.

There is a streak of comedy that acts as a side show to Christmas giving. It doesn't however, come to light until December 25 is fully come, and then the great American amusement begins—shortly after the breakfast dishes have been done up. Eyes are glistening when the bushel basket full of presents is brought into the room Little Johnny is first served. There is no poetry in the father's gift to him It is a thick pair of shoes, the present from Santa Claus. (The little fellow had prayed that Santa Claus would bring him a toy automobile) His father being in a hurry had selected a pair of shoes "that would wear, but they were one-half inch too short Now the look on Johnny's face was not that of an angel. His big brother Bill had paid $4 for two pairs of silk stockings as a gift to his sister Grace who was a short, thin girl. As the stockings were big enough for an elephant, Grace did not go around singing, "Joy to the world, the Lord is come."

Here in New England it is very unsafe to write or speak about the weather conditions more than a few hours ahead. However bright or dark, hot or cold, wet or dry, at the time of writing there may be a complete somersault in a very short time. We never know "what a day may bring forth" weatherwise. When these lines were written, we were in the midst of a long spell of delightful winter weather So much so that one was inclined to ask "where is the terrible winter that was predicted to start early and last long into the spring?" Do we realize that the average variation of temperature in a series of winters is very small? President Timothy Dwight in his delightful book, "Ya Life and Men" relates this incident when one very cold morning he met Prof. Elias Loomis the great astronomer of Yale, and said to him. "Very cold morning, Professor!" "It's only one-tenth of one degree below the average of the last ten winters," was the reply. And there you have it.

"An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure" is good advice anywhere and at anytime, but especially in winter when colds are prevalent There is no excuse for colds raging as an epidemic in winter any more than in summer in fact they would not rage as an epidemic at all if reasonable precaution were taken. Also if we were able to control our surroundings. Now a cold is a germinal disease and highly contagious, and in order to multiply these germs must have a cultural field. Ill ventilated hot and stuffy rooms furnish the soil in which they revel. Exercise in the pure cold air, avoiding contact with infected persons, and avoiding physical fatigue are the best precautions. Good, nutritious food, taken in reasonable quantity gives one a strong background for resisting a cold. Sheer carelessness is responsible for most colds.

Today is the last Saturday of the old year of 1926. There is one thing connected with the years that happens with the most exact regularity, and that is they all expire on the same date, and have the same length of days. There is no dying young or living to an advanced age. No scientist has to compute the average age of the years just to find out how the violation of the Volstead act brings some of the years to an untimely grave, and how ginger ale mixed with grape juice prolongs the life of other years. No matter how outrageously a year may act, or how many rampages follow one another in quick succession as in the equinoctial gales, the year will not die until the last second of December has ticked This blessed assurance is what makes the year so tantalizingly independent. Still we ought not to be too hard on its escapades, for where would you and I be if a year should go on a strike?

When we rip the old calendar from the wall and chuck it into the waste basket, let us pause just a moment and do a bit of honest thinking. Let us go off by ourselves, get into an easy chair, and take a mental slide through the months in reverse order back of January 1st Haven't you a sort of an idea what will result from this backward look? Recalling these past months with a critical eye and with the utmost honesty, do we not find that the year 1926 has been for the most part what we have deliberately made it? Who is the architect of my destiny but myself? Days not many of its trials, its sickness, its failures, its blunders, and its perplexities been directly due to our own stupidity? While the mottled landscape will mark every year, yet the amount of sunshine and shadow is for our own disposal far more largely than we think.

It was in the month of December that Washington died, the outstanding figure in American life in his generation and certainly second to no other in this country since he passed to his reward But the Washington viewed in the light of today is not exactly the man that was pictured to us by the earlier writers. He has come down from the first pedestal of sainthood where Parson Weems, J. S. C. Abbott and others put him. The beautiful little myth of the hatchet and cherry tree has long since been exploded. He had a delicious nature and probably prayed at Valley Forge. He also had a violent temper and swore up in the highlands of the Hudson. He loved gay life, went to the play at every opportunity. He loved gaiety and was very fond of dancing, and like many other aristocrats of the day he was not opposed to rum punch. He was not so lovable a man as Lincoln.

The great achievements of 1925 have been largely moral victories. The machinery through which they have been brought to light—many of them—have been political, but the propelling force has been largely ethical. Chief among them has been the Locarno compact, which from the moral standpoint must be classified with the council of Nicaea of the fourth century. One great result from this early council was to consolidate the religious forces of Europe in its fight with paganism. Before that date paganism seemed to have it mostly its own way. Now Locarno, with the spirit of Nicaea, is trying to rid the earth of the last vestige of paganism by securing a world peace. The great nations of Europe have given it their cordial endorsement. Another great accomplishment has been the apparent crumbling of the Ottoman empire, not so much from outward force as by inward impulse. The view before us is the brightest since the World war.

RAISING SHEEP IN NEW ENGLAND

What was probably the first real constructive step toward the formation of an all New England organization for the propagation of sheep raising, was taken at a meeting of prominent sheep breeders and agriculturists, held this fall at Sorosis farms, Marblehead, Mass., November 5th, 1925. For a number of years past, various states of the New England group, have had state organizations, encouraged more or less by their various state departments of agriculture. They were also aided insofar as was possible by the state agricultural colleges, although, as oft times happens in the case of a neglected industry, these colleges were handicapped by lack of funds.

However, after nearly three years work, Alexander E Little, with the energetic aid of his superintendent, T. G. Hilton, finally brought about this meeting, at which were present representatives from every state in New England, with the exception of Rhode Island. Of course, an inspection of the prize-winning flocks of Sorosis, of Hampshire, Shropshire, Leicester and Cheviot floods, was made, and this was followed by an old-fashioned New England lamb dinner cooked by good New England house-wives.

Mr. Little, in greeting his distinguished visitors, made short work of the speech making, and paid little attention to prize-winning, when he said, "I don't know anything that has pleased me more than to have you gentlemen with us today. We don't care to pay ourselves any compliments, but we have worked hard for four years to create an interest, and bring about a healthy movement that would aid in putting New England back on the map as a sheep raising country. Of course, we are glad to have our beautiful full bloods and we are glad to win prizes with them in the 22 or more states in which we have exhibited but our real purpose, gentlemen, I want to assure you, is to help the farmer better the blood standards in New England, and to arouse his interest in the possibilities for profit in the use of the thousands and thousands of acres of waste land lying outside the cities in every state in New England, land that is admirably adapted for sheep raising. I hope, and I know, that something definite, something tangible, something worthwhile, will accrue from this wonderful gathering here today. Gentlemen I again thank you for visiting us."

Immediately after the dinner, the visitors got down to real brass tacks on sheep subjects, the reasons for failure in many cases and the possibilities of probable success of the industry was properly handled T. G. Hilton, acted as toastmaster and made his first call on Andrew L. Felker, commissioner of agriculture of New Hampshire.

The following are briefs of the addresses of the various speakers, bringing out only the important points.

Protection From Dogs

Mr. Felker laid particular stress in his address in the necessity for legislation in the various states, that would protect the farmer from sheep killing dogs. He stressed the fact further, that while there are laws on the books that might give protection, they are not enforced, He advocated the keeping in teach of self-hunting dogs from the first of April to the first of December, and quoted a case where a farmer owning 30 head of sheep had 42 of them killed outright and the rest harried and worried. When this man presented his bill of $10.00 per head to his town board, he was refused settlement on the basis that they had only been taxed at $8.00 per head the previous spring. He was finally obliged to settle for $100 00. In urging the necessity of a new law, or the enforcement of the present laws on the statutes, he called attention to the fact that while the owner of sheep has the right to collect from the dog owner, in most cases the owners of dogs running at large are so poor that there is no opportunity of collecting.

Mr. Felker mentioned the possibilities of synthetic wool, of which much has been written lately and advocated a law which would require the labeling of this product as synthetic wool, and prevent its being foistered on the public as the real article.

He maintained that the farmer can make a profit from small flocks, and he longed for and prophesied the day when there would be small flocks on eighty per cent of the farms in New Hampshire. In closing, he said, "New England can do what old England did We are the sons of those that came from there. We can learn the lessons and follow the trails that are blazed I know this is coming. I have faith in the sons of the men who called their sheep together on the hillsides of old England."

Maine Conditions

W. I. Cummings, of South Berwick, Maine, devoted his very interesting talk to conditions in Maine. He noted the fact that they had overcome some of the difficulties encountered in other states. He said, "I spent yesterday at Augusta at the Chamber of Commerce and the Agricultural league, in the interests of the sheep industry. In the state of Maine we have a law whereby the farmer is reimbursed for all legitimate loss to the flock caused by dogs. After an attack on a sheep flock, those that have not been killed are not worth 50 cents a head, if they live. My associates and are working to help the industry through the legislature My investigations show that the industry is reviving in Maine and is again growing surprisingly fast." One important point which he made, was the fact that up to a few years ago, western people thought it was a joke for New England people to raise sheep, and that these interested in breeding had gone west for their stock "Today," he said, "those who are looking for the best blood are coming to New England. In fact, we are raising better sheep than any section of the country."

Sheep Pay on Any Farm

W. F. Robbins, president of the N. H. State Sheep Breeders' association, offered the complete co-operation of his association in every possible way, to the end that the New England organization might be a success. He spoke encouragingly of the outlook in New Hampshire, and of the progress that has been made during the past five years.

Professor V. A. Rice of the Massachusetts Agricultural college called attention to the increase in population of the United States and the absolute necessity for increasing the production of food and materials for clothing, and said that at no time was there the opportunity for sheep raising in New England as exists at the present time, nor was there any question in his mind but what a flock of sheep on any farm would pay the farmer if handled properly. He stressed three important points in their care—feeding, breeding and health, and the necessity of starting with carefully selected breeding stock. He impressed upon the breeders the necessity of absolute honesty in providing the farmer who is beginning to raise sheep with good blood. Professor Rice offered some interesting information along the lines of in-breeding and line-breeding, showing the importance of the latter in any breeder's efforts to intensify the better characteristics of his basic stock.

Meat Supply

C. D. Richardson, trustees of the Massachusetts Agricultural college dwelt largely on the marketing possibilities of lamb as a food. He called attention to the fact that last spring New England lambs were sold at 30c per pound live weight, and had the call on western stuff. He quoted the high on wool last year of 65c. Mr Richardson advocated the enlisting of public support against the dog menace, and said if that were accused, laws would soon be made to take care of the situation. He urged all dairymen to have at least one sheep for each cow in their herds, touching upon their importance in keeping down the brush and aiding in fertilizing the land He even went so far as to say that there would be greater returns in the sheep for the farmer than there is in the dairying business He said if there were more boosters for sheep among those in sympathy with agriculture, and a little less in the dairy line, which has caused over-production, the farmers' books would balance better.

J. G Watson of the New England Homestead took the sheep breeders to task for not securing more publicity for their industry in the newspapers and agricultural magazines. He spent considerable time in describing conditions in Scotland where for more than 200 years they have been bettering their breeds He cited instances of full blood rams selling at auctions from 100 to 900 guineas as yearlings He advised the important on of the very best that can be brought from the old country to the end that the blood standard here may be raised. Mr Watson spoke of the fondness of the people of the British Isles for mutton, and said that while the taste in this country probably could not be cultivated to the extent it is across the water, there was no question but what lamb and mutton could be popularized to the point where it would become our most popular meat food.

Better Cows, Sheep and Horses

Dr. E. A. Crossman of the U. S. dept. of agriculture predicted doom for the New England farmer in New England unless he can produce a better cow a better sheep, a better horse, a better everything than comes from the west "and this," he said, "can be done, but it will take a concentrated effort on the part of the agricultural department to the sheep breeders. Dr. Crossman brought out a very interesting fact in connection with the outbreak of the hoof and mouth disease in this country. He said that after months and months of investigation it was found that this disease was brought into the United States via southern points, by airplane boot-leggers, who brought liquor here packed in straw which carried the germs of the disease from the West Indies and Mexico.

Federal veterinary, Dr. R. W Smith, Concord, N. H called attention to the efforts of his department to aid in the preservation of the health of the sheep and the education along health lines to the farmer.

Breeding At a Profit.

Dr. Frank H. Furnum of Pittsfield Maine, state veterinary, said he had been breeding Hampshire sheep in Maine since 1899 with a profit. He took the county agents, commissioners of agriculture and agricultural newspapers to task generally for their failure to co-operate with the sheep breeders. He called attention to the fact that the dairy animals, horses, dogs, etc., were given pages in news, where the sheep industry was unable to get any mention whatever. He also called the attention of the farmer to the fact that he must feed his sheep properly—that allowing them to graze on brush would never be profitable.

Dimon Lockwood of Topsfield, Mass., said he had traveled all over the world studying sheep and wool conditions, and he first brought his sheep to Essex county twelve years ago. He is still raising them at a profit. Mr Lockwood raised considerable laughter when he said he settled the dog question in his particular case with a rifle. He said the majority of farmers are lax in their feeding methods and produced figures to show that more and more sheep are being raised in Massachusetts, and said he could see the steady growth in the industry. He urged the enlistment of the aid from state colleges, state agricultural departments, newspapers and magazines.

Urged Organization

J. C. Cort of the Massachusetts department of agriculture's staff, when he first came to Massachusetts from the department of agriculture, Washington, D. C., three months ago, he almost convinced himself there was nothing for him to do in this section along sheep industry lines. He said as he had since traveled, however, and in addition to the experience he had picked up in his travels, he was so impressed by the interests of the very representative men and number of these men at the meeting that he felt there were some very busy months ahead of him.

He urged the organization of a New England association, extended an offer of cooperation from his department, and prophesized that with the continuation of interest and effort, here could be no question as to the ultimate success of the venture. He extended an invitation to the sheep breeders of New England to attend the agricultural meeting which will be held in Worcester on the 5th, 6th and 7th., of January, and offered to bring a speaker from any part of the county to address the gathering on sheep.

At the suggestion of Mr. Cort, the meeting immediately got down to business on a temporary organization the personnel of which is as follows: Dr Harry L. Garrague, Connecticut, chairman; W. J. Cummings, South Berwick Maine Willard Martin, Vermont; W F Robbins, New Hampshire; T. G Hilton, Marblehead, Massachusetts; J C Cort, Massachusetts; Professor John Ladd, Kingston, Rhode Island

It was decided the next meeting would be held at the agricultural conference to be held at Worcester, on January, 7th.

Sunday Morning Talk

THE MAN OF GALILEE

A beautiful sea, lies embosomed among the Galilean hills. The azure of the sky penetrates the depths of the lake, and the waters are sweet and cool On the west stretch fertile plains, on the north the rock shores rise step by step until in the far distance the heights of Hermon; On the east through a misty veil are seen the plains of Perea.

Flowers bloom in this terrestrial paradise, once beautiful and verdant with waving trees, singing birds, the turtle-dove soothes with its soft note, the crested lark sends out its song toward Heaven, and the grave and stately stork inspires the mind with thought, and leads it on to meditation and repose.

Life here was once idyllic, charming here were once, no rich, no poor no high, no low, it was a world of simplicity and beauty; now it is a scene of desolation and misery.

On the pebbly shores of this rippling lake walks a young man not yet thirty years old. Shall we, can we try to see Him? A smooth open brow; eyes of deepest azure from which shines the light of loftiest inspiration; a mouth of sweetness form which whispers only pity and loving kindness, a graceful but vigorous person, these can never fail to inspire with sympathy, and to excite regard. Who is this solitary man, who walks in the evening hahts of the shores of the whispering sea?

Over His face comes a shadow of pain, already He has begun to suffer those sorrows which have not been equalled on earth; already the oppression of man by man has sent the iron to His soul; already the wretched, the sick and the orrowful in His ears; already His eyes see ing the miseries of men have wept bitter tears :already the selfishness the oppression, the craft, the wickedness of the world have come like a shadow over His breast.

It is Jesus our Saviour who walks here by the sea.

In the midst of this beautiful scene the Christ uttered the words of His Father, such words as were never uttered before.

His life, too, was in harmony with His chains. All His powers and all His time were devoted to doing good and to persuading men to put away sin and consecrate themselves to the service of God. Thus He proved the supreme nobility of His character. And He exhibited many signs of the possession of Divine power in support of His assertion that He proceeded forth and came from God."

When John in prison, sent some of his disciples to Jesus, asking, "Art thou He that should come, or do we look for another?" Jesus said to the messengers, "Go and tell John again those things which ye do hear and see. The blind receive their sight, the lame walk, the lepers are cleansed, and the deaf hear, the dead are raised and the poor have the Gospel preached to them."

The claims of Jesus were stupendous, but they were attested by His miraculous powers, by the beauty of His character, and by the wisdom and power of His words. Even the officers who were at one time sent to arrest His assertion that He "proceeded forth Him testified that "never man spake

Jens Baggesen, Who Wanted to Commit Suicide

The ups and downs of fate were never shown better than in the story of Jens Baggesen, the great Danish poet, in his days hailed as the greatest living poet in Denmark. He began life in madness, but in the 62 years that he lived he made himself a power in the world of literature, and he gave the people of Denmark a pathetic little poem that somewhat reminds one of our own "Home Sweet Home". He was a lover of Denmark, but like the author of "Home, Sweet Home," he was in exile, and he died crying to get back once more to his beloved land. In his 62 years he suffered immensely; was weak and sickly; thrown into prison, abused beyond measure; felt the anguish of a wife's death; married again, and again lost his loved one by death, he saw his children die; he saw his work laughed at, he became a victim of madness, and he died in exile—and yet—and yet—he was a humorist who made people laugh; and in spite of all his infirmities he worked so hard that he gained a rich education, mastered a beautiful style of writing and wrung applause even from those who wished to ridicule him.

Jens Baggesen was a man and a hero and he is worth remembering even if he did die so long ago as 1826. When you think that everything is set against you, think of Jens Baggesen and his success—and you will see that your own troubles are trifles. 'Poor, poor little fellow!" the neighbors said when he was a tiny child 'He isn't long for this world heaven knows! It's just as well, for it's little he gets to eat!"

That was true, for his parents were so poor that he was half starved, and thin and pale. Much of the time he spent sobbing and crying out of very misery. Feebly, one day, he tried to kill himself. He was saved, but again, although only a little child, he tried to leave the world where he suffered so much. It was less than ten years from then that he was making all the people of Denmark laugh at his wit and humor. In those ten years he had found that one way to conquer all trouble is to work, and he worked hard.

He wrote books until his death—beautiful, tender poems, plays, long lovely poetic narratives somewhat like "Evangeline," satires, philosophy—a little of everything, in fact. Sometimes he rode on the crest of high popularity, with plenty of money; sometimes he met harsh criticism. For years he lived here and there in Europe and finally in madness, far from home. He was a hero, a man! He conquered misfortune.

Stories That Recall Others

Hubger Striking

Tom has a reputation for a big appetite, and he doesn't attempt to hide his liking for food. He happens to have a boarding mistress who keeps a pretty close run of things.

Complaining about her Tom rates her as a mean woman. "This morning," he said, "she asked me if I knew how many eggs I had eaten for breakfast and my reply was that 'I had no occasion to count them'."

"'Well,' she said, 'that last one was the third'."

"And it made me feel so mad that I got up from the table and came downtown without my breakfast."

The mother of a radio fan was the owner of a wrist watch of a most attractive appearance, but which was a family joke as a timepiece. Mother insisted, however, that it did keep good time part of the time and frequently it was everybody else's watch that was off. One evenin the family was listening to concert from various parts of the globe when suddenly from Chicago the announcer declared in a loud and positive voice that it was exactly ten o'clock, central standard time.

"Now," chuckled mother triumphantly, "my watch is exactly right. See it's 10 o'clock to the minute."

And it took some time for the family to recover from a simultaneous paroxysm of laughter long enough to explain to mother that she was an hour out of the way, but she couldn't see anything funny on the air, so why all the mirth."

Loaded with Christmas mail for the British army in Germany and with passengers for Belgium, a big plane of the Imperial airways flew from Croydon airdome, England, to Brussels, in 85 minutes, covering 200 miles at an average speed of 141 miles an hour.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Company, Atlanta, Ga. (adv.)

JEWS OF CALIFORNIA DEFEND RABBI WISE

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 25—(AP)—Jewish leaders of northern California, in a resolution adopted today, defended Rabbi Stephen S. Wise of New York, who yesterday resigned as chairman of the $5,000,000 united Palestine appeal, after a controversy brought about by the rabbi's sermon in which he spoke of the greatness of Jesus and said that he was a man and not a myth.

The resolution adopted by the board of Jewish ministers of northern California, characterized efforts to force Rabbi Wise from the leadership of the drive as the "work of a small group, unrepresentative of the masses of American Jewry."

"We believe the effort is a breach of the principles of free utterances in the pulpit and that contravenes the liberal and progressive spirit which must guide Jewish and Zionist affairs," the resolution stated.

POLICE SEARCH FOR FORMER NORWICH MAN

Unable to account for the young husband's inexplicable absence, Mrs. Joseph Zawaski of Hartford, asked that a search be instituted for the man who disappeared a fortnight ago, leaving a strangely worded note.

Zawaski, who chose the pseudonym of Joseph Steigner when he suddenly moved from Bridgeport to Hartford last June, secured employment as a receiving clerk in a Hartford factory.

In the note which he addressed to his wife before deserting her, Zawaski penned many endearing phrases and pleaded with her to take him back when the "clouds lifted, if ever."

Mrs. Zawaski said that her husband, who is about 22 years old, married her nearly two months ago in Bridgeport. He was formerly a resident of Norwich, where he has relatives. He sometimes made guarded reference to "some trouble in Norwich when I had the saloon there." On one occasion he referred to a fight in his place in Norwich about three years ago, when a man was killed in a quarrel over a gambling game. A youth was arrested for the crime, but was subsequently discharged.

The Norwich police said they have no record of a Joseph Zawaski or Steigner, or of a fight and killing in a Norwich saloon in recent years.

"I'm living a lie and it's not easy to bury the past if one's conscience bothers" are lines contained in the note.

"My husband became nervous and irritable following a visit by two men just before he went away," said Mrs. Zawaski. "He feared to be left alone at night and once told me he was being driven to a suicide's grave."

MacKenzie.

The ceremonial continued with the following toast to all sir knights: To a valiant and magnanimos Knights of the Temple, wherever they may be on the land or on the sea. Whether in sickness and trouble, or in health and prosperity, we extend our knightly Christmas greetings and best wishes that they may possess and retain all the best things in life.

The toast to the memory of deceased sir knights was as follows: To the memory of those valiant knights of Columbian commandery who fought life's battle with courage and fortitude, and receiving the reward of victory, have laid aside their armor and passed into the realm where all is peace.

The final toast was to Eminent Commander George E. Zimmerman, of Columbian commandery, No. 4, K. T., after which the annual Christmas collection was received to be donated for the cause of the Salvation Army. A social hour brought the Christmas observance to a close.

BLACK POINT SCENE GIVEN CHARITY SOCIETY

A Connecticut coast scene, pronounced one of the best of the earlier work of Dwight W. Tryon, noted landscape painter, of Hartford, has been received by the Charity Organization society of that city, as the gift of the family of Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Lincoln.

Dwight Tryon, who died this fall at his home in South Dartmouth, Mass., was a close friend of Charles G. Lincoln and his wife, Ida Belden Lincoln, and gave the picture to the couple as a wedding present. Both Mr. and Mrs. Lincoln served for many years as directors of the Charity Organization society and the picture is a memorial of the years of service of Mrs. Lincoln, who died a year ago.

The canvas is 20x30 inches and shows a bit of Connecticut coast near Black Point. It is hung over the fireplace in the board room of the society's building and is attracting much attention since the works of Dwight Tryon are now in great demand.

Dwight Tryon was born in Hartford August 13, 1849. He studied art in Paris under several of the best landscape artists of that day. As early as 1882 his pictures began attracting attention and thereafter he regularly won prizes at various art exhibitions and his best work commanded very high praise. He became professor of art at Smith college and gave to the college an art gallery which is now in the process of construction.

The last call received by the department came in Wednesday afternoon when the firemen were called out for a threatening chimney fire at No. 403 Central avenue. The house is owned by Mrs. David Gilmour and occupied by Mrs. William Shea and others. The soot at the base of the chimney became so hot that a six floor timber in close proximity to the chimney was in danger of taking fire. Evidently the soot had been accumulating for several years and there were several feet of it in the base of the chimney.

SERIES OF LIQUOR RAIDS BY WILLIMANTIC POLICE

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 25—Gail Shamback, with a reputation for the past year or more as Willimantic's most prosperous bootlegger and a plentiful source of illicit liquor disposed of in petty moonshine joints in this vicinity fell into the hands of the law about 1 o'clock this morning. Shamback had led local officials a chase for about one year. Beginning with a raid in the home of Mrs. Rose Spencer Thursday night the officers resumed their work in a systematic order Friday evening the first of a series of raids being staged took place shortly before 9 o'clock in the apartments of Oberd Billings in the Sadd block on Main street.

The liquor was found in the man's room and he admitted sales. From there the officers went to the Hibbard block at the corner of Walnut and Main streets and came upon Rudolph Benson just as he was leaving his room in that block. Benson had four pints in his pockets which he was going to sell. It is alleged to patrons of a local dance hall. Joseph Dion, his room mate, was implicated in the sales of liquor and he was taken to police headquarters along with Benson and Billings who are charged with actual sale. Later in the evening the officers went to the home of Gail Shamback at 317 Jackson street. They were admitted by Mrs. Shamback in the absence of her husband and a search of the rooms netted the officers one five gallon can of rye whiskey, one quart of Canadian whiskey and sixteen one gallon alcohol cans partly filled. The officers packed the contraband liquor into an automobile and awaited the arrival of Shamback. As he drove into his yard about 1 o'clock Saturday morning the alleged bootlegger was confronted by County Detective Jackson who informed him of his arrest. Shamback was later released for his appearance in police court this morning on a bond of $1000 furnished by Abraham Beller for whom he is employed on a soda water delivery truck. The charges against Shamback will be those of possessing liquor with intent to sell, actual sale and reputation.

As the officers were getting the information gathered during the evening they arrived at the conclusion that Burton Armstrong of this city was involved in transporting liquor. Armstrong at that time was in the cell room visiting Mrs. Rose Spencer, who was awaiting the payment of her fine of $200 and costs imposed upon her for the violation of the liquor law in the police court Friday morning. County Detective Jackson called Armstrong to one side and notified him that he was under arrest and was to appear in police court this morning to answer to a charge of transporting liquor from Providence to Mrs. Spencer's and Rudolph Benson's homes. The officers conducting the raid were Federal Officers William H. Congdon and Stanton L. Briggs, Police Lieutenant Frank McLean, Patrolman Arthur Hurley and County Detective William E. Jackson.

SAYS TAILOR BIRD TAUGHT ADAM AND EVE HOW TO SEW

LIVERPOOL, Dec. 25, (AP)—Adam and Eve learned to sew by watching the tailor bird spin its nest, in the opinion of Sir John Bland Sutton, celebrated British surgeon.

Sir John explained that surgeons were still searching for the perfect stitching material for wounds and asserted that birds, plants, insects and animals had been studied with the view of finding the ideal substance.

"In India, Brazil, and Asia Minor, the mandibles of ants have been used from remote times as clips for closing the edges of wounds, which are pressed together and the gut applied by means of forceps," said Sir John. "The ant separates its mandibles for defense, and as the insect is brought to the wound it seizes the edges and remains fixed. The body of the ant, antiseptic by virtue of the formic acid normally present in ants, is divided with scissors, leaving the mandibles grasping the edges of the wound."

CHRISTMAS DINNERS AT THE LOCAL INSTITUTIONS

TAFTVILLE BEATS HARTFORD CRESCENTS IN SECOND OVERTIME BATTLE

The crowd that packed Parish hall to the doors Christmas afternoon saw the second ever time game between the Hartford Crescents and the Taftville Five in which the Taftville team ran wild in the extra five-minute period and tallied five baskets and a foul for eleven points, the Taftville team winning 37 to 26.

The game was one that kept the fans on edge every minute of the play. The score see-sawed back and forth during the greater part of the game, the first half ending with the score 18 to 14 in favor of Taftville. In the second half Mondi Normandin caged four baskets bringing the Taftville score to 26. The Hartford team played a hard game in this half and slowly overcame the lead of the Taftville club largely through the excellent work of Dutch Leonard who caged three baskets by long shots from difficult angles. With only ten seconds of play left in the game and the score standing at 26 to 24 in favor of Taftville, Dutch Leonard intercepted a pass to Jimmy Murphy and shot the ball to Cronin who was standing near the basket and Cronin flipped it through the hoop for the tying count just as the whistle blew.

In the overtime period Taftville played a brilliant passing game keeping the ball out of the hands of the Hartford team who were unable to score a single point in the five minutes of play. Taftville on the other hand dropped in five double counters and also caged a basket from the foul line.

There were several outstanding players on the Taftville team, Gauthier and Normandin playing a fast and smashing game in the forward berths while the others contributed largely in the good pass work T. Coleman caged the most spectacular basket of the game. For the Crescents Dutch Leonard was the star. The summary:

Taftville	G.	F.	Pts.
Gauthier rf	4	3	11
Mondi lf	6	0	12
E. Murphy c	2	0	4
T. Coleman rg	2	0	4
J. Murphy lg	3	0	6
	17	3	37

Hartford	G.	F.	Pts.
Silverman rf	1	2	4
Welch lf	3	1	7
Leonard c	3	1	7
Cronin rg	2	1	5
Friedman lf	1	1	3
	10	6	26

In the preliminary game the Taftville Celtics swamped Red Burelle's All Stars 56 to 20. The Celtics played a brilliant game and their pass-work completely baffled the Stars who were unable to make much of an impression.

LOUGHRAN GETS JUDGES' VERDICT OVER SOLOMON

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 25—(AP)—Tommy Loughran, Philadelphia, won the judges' decision over King Solomon, Panama, in a ten round bout here today.

Although he scaled 190 1-2 outweighing Loughran by 16 pounds, Solomon was completely outclassed. He landed hardly a clean blow up to the tenth round when, in a free hitting exchange, he jolted the Philadelphian with body punches.

Loughran won every round by superior boxing, but lacked the power to stagger Solomon. However, he opened cuts over both the Panaman's eyes in the first two rounds and kept them bleeding all through the fight.

In another 10 round bout Rocky Smith, Battle Creek, Mich., 161 1-2 pounds, won the judges decision over Bobby Marritt, of Baltimore, 158 pounds.

In the three six round preliminaries Eddie Leonard, Baltimore, 115 pounds, won the decision from Manny Waxler, New York, 112 pounds George Siddons, Philadelphia, 131 pounds, defeated Charles Barber, Baltimore 132 pounds, by a referees' decision, and Vincent Lopes, Philadelphia, 157 pounds, won the judges decision over Billy Conley, California, 150 pounds.

Elzear Rioux of Montreal knocked . it Yussell Pearistein of New York in the second round of the semi-finals. This pair also are heavyweights.

Tommy Fleurant of Biddeford won impressively over Jimmy (Kid) Rice of Portland in the main event at the exposition building, scoring four knock downs. BARBER TELLS WHY HE FINISHED LAST IN TOURNEY

In a letter to the sports editor, Frankie Barber intimates that he checked his hand in the last bowling tournament in order to land bigger stakes later on in the season. His letter follows:

Sports Editor:

In looking over Mr. Dugas' letter published in your paper recently I sure did get a great laugh and I'm still laughing as I write this. Poor Mr. Dugas, everybody is certainly sorry that he had his title taken away from him as the bowling champion of eastern Connecticut. He worked hard for it and to use his own words he did "beat everything in sight," and then had it rudely snatched from him it is sad, I shed tears of sympathy for him. But he is the first champion that I ever heard of bemoaning his fate How many times have we seen this same thing happen in other sports. How many champions, who have won their titles in tournaments, have been forced to defend them at later matches? Look at billiards, boxing, golf and a number of other sports where this thing has happened. Do we hear these champions sending up the cry for sympathy. No, they are real sportsmen.

What does a champion do after he has lost his title? He comes back with a challenge and goes after the crown again. Did Mr. Dugas? Again the answer is no. When I lost the title I challenged and won it back. Did Mr Dugas challenge Me? No. He was downhearted and would not roll for fun, money or marbles. Now if there is another tournament Mr. Dugas must be assured that if he wins the title no one can challenge him for it. Bighearted Chip. Well, I say if Mr. Dugas wins it again in a tournament he can keep it for a year and I'll give him a leather medal to go with it.

As for that tournament which he won and in which I finished last I will say that I didn't care a whole lot about winning the title being confident that I could easily get it back again along with some easy cash. It worked out just as I planned, I freely admit that I did not roll in my best form in that tournament. Whether it was due to nervous strain in competing with so formidable a foe as Mr Dugas or not I cannot say. I do not say that I deliberately laid down in my bowling but I did not take the interest in it that I would have under different conditions. All that season I had been clamoring for matches but every bowler ran up the distress signals as soon as I challenged and no a match could I get. Then the tournament came along and I knew that if I lost the title and the boys beat me a few strings I could get more profitable matches. I lost and I did.

Now if Mr. Dugas wants to get the title back he is welcome to name his terms and I'll accommodate him We've got $500 up in Danielson that he can get and all he has to do is to beat me in a match. I am agreeable to roll a home and home match, ten or twenty strings, or on neutral alleys or even on his own alleys. If he wants this money let him come and get it

Yours in sport,
FRANKIE BARBER

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

Southern California has 54 all-grass hole golf courses.

The women's national track and field championships of the A. A. U. will be held in Philadelphia on July 10 next.

It is estimated that about 15,000 coaches are engaging in tutoring the 1,000,000 boys playing football in the United States.

The total annual expenditure of American golfers for club dues, permits, balls, supplies and caddies is estimated at $225,000,000.

More than one hundred horses have been nominated for the annual running of the $65,000 Coffroth Handicap at Tia Juana next March—the richest race in the world.

Hank Gowdy, who takes charge of the Columbus American association team on January 1, has opened negotiations with a view to taking his Senators to Camp Benning, Georgia, for spring training.

"Gunboat" Smith, who a dozen years ago was reckoned among the topnotch American white heavyweight fighters, is now employed as a messenger by one of the Wall Street brokerage houses.

Eleanor Garatti, the California mermaid, has started training for the defence of her 50-yard free style title in the women's national swimming championships to be held at St. Augustine in February.

Los Angeles is filling with star golfers, both amateur and professional who are preparing to toss their clubs into the ring for the juicy $10,000 open tournament soon to be staged in the Southern California city.

As a result of careful checking it has been calculated that the average singles player in tennis who adheres to the volleying type of game will run approximately 2 3-4 miles in a closely contested five-set match.

If efforts to outlaw all race-track betting in Maryland should prove successful, the Maryland State treasury would be poorer to the extent of about $750,000 a year, which represents the amount of revenue received annually from the tracks at Pimlico, Laurel Bowie and Havre de Grace.

Throughout the world no other sporting events of any kind approach the attendance records at the famous Grand Prix of France or the Epsom Derby. The running of the big Derby in England yearly attracts a crowd in excess of $250,000, while as many as 400,000 have witnessed the great race at Longchamps.

While the year 1925 has set a high-water mark in American sports both in the quantity and calibre of the competition, as well as in the enormously increased attendance figures, the very greatness of the year is expected to produce a highly stimulating effect upon the many events scheduled for 1926.

HUSKIES HAVE BRIEF REST BEFORE GOING TO PASADENA

SEATTLE, Wash., Dec. 25—(AP)—Rested by their Christmas day relaxation from football, the University of Washington Huskies tomorrow will return to the stadium for two days of practice before departing Monday for Pasadena to meet the University of Alabama eleven in the Rose bowl New Year's day.

Coach Enoch Bagshaw promises that tomorrow's and Monday's scrimmages will be the stiffest since the Pacific coast conference season ended.

While the Husky lineup for the New Year's day game has not yet been fixed, it is likely that the backfield will remain unchanged, with George Guttormsen, Captain Elmer Tesreau George Wilson and Harold Patton on the job when the whistle blows.

Bagshaw has been switching his line during scrimmages the last week with several second string men fighting hard for places on the first team.

MOTHER QUEEN MARIE IS RUMANIA'S MOST NOTABLE

BUCHAREST, Dec. 25—(AP)—The World war shook many thrones, but it only served to strengthen that of Queen Marie, for to her people she is known not as the Queen of Rumania, but as "the Mother of Rumania."

Rumania's greatest woman among her subjects is something much more than symbol of sovereign power; she is the fountain-head of all charity, sympathy and help. Every act of benevolence, every movement for the betterment of the common lot, every life, seems to center in Queen Marie, inspiration for a nobler and higher life, seems to center in Queen Marie, aarie, an English-Russian woman whom fate and fortune placed at the head of a Latin race.

Before the war, her realm embraced less than seven million people. Today she rules over 17 million souls, but the word "rules" is hardly applicable to Queen Marie's occupancy. She is one of the most democratic and indulgent of reigning queens, just how democratic being shown in this manner:

The Associated Press correspondent sought an interview. Two minutes after he had presented his card at the Royal Palace, he was ushered into a small drawing-room, where he was informed that "Her Majesty is dressing for dinner, but she will be glad to receive you."

Scarcely had the words been spoken when Queen Marie, attired simply in a silk dressing-gown and sandals, with her long, golden hair flowing loosely over her shoulders, stepped forward.

"I know you will excuse me for appearing in this unconventional and 'unqueenly' way," she said smilingly to the astonished correspondent, "but I'm getting ready for dinner, and as I know you called specially to see me about my views for the American people, I did not want to send you away without a few minutes' friendly chat."

While King Ferdinand is the titular head of the Royal House of Rumania, Americans and others who have been to Rumania know that farle, by reason of her vital, dominant, dynamic personality and force of character, transcends the King, who is of a shy, liffident, negative temperament. In relation to the Queen, he is not the ruler, ut the ruled. In this respect Queen Marie inherits some of the positive, se'f-reliant, diminating qualities of her great ancestor, Queen Victoria.

"The King, poor man," the Queen told the correspondent, "is a bashful, timid soul, and I've got always to push him into the limelight."

The talents, brilliancy and versatility of Queen Marie equally make her one of the most notable world figures. One of four daughters of Prince Alfred, Duke of Edinburgh, and of Grand Duchess Marie Alexandrovna, only daughter of Czar Alexander II of Russia, she was endowed with the natural beauty, charm and grace. Although now past fifty years of age, she still is considered the most beautiful Queen in the world. American women are captivated by her soft, youthful regular features, and her unaffected, winning manner. She is at once a womanly Queen and a queenly woman. Many of her admirers have often said that her peculiar attributes of intellect, beauty, energy and popularity entitle her to be the Queen of England; that her talent is wasted on a Balkan country.

Queen Marie not only possesses all the natural endowments which Americans usually associate with a Queen, but she is remarkably gifted as a linguist, a writer and a poetess. She speaks French, German, Rumanian, Russian, Italian, Spanish and perfect English. She has written no less than ten books on history, poetry, philosophy, fiction and the fine arts. She also has achieved marked success in painting, embroidery, designing and furniture making.

Queen Marie has given the world two other Queens in the persons of her daughters, and is prepared to offer a third. They are Queen Marie of Jugo-Slavia wife of King Alexander, and Queen Elizabeth of Greece, who, however, lost her crown in the revolution of 1924 which threw her young husband, King George, off the throne. The third prospective "Queen" is Marie's beautiful sixteen-year-old daughter, Ileana.

The Rumanian Queen also is prepared to offer in marriage as a future "King" her youngest son, Prince Nicholas, who is a graduate of Oxford University and who is just past 22. Her eldest son, Prince Carol, already has married Princess Helen of Greece, who, if the Rumanian dynasty lasts, will doubtless one day succeed King Ferdinand and the Queen herself.

Thus this democratic and prolific "Maker of Kings and Queens" has earned the soubriquet of the "Mother-in-Law of Europe."

Queen Marie loves the demonstrative homage of crowds, the compliments of rulers and statesmen, the admiration of people of other lands who have met her or know of her works. But she is at heart a democrat, without ostentation or pretense.

NEW GOLD CREEKS ARE FOUND IN THE INTERIOR OF ALASKA

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, Dec. 25—(AP)—Several new "pay" creeks, skimmed over when men were seeking a repetition of the Dawson days, have been discovered in the season just closed.

Just how rich are some of the finds in a mystery for aside from instances where the discoverer wants to attract capital to develop his ground, every one is keep mum. Unlike the old times, when a half-dollar pan would start a stampede, the turning up of medium-grade pay now attracts little attention.

One discovery that is being watched with keen interest is in the Fairview district, 75 miles west of the Alaska railroad. There Matt Hunger, after prospecting the region for five years, struck ground running from 50 cents to $1.00 a pan. The gold was discovered at a depth of 14 feet.

On Pass creek, values running to $1.80 a yard were uncovered, and approximately the same values were found on Cottonwood creek.

Another district, where for 20 years operations have been conducted, is the Valdez creek region, where last summer pay running $3 to the pan was found by "Smiling Ole." A mild stampede followed.

It is predicted that several new districts will be brought into production next summer and placer mining reinstated as the chief industry of interior Alaska.

GHOSTS OF CZARISTIC FAMILY HAUNT SOVIET MINISTER

WARSAW, Dec. 25 (AP)—Volkoff Soviet minister to Warsaw, and his wife are having a hard time breaking into Warsaw's diplomatic society because of his alleged participation in the murder of the Romanoffs.

At first, the Polish government was unwilling to accept Volkoff, but when the Soviet officials denied the minister's hands were bloody he was received.

The book of Judge Sokoloff, who investigated the murder, however, included the photograph of a document, alleged to have been signed to Volkoff, asking for gasoline to burn the bodies of the czaristic family. It became difficult for diplomatists and their wives to ignore this.

Many of the wives declined to meet Madame Volkoff and the matter became the subject of diplomatic representations. At least one Scandinavian government offered apologies to Moscow for the snubbing given Madame Volkoff by the wife of its minister.

Madame Volkoff left Warsaw temporarily and upon her return apparently renounced her social ambitions, with the result that the boycott against her has been relaxed somewhat.

UTAH PINE NUTS USED TO RE-FOREST PERSIAN FIELDS

OGDEN, Utah, Dec. 25 (AP)—Twenty five cents' worth of pine nuts purchased three years ago from a local fruit store are helping re-forest Persia.

Three years ago H Rieben, at Tabriz, wrote F. S. Baker, of the forest service headquarters, asking for tree seeds. He was experimenting to find a species adapted for Persia.

Baker had no seed on hand, but he went to a neighboring fruit store and bought 25 cents' worth of pine nuts, sent them to Rieben and gorget the matter.

Recently, he received another letter from Rieben reporting that the seed had thrived and asking more of the same variety.

Mr. Baker has invested in another 25 cents and the fruit store product is on its way to Tabriz.

POLICE DOG'S REPUTATION FOR CATCHING CROOKS CRITICIZED

BERLIN, Dec. 24 (AP)—Konrad Most, of the Union of Shepard Dog Owners of Eisenach, declares the German police dog would never attain the results it does if deprived of the officer leading it. He cited 28 tests before police authorities and scientific experts in which the dogs failed in their tasks when their leaders were absent.

Realization of the dog's ultimate inadequacy in this respect led the German army command to interdict its further employment during war.

ECHOES FROM THE LODGE ROOMS

LADIES OF MACCABEES

The ladies of the Maccabees, meeting in a special convention in Detroit accepted the proposal extended by A. W. Frye, supreme commander of the Maccabees, to merge the two societies. Discussion of the terms of the merger lasted four days and it finally passed by a two thirds majority, 182 to 98.

The two Maccabee societies, one women and the other men, have hitherto had no official connection though operating under similar names and with similar objects for more than 30 years. When the merger is carried out they will be one of the strongest fraternal benefit associations on the continent, with more than 350 000 members, assets of over $20,000,000, and fully established men's, women's and children's departments.

According to the terms of the merger, the assets of both societies will be combined and the rates paid by members of the Ladies of the Maccabees will be adjusted to the same basis as the men, based on the American Experience mortality table with 3 1-2 per cent interest assumption. In the majority of cases the increase will be small, according to W. P. Coler, actuary for the Maccabees, averaging from 13 cents to 60 cents per month, which will be reduced by the annual dividends paid to all holders of Maccabee certificates.

Headquarters of the new organization will be located in the new $2,500,000 Maccabee home office building which is now being erected in Detroit. Women's lodges will keep their own indentity, meeting separately from the men's local branches, and will retain their own ritual. Women will also have full proportionate representation in the supreme review the society's governing body, and will be on a basis of absolute equality with the men, with full rights and privileges.

The Maccabees will hold a special convention in Detroit early in January to officially ratify the merger, which will be carried out as soon as it receives the approval of the Michigan Insurance department. Mrs. Frances E. Burns, who has been great commander of the ladies of the Maccabees since 1896 and is one of the pioneer women fraternalists in America, will occupy a high executive position in the society.

A NEW PROCESS THAT MAY RESULT IN USE OF OLD OIL

AUBURN, Dec. 25 (AP)—Demonstrations here indicate that old crankcase oil of automobiles which has been regarded fit for nothing may be reclaimed and used again.

Dr. C. D. Miller, who is engaged in research work in the department of agricultural engineering of the Agricultural College of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, has succeeded in working out a method for reclaiming or laundering old oil at a cost estimated by him at less than five cents a gallon.

In studying the problem, Dr. Miller found that oil does not "wear out" by use in a crankcase, and neither does it change its composition. Some losses occur mechanically and by oxidation, but the oil itself remains substantially the same as it was before used. It is rendered unfit for service by contamination with other substances, such as carbon and other solids, and certain constituents of gasoline.

The removal of these substances is all that is required for its successful reclamation. This can be done by pouring the oil into a tank, adding a washing powder, blowing steam through it for about three hours, allowing it to settle, and then drawing off the oil from the top, leaving the foreign substances, both solid and liquid, in the bottom.

When treated this way the steam is partly condensed, dissolving the washing powder, which has the property of loading down the carbon and other solid particles in the oil with a film of the solution, causing them to coagulate somewhat as casein coagulates in milk when it curdles. This causes the solid particles to settle to the bottom of the container, forming a layer of sludge or muck between the oil and the solution. The uncondensed portion of the steam carries the gasoline away with it as vapor.

On the efficiency of this method, Dr. Miller says that four quarts of oil as it is drawn ordinarily from a crankcase should return three quarts of oil as good as new.

While the practical use of this discovery remains to be determined, Dr. Miller predicts that many garages and service stations will take advantage of it.

NEW TYPE OF MOVIE PLAYS IS PLANNED BY PRODUCER

NEW YORK, Dec. 25 (AP)—Vivid melodrama, broad comedy and historical plays all are wanted by the American movie-going public, in the opinion of Jesse L. Lasky, and next year the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation will spend $22,000,000 in meeting this demand.

A number of the photoplays will be of the "superspecial" class and each will present what Mr. Lasky termed a "distinct individuality," accomplished through the selection of authors, scenarios, directors and actors.

For instance, Theadore Roosevelt and the soldiers who followed him in the Spanish-American war will be pictured in The Rough Riders. Herman Hagedorn, one of Roosevelt's biographers, has been selected to write the scenario. An actor, yet unknown to the public, has been studying the principal role several months and will appear before directors of the Roosevelt Memorial Association for approval before work on the picture begins.

Then there is Florenz Ziegfeld who will enter the movies to produce a picture called Glorifying the American Girl. Rex Beach is writing the scenario and many of the Ziegfeld beauties will appear. Esther Ralston will have the leading role.

Old Ironsides will be the title of a photoplay centering around the Constitution, now rotting away in Charlestown harbor, and a romance of Stephen Decatur. Mr. Lasky credited Secretary Wilbur as having originated the idea for this production and said hitherto unpublished historical information has been supplied by the navy department.

Many years ago, the producer read Marie Correlli's Sorrows of Satan. Negotiations for the picture rights were begun but it was not until after the author's death that the book was obtained for D. W. Griffith to produce.

Among other pictured will be New York, written by Sinclair Lewis; Aloma of the South Seas, which Gilda Gray has been making in Porto Rico; The Greatest Sho on Earth, written by Monte Katterjohn about the life of P. T. Barnum; Barrie's A Kiss for Cinderella, for Betty Bronson, and Untamed written by Fannie Hurst for Gloria Swanson.

Many things were considered in deciding upon the program of pictures, which will total 75. Among them were the public's taste, current fiction and developments, the directors and "stars" on hand and "locations."

"There is no need to make a picture if the public doesn't want it," said Mr. Lasky. "Fiction and developments of the day are excellent guides in learning this taste and providing scenario material. Directors have their special capabilities and stars have a way of wanting to make certain pictures and of being unwilling to play in others."

FIRE-WALKING CEREMONY STILL MYSTERY TO ALL OBSERVERS

PAPETT, Tahiti, Dec. 25 (AP)—Despite investigations of competent observers, the famous fire-walking ceremony still remains a secret of a small company of natives in the island of Raiatea.

The ceremony was given on this island recently for the first time in many years and outsiders were not excluded from witnessing any stage of the preparation of the fire pit.

When the proper time comes and the celebrants pass through the fire, any bystander asking permission may go through beside them without discomfort.

Outsiders who have passed through the fire say they felt no sensation of heat except on the face, although, when standing outside, the radiation made the pit difficult to approach.

Those trying to solve the mystery have pulled out a large stone from the pit while the ceremony was in progress and thrown it into a pail of water. The water would rise up in steam. Some also have tried crawling to the edge of the pit and touching one of the white stones with the finger. They were rewarded with ugly burns.

Scientists who have seen the fire-walking have propounded a number of theories, but practical tests always failed to establish such explanations.

The ceremony, harking back to heathen times and the workship of the old gods, is frowned on by the missionaries and the Christians among the natives. Hence it is seldom performed, even in Raiatea, the place of its origin.

TALL BUILDINGS SAFER THAN LOW DURING EARTHQUAKE

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Cal., Dec. 25—Tall steel buildings are safer than structures of 100 feet in height during earthquakes, in the opinion of Dr. Bailey Willis, professor emeritus of Geology at Stanford, and seismologist.

This view, contrary to the general conception of the layman, is supported by Dr. Willis on the theory that the period of swing in a building of more than 200 feet does not coincide with the earthquake's period of swing, and, hence, the inertia of the building mass stops jerking when the theoretical pendulums pass.

A building 100 feet high swings with the earthquake and this receives the maximum jerk when the subterranean pendulum changes its swing, he said.

"There is almost no danger in the ordinary light dwelling house unless the chimney comes through the roof," Dr. Willis continued. "The most dangerous place is on the outer edge of the sidewalk and the adjoining part of the street, where shore fronts and heavy cornices will strike."

The safest places are in doorways and against walls, he said.

Pa Did It

The train of cars that Santa brought is out of kilter now;
While pa was showin' how they went he broke the spring somehow.
They used to run around a track—at least they did when he Would let me take them in my hands an'
wind 'em with a key.
I could 'a had some fun with 'em, if only
they would go.
But gee! I never had a chance, for pa enjoyed 'em so.

The automobile that I got that ran around the floor
Was lots of fun when it was new, but it won't go no more.
Pa wound it up for Uncle Jim to show him how it went,
And when those two got through with it
the runnin' gear was bent.
And now it doesn't go at all. I mustn't grumble, though,
'Cause while it was in shape to run my pa
enjoyed it so.

I've got my blocks as good as new, my mits are perfect yet;
Although the snow is in the ground I haven't got 'em wet.
I've taken care of everything that Santa brought to me,
Except the toys that run about when wound up with a key.
But next year you can bet I won't make any such mistake;
I'm going to ask for toys an' things that my pa cannot break.

Heart of Oak

Lean close and set thine ear against the bark;
Then tell me what faint, murmurous
sounds are heard,
Hath not the oak stored up the song of bird,
Whisper of wind and rain-lisp? Ay, and hark!
The shadowy elves that fret the summer
dark,
With clash of horny winglets swiftly
whirred,
Hear'st thou not them, with myriad noises, blurred,
Yet well defined if one but shrewdly
mark?
And thou,—When thy Familiar setteth ear
Into thy bosom doth he note the same
Sweet concord of harmonious sounds within?
Or is all hushed in hollow silence drear?
Ah't be, pray Heaven to save thee from thy shame
Ere thy whole gould be slain by cankerous sin.
—Charles Henry Luders.

THE SOCIAL CORNER

A SMALL UNKINDNESS IS A GREAT OFFENSE

SOCIAL CORNER POETRY
Knit, Knit, Knit

Dear grandmother sat in her old rocking chair.
The fire burned bright and the day shone fair,
Knit, knit, knit.
Her eyes they were dim and her fingers were worn,
But she was well furnished with needles and yarn.
And well she did know how the seams all to turn—
Knit, knit, knit.

The threads of her stocking most aptly did show
How round life's little space our busy threads go
Knit, knit, knit.
And the stitches would drop as life's stitches will.
But she took them all up with patience and skill,
To show how by doing our work will them still.
Knit, knit, knit.

She took me beside her, her little grandchild.
And asked me to learn, in accents so mild.
Knit, knit, knit.
I deemed it a pleasure to stand by her knee.
The ups and downs of the stitches to see.
And how grew the stocking as nice as could be.
Knit, knit, knit.

Young women, if you hope to be wives.
For many a care you will have in your lives.
Knit, knit, knit.
Would your children you keep so nice and so clean.
Would you save their bare knees from frostbites so keen.
Then, Oh, never believe that knitting is mean.
Knit, knit, knit.

PLANNING A VACATION.

Dear Sisters: I receive so much help from the Social Corner, I would like to help others.

I often hear mothers wishing that they could go on a vacation during the summer, but can not afford to do so.

This is how I manage. My husband is paid by the hour, so his pay envelope always contains some silver plus one bills; for instance, $32.80 or $95.10. Well, I have a box I call vacation box. I drop all the silver out of each pay in this box, regardless of whether it 5 cents or 25 cents. We do not miss it, and last summer I had enough saved to rent a lovely little cottage for 10 days at a lake and near a park. We bathed, fished, danced, and rested and enjoyed ourselves here so much, and the best part of it, we have a new grip on life, since we came back home.

Now we're having a lot of fun planning for next summer. Camping is cheaper, but I have a young baby and wanted the convenience of a house. We had a wonderful time. I hope other poor families can have a good rest and loss of fun the same way.

TEACHING CHILDREN.

Dear Cornerites: I wonder if other mothers have any trouble getting their children to eat the cereals that are so good for them? I did have, until I struck upon this plan: I put a small amount of pink fruit coloring in cream of wheat, or farina, also a few drops of vanilla flavoring, and they usually call for a second bowlful. In some of the coarser foods I put a sprinkle of cinnamon, or nutmeg, or chocolate, and it's delicious with cream and sugar. I don't buy pure cream, can't afford it, so I set Jersey milk and mix it up well, and it's nice and creamy. My children simply refused oatmeal until I tried cooking it rather thick (I stir a little Ralstons or cornmeal in, too) and pouring it into a baking powder [illegible] or coffee can, and let it stand until the next day, then slice, roll in flour or fry in a little butter and lard. I serve brown sugar syrup with it and I can't fill up their plates fast enough.

My children are all being brought up to help mother. Little daughter is just seven, and you'd be surprised to see how nicely she can wash dishes, and clean the sink, and put everything away. She also sets the table for mother every evening, and she can iron baby sister's little dresses nearly as well as mother can. And how I praise her, and she'd do almost anything, if mother only asks her instead of tell her. I have found that rule works with everyone; if we only will ask instead of commanding or demanding, and show a little appreciation; how willingly people will do things for us. Well I must bring this to a close, for it's way too long now. I want to thank you for the many helpful suggestions and recipes I have received from the Corner. Best New Year's wishes.

HANDKERCHIEFS

Dear Sisters: The Corner breathes such a spirit of goodwill and a desire to help others is doing a splendid work —I feel like adding my mite, as I have never seen any such suggestion, as I wish to contribute.

There are so many splendid ways to economize, but if this will help it will then it is doubly worth while—it saves both money and health. See that your children are provided daily with a clean handkerchief, and taught to use it early in life. The need of this was emphasized by my experience as a teacher. If mothers could see how frequently their children are embarrassed by the lack of a handkerchief, they would realize the importance of the "hanky" and see to it.

When my children are little tots, I fasten their handkerchief to them by means of two small safety pins joined by a piece of narrow elastic; the one pin fastens the clean "hanky" the other pinned to the pocket or cuff. It is surprising how they like to use their hanky, and will take care of themselves in this way even when they are babies. When old enough for school, their habit of covering coughs and sneezes with their handkerchief is well established. Their teachers surely appreciate it, and if all children would cover coughs and sneezes our sick list and death rate could be cut down considerably. The doctor bills would also be materially reduced.

Another suggestion is to provide napkins for all meals—napkins are a necessity and necessary to proper eating habits. The napkins may be smaller than a dinner napkin, to save laundry—they can be made from old table linen, or what not—but provide a napkin of some kind, the important thing is to establish the habit of using the napkin—it will be proper training for life. Also teach the child to chew his food with his mouth closed. These little habits cling and tell the world whether your child has been raised or "just growed up."

I hope this may be the means of helping some mother. Many of my friends have adopted my method of fastening the handkerchief to the little ones, and all have been so pleased with the result.

KEEPING UP THE MONTHLY LETTER

Dear Editor and Sisters: Well it is a month since I wrote a letter to the Corner so I guess I had better get a hustle on. Well its Christmas time and the sisters around here are all busy at this time of year, helping Santa Claus.

I am sending a poem by Albert M. Ahern, that I like.

The Thing That Counts

When you come to the end of the long, long trail,
And your hunting and trapping days are gone,
When your step grows weak and your sinews fail,
And its time to answer the great last call,
It isn't the size of the cabin you've built,
Nor what you have won in pelts or fame.
The thing that counts is the right to [illegible]
I have kept the faith—I have played the game.

Will close now wishing you all sisters and editor a happy New Year.

FOR-GET-ME-NOT.

WHERE ARE SISTERS WHO DO NOT WRITE?

Dear Social Corner Sisters and Editor: Just a few lines to let you know that I am amongst the living, although I am very tired. I have been working ever since the first week of last June and you see that I was so busy that when I came home I was so tired I could not write. You know sisters that when I was at home all the time I used to do my share of writing. But I see there are a lot of sisters that do not work in the mill and they do not write either, what can be the matter with them! There was a sister who asked me last September if I had been to Canada. I said no, but I wished I had been in Maine to see Balsam Fir.

We had a nice little snow storm this morning, which made it look very much like Christmas. The company here are having a Christmas for all their help and children. The tree is very pretty. We call it the Atwood Christmas tree.

Primrose, Black Eyed Susie and Rural Aunty: I have received your cards and thanks very much. You will hear from me soon.

Gipsy Wanda: I hope you are a good waiter. I know you are a good sport, anyhow.

Lonesome: How are you? I hope you are all well.

Black Eyed Susie: I do not know when I will get to Norwich. When I do go I will bring you a box of home made fudge.

A happy New Year to all the sisters and editor is the wish of

ROSY POSY.

REACHING THE HEART

Dear Social Corner Members: Wonder if I might pass on a firm conviction that the old adage, The way to man's heart is through his stomach, is literally true.

Have learn'd the following through experience: Don't tell husband your troubles or ask him to do any odd chore until he has had a good hot meal and his smoke. When young son refuses to pick up his toys and quarrels with his playmates give him his lunch and see how readily he responds. When toddler cries and whines, give him a cup of milk and a cracker, resting in his high-chair while eating, and, unless he is ill, he too will smile good naturedly. Encourage husband to bring home business associates to dinner, or serve a simple lunch at an occasional "sing" card game for them and see how it is appreciated. Give son's playmates a simple party once in a while and watch the resulting happiness. Make a cup of tea for friend caller and notice how she will relax and enjoy her visit.

It is not at all necessary to be gourmets to believe in the above ideas —but mothers! Think of the old adage and try it. Sincerely,

DORCAS.

CLEANING UP FOR COMPANY

Dear Social Corner Members: Don't be frightened if I call. I know it's been a long time. I have no excuse to make, just negligence, that's all. I have been interested in all the letters, especially Norma's of two weeks ago. About homes. It reminded me of one time. I believe my first Social Corner gathering, when I was cleaning up extra. Great Grandma came the night before. And she said "Why fuss so if they come to see you they won't see the dirt, but if they come to see the dirt let them find it." I have thought of that many times since. Since then I have done differently. I have come to the conclusion that it does not pay to do too much extra work before such times, for we all know it has to be all done over afterward. If these same people came to call unexpectedly and found me just as I live, it wouldn't disturb me any. Why fuss so if they all come together! I never make apologies. I believe that's like telling them to look around to see what they can see. You tell a child not to do a thing and then their mind is attracted. We are all children grown up.

This is a very busy season of the year. I hope you all had a merry Christmas and I wish you all a very happy, prosperous New Year. My sympathy goes out to all the bereaved ones and wish God's blessing on all the sick and shut in ones. A good time for us all to count our blessings, realize what God has done for us, and see what more we can do for Him in the future.

So many members have been called, we little know who will be the next. So let us be ready to answer to our name when He calls and be ready to meet our God. Greetings from

SCHOOL LUNCHES

Dear Editor and Members of the Social Corner: One of the most important items to the housewife with children is to plan their lunch boxes for school. I have found that it is better to put up a tasty lunch for the children who may have nine of ten blocks to walk home and scarcely time to eat properly.

My children are given an interest in planning their daily lunches and have been taught the value of food calories to balance the diet properly. They, themselves, take the responsibility of packing their lunches. One of them is eight years old, the other ten.

On a small shelf things for the lunch are always kept. We keep dates, figs, cheese, nuts, lettuce, celery and salad dressing on hand. Hard boiled eggs, combined with salad dressing, is a good combination on whole wheat bread. Pickles and rich pastries should be eliminated from the children's lunch box. My youngsters seldom ask for them as they are given plenty of fresh fruits, such as apples or oranges; sponge cake, oatmeal cookies or gingerbread supply the pastry. Occasionally a chocolate bar is added as this gives a pleasant change. A custard is a nice addition and if a thermos bottle is carried hot cocoa or cold milk are welcome.

My two children enjoy preparing their lunches as well as eating them. Hope this letter may be helpful to some mother perplexed over the lunch box problem.

Hope all the members had a merry Christmas and will have a happy New Year.

GATHERING ARRANGED BY CLUB No. 4

Dear Editor and Friends: The Putnam and Pomfret members of Club No. 4, have arranged for a Social Corner gathering, Thursday, December 30th, at the Salvation Army rooms, 22 Union street, Putnam. All members of the Corner are cordially invited. Please bring dishes and food as usual and come prepared to respond to the roll call with a quotation or remarks in keeping with the passing of the old year and the coming of the new.

ANOTHER WAY TO SAVE

Dear Editor and Social Corner: I am much interested in the Social Corner and get so much real good out of it that I would like to send along my suggestion for saving also.

Though I am just 19, I have kept house since the age of twelve, my mother dying then left me to keep house, and I surely do enjoy it now.

First of all, I have a certain amount on which to set my table, and out of this amount which is $12 for four grown people, I see how much I can save. It is indeed a great pleasure to me to watch my pennies grow into dollars.

I obtained a small bank from one of our banks and every day without fail I drop change into it. It is such a surprise when I take it down to be opened at the end of each week to know what it contains.

In this way of saving you aren't going to think that you can take the pennies out of your bank to pay the paper boy or lots of other things as we can't open it ourselves.

Just the other day a friend of mine said, "I only wish I had a few cents of my very own, I would buy that book."

I hope other readers enjoy reading the Corner as I do and also hope they will benefit by this suggestion of a way of saving. I had saved about $50 by Christmas time.

May I come again with some cake receipts? Best wishes to all for a Happy New Year.

REGRETS PASSING OF MEMBERS

Dear Social Sisters: It is a long time since I have written so will get busy. Another year has nearly passed, and oh so quickly.

A number of our older members have been called to the Great Beyond. I am sure, those who are left to mourn their loss have the sympathy of all the sisters left. It was so sorry to hear of Anna Mell's death. I was very fond of her. She was the first one I had the pleasure of meeting in the Corner gathering which was held at Olga's and we kept up the friendship. Last time I saw her, was at Club No. 1's meeting in Willimantic.

Sorry to hear Dom Pedro does not get along as well as she would wish.

Scottie: I missed you the other night at the roll call. I am afraid you are getting to be a slacker. I really hope not. I was so pleased you called that Sunday night. We both enjoyed the call so much. Shut-ins like to have callers; it helps to shorten the long evenings.

Christmas is almost here again. I suppose Santa Claus is very busy getting his presents ready. I hope you all have been good girls so he will call on you.

Last Saturday White Dawn invited me to go with them shopping in Providence. Although the stores were filled to the doors we had a good time. I shall never forget it. Also a fine time coming home. Reaching home I found everything all right, so it did not take away all pleasure.

I want to wish all a merry Christmas and a very happy New Year.

Yours for the Corner,

UECIA. (Club No. 2.)

GREETINGS FROM CRIMSON RAMBLER

Dear Corner Friends: Hope you all had a nice Christmas. I sure did and oh! so many kind remembrances, and I wish to thank all who sent me so many gifts, letters, cards and booklets.

What nice poetry we are having lately in the corner. Hope the different writers will keep their ends up for I think it is much appreciated by the sisters. I for one, enjoy every piece of the poetry.

Maple Leaf: What has become of you. Fully expected to see you are this.

Dorna: I hear of you once in a while out speeding in your new car. Mind the new regulations or may be you will be the recipient of a red tag. Do you understand what I mean? What did you do to (pretty) that night they didn't blow in till midnight?

Linnette: Why so silent? Surely thought when you became a member of Club No. 3 we would hear more frequently from you. Don't let your pen get rusty. Have you had your hair bobbed yet?

Maine Lover: I sure was sorely grieved to hear of your great loss of your loved one. You have may heartfelt sympathy. Also sorry to hear of the passing away of L. H. K.

Savilla: Was glad to see you. Sorry our chat was so short but will do better next time as we were both in such a hurry.

J. E. T.: Wish you could see me now as I have a new position. I am in the black cat business. What do you think of that? Wishing all a happy New Year.

CRIMSON RAMBLER.

PARENTS' RESPONSIBILITY

Dear Corner Friends: One day word reached one of the mothers in my neighborhood that the teacher of her nine-year-old wished to see her. She went. It developed, during the conversation between mother and teacher that the nine-year-old was falling behind in his work. The mother, disappointed, promised to do what she could to help and the teacher was only too glad to cooperate.

This experience led the writer to a full realization of what the mothers' duties are in regard to the shool children in the home. The schools are a wonderful help in our civilization and whatever a mother can do to promote, among her children, a love and respect for the whole school system should be very willingly done.

First of all teach these youngsters punctuality and regularity in their school attendance. See that they have good food, good clothes (comfortable and durable) regular eating and sleeping and above all early retiring. There are endless duties connected with parenthood and especially with motherhood but it seems most important that our children be given a practical training and a good education. There is so much in this world that must be faced courageously and surely no one is better fitted than one who has a careful training which enables him to have those things we need most. We can leave our children no richer heritage than a sound idea of family life, a love and respect for good, a training and an education.

Think, mothers, how much does this cost? Not much. Very little compared to motor cars, fine furniture, beautiful clothes, costly appearances. Compare the worth of the one with the other. Which would you rather have? Remember that we can't do this job of raising our children over again. It is life. We must make the best we can of the material given us.

The season's greetings.

ANDIETTA.

BUDGET FAMILY FUNDS

Dear Social Corner Members: There are a great many housewives who compare every other family with their own. Are you one of the "If So-and-So can have this or that, we certainly can too?" "I'm sure that Tom and Bill earn no more than my Jill and if their wives can have electric washers and sewing machines, I don't see why I shouldn't. And if Mr. and Mrs. Jack can have the latest model of car on his salary, we surely can have one too."

Trying to keep up with someone else is bad policy; anyway one can not compare merely from outside observation. It is not always what Jim, Tom or Jack earn which counts; it's what and how Mrs. Jim plans and saves that gets all the modern things for her house, as well as the new car. And Mrs. Jim may not be aware that her neighbor paid for her sewing machine by making children's clothes for some of her neighbors and that washing blankets for others helped pay for the new washer.

First of all, every family should have a budget and after that a checking account in a local bank. Loose money in your pocket book is a ready invitation to spend. And then remember that it's easy enough to make a budget but it's no good if put aside with a promise that you will use it next month or next year. If one sets aside a definite sum for everything which must be paid and then sticks to it, the danger of being "broke" before pay day is averted.

I think too that charge accounts are most satisfactory, if handled intelligently. I do not mean buying clothing on the installment plan, but if you know certain bills are due each month, you can plan to meet them. And with the charge account one can take advantage of many reductions and very often a better selection.

I am most grateful for the daily helps I receive from the Corner and hope that I may have said something which will help to establish something a reliable firm of Mr. and Mrs. Average Family.

A happy New Year to all.

MARTHA.

A Flea's Idea of a Home' Sweet Home

Two little fleas together sat
And one to the other said,
I have no place to hang my hat
Since my old dog is dead!

I've traveled this world from place to place
And further will I roam
But the first darn dog that shows his face
Will be my home sweet home.

GET UP AND DO.

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Wishing and longing are not enough, even praying is not enough. Faith without work is dead, we are told, and unless we live our creed mere believing will do no good. God wants earnest thoughts, words and deeds. First think the good, then speak and act it. Do not sit with folded hands idly wishing to lead a useful life. Wishing is very good as far as it goes, but the trouble is it often ends in wishing. The wish is fruitless that is not followed by the deed.

Give me heart that is pure and true,
Free from all selfish thought.
Grant me a power in the world to do
That I live not for nought.
As all the thoughts of our heart
Are open to God's view,
How careful we should be
To have them pure and true.

The season's greetings from

PAULA.

THE OLD PEOPLE

Dear Social Corner Members and Editor: So many of your splendid suggestions give one a little different viewpoint on certain subjects that had never occurred to be before.

I wonder how many of us have thought of our attitude toward the aged?

Perhaps an unconscious one.

We hear so much these days about children, and young people, having no respect for their elders. All too true in many cases. But are we not responsible for that very attitude ourselves?

In almost every family do we not hear remarks such as these:

"Yes, auntie is coming for a visit next week, and how I dread it, you know she is so old and crabby," or "John's mother is so hard to please, you see it's because she is old, and of course, peevish," or "Grandpa is getting old, he is really a nuisance, puttering around all the time," until the children think that old people are "crabby," "peevish" and a nuisance, and treat them accordingly.

And then we blame the young people for the very condition we have in a great measure, brought about ourselves.

I make a plea for the aged, those in the sunset time of life.

If we ourselves will speak kindly of them, we will find that the young people will do the same.

For children are only imitators after all!

When Terror Came

Fear is splendid for the wit,
Because it puts an edge on it.
—Peter Rabbit.

Terror the Goshawk arrived in the Green Forest the day after Christmas. Wasn't it nice that he didn't arrive on Christmas Day? There was a snow storm the day after Christmas, and Jumper the Hare is sure that Terror came with it. It wasn't until the day after that that Jumper saw Terror, but as Terror is a bird of the day, not of the night like Hooty the Owl, Jumper is sure that he must have come with that storm. Anyway, he was there in the Green Forest, and how he came made no real difference.

Jumper became aware of Terror when his long ears caught the sound of winds rushing through the air. It was a sound Jumper recognized, and he didn't stop even to look over his shoulder. He simply jumped to one side behind a little hemlock tree, and he wasn't one second too soon. A great bird swept past and alighted on the top of a tall stub of a tree. Jumper's heart seemed to skip a beat as he saw who it was.

"Terror the Goshawk!" he exclaimed under his breath. "I did hope that that fellow would stay up north this winter. It must be that food is scarce up there. I wonder if Mrs. Grouse knows he is here. If she doesn't she ought to be told right away. Yes sir, she ought to be told right away. Terror likes Hare altogether too well, but he likes Grouse better. At least I have been told that Grouse is his favorite food, and when he can get Grouse no one else need worry very much. He hasn't found her yet, I guess, or he wouldn't have tried for me just now. I wonder where Mrs. Grouse is? For her own sake and the sake of every member of her family she ought to know that Terror is here."

Jumper kept under the hemlocks where Terror could not get at him, and after a bit Terror flew away. Then Jumper came out and at once started to look for Mrs. Grouse. On the way he caught a glimpse of Whitefoot the Wood Mouse.

"Wait a minute Whitefoot," cried Jumper.

Whitefoot hesitated, started to run, thought better of it, started again, and finally stopped with just his head out of his hole. "Wha-what is it?" he asked in a squeaky little voice.

"Terror the Goshawk is here," said Jumper.

"Oh, dear!" cried Whitefoot. "Oh dear me! As if I didn't have troubles enough without having to watch out for that dreadful fellow. Oh, dear!"

"I thought you would like to know it," said Jumper.

"Thank you. Of course. Thank you ever so much," squeaked Whitefoot, and disappeared.

"What were you frightening Whitefoot with?" demanded Chatterer the Red Squirrel from a neighboring tree. "You ought to be ashamed of yourself to scare a little fellow like that."

"I was just telling him some news that I thought he ought to know," replied Jumper.

"What news?" demanded Chatterer suspiciously.

"I told him that Terror the Goshawk has come," replied Jumper.

A look of fear flashed in Chatterer's eyes and he hastily looked this way and that way. "I don't believe it," he declared. Then he hastily looked all about again. But if Chatterer didn't believe it he took great care not to make any noise, and as Jumper went on his way he grinned, as he no longer heard Chatterer's voice ringing through the Green Forest.

He passed the news to Happy Jack the Gray Squirrel, and Happy Jack behaved much as his small cousin Chatterer had. But he thought he looked everywhere he could think of Jumper couldn't find Mrs. Grouse or any of her family.

"I hope nothing has happened to them," said Jumper to himself.

GERMANS DISPLEASED BY TREATMENT OF ITALIANS

ROME, Dec. 25—Reports from Berlin that the German press is displaying dissatisfaction at the treatment of Germany speaking inhabitants of South Tyrol by the Italian authorities have given rise to an outbreak of violent anti-German sentiment in Rome. The extreme Fascist newspaper Impero publishes a long leading editorial entitled: "Our Instinctive Racial Enemy," in which it outlines the Italian policy to keep control of South Tyrol in perpetuity and regards Brenner Pass as a sacred natural boundary.

The article, which is published less than a week ago after ratification by the chamber of treaty of commerce with Germany, warns Italians against the renewed activities of Germans in the world of commerce and declares categorically that Italy "will never play second fiddle to Germany again."

The Impero explains that there was some excuse for Italy's taking second place to Germany when Italy was a secondary power, but now, it asserts, Italy as a power of the first order can no longer entertain the idea of being Germany's lieutenant.

The paper goes on to say that Italy's policy toward Germany must embrace the following considerations: First, that Germany shall be bound to expiate her criminal folly until she has fully repaired the immense damage she has caused.

Second, That Germany may never aspire to the possession of colonies—if there be land for colonization it will be for Italy; third, that Brenner Pass must be irrevocably Italian—on this point Italy can admit of no discussion; fourth, that Austria must be prevented from joining Germany as against Italy.

The Impero reports the organization of a movement by Signor Marinetti, futurist artist, called "The Brenner Guard."

First, the divinity of Italy.

Second, the ancient Romans conquered all the peoples of the earth; the Italian of today is insuperable.

Third, Brenner Pass is not the goal, but the starting point.

Fourth, the most unworthy Italian is worth a thousand foreigners.

Fifth, Italian products are the best in the world.

Sixth, the Italian landscape is the most beautiful in the world.

Seventh, Italy has all rights, since she maintains and shall maintain an absolute monopoly of creative genius.

Eighth, every foreigner must enter Italy under a religious spell.

The Impero's article ends: "We occupy Brenner Pass as a legitimate defense, but, above all, because it is our home whose confines are outlined by nature in an unequivocal manner, even if in the past others have usurped it."

Brenner is the famous mountain pass of Tyrol, which constitutes the shortest route between Central Germany and Italy. It now marks the frontier between Italy and Austria and is one of the great strategic points of Europe.

MR. AND MRS. WINSLOW, NEW LONDON, IN ACCIDENT NEAR BRANFORD

NEW LONDON, Dec. 25.—Mr. and Mrs. Harold Winslow, 80 West street, are patients in New Haven hospital, both seriously injured as a result of the automobile in which they were enroute from New London to New Haven, colliding with another car. Mr. Winslow, it is believed suffered a fractured skull, but that injury will not be determined for a day or two. Mrs. Winslow has head injuries and this afternoon she lapsed into a state of semi-coma. Mr. Winslow is employed as a waitress at a local restaurant.

Mr. and Mrs. Winslow left for New Haven early Thursday evening. When near Branford, the machine started skidding on the slippery macadam and before Mr. Winslow could bring the car under control, it crashed against a car owned and driven by J. Grossman and in which was Mrs. Grossman and baby and J. Sinharter, all of New York. The cars came together with great force and were completely wrecked. Mr. and Mrs. Winslow were rushed to the hospital and the Grossman party returned to New Haven by taxicab. Mrs. Grossman suffered severe bruises and shock, while the infant was cut about the face. Mrs. Grossman and the baby were also taken to the hospital.

The day was about as disagreeable for Christmas as any this section has known, for the slight fall of snow become slush early in the forenoon and travel was difficult. Fog prevailed in the early morning and then, followed a drizzling rain so that getting about meant discomfort to pedestrians.

The services in the churches were well attended this morning when consideration was given to the weather. All the sermons were on the birth of Christ and the years of his early teachings and ministry. The music was the best of the year as choirs had made an effort to provide the unusual for the great feast of all church days.

When Niagara Engine company holds its election early in January a feast will be served to members at their fire house.

Mayor Fox sent out Christmas cards to various city officials, expressing appreciation or their co-operation in the management of city affairs during the past year.

Kenneth Clark, 233 Bank street, lodged a complaint against J. James Floyd, prosecutor of the Waterford town court last night, alleging that Mr. Floyd had been guilty of evasion of responsibility and requested that he be taken into custody. Such action, however, was not taken, for the police decided to conduct an investigation for the purpose of determining whether Mr. Floyd was justly accused. It developed that Mr. Floyd was operating his automobile in a southerly direction on Bank street shortly after 9 o'clock. Near the corner of Howard street Clark was in the act of crossing Bank street and carried a piece of furniture over one shoulder, which prevented him from obtaining a clear view of traffic. Mr. Floyd observed Clark and in an attempt to avoid hitting the pedestrian, Mr. Floyd operated his car to one side of the highway, but the mudguard struck Clark a glancing blow. Mr. Floyd stopped his car and returned to where the mishap occurred, but as Clark had not been injured, Mr. Floyd continued on his journey. Mr. Floyd visited the police station this forenoon and made an explanation of the mishap and with the authorities satisfied that Mr. Floyd was not guilty of the allegations of Clark, no action on the complaint was taken.

Tonight Clark communicated by telephone with Desk Sergeant Frank Howard at the police station and stated that he desired to withdraw the charge against Floyd.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Miller of Hartford, formerly of New London, are spending a few days as guests of Mrs. Miller's mother, Mrs. Mary E. Kelley, 28 Pearl street.

Two sailors stationed at the submarine base, W. F. Mobley and J. C. Treanor, were arrested Saturday night because they were making a nuisance of themselves. Both had been drinking freely and were attracting the attention of and annoying pedestrians. Mobley was arrested by Patrolman Frank Philopena on State street and Treanor was taken into custody by Sergeant Samuel Hick and Patrolman Edward Riordan on Union street. Both Mobley and Treanor escaped being penalized at the session of the police court this morning for Lieutenant James C. Sullivan allowed the sailors to go back to the submarine base shortly after last midnight with the naval patrol officer.

James Matthews, of Stonington, formerly of New London, spent yesterday renewing acquaintances in this city.

Edward Zanesky, 98 North Bank street, was apprehended this forenoon charged with intoxication and breach of the peace. He was locked up. Being unable to procure a surety on his bond of $100 for his appearance in the police court tomorrow morning, Zanesky will be forced to occupy a cell 24 hours. Zanesky was at his home where he created such a disturbance that the police were notified. Patrolman Augustus Ray was assigned to the case and finding Zanesky to be in a troublesome mood the latter was taken into custody.

Mohegan lodge of Odd Fellows is to elect officers at the meeting next week. It is planned to have a public installation during the week following.

Notwithstanding the fact that this was Christmas day there were three cases before the police court, two of them for intoxication and one on a violation of the parking ordinance of the city. James Rogers, who has been at work at Fishers Island and at New Haven, was found drunk and down yesterday. He said he had suffered the fracture of his ribs some time ago and was not feeling well, so he resorted to booze as a remedy. Of course that was just the wrong thing for James to do so he became intoxicated. Judgment was suspended in his case. Frank Boyd, a waiter in a local restaurant, knew more than to do what he did, but he imbibed freely of liquor and then went into the One Way restaurant where he ordered food and fell asleep at the counter. He was taken into custody. This morning Frank was sorry for his acts and offered to pay anything he owed, but said he had no recollection of ordering food or of eating. He was allowed to do as he suggested he would do and he, too, was released without farther penalty than he had paid by spending the night in the lock-up.

Alex Gamalo parked his car in Main street opposite Masonic street and found the machine tagged when he sought to drive away. He didn't see the white painted curbing when he stopped. He was released on suspended judgment.

A large quantity of sand, which it is intended to use in connection with the construction work on the new Advent church, in course of erection on Blackhall street, was found on the sidewalk last night without a lantern on it to indicate danger to pedestrians. The contractor was today ordered to remove the sand from the walk.

Joseph La Bale, of Waterford, was taken into custody about 1 o'clock this morning by State Police Officer Henry Albright, Groton barracks, charged with breach of the peace. He was brought to the police station and held for the balance of the night, but was released about 9 o'clock when the local department received from the Groton barracks a telephone message to do so. LaBale was arrested in Waterford where he was alleged to have engaged in a fight.

The New Haven police have requested the New London authorities to maintain a lookout for two automobiles stolen from the streets of New Haven Thursday night. One of the cars is a Ford and carries Connecticut registration, Y-7317. The other is a Packard sedan and has Connecticut registration, 22-358.

The members of the 7 o'clock police shift were given double time tonight to partake of their meals for when the patrolmen were about ready to go to their beats they were informed by Sergeant Samuel Hick that instead of taking a half hour, as is customary for their meals, the officers would be allowed an hour in which to enjoy their repast.

The absence of municipal Christmas trees was noticeable tonight, especially as the town of Groton, across the Thames from New London, had its usual illuminated tree. The tree is at the highest point of the borough, Monument street, and its illumination could be seen from many points in this city. The only tree displayed out-of-doors here was on the grounds of the Methodist Episcopal church, corner of Huntington and Broad streets.

The condition of Miss Catherine McMahon, 410 Williams street, a nurse at Lawrence hospital, who was struck by an automobile owned and operated by Roger W. Davidson, of Waterford, Wednesday night on Williams street, near Mohegan avenue, is reported as being somewhat more comfortable tonight, at the hospital. Miss McMahon suffered numerous bruises and contusions about the upper part of the body.

The police station has for a long time been a sort of emergency hospital, for the department has been compelled to carry a considerable amount of remedies for first aid. There was, however, no special place to keep the materials and medicines stored there, although for a number of months the equipment was kept in a stock room. Today Patolrman Augustus Ray delivered at the station house a cabinet which he constructed himself and of sufficient size to store all of the equipment and medicines. The cabinet was at once placed upon a wall of the ante-room of the station office and stocked with its quantities of cotton, adhesive plaster, bandages and medicines.

Sailors celebrated Yuletide in their own manner last night and again tonight for the bluejacks engaged in several fistic battles. About last midnight a gang fight occurred on State street, near the Union station, which was broken up by several patrolmen, who dispersed the sailors. Another battle was stopped by the police in the same location, but it was resumed in one of the busses that transports the bluejackets to the submarine base. Tonight a fight between sailors and a taxicab driver occurred on State street, between Bank street and Railroad avenue. The battle had been in progress but a short time when Patrolmen Patrick Sheehan and Frank Philopena appeared and put an end to further hostilities.

FIREMEN PLAY SANTA CLAUS FOR FAMILY OF SEVEN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 25.—A local family, colored, believes every one of them, that there is a Santa Claus and that he visited them last night. There are seven children in the family and they vary in size, much after the construction of a stairway. Some of them are very small and all are bow-legged, but they are quite inclined to music and dancing. It happened that members of Konomoc Hose company with City Manager Holt as a guest, invited the kids to the hose house last evening and there they feasted on the best the city folk could afford and had an abundance and to spare. Then the little folks were provided clothing and sent away to dream of the goodies on which they had feasted and the warm and comfortable clothing the firemen had placed at their disposal. They were shod and clothed from head to foot and were made to feel that they never knew a happier Christmas than taht of 1925.

MRS. A. M. GILDERSLEEVE, 87, FRACTURES HIP IN FALL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Dec. 25.—Mrs. A. M. Gildersleeve, one of the oldest and most widely known women of Woodstock, fell at her home there Wednesday, sustaining a fractured hip. Mrs. Gildersleeve, who is 87, was taken in an ambulance to the home of her son, Dr. C. C. Gildersleeve, at Norwich.

Her age makes the injury a very serious one but up to the time it occurred she had been in excellent health and very active.

A month ago she wrote a lengthy letter to one of the papers telling of her experience as a teacher in New York, more than sixty years ago and comparing the conditions of life then with what they are today. The communication was in her own writing, was firm and legible and her ideas were very interesting.

She has been living alone in the family home in Woodstock, being aided in caring for it by one or two maids.

HOPE TO RAISE EMBARGO ON FLORIDA SHIPMENTS

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Dec. 25—(AP)—"We hope to raise the embargo Monday and handle shipments in the usual manner," was a non-committal statement tonight to the Associated Press by Walter Buckner, superintendent of the American Railway Express.

Declaring that there was nothing new as to the situation Mr. Buckner declined to disclose plans for the proposed lifting of the embargo which was placed on outbound express shipments more than a week ago.

FIERY CROSSES BURNED, BUT NO KLAN MEETINGS

WATERBURY, Dec. 25.—(AP)—Fiery crosses were burned in Naugatuck, Watertown, Thomaston and Woodbury, tonight, but there were no klan meetings. It is understood that the crosses were signals of a meeting to be held at an early date.

BRIDGEPORT, Dec. 25—(AP)—The countryside surrounding two Fairfield county towns, Stratford and Shelton, was aroused Christmas eve by the glare of blazing crosses on adjacent heights. The fiery crosses, it was assumed, were ignited by knights of the Ku Klux Klan. Stratford firemen were called out to extinguish one of the crosses.

While hundreds of Shelton people at midnight service were joining in the Christmas hymnal, "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing," whereip is found that oft-repeated clause, "peace on earth, good will to men," a 20 foot cross blazed merrily on Myrtle street hill at midnight.

The cross was erected on Myrtle street hill, which overlooks the Church of the Good Shepherd, at about 9:30 o'clock. It was placed on the property of the Shelton Water company, it is said. Eight automobiles were reported to have been seen parked at the foot of the hill about that time. Residents in the vicinity said they saw a number of men carry the emblem to the hill top, light it, and hurry away. It was too dark to identify either men or cars.

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 25.—(AP)—Several fiery crosses were reported in this section late last night. One was at Obwebetuck, a high hill in South Windham and a second was at Muller Hill in Windham Center. Crosses also were reported in Scotland and Franklin. It was not known whether klan meetings were held.

AMERICAN FILMS ARE POPULAR IN ENGLAND

LONDON, Dec. 25—(AP)—England continues to make lively issue of the ascendancy of American films in the British Isles. The recent adverse vote of movie theatre owners on the question of making compulsory the exhibition of a fixed proportion of British films in British houses has, however, thrown a new light on the problem and halted action.

That the British exhibitors would prefer British films if they were equal to American films and had as good drawing power was made perfectly clear. But the men who run the theatres have indicated plainly that the compulsory exhibition of British films would, in other opinion, lessen the receipts of film houses. In other words it would also reduce the income the government receives from amusement taxes.

That put the question in a new light. The government needs all it can get from amusement taxes, and there is apparently less eagerness to rush legislation which would affect the treasury.

Many prominent exhibitors, have said very frankly that the public wants American films for the very good reason that the British makers do not supply films which appeal widely to theatre owners. They have said that they do not have any prospect of supplying a large quantity of satisfactory British films in the immediate future. Consequently the enforced exhibition of a certain quota of British films might ruin many houses without bettering the film industry. As the public will not pay to see films which it does not like.

PREDICTS DECREASE IN THE COST OF PRODUCING STEEL

BALTIMORE, Dec. 25—(AP)—A considerable decrease soon in the cost of producing steel, refining petroleum and in refrigeration was predicted today by Dr. W. A. Patrick, professor of chemistry at Johns Hopkins university. Dr. Patrick based his prediction on the practical application now being made of a substance he invented several years ago known as silica gel, a colloidal silica which possesses great absorbent qualities.

Dr. Patrick said that a steel mill in England was using the process successfully and that the United States steel corporation has now under way to install the new system in one of their plants, that a New England company was manufacturing refrigerator cars based upon the use of silica gel and that the Paulsboro, N. J., plant of the Standard Oil company was using new material in the refinement of petroleum.

Silica gel, he explained, is made with water glass and acids. It forms a substance which resembles course sand, but contains innumerable pores so fine that they cannot be seen even under the highest powered microscope. From the absorbent qualities of the substance he estimates that the surface of these pores in one gram of silica gel would cover half an acre. Its action is not chemical. The width of the pores, he estimates, is even less than a wave length of light. Its action depends upon the capillary attraction of the fine tubes which ramify it.

DEATHS FROM HOLIDAY ACCIDENTS IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Dec. 25.—(AP)—Christmas day carried with it a rush of activities that here and there left in its wake tonight a heartache instead of a joy. Nearly a score of deaths from holiday accidents were reported.

Fred Von Seggern, a farmer, of Near Norfolk, Neb., his wife and their two daughters were killed in a railway grade crossing accident.

In Chicago the toll taken by trains and automobiles during the day was six. A late Christmas eve celebration was broken up when Connor Flynn, a policeman, fell down a stairway while going to tend the furnace and broke his neck.

Two were killed at Visail, Calif., when the automobile in which they were driving to a Christmas celebration, leaped a fifteen foot ditch and crashed into a tree.

Mrs. Martha Brown and her daughter, Esther, were trapped in their automobile near Columbus when it skidded across a traction line and died from injuries in an ensuing crash. Isolated accidents swelled the total.

Two tragedies of contrasting note were brought forth.

Despondent over the fact that there were no children in her family on whom to lavish Christmas cheer, Mrs. Nellie Curren, 50, committed suicide.

At El Paso, Texas, seven children were suddenly left motherless when Juan Aguilar shot and killed Mrs. Carmen Nojeda, 30, at whose home he roomed, following an argument over who would buy the provisions for the Christmas dinner.

SERVED AS DOMESTIC AT THE AGE OF 110 YEARS

PAU, France, Dec. 25—(AP)—The palm for span of life and length of service goes to "Nava Carlotte, born in Mexico in 1815, who died Christmas day at the village of Escout."

At the age of 110 years she was still serving as a domestic in the household of descendants of the family for which she originally worked. She entered the service of this family in Mexico in 1827, followed its members to France and remained with them until her peaceful end.

London and New York gave "The Lady" a tremendous reception as an audible drama, and the screen version has been staged a Hollywood with the cafe quarter of Marseilles, as well.

An entire English theatre, London street scenes, the Monte Carlo casino, "The Lady" is a First National at as the life of the port of Havre in France, all were reproduced for the picture.

Broadway Theatre

Herman F. Jans presents Owen Moore and Constance Bennett in "Married?" at the Broadway starting Sunday See it by all means for it is an absorbing story particularly well told and bubbling over with everything that goes into the making of the best in the way of screen entertainment.

The action is fast, and snappy, it moves along swiftly and completely carries one away. There are thrills, tense dramatic scenes, and it is all told amid elaborate settings and with the big woods as a background for the outdoor sequences.

The cast supporting Owen Moore and Constance Bennett includes John Costello Evangeline Russell, Antrim Short and Julia Hurley.

Something different in the way of picture entertainment will be seen at the Broadway theatre as the second feature Sunday, when the Truart production, "Three in Exile," has its first showing in this city. Featured in this production are Rex, the wonder dog, and Black Beauty, the marvelous performing horse, with Louise Lorraine to give it the human touch.

The work of Rex and Black Beauty is almost uncanny in their work before the camera, and in the story of "Three in Exile" these two dumb (?) animals give a vivid portrayal of the love, devotion and fidelity that a dumb brute can show to their master.

In addition to this sensational program there will be a new comedy, Kinograms and enlarged orchestra. Only twenty-five cents will admit you to the finest entertainment of the year

Vance and Fuller, a pair of big time fun makers and the sensational Adroit Bros. vaudeville attractions.

Then we take a trip through Ireland with the ever popular Thomas Meighan

Thousands of American tourists visit Dublin every year, but few of them have opportunity to see the historic old Irish capital as Thomas Meighan saw it when he journeyed there to make scenes for "Irish Luck," for Paramount.

Meighan spent two days on the upper deck of a Dublin tram, traveling all over the city, and while the cameras were grinding scenes for the motion picture, Meighan was observing, from his point of vantage, all the sights and splendors of modern Dublin.

Down O'Connell street, over the Liffey river, past Trinity college, up Grafton street where Dublin's fashionable shopping center is, around St. Stephen's Green and out through Balls Bridge, the tram carried Meighan all over town. From his elevated seat he saw the vast brewing plant of A. Guinness & Son, Dublin Castle, the skeleton walls of the Four Courts, the Nelson Pillar, Phoenix Park. And all the while Director Heerman with a staff of camera men and assistants, perched on the forward end of the tram, were weaving together the scenes for the picture.

Palace Theatre

A wonderful five act bill of vaudeville accompanies Thomas Meighan's latest picture Irish Luck for the last times today at the Palace theatre where the show will run continuous from 1:45 to 10:30.

A very novel equilibrist act opens the vaudeville by the Adroit Bros. performing head to head balancing, playing musical instruments at the same time.

Pedrini Bros. follow with a splendid musical offering on piano accordions. Artists of this rare instrument are few and far between and Pedrini Bros. are two of the few.

Another pleasing act is the Hawaiian Duo executing Hawaiian string instrumental numbers, songs and dances also lacking nothing in putting over an American popular number.

Fuller and Vance furnish a line of comedy that is as fast as a shot out of a gun. They have the audience in stitches every second they are on.

The Ginger-Snap Revue close the show with a comedy revue-singing and dancing. This act is a bowl all the way through and makes a grand finish of a perfect show.

"Irish Luck," a screen version of the Saturday Evening Post story, "An Imperfect Imposter," by Norman Venner.

The story is an unusually pleasing romantic drama laid against a background of modern Dublin, the Lakes of Killarney and New York City, with several eye-filling shots taken aboard the S. S. Leviathan.

As Tom Donahue, New York policeman, the star wins a trip to Europe in a newspaper popularity contest. Aboard ship on the way over he is mistaken for a young Irish nobleman by a young man and woman. When they discover their error they stick around, nevertheless, and finally fleece Tom out of his prize money.

He lands in Dublin with only a dollar between him and starvation, catches a glimpse of the two crooks and trails them to the race track where a bookie again takes him for Lord Fitzhugh, places the nobleman's usual bet on his favorite horse for him and Tom departs with 5,000 pounds won in Fitzhugh's name. He looks up the other man (also played by Meighan) to tell him about the case of "mistaken identity," is cordially received and invited to spend the night at Fitzhugh's apartment.

In the morning he is awakened by a beautiful young woman, Lady Gwendolyn (Miss Wilson) who mistakes him at first for her brother, Lord Fitzhugh. The girl has come to bring her brother to the bedside of their uncle who wants to see his nephew again, wipe out an old estrangement and remember him in his will. During the night, Fitzhugh has been abducted by a gang of conspirators and is held prisoner in a lonely cottage. It is Tom Donahue, traffic cop, that Lady Gwendolyn brings to her uncle.

Douglas, another nephew, has bribed the conspirators with an offer of 1,000 pounds to murder Fitzhugh, and the deed is planned for the night when the will is to be read in the castle. He also plans to arrest Tom, as soon as he signs the papers, as a forger and an imposter.

But the New York cop has a trick or two up his sleeve. He crawls through the window of the cottage, sends the real Fitzhugh back to the castle to deal with Douglas, and when the conspirators come to murder him, he shows how a New York policeman sights when his back is against the wall.

If you think you'd like Tom Meighan in the land of romance and chivalry, enacting the role of a real red-blooded, two-fisted Irish-American hero, don't miss "Irish Luck." Victor Heerman directed. Tom Geraghty wrote the scenario.

Palace Theatre

A picture that will make a hundred million people laugh and sigh is the under D. W. Griffith gave himself when he produced "Sally of the Sawdust," his new classic of comedy which is being shown at the Palace Theatre.

So perfectly did he fill the order that already this United Artists Corporation release is recognized as one of the great screen achievements, ranking in entertainment power with his historic "Birth of a Nation" and "Way Down East."

Laughter rules it throughout, ranging from smiling drolleries to the heartiest outbursts of ringing mirth.

And running amid the higher peaks of gaiety is a sympathetic story of lovable humans very much beset at times with the minor problems such as lack of money, a free for all circus fight, flight to richer harvests on a blind-baggage of a railroad car and other rueful troubles.

A circus waif and her guardian, as lovable scalawag as ever picked a necessary pocket, are the principal characters, with love abounding and adventures galore.

Carol Dempster and W. C. Fields have made the parts historic among screen portrayals. Fields is new to the screen but with long stage training that has led him to stardom in the famous Ziegfeld "Follies." The work of Miss Dempster is beyond anything she has realized in the past, bringing her to the circle of the really great screen actresses of the day.

The cast is rich in new faces and talent, including Alfred Lunt, headliner in Broadway successes; Glenn Anders, Effie Shannon, Erville Alderson and supporting company of many thousands. The resources of a circus with its menagerie and side-shows, a carnival, beautiful homes, have contributed a rich variety of scenes greater than Griffith has offered in any of his recent works.

The story is one of the most entertaining tales ever filmed, alive with joy and gaiety throughout, tinged with pathos but never for an instant heavy in its tread, and galloping to a close that is one of the happiest, most exciting and most satisfying scenes ever offered in pictures.

"Sally of the Sawdust" is one of Griffith's finest pictures, deserving to be ranked with his greatest.

Life of Jesus in Moving Pictures at Y. M. C. A. Sunday

Beautifully appropriate to the Christmas season, a special feature moving picture will be shown at the local Y. M. C. A. gymnasium on the coming Sunday. The feature is "Christ, from the Manger to Manhood." The scenes were taken in Palestine with every effort to make them faithful to the Bible account. The utmost care was taken in choosing the actors and working out the details of the presentation. The titles are direct quotations from the Gospels, and the subject as a whole is treated with reverence and restraint, and will appeal strongly to all who are interested in the most wonderful life that was ever lived. Included in the showing are the scenes connected with the birth, the visit of the Magi, the flight into Egypt, the return to Judea, with the doctors in the temple and other events in Jesus boyhood; also John the Baptist scenes, Jesus choosing His disciples, the marriage in Cana, raising the widows son, healing the man sick of the palsy, the raising of Lazarus and Jesus walking on the sea. Arrangements have been made to have two showings, one for boys only at 2:30 and one at 6 p. m. for all others except boys. Hugh Kinder will furnish the music for the pictures. Clarence E. Carpenter the chairman of the "Y" boys work committee will give a brief talk at the boys service and the general secretary will speak briefly at the 6 o'clock meeting.

MINISTERS DISCUSS THE FRENCH FINANCIAL PROBLEM

PARIS, Dec. 25—(AP)—The council of ministers met at Elysee palace this morning and devoted exclusive attention to an examination of the financial problem and M. Doumer's plans for the rehabilitation of France's financial position. The discussion however, did not get out of the realm of generalities.

M. Doumer, on leaving the meeting with Premier Briand, said he was certain the examination would be finished Tuesday, on which date the council will meet again. The finance minister will then take his plans immediately before the chamber of deputies.

A slightly smaller acreage was sown to winter wheat this fall than a year ago due to unfavorable weather for plowing and seeding.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Real Christmas weather was enjoyed a half century ago, zero weather sweeping into the city on December 24th, and holding the city in its grasp over the holidays.

Merchants reported themselves as delighted with the Christmas trade and there were few articles left for sale when stores closed on Christmas eve.

News of the week as taken in part from the files of The Bulletin for 1875 is in part as follows:

Monday, December 20, 1875—The Rev. Father Mullen leaves town today on his way to Europe. Father Mullen intends to visit the principal churches and cathedrals on the continent, and to apply his observations to the interior decoration of the new church on Broadway.

The steamer City of Norwich came up to the wharf yesterday but the ice was making so fast that she returned immediately to New London to avoid being frozen in for the winter.

A polar wave hit this city Sunday morning and is still holding the city in its grasp. The mercury is standing at 1 below zero at the present time and has not been above the zero mark for the past 24 hours. A few miles north towns are reporting the temperature from 2 to 5 below. Ice is making rapidly in the Thames river and the river may be ice bound for some weeks to come unless the cold snap breaks suddenly.

All hat stores and nearly all clothing stores have decided to close at 8 o'clock every evening, except Saturdays, from January 1st., to April 1st.

A party of local gentlemen are planning to give a kitchen dance at Hyde Tavern some evening next week.

Tuesday, December 21, 1875—The Horse Railroad company has reduced single fares from Franklin square to Greeneville from seven to six cents. Mr. West is doing all that he can to accommodate the public. The old stock is to be disposed of, now omnibuses, sleighs and cars have been ordered and in the spring, or as much sooner as is practicable, trips will be made more frequently, probably half hourly, on all the routes.

At the meeting of Sedgwick post, No 1, G. A. R., held last evening G. S. Smith was elected commander, Charles E. Case, senior vice commander, and Orrin Smith, junior vice commander.

Tickets for the Otis library expire at this time of the year and people should remember that they make excellent presents. The library is in better condition than it has been in for some time and is excellently managed by Mrs. Robinson, the present librarian.

The Pawcatuck river is frozen over and a number of boats are frozen fast in the ice. In the extreme cold the ice formed fast and a man who went to Watch Hill in a rowboat, in comparatively clear water, was forced to walk home because ice had formed.

Two seals were seen off Fishers Island this week by local men, who fired at them but were not successful in their efforts to hit them.

Skating, which was so popular with the ladies a few years ago, has undergone a revival this season. All the girls with pretty feet are learning again this winter.

Wednesday, December 22, 1875—Orders from the postoffice department change the name of the office at East Putnam, Windham county, to Putnam Heights.

Chief Engineer Carrier and men have been busy during the past few days in thawing out the hydrants in the city. Many of them have been frozen and the danger from fire is great.

The ice men are already engaged in harvesting their winter crop and it is reported that the ice is of sufficient thickness and of excellent quality.

Fire broke out last night in the rear of Hilton & Bidwell's carriage shop on Bath street, but was extinguished before any damage could result.

The Thames is frozen over again and all shipping has been suspended. Skating is fine on the river and crowds are out daily enjoying the sport. A few more days like the last two and skating to New London will be in style.

The last pipe on the Greeneville extension was laid yesterday noon and the water will be turned on in about a month.

The merchants Christmas proclamation—"Now all Men Buy these Presents."

Messrs Walt. Halsey, Holbrook, Waller, Brandagee and Lucas have been appointed a committee by the New London County bar, to attend the London county bar, to attend the meeting at Hartford, in reference to the re-arrangement of court terms.

Thursday, December 23, 1875—The Hon. Henry Ruggles, of this city, who for several years past was United States consul in Spain, will, by invitation, deliver a lecture in the Congregational church, in Ledyard, next Tuesday evening, his subject to be Spain and the Spaniards.

Work is progressing rapidly on the new Shetucket bridge, which is fast taking shape. It is a handsome structure and will be an additional attraction to back windows on Shetucket street.

The propeller Delaware came up the river yesterday and broke through the ice with some difficulty.

Over 27,000 pounds of poultry were shipped from Westerly to the New York market this week.

Henry L. Parker has been elected warden of Trinity church in place of George Pratt.

The heavy rain of Tuesday night was followed by a day like April. Hundreds of people were on the streets during the day and merchants report business to best in several years.

A Spanish coin dated 1771 was dug up in the rear of the old Bacon Hotel, in New London, one day this week.

George Holt Rogers, a native of New London and well known in Norwich, has been elected a state senator of California and is now speaker of the senate.

Friday, December 24, 1875—The annual masquerade ball of the Wauregan Hook and Ladder company took place last evening. Over 600 people attended, fully 200 of them in costume. Miller's band gave some delightful music at the concert, specially noticeable in which was a cornet solo by Prof. George and one of Straus's waltzes.

Boys, hang up your sister's stocking it hold more.

The warm weather during the past two days has resulted in a breaking up of the ice in the river and most of it went out yesterday.

The Chelsea Savings bank has won its suit for $6,000 against the People's Insurance company, Westchester Insurance company and the St. Nicholas Insurance company. The suit came about when property changed hands in Meriden and the change in the policy was in error, the property burning and found not to be owned by the party in the revised blanks. The court found for the petitioner.

Slight earth shocks have been felt along the Atlantic coast during the past few days, but Connecticut has escaped them thus far.

Saturday, December 25, 1875.—The fall term at the Free Academy closed yesterday noon with the presentation of Ici on Parle Francais, a charming little ploy, which was cleverly presented. The play was one of the cleverest ever presented at the Academy and members of the cast deserve much credit for the manner in which they filled their parts.

George Whitely, on Central Wharf, has a light walking stick said to have been the property of Napoleon Bonaparte, at St. Helena. It was given by Napoleon to an English admiral, in whose family Mr. Whitely's brother served in the capacity of butler, and was given to him at the admiral's death, thus passing into the hands of Mr. Whitely.

Postmaster Bidwell was presented a handsome cameo ring last evening, by members of the office force. Mr. Dillaby made the presentation.

A heavy snow storm commenced last evening and later changed to sleet. Bracing cold weather is expected for Christmas day.

The Stonington Mirror says that since the earthquake in Willimantic the Methodist brethren are thinking more about Fisher's Island, where earthquakes are unknown.

"Thanks," he said sadly, "of course it's very kind of you to wish me a merry Christmas, but then you know I'm married."

You may as well begin to think up those good resolutions you are going to adopt next Saturday.

The men who do not wish they were children, this morning, never wished that they were men, when they were children

RULING ON AGRICULTURAL CREDIT CORPORATIONS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24—(AP)—National agricultural credit corporations have been held subject to income taxation in a ruling by A. W. Gregg, solicitor of internal revenue. When the information leaked out today, observers saw it as a new element in the whole rural credit problem.

Mr. Gregg's ruling has not been made public by the internal revenue bureau, but it has been circulated among the routine guiding decisions within the bureau, this making it effective at once and entailing an immediate study of a number of returns under the revenue act of 1924.

The ruling held that, if the agricultural credit corporations were entitled to exemption at all, this must come under section 231 of the act, and then asserted:

"National agricultural credit corporations are not exempt from income taxation under section 231 of the revenue act of 1924."

Attention was called in the ruling to the fact that section 231 specifically carried into the revenue act exemptions granted certain forms of mutual and government agencies of finance. It was suggested as significant that the provisions which authorized the formation of the national agricultural credit corporations failed to mention the exemption from taxation which had been granted to federal intermediate credit banks, federal farm loan associations and federal farm loan banks as applicable to the newly authorized agency.

OLDEST TWINS IN AMERICA ARE RESIDENTS OF FAIRFIELD

FAIRFIELD, Conn., Dec. 25—(AP)—The oldest twins in the United States passed a quiet Christmas today as neighbors and friends visited to extend the season's greetings and pay a slight token of respect to the remarkable sisters who celebrated their 33rd Christmas and who are looking forward to January 9, when they commence the ninety-fourth year of their lives. Nongenarians are rare enough in these days but twins whose ages approach the century mark are extraordinary.

Mary Sophia Dowd and Sarah Maria Seymour, Fairfield's remarkable twin sisters, were up and around their home on Burr street, Greenfield Hill, near the Easton line today. They enjoyed the day as they watched the children, tots playing on the floor. The one blot on the year which is closing was the death of Hosmer E. Dowd, 94 years old husband of one of the twins. The Dowds had marked their seventieth wedding anniversary about a year ago.

Miss Laura Dowd keeps house for her mother and aunt. She explains that the winter months are the hardest on the twins as they must remain indoors so much.

Surrounded by modern appliances of all kinds such as a phonograph, pipeless furnace, telephone and radio, the twins can look back over the advance of the world during four quarter centuries. They are able to appreciate the comforts of today as compared with those of almost a century ago.

BODY OF FRANK A. MUNSEY IN WOODLAWN CEMETERY

NEW YORK, Dec. 25—(AP)—The body of Frank A. Munsey, magazine and newspaper publisher, was taken from the Cathedral of St. John the Divine this morning and placed in the vault in Woodlawn cemetery which is to serve as a temporary resting place until permanent arrangements are made next spring.

After funeral services were read by Bishop William T. Manning yesterday in the cathedral, the body was returned to St. Angarius chapel to await the arrival of the late publisher's nearest relative, his sister, Mrs. John M. Hyde from St. Petersburg, Fla.

Mrs. Hyde reached New York last night, having been prevented from attending the funeral services because of a delayed train. This morning, accompanied by her son, Fred Hyde, and other relatives, and representatives from the staffs of Mr. Munsey's two papers, the New York Evening Sun and the New York Telegram, Mrs. Hyde viewed the body in the chapel and followed it to the cemetery.

NORWICH TOWN

Large congregations attended both masses at the Sacred Heart church Christmas day. At the 7.30 o'clock mass the junior choir sang the Christmas hymns with spirit and harmony. At the nine o'clock mass Rosewig's mass was sung by the choir. The soloists were Mrs. Morgan Cronin, Miss Mary Buckley, Henry Jarvis and LeRoy Hubbard. The music was under the direction of the organist, Mrs. William A. Murphy. Rev. Charles W. Brennan, pastor of the church, read the gospel of the day from the second chapter of St. Luke, after which preceding his sermon he wished his parishioners a Merry Christmas. Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament followed the last mass. Among the decorations of the sanctus were evergreen wreaths, lilies, roses, carnations and poinsettia, arranged among lighted candles in a most effective manner.

At the Johnson Home, Christmas was enjoyed in full measure by every member of the family as far as health permitted. The festivities of the day began when the family came down to breakfast and found upon entering the large dining room, an attractively decorated table, with a number of gifts at each plate, contributed by relatives and friends. Several interested friends of the family each year sent Christmas cards to all. These are distributed by the matron, Mrs. May Rollins. From Home chapter of the King's Daughters, each member of the family was presented a nice box of note paper, with book of stamps and a Christmas card. The Sunshine class of the First Baptist Sunday school, Mrs. Lina G. Howard, teacher, sent to each one a useful package containing various toilet articles. A spray of beautiful flowers to each, was the gift of Mrs. Lucy A. Sparks of Fairmount street. The Bacheler family of Norwich Town, sent to the home an abundant supply of oranges, apples and other good things; while Miss Mary Porteous as usual, furnished oranges for the family, also at a large package of table raisins.

Besides individual gifts, among those who sent beautiful cards were: Mrs. Benjamin Lewis and Mrs. Herbert H. Branche of the house committee, Mr. and Mrs. Henry T. Frazier, Miss Lucy Geer of Norwich, who conveyed a personal message to each one. Home chapter of the Kings Daughters and Mrs. William Beckwith, who also furnished the cranberry sauce for the dinner.

At 12 o'clock eleven sat down to a fine chicken dinner with dessert, fruit, nuts and candy, served under the direction of Mrs. Rollins.

Those members of the home who were dinner guests outside were: Mrs Agnes Blackburn, entertained by Dr and Mrs. Ernest J. Jones, of Bliss place, Mrs. Philena Hough Noland, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dwight L. Underwood of Peck's corner, and Miss Sarah Armstrong, who spent the day with friends down town.

Following out the annual custom at the Sheltering Arms, Christmas was observed with some pleasant reminder all during the day. The ten members of the family who were able to come down stairs had a delicious turkey dinner, at 12:30 o'clock. This was preceded by a pleasant surprise at the morning meal, when every member was presented a basket filled with fruit and candy. Three members of the family were not able to leave their room to join the others in down stairs but they passed the day in a quiet though pleasant way. The matron, Mrs. Bessie Beckwith carried out the customary plan of having a Christmas tree party for her family of women. This took place in the parlor at 3:30 in the afternoon. From a large tree handsomely trimmed with Christmas novelties also electric lights, the two nurses and the home distributed gifts. Every member received a number of presents, as well as Christmas cards. At supper time, cake and ice cream were served.

A family gathering was entertained, Christmas Day, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Peck of Otrobando avenue, when a sumptuous dinner was served by Mrs. Peck, at one o'clock. The menu was: Tomato soup, chicken patties, roast turkey, with vegetables, nut bread wheat bread, celery, cranberry sauce, pickles, two kinds of pie, coffee, pickles, two kinds of cake. At each plate was a place card also dainty Christmas boxes filled with salted nuts. The table was attractive with decorations of red candles, etc. The guests were Mr. Peck's relatives from Westchester including his mother, Mrs. Theodore D. Peck, his sister, Miss May Peck and brother Edward Peck and Miss Annie Smith and Miss Rose Smith, of Colchester, sisters of Mrs. Peck.

The accommodations of the trolley service was an important feature Thursday evening, when a throng which had no other way of getting to Norwich Town, to enjoy the very successful Community Christmas Tree celebration, found it most convenient to have the extra service. From about five o'clock on, through the courtesy of the Connecticut company, extra trolleys cars were run over the Yantic line until 10:30.

During the Sunday school period at the First Congregational church, interesting reports are to be submitted Sunday, Rev. Gurdon P. Bulkley, pastor of the church, having called this meeting, will preside.

Joseph Pieretti and little sons Joseph Jr., and Ernest, motored down to Mrs. Leo Phelps', at Groton, Thursday afternoon to carry Christmas presents to Mrs. Phelps, who is mother of Mrs. Pieretti. When returning home in passing through Gales Ferry, Mr. Pieretti saw an approaching automobile and turned his car to the right in order to pass. At this point the Pieretti car skidded on the ice, went down a decline and turned over in a lot owned by Mr. Brown, about 200 feet from the main highway. Mr. Pieretti applied new chains to his automobile before he left Norwich. When the car over turned Mr. Pieretti was pinned to the ground and suffered bruises to both knees, and slight bruises about the face. The boys, Joseph and Ernest, were thrown out of the car. Joseph was cut by broken glass from the windshield. Ernest received bruises on his face. Mr. and Mr. Pieretti feel gratitude to a stranger, a man who showed his interest and kindness by speeding with their little boy Joseph to the Backus hospital. There his injuries were attended to and he returned home. Friday afternoon for his Christmas dinner. Mr. Pieretti's car was damaged having a demolished top, also a broken windshield, running board, mudguards and radiator.

The motor was in running order and the car was driven home under its own power. Mr. Pieretti and son Ernest returned to Norwich by taxi, thence to their home on Town street.

Rev. Charles H. Ricketts, pastor of Greeneville Congregational church is to be the officiating clergyman at the Sheltering Arms service Sunday afternoon. He will be assisted by his church choir.

ARGUMENT RESULTED IN STABBING IN PROVIDENCE

PROVIDENCE, R. I. Dec. 25—(AP)—An argument over a broken phonograph record resulted in one man being sent to the hospital suffering from a number of knife wounds and started the police on the trail of a companion two of a party who were attending a Christmas celebration here early this morning.

James R. Davis, 26, of 25 Edwin street, is at the Rhode Island hospital in a serious condition and Eugene Taylor, 23, of 17 Edwin street, has so far evaded the police net.

MORAL AND RELIGIOUS FORCES WORKING FOR WARLESS WORLD

Never before were the great moral and religious forces of the world so unanimous in their aim and endeavor to bring about a warless world, an era of universal peace and good will, and this is at least a fresh evidence of the Saviour's leadership, said Rev. J. Eldred Brown, rector of Trinity Episcopal church, in his annual Christmas message to his congregation on Friday morning. There were two services held at the church Christmas day, one at 8 o'clock with holy communion and the other at 10.30 o'clock with holy communion, morning prayer and sermon. The church was very attractively decorated in honor of the day. Rev. Mr. Brown took as his text St. Luke 2:14—And on earth, peace, good will towards men.

Rev. Mr. Brown said: To the Christian believer the joy of this day is a sacred, a holy joy. It is so because the birthday of Christ stands for the greatest event which ever took place in human history. For it stands for the fact that there is nothing in God which may not come into close and permanent union with man. The fact that God can so intimately invite himself with man as to take human nature into permanent union with His Divine nature is in itself a convincing revelation of man's close kinship to God. In the light of this fact Christ's portrayal of the Fatherhood of God, seems both credible and natural. Moreover, this fact of the Incarnation in this birth of the Son of God into human flesh, gives us the most hopeful and assuring promise of a continued existence beyond death we could desire. For it assures us that Christ speaks with the authority and knowledge of God. It assures us, as St. Augustine says, that "God has come down into man that man may be lifted up into God."

Such an asurance is, in itself, instinct with joy and peace, with a joy and peace unknown to man before the birth of Christ! For in that rude cradle in Bethlehem was contained in germ not only the fulfillment of the angelic song of "Peace on earth, good-will to men" but the whole earthly life of Christ. His whole Gospel; yes, and even the whole magnificent history of Christianity down to this very day. In that crude cradle, moreover, was wrapped up the whole future history of Christian progress, even to the end of the world. Consider for a few moments what the birth at Bethlehem has meant in the individual sense of the forgiveness of sin and the consciousness of God's peace in the heart! What it has meant for women and children! What it has meant for the sufferer, the poor, the prisoner, and the outcast. Think, for a moment of India, with its millions of outcasts, men and women, who under the tyrany of the caste system, have literally no hope and no outlook in life!

What wonder that there is such a mass movement among them towards Christianity, that whole villages and towns are turning to Christ because in Him and His Gospel alone can they find themselves recognized as individual souls, in them alone can they find peace and good will. Consider what the birth at Bethlehem has meant for the deaf, the dumb, the blind, the crippled—in fact for all those unfortunates whom the heathen world both ancient and modern has always been ready to neglect or kill off.

Consider what Christ has accomplished, where He has been given a chance in the relations between man and men, and between nation and nation. Consider the long line of human and philanthropical movements and agencies which trace their origin back to the Babe in the manger! Consider the great self-sacrificing labors of the army of Christian missionaries which is now encircling the globe and has already transformed millions of its inhabitants.

Consider what an elevating theme the birth of Christ and His Gospel have furnished for poetry, music, architecture and the drama. How much we should miss from the art of music if we should eliminate the Messiah, the Elijah, and numerous other oratorios! Banish the cathedrals and the great churches of Christian history, and how the list of notable beauties of architecture would shrink. Eliminate Dante and Milton and the other great Christian poets and dramatists and what a loss literature would suffer.

It is only by picturing to ourselves these and other like phenomena that we can begin to realize what Christmas and the fact it stands for have meant to the world. And it is these facts which constitute the real joy of Christmas, which prove how great a measure of peace and good-will has come to the world by reason of the birth of Christ. But, unfortunately, there is the other side of the picture. The peace foretold by the angels can come only to those who purpose to obey God's moral laws, who put aside selfishness and self seeking and are endeavoring to love their neighbor as themselves. On translation of the angels' message reads, "Peace on earth to men of good will."

Now it is very evident, when we pause to think of these contritions, why there is so much disquiet and unrest, so much distrust, suspicions and ill will, so much greed and discontent still in the world. It is because both men and nations have ignored God's moral laws, have refused to accept Christ as Saviour and have allowed themselves to be led and governed by their selfish desires, unrestrained passions and evil ambitions.

It is so in the individual whenever he pushes his own way or plans without thought or care of how they may affect his fellows. Nor may we confine this sort of action to the criminal classes only. It is characteristic of everyone who in any way tries to overreach his brother man. Profiteering and graft are notable examples of it, as is also catering to the weakness and vices of others. The bootlegger and the dope vendor are no more blameworthy in this respect than are the manufacturers of many of our nostrums and patent medicines. Even we, Christians have a large score to repent of in the practices we have allowed ourselves to indulge in, or wink at.

And when we consider our class warfare and the ambitions and practices which originated it and keep it alive, it is evident here also that we are preventing the growth of peace and good will by cultivating class interests and class selfishness. In a word, on both sides, justice, fairness, consideration for others, which are fundamental elements of the moral law of God, as set forth by Christ, are ignored or trampled upon, thus barring out the very possibility of peace and good will, not only between man and man, but between man and God.

And the same spirit and practice have prevented peace and good will among the nations. Seven years ago our Christmas was brightened by what was believed, was the return of world peace. And an important element in our rejoining was the feeling that the right had prevailed, that God's moral laws had been vindicated, that brute force and inordinate lust for power and merciless ambition had been condemned and defeated. It all emphasizes the truth that the moral law of God is as much applicable to nations as to individuals; that sooner or later, the nations which discard or overrule the divine laws will be put down or overthrown in the same way that the individual wrong doer is put down or overthrown. In other words, God's will and God's laws are intended to bring peace and good will, not merely to individuals and in individual relations, but to nations and in national relations. Particularly was the Christian era ushered in as the inauguration of a reign of peace on earth, good will to men.

A history before Christ's advent had emphasized men's need of a saviour outside of and superior to themselves. They needed a Saviour to rescue them from the slavery of sin, from a despairing sense of guilt and remorse. They needed a Saviour to strengthen and reinforce their weak wills. They needed a Saviour to give them authoritative truth about God, to give them a revenation from heaven which they were powerless to discover on earth.

They needed a Saviour to deliver them from the terror of death and their uncertainty and dread of the future. They needed such a saviour both as men and as nations. And all history since the advent has shown abundant and continuous evidence of the same need. Millions upon millions of Christian believers in all the Christian countries have testified that they have found in Christ and in Christ alone, the satisfaction of these needs—peace of heart and conscience and an ever growing spirit of love and good will. And in proportion as the nations have become more Christian, have imbibed, that is, more of the spirit of Christ, their supreme desire is for the spread of peace and good will, throughout the world.

The millenium is not yet here. The ideal is still far ahead of the real. But this much we may claim. Never before were the great moral and religious forces of the world so unanimous in their aim and endeavor to bring about a warless world—an era of universal peace and good will. And this unanimity of aim and endeavor is at least a fresh evidence of the saviour's leadership, an omen full of promise for the world's betterment.

For the Christian believer it adds a fresh cause for rejoicing in Christmas and all it stands for. May this be an element in our joy this day and in the years to come may we be able to rejoice the more as we see the dream, the noble vision increasingly passing into realization. With this blessed hope in mind let us sing with spirit the words of our closing hymn, It Came Upon the Midnight Clear, that Glorious Song of Old.

FEAST OF THE NATIVITY AT ST. PATRICK'S CHURCH

Christmas of 1925 at St. Patrick's church, had a special significance, coming as it did toward the conclusion of a year marked by great material and spiritual prosperity, also one which brought a signal honor to the parish. Since Christmas of last year the rector, Rt. Rev. Msgr. Michael Henry May, has received the favor and distinction of being appointed a member of the household of His Holiness, Pius XI, so that the services this year were a part of a greater system of worship; the local church was no segregated unit on Christmas day, but its services were imposing and authoritative as reflecting world-unity.

Every ceremonial and each utterance took on a new meaning, sermons and music became part of the vast volume and momentum and majesty of faith sweeping round the globe, as the story was told of the event of Bethlehem in which the ancient church had its origin. And when, at the fourth mass of the feast, the rector addressed his people, it was as one representing the superior who had conferred honors upon him, bearing the message and the blessing of the spiritual generalissimo, the head of over 300,000,000 members in the great army of the church militant throughout the world.

St. Patrick's never loked more beautiful than in its simple yet rich sanctuary adornment of tall fan palms, ferns, flowering poinsettias in decorative baskets, with gold altar vases holding carnations. At the gospel side of the high altar is shown the representation of the crib at Bethlehem, which will remain until Epiphany and wheer the offerings made are for the by Rev. John J. Reilly.

The greater proportion of the parish attended the early masses, that at 5:30 being a high mass celebrated by Rt. Rev. Msgr. May. The sermon was by Monsignor May.

At 7:30, low mass was read by Father Reilly, who was also the preacher. The same priest read the mass and preached at 8 for the Italian Catholics.

At 9, the children's mass. Father Galvin read the mass and the sermon was by Monsignor May. At all these services there were hundreds of communicants.

In the solemn high mass at 10:30, the celebrant was Rev. Father Galvin, with Father Reilly deacon, and Rev. Raymond J. LaFontaine, a parish boy and student at the Suplician seminary, Catholic university, Washington, the sub-deacon. Henry J. LaFontaine, the organist, played for his first Christmas, in the great church, having arranged a service of especial beauty and appealing numbers. At the outset, it became evident that Mr. LaFontaine's chorus of 24 voices was prepared to do some exceedingly good, even and harmonious singing; and this was noticeable throughout the long and taxing service, through which the voices kept up to high standard in volume and agreeable blending. The soloists were Mrs. Bernard M. Coyle, Miss Loretta Bellefleur, Roderick F. Sullivan, Frank R. Murdy and Walter LaFontaine.

The offertory was Adeste Fideles, the same ancient hymn being sung in every Catholic church in the world, the opening stanza sung by Roderick F. Sullivan, the full choir taking up the chorus with evident appreciation of its grandeur. In the second stanza, Mr. Sullivan and Frank R. Murdy gave what is a veritable confession of faith, "Deum Verum, genitum non factum," in an inspiring duet, the chorus in proper time taking up the finale in a magnificent volume of melody. At the conclusion of the mass benediction of the Blessed Sacrament was given by Monsignor May, assisted by the other priests and the sub-deacon. Here a fine opportunity for finished solo work was furnished Mr. Murdy.

An effective number was "Jesu Bambino" for baritone and chorus. Silver's mass, a new composition, proved very pleasing.

Monsignor May was the preacher, after he had read the gospels for the feast, Luke 2, 1-14 and 15-20. Recalling his own emotions during a year when he visited the Holy Land, the preacher led his auditors in spirit from the Joppa gates of Jerusalem to Bethlehem and along the sacred path followed by Joseph and Mary in their discouraging search for shelter, when there was "no room at the inn." He expressed the hope that none among his hearers was repeating the refusal of the inn-keeper, with hearts so filled with sin or with worldly interests as to shut out today the Infant Saviour in the person of the poor.

The Saviour who came in poverty and humility, all for love of us, adopted such a peerless act of humiliation to set us an example, to prove to the down-trodden, the crushed and afflicted that their hope is in Jesus and His birth in the rude manger. Every heart and soul should be prepared for the coming of this Infant Lord, His followers should choose humility and self-denial.

In the home reunions of the feast day there should be no forgetfulness of those not so far away who may be in need and who represent Jesus Christ. An eloquent plea was made to the Mother of Christ to secure for each and all those blessings and graces which will enable the followers of her Divine Son to square their lives on His—to follow Him day by day, making His example the ruling influence of their thoughts and deeds and lives.

UNION SERVICE HELD AT CENTRAL CHURCH

The Meaning of Christmas was the subject of the address delivered by Rev. Edward C. Dunbar, pastor of the First Baptist church, Christmas night, at the union service held at the Central Baptist church, which was well attended by members of the several Protestant churches, of the city.

His message was in part as follows:

The Christmas season is not only a period of joy and happiness, but there is also a sense of the Divine in its yearly occurrence. It has come to have an international observance for the name of Christ has been carried to practically every country on earth. Legend and story have played an important part, but the story having the most emphasis is that of the birth of the Christ-child. "For unto you is born a Saviour, who is Christ the Lord." In reality Christmas is the introduction to a life and that life in turn introduces us to God.

The life story of Jesus shows us the supreme value of simplicity and beauty. The story of his birth is one of the most beautiful stories we have. The picture of the shepherds in their fields, the coming of the wise men, and the offering of gifts all deepen the appeal because they are simple, yet do not lose their beauty. The test of simplicity is its reception by children, and these stories have always played a large part in the Christmas season with children. As for the physical beauty only a glance of the scores of the nativity pictures shows one the artists appreciation for the life of the Man of Nazareth. There is however, a deeper beauty which is more impressive and that is the beauty of the inner life of Jesus; a beauty which artists can never paint for man is not capable of placing upon canvas or the printed page this beauty of living.

A second thought that grows out of the manifestation of God is the power it reveals Jesus came into the world without power of any kind except that given him by God. He was poor. He did not seek powerful friends. We are unable to prove that he ever read a book. He never visited a foreign country. He hated politics. He never led an army, wrote a book, won a prize fight or played professional fotoball. His teachings antagonized all religions. Yet in three years of his ministry thousands listened to his words, leaders sent spies to follow his journeys, wealth, power, culture and every thing seemed against him. In 250 years the power in this life and its story was accepted by all the civilized world. Today its power is changing men even after nineteen centuries. In the past it has changed the course of human history. What that power is no one can describe, yet millions of people the world over testify to it.

Again this life reveals a personal love, more constant than the love of a child for his parent, parent for his child or friend for friend. For unto you is born a Saviour, who is Christ the Lord. He taught us to pray "Our Father, who art in heaven." "I go to prepare a place for you." Simplicity and beauty backed by an unlimited power makes a mighty force, but when one adds to this force a loving personality nothing in heaven or hell can check it. Such is brought to us by the Christ whose birth we honor on Christmas day.

The service was opened with a praise service and Rev. J. Harlow Graham, pastor of Trinity Methodist Episcopal church, led in prayer. An unusual feature of the service was the interpretation of several of the beautiful Christmas carols, also instrumental numbers, by the new Orthophonic Victrola, made possible through the courtesy of the Plaut-Cadden company.

FOUR MASSES AT ST. MARY'S MEMORIAL CHURCH

Christmas day was fittingly observed at St. Mary's Memorial church on Friday, with four public masses, with a large congregation at each service handsomely decorated altars and sanctuary and hundreds receiving the sacrament at the first three masses for the day. Evergreen trees and palms formed the sanctuary decorations while choice cut flowers of red and white with poinsettia for a background and numerous lighted candles comprised the altar decorations. This was the work of the St. Ann's Altar society of the parish.

The high mass opened the day's services at 6 o'clock. This was sung by Dr. Patrick J. McCormick, of the Catholic university at Washington, D. C., with the choir in attendance directed by Mrs. M. J. Farrell, of Willimantic. Rev. William A. Keefe, the pastor, celebrated a low mass on the Blessed Virgin's altar and two other masses in the chapel at the parish convent.

Rev. Daniel J. Pyne, S. J., of Holy Cross college, Worcester, Mass., offered the two low masses, at 7:30 and 9 o'clock. Rev. Philip J. Cohoian, curate of the parish, offered two low masses at 9:30 and 10:00 o'clock and sung the high mass at 10:30, which ended the day's services.

Rev. Fr. Keefe's sermons for the day followed the reading of the day's gospel, for the first mass on Christmas day and treated on the birth of the Saviour of the world in the stable at Bethlehem in which he treated on the virtues set forth for example. Incidentally he referred to the Christmas message of Pope Pius XI and emphasized the phrase contained therein, Thy Kingdom Come.

Rev. Fr. Pyne's remarks were principally addressed to the children in the material gain they received on Christmas day and urged them to always follow the day in its spiritual meaning. To those adults who would become lukewarm in the meaning of the feast he urged them to go back to infancy and follow the joy observed in the heart of a child in following the Saviour's birth.

The crib, which was placed at St. Joseph's altar, was beautiful.

The Christmas day offering went to the priests of the parish and Rev. Fr. Keefe, the pastor, expressed his appreciation of the generosity of his people.

FOUR SERVICES SUNDAY AT CHRIST CHURCH

At 11.45 Christmas eve about 400 people gathered at Christ Episcopal church for the carol singing and the choral eucharist at midnight. The beautiful floral decorations were under the direction of Miss Mary Richards. The master of ceremonies, Burton Robinson, arranged the procession which entered the church singing carols led by the crucifer, Mr. Gustave Lambert, with two acolytes followed by the vested boys' choir, then a standard bearer and the vested girl's choir. Next came the guild of St. Vincent led by the crucifer with two acolytes carrying the priests' torches at the rear of the sanctuary servers. Just as the city clock was striking the midnight hour, the star shown out brightly above the high altar and the choirs and people were heartily singing the carol "Shout the Glad Tidings." The eucharistic service was most beautiful and effective under the brilliantly lighted altar and the chorus and anthems under the direction of the organist, Mr. Pierce with the organ and orchestra accompaniment added a charm to the service.

About 200 made their Christmas communions and after a few words of greeting and a message for Christmas day's careful thought from the rector the crowd departed with the priestly blessing into the moonlight night filled with the spirit of joy that "unto us a Saviour was born that is Christ the Lord."

At 10.30 Christmas day a second eucharist plain was held for those who failed to attend the first service at midnight. Several people from out of Norwich attended both services and joined heartily in the responses.

Sunday, Dec. 27 will be St. John's day and there will be four services, 8 a. m., 9.15 choral junior church, 10.30 last eucharist with sermon and carols. A wonderful pageant called The Nativity at 7 p. m. Note the hour. Monday Dec. 28 at 7 p. m. at the parish room comes the Christmas tree and entertainment.

HOLIDAY CHEER AT STATE TREASURY DEPT.

The state treasury department this year departed from a century old custom of quiet observance of the last working day before Christmas to welcome the holiday with a gay party around a brilliantly decorated and brightly lighted Christmas tree. Deputy Treasurer Thomas H. Judd, acting the part of Santa Claus, distributed gifts to the members of the office force and the state school fund office employees, who joined in the celebration.

Practically all state bureaus and departments at the capitol held Christmas parties this year, the offices being gaily decorated and each having a tree. There was wide-spread exchange of gifts among all state employees.

At the comptroller's office, a party was combined with a luncheon in honor of Deputy Comptroller Edward H. Wilkins, about twenty being present. Superintendent Frank M. Congdon and Assistant Howard Mackenzie were among the guests. Dwight M. E. Dewey, dressed for the part, played Santa Claus. An appreciated gift was an iron-gray wig presented to Chief Clerk John Belden, who is a charter member of the Connecticut Baldheaded Men's club. Miss Effie Pickup was chairman of the arrangemnt committee.

Other departments where Christmas trees and parties played parts in celebration of the holiday were the motor vehicle, the insurance, health, child welfare, teachers' retirement and state police. Many other departments held celebrations earlier in the week.

Suit Over Will

Papers have been served on Attorney General Frank E. Healy in a suit brought for the trustees of the Berkeley Divinity school to the superior court at Middletown for a declaratory judgment of the will of the late Mrs. Mary W. Alsop Mutter, who bequeathed $50,000 in her will dated March 25, 1875 for the endowment of the chapel connected with the school. The phraseology of the bequest connected the continuance of the Berkeley school in Middletown with the endowment. One of the questions to be submitted to the court asks if the removal of the school to New Haven will not require that the chapel should be given to the church of the Holy Trinity in Middletown. The will provides a salary of $250 a year for the clergyman conducting religious services in the chapel.

NEW YEARS MORNING SERVICE NEXT FRIDAY

At the United Congregational church the Christmas entertainment of the church school, to which all members of the parish are cordially invited will be held upstairs in the Community House on Wednesday evening, a half past seven.

Instead of the usual mid-week service this week, a special New Year's morning service will be held in the church school rooms at eight o'clock on Friday morning.

GALE WITH COLD WAVE ALL ALONG NEW ENGLAND COAST

Near Zero or Sub-Zero Temperatures Were General Throughout New England—More Than a Dozen Deaths Were Directly or Indirectly Due to the Severe Weather—One Death Resulted in Worcester From Explosure—The Usual Number of Fires Were Caused by Efforts to Throw Out Frozen Water Pipes.

BOSTON, Dec. 27—(AP)—New England shivered today in the blasts of cold wave that sent the mercury in thermometers plunging downward to record the lowest temperatures of the winter to date. Temperatures ranged from an official 14 degrees below zero at West Stewartstown, N. H., near the Canadian line. The wave swept into New England on the breath of a rioting wind that reached gale proportions as the day advanced.

One death, in Worcester, marked the inrush of the cold weather last night. Patrick McSweeney died of freezing and exposure. Throughout the night the temperature fell and early today near zero and sub-zero temperatures were general. At the weather bureau here it was indicated that the cold would continue unabated through tonight and tomorrow and that the coming 24 hours might bring even lower readings than the last. Warnings were issued along the coach from Boston to Cape Hatteras of strong northwest winds probably reaching gale force during the day and the night.

The cold weather brought the usual increase in the number of fires caused by efforts to thaw frozen water pipes and by defective chimneys and overheated stoves and furnaces. Boston firemen were kept busy throughout the day extinguishing fires in dwelling houses. The sudden cold weather caused unestimated damage to automobiles with the freezing radiators not protected against the quick drop in temperature.

Bitter cold prevailed throughout the day in northern New Hampshire and Vermont. Woodsville, North Stratford and Colebrook, N. H., near the Vermont line, reported early morning readings of 24 degrees below zero. Pittsburg, N. H., recorded 20 degrees below and Stewartstown Hollow, 18 to 20 below. At 1 p. m., the temperature had risen only to 16 below zero at Colebrook and in other towns remained below the zero mark throughout the day.

Boston had an official minimum reading of 5 above zero; at New Haven, Conn., the minimum was 6; at Block Island off the southern New England coast it was 10; and on the Island of Nantucket 8. At [illegible], N. H., the government station recorded temperatures below zero; at Eastport, Me., 2 below; at Portland, Me., 4 below; the Blue Hills observatory near Boston the thermometer recorded a temperature of zero with a wind, at mid-day, of 39 to 35 miles an hour.

The mercury hovered within ten degrees of the zero mark throughout the day in Boston and in the late afternoon again began to fall. In the face of the frigid wind that stomped through the city the streets were left almost deserted.

COLD CAUSED MORE THAN A DOZEN DEATHS

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—(AP) — The northern portion of the United States was still in the grip tonight of the cold wave which rode on a cutting wind out of the northwest yesterday and accounted directly or indirectly for more than a dozen deaths in the two days. No immediate relief was held out by the weather bureau which tonight predicted continued cold weather and in some places even lower temperatures. Storm warnings were being displayed on the Atlantic seaboard between Cape Hatteras and Boston, on advice of the Washington weather bureau which forecast strong northwest winds of gale force. Sub-zero temperatures in the middle west caused the Ohio river to be frozen over in places for the first time since 1918.

Nine of the deaths reported occurred in Chicago, one man froze to death at Worcester last night, in New York an unidentified negro was found frozen to death in a hallway today and the body of William Daly, 50, was found on a Bowery street where he had died of exposure.

Exploding stoves accounted for three deaths and injuries to one. In Rensselaer, New York, Mrs. Otis T. Crane, 54, and her mother-in-law, Mrs. Viola Crane, 81, were killed when a coal stove exploded today. Bertrand Crane, 16, was injured when he jumped from a window at the explosion. In Yonkers, N. Y., Timothy Spillane, 65, was burned to death when his oil heated exploded.

The coldest temperature reported today was at Tupper Lake, New York, where the mercury went to 28 degrees below zero. Saranac Lake was almost as cold with 24 below.

In New York city the temperature went to seven degrees above zero and hung close to that point all day with a strong wind increasing the suffering among the homeless. Several thousand persons were cared for at the municipal lodging house and at numerous missions throughout the city.

The cold was intense in Pennsylvania, the foresight of the Associated Charities at Bellefonte, Pa., in providing poor families with coal just before Christmas prevented much suffering there although the mercury dropped to five degrees below zero today.

Low temperatures were recorded throughout New England, the lowest being an unofficial report of 27 degrees below zero at West Stewartstown, New Hampshire, near the Canadian line. Several other New Hampshire towns near the Vermont border reported temperatures from 21 to 24 below zero. Northfield, Vermont, reported 14 below. At Boston, the lowest reading today was 5 below, at New Haven, 6 above and at Eastport, Maine, 2 below. Waterville, Maine, reported 8 below.

New Jersey experienced temperatures no lower than 5 degrees above zero which was reported at Somerville, but zero temperatures were predicted for tomorrow.

Temperatures in Ohio reached 10 degrees below zero and the middle west generally received no more encouragement from the weather man than did the Atlantic seaboard. The mercury was expected to hit ten degrees below in Chicago tonight. More than 300 fire alarms were rung in there last night and today with loss estimated at $1,000,000. Most of the fires were caused by overheated heating equipment.

Four surveyors, waist deep in the mud and icy water of the Mud Flats in Staten Island Bay, where they stuck after attempting to wade ashore when their rowboat grounded, were rescued today by two policemen who carried them to a hospital in a serious condition from exposure. The men had planned to survey Raritan Bay and Princess Bay for the installation of buoy lights when their rowboat grounded and stuck fast. Attempting to wade to shore, it took them four hours to progress about 400 feet, and when about 50 feet from shore they were so weakened they could not progress further.

MANY JEWS SUSTAIN RABBI STEPHEN E. WISE

NEW YORK, Dec. 27—(AP)—The controversy among Jewish leaders over the speech of Rabbi Stephen E. Wise last Sunday in which he said that Jesus of Nazareth was not a myth but a man, and that the Jews must embrace his teachings, was the foremost topic today in Jewish religious circles.

While Dr. Nathan Krass of the temple Emanu-El, in a sermon before his congregation, was upholding the right of Dr. Wise to his personal opinions concerning Jesus, the national headquarters of the United Palestine appeal announced that scores of telegrams were being received from all parts of the country in protest against the resignation of Dr. Wise as chairman of the $5,000,000 campaign which is being conducted.

The announcement said that Orthodox rabbis and presidents of Orthodox synagogues joined with other Zionist leaders in urging the executive committee of the campaign to refuse to accept Dr. Wise's resignation, which he tendered on the ground that it might be to the interest of the appeal if he withdrew. The messages also criticised the resolution of the union of Orthodox rabbis demanding the chairman's resignation, the announcement said.

Samuel Untermyer, president of the Palestine Foundation fund, one of the bodies engaged in the campaign, came out in support of Dr. Wise in a letter, containing assurances that he would vote and use [illegible] influence I may possess against [illegible] Dr. Untermyer stated that the attack against Dr. Wise could not be "justified or excused."

Dr. Krass in his sermon termed as "bigoted and vicious" the attacks against Dr. Wise, and held that the utterances which caused the controversy were not inconsistent with the fundamental tenets of Judaism some of the teachings of Jesus, Dr. Krass said, were in complete harmony with Jewish teachings. He upheld the right of Dr. Wise to express his personal opinions and beliefs.

"The Jewish," said Dr. Krass, "deny and always have denied that Jesus of Nazareth was the Messiah, or the son of God, or God himself, or that he was divine even in an attenuated sense, in a unique manner. This is the only authoritive view held by Israel regarding Jesus."

$150,000 DAMAGE CAUSED BY FIRE IN WALLINGFORD

WALLINGFORD, Dec. 27.—(AP)—Two buildings containing seven stores in the business district of Wallingford were destroyed by fire early this morning. The loss to the structure and contents was estimated at more than $150,000.

Obtaining a good headway before being discovered at 1.20 o'clock, after starting probably in an overheated furnace, the flames quickly enveloped the building and resisted for several hours the efforts of firemen, who worked in near-zero weather to keep them from spreading over a greater area.

The places of business burned were, the D. E. Hall company, Meriden, branch furniture store; a small lunch room conducted by Charles Lucks; the Kennedy News company; L. Goldberg's shoe store; Tom Rowdies barber shop; Sam Levs' meat market, and Charles Eliffherians pocket billiard parlor.

The building, owned by Samuel Kerr, a two story structure, was burned to the ground, only a shell of the other, a three story building, owned by Mrs. Elizabeth Y. Morse, of Hartford, remaining upright when the flames had been spent.

M. J. Smith, manager of the Hall company store, who had been sleeping on the second floor, was aroused by Police Officer Tierney, who called to him after he had been driven back down the stairs by flames and smoke. Mr. Smith crawled through a window onto a roof, and was assisted to the ground, suffering somewhat from smoke and exposure.

INCREASE IN EARNINGS OF THE NEW HAVEN ROAD

NEW YORK, Dec. 27—(AP)—Rehabilitation of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad's earning power is reflected in its report of $860,674 net income for November, bringing the total for the eleven months up to $9,-682,348 compared with only $2,439,764 in the corresponding period of 1924. The increase in the November net over the same month a year ago was $246,-709 while gross revenues were $731,835 larger.

GIRL RODE IN N. Y. SUBWAY TWO DAYS WITHOUT FOOD

NEW YORK, Dec. 27—(AP)—After riding in a subwgay without food for two days 14-year-old Bertha Futell, of 79 Grinnell street, New Bedford Mass., attracted the attention of a woman passenger today by her apparent desolation and was turned over to the authorities.

The girl said she had run away from home when her mother remarried last month.

Beautiful Woman Slain in Bridgep[illegible]

Sarah Lussier, 32, Who in 1919 Was Convicted of Murder of George McCarthy in Moosup.

BRIDGEPORT, Dec. 27—(AP)—Twenty-four hours after the murder of beautiful Sarah Lussier, 32, who was found dead in a squalid house at 61 Evitts Lane, last night at 9 o'clock, with two bullet wounds in her body police were tonight drawing the net of circumstantial evidence about Joseph Descresante, 31, with whom the woman had been living for the past three years.

Throughout the early morning hours the questioning of Decresante never ceased. The man was apprehended by five detectives less than three hours after a general alarm had been sent out over the city and state for the man wanted as the suspected murderer of the woman, whose past, as revealed in letters and scrap books, comprised many stations in life.

The man appeared to be in a daze so far as knowing anything about the murder when questioned by the officers, although otherwise he appeared cool and collected. Not until the news was broken to him that the woman was dead did his reserve break and for a few minutes tears coursed down his cheeks.

Anna Gray, of the Brooklawn section, a pretty 20-year-old girl who is being detained at police headquarters as a material witness and an old man well over sixty, a carpenter, whom the police are searching for in the belief that he was present in the house when the shooting took place, are also involved. Tony Greco, 29, a friend of both Decresante and of Anna Gray is also being held as a material witness.

The murdered woman, whose identity was established by newspaper clippings of her trial for murder of George McCarthy in Moosup, in 1919 is of French Canadian parentage through papers found in a satchel it is been established by the police that she is a descendant of a well-to-do French family who settled on the border line of Connecticut and Rhode Island many years ago.

Tragedy stalked through Sarah Lussier's life She first married George Humphreys, who conducted a store in which he was found dead. Death was ascribed to natural causes. On April 20, 1914, she married Napoleon A. Lussier, or Lussier. In 1919 she was living in Moosup with him. George McCarthy, of that town is said to have insulted one of her children. She called at his home, drew out a knife and plunged it into McCarthy, killing him.

Tried for murder before Judge William M. Maltbie, she was found guilty and in 1919 started a term of from twelve to fifteen years in state's prison.

Her husband petitioned for divorce on the ground that his wife was a convicted felon and a decree was granted.

In the state prison she wrote poetry in a scrap book she recorded the entry of Mrs. Ethel Nott when she began a life term in 1919 for killing her husband, George.

On November 27, 1922, a man named Edward Lussier, believed to be her brother-in law, wrote to the late Charles E. Searls, then state's attorney for Windham county, asking that the state's attorney not oppose her petition for pardon. Searls agreed, adding in his letter that there were mitigating circumstances in connection with her killing of McCarthy.

After being released from prison she went to New York and to Newark, N. J. There she took lessons in acting and secured work after, as an actress. She also wrote a story which was submitted to a woman's magazine but was refused for lack of color.

A letter from Edward H. Lassieur of Westerly, R. I., supposedly her brother-in law, read: "Even though you are not appreciated by some, I can never, never forget what you did for me. You were like a mother. We are all praying for the best."

A will was also found in which the murdered woman was named a beneficiary. The document gave her $250 a month.

At the time of her death the woman wore expensive and stylish clothing including a seal skin coat, handsome gown and silken under garments.

Was a Model Prisoner

HARTFORD, Dec. 27—(AP)—Sarah L. Lussier was said today by the authorities at the state prison in Wethersfield to have been a model prisoner. She was employed chiefly in the laundry. Prison records show she was a mulatto, 41 years old. She never gave evidence of having a literary bent, but she spoke at times of her experience as a circus performer.

NEW HAVEN ATTORNEY SUICIDED BY SHOOTING

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 27—(AP)—The body of Sidney C. Rosenberg, New Haven attorney, was found in his automobile in a lonely section of the town of Orange late today. He had shot himself through the head and a revolver was found frozen in his hand. Mr. Rosenberg, a graduate of Yale college and the Yale Law school, had been in ill health for some time. The body was discovered by Russell Harnett, of Orange, as the latter was driving his automobile through a road from Orange to Woodmont. He saw an automobile parked at the side of the road not far from the Milford turnpike near the Shaw property and upon investigation found the body.

The body was frozen and it is believed that the attorney had been dead an hour and a half before his act was discovered. Both the radiator and motor of Mr. Rosenberg's car were frozen solid.

STORM WARNING ISSUED BY THE WEATHER BUREAU

"Advisory. 9:30 a. m. northwest warnings, Cape Hatteras to Boston Mass. Strong northwest winds, probably reaching gale force today and otnight."

Belding Bros. & Co., and the Heminway Silk Co. Have Been Combined as the Belding-Heminway Co.

NEW YORK, Dec. 27—(AP)—A $20,000,000 silk merger, uniting Belding Bros. & Co., and the Heminway Silk company, two of the oldest and largest silk thread manufacturers in the United States, was announced tonight.

The consolidation involved an outright purchase by the Belding interests of the Heminway company, which has total assets exceeding $5,000,000.

The enlarged concern, which will be known as the Belding-Heminway company, will have total assets of more than $20,000,000, estimated annual sales of approximately $16,000,000 and estimated net earnings of $2,000,000, based on the past year's showing.

$100,000,000 IN MOTOR VEHICLES IN CONNECTICUT

HARTFORD, Dec. 27—(AP)—Investments in motor vehicles in Connecticut this year total approximately $100,000,000, the state motor vehicle department has determined by applying to the total number of registered vehicles the latest average of assessed valuation for the state. Motor vehicle taxes and fees paid in Connecticut thus far this year, exclusive of federal taxes, and incidental fees, aggregate, as nearly as can be approximated, $6,722,017. Of this amount the towns and cities in which the motor vehicles are owned received about $2,100,000 and the state about $4,622,000.

The motor vehicle department annually forwards to the board of assessors in each town a list of the automobiles registered by people in that town during the year. This is to prevent evasion of payment of the property tax. The money paid by the motor vehicle owners to their own municipalities is used for general governmental purposes in their home towns. What they pay to the state is used exclusively for the improvement and extension of the state highways.

HOLIDAY TRADE WAS A RECORD BREAKER

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—By The A. P.)—Holiday trade of record breaking proportions reached its peak last week in a last minute rush of Christmas buying, stimulated by generous distributions of dividends, bonuses and other remeriders of prosperity although statistics measuring the volume of business are not yet available, preliminary reports from many sources indicate an increase of 10 to 20 per cent. over last year's sales.

The expanded activities in the retail field were easily the dominating feature of the business situation. In other lines of trade and industry buying interest slackened and preparations for the year-end taking of inventories reduced the manufacturing output.

GREATEST BATTLES EVER FOUGHT IN MODERN CHINA

General Li Estimated His Dead at 4,000 and Declared That the Enemy's Loss Was Greater—Thousands Died in the Trenches and Open Country From Wounds and Exposure—General Kuo Sung-Ling Was Executed After His Defeat at Mukden.

PEKING, Dec. 27—(AP)—The battles which led to the defeat of the Chihli army of General Li Ching-Ling and the occupation of Tientsin by Marshal Feng Yu-Hsiang, were the most sanguinary ever fought in modern China, in the opinion of observers. Twenty-three hundred wounded in the Nanyuan hospital alone doubtless represent only a small proportion of the Kuominchin (Feng's army) casualties, whose total probably will never be known.

General Li is reported to have estimated his dead at 4,000 and to have boasted that his was smaller than the enemy's.

Because of the nature of the conflicts and the inadequate field and hospital service, thousands died in the trenches and open country from wounds and exposure.

The reports of the reverses suffered by General Kuo Sung-Ling, who was executed after his defeat by Marshal Chang Tso-Lin around Mukden open up a new chapter, since with hostile forces north and south of Tientsin, the tenure of the Kuominchun is questionable. It is not expected, however, that any attempt will be made to recapture Tientsin because of the exhaustion of resources on all sides. It is believed that railway service will be reopened to Tientsin at an early date.

SIX MASTED SCHOONER WAS BURNED AT PORTLAND, ME

PORTLAND, Me., Dec. 27.—(AP)—The Edward J. Lawrence, the last six masted on the Atlantic coast and one of the few remaining on the seven seas, was destroyed by fire today while at anchor in Portland harbor. Tonight the craft became its own funeral pyre as she lay flaming aground off Fort Geroges reef.

The origin of the fire was undetermined. The caretaker was ashore. The last fire on the vessel was Thursday when it was carefully banked. Firemen believe, however, that heated ashes started the blaze, which had gained headway when discovered.

The Edward J. Lawrence was built at Bath, Maine, early in 1908 at a cost of $150,000. She was sold to the Prince Canada company early in the war at a cost of about $250,000. A Portland syndicate purchased her three years ago for $25,000. At a United States marshal's sale on April 24 of this year she brought $3,350. The Portland men who got her later sold the craft at an advance to the Morecraft Construction company of New York. She had a gross tonnage of 3,350, was 320 feet long with a beam of 50 feet.

WERE MAROONED ON AN ISLAND IN QUINCY BAY

BOSTON, Dec. 27—(AP)—Marooned since Christmas day on Hangman's Island in Quincy Bay almost within sight of their homes, two Wollaston men, George During and Henry Wheeler, were brought ashore today by the crew of the Hull coastguard station. The men went to the island to bag a brace of ducks for their Christmas dinner, but rising seas prevented their launching their dory for the return trip and their distress fire, fed from the boards of a hunting shack that they pulled down, was not sighted until late Saturday.

They saw police and coast guardsmen searching for them for hours before Captain Lynch of the Hull coast guard station found them, suffering from cold and exposure. The coast guardsmen were unable to get them off the island until early today, owing to the high seas. The men were fed and warmed at the Hull station and sent home later. Their condition was not serious.

SPANISH SOLDIERS ARE REPAIRING DEFENSES

TETUAN, Spanish Morocco, Dec. 27—(AP)—Spanish soldiers are engaged in repairing the damage done to their defenses by the storm and torrential rains which swept over Morocco during the last few days.

The Ceuta-Tetuan railway has been repaired but the road to Tangier is still impassable. The Spanish position at Laucien had to be evacuated because of high water, the breastworks being washed away. The position Sanla Sultan is inundated and the Spanish garrison isolated. Several stockhouses were carried away by the onrushing waters.

FEAR FOR SAFETY OF TWO PORTLAND SCHOONERS

PORTLAND, ME., Dec. 27—(AP)—Two Portland four masted schooners, the Cora F. Cressy and the Bright, which left Boston together three weeks ago bound for Norfolk, have not been heard from, and fear for their safety is expressed here. Captain Charles W. Griffin is in command of the Cressy and he has a crew of eleven. The Bright sailed under Captain A. L. Warner of Boston and had a crew of ten. Both crews were shipped at Boston.

Heavy gales were reported 48 hours after the schooners left port and the weather has been rough most of the time since their sailing.

HEAVY TOLL OF DAMAGE BY STORMS IN FRANCE

PARIS, Dec. 27—(AP)—The storms of which have brought destruction to many parts of France in the past week, continue, adding to the heavy toll of damage. At La Rochelle a fishing boat foundered, and the crew of seven is missing. Rivers in the southeastern departments are already swollen by the rapidly melting snows in the mountains and in many cases are over their banks, with serious flooding of villages.

The Seine, fed by the heavy rains, mounted rapidly today and fear is expressed that, if there is no cessation of the downfall in the next twenty-four hours, very extensive damage may result.

The Rhone river is mounting rapidly and some of the lower residential quarters of Lyons are inundated. At St. Rambert, near Bourg, the river Albarine has risen more than six feet in two days and is at its highest point in forty years.

Conditions are bad at Chambery, Charolles, Aix-Les-Bains, and Chatons sur-Saone, with little hope of early amelioration. Train schedule generally are not badly interrupted, but telephone and telegraph services in some districts are completely broken down.

MAY CHANGE METHODS OF INTERSTATE BUSINESS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27—(AP)—A new federal law becoming effective Jan. 1 which will permit establishment of arbitral tribunals in both domestic and foreign trade to settle business disputes by agreement between the parties concerned and keep many disagreements out of the courts may in the opinion of Secretary Hoover and others interested, effect far-reaching changes in methods of interstate business.

Studies made for Mr. Hoover by the commerce department have convinced him, he said in a statement today, that lawyers, jurists and "the substantial element of the American business public is overwhelmingly in favor of the plan.

Business houses individually, trade associations, boards of trade, or exchanges will be empowered by the measure to set up the new arbitration machinery.

"For the same purpose that a committee of communists from Great Britain visited Russia and sought to make the world believe that the Soviet government was representative of the people."

With this controversy once settled Green said labor will enjoy a year without serious discord.

Manufacturing and business will continue on a satisfactory basis and show gradual improvements: wages will be maintained on a high level and relationships between the employer and employe will improve, Green declared.

"The textile, shoe, bituminous, coal and some branches of the pottery industry have been suffering from lack of demand for their products," he continued. "I believe they have passed through their worst period and that 1926 will find them working more steadily."

FIVE MORE ARRESTS— ONE "CARRIER-BOOTLEGGER"

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 27—Illicit liquor operators in Willimantic suffered heavily over Christmas and the week-end, when eleven of their number were placed under arrest, six having already been brought to trial and fined and five being apprehended Saturday night and early Sunday morning. This quintet will be given trial in police court Monday morning. They are Raymond Deroslers, Harry Barrows, Fred Chalifoux, Frank St. Martin and Henry Potvin. Actual sale charges are held against all of these. St. Martin's home was the only one of the five which yielded a quantity of liquor.

The raids were made by two crews of officers who were busy from 10:30 o'clock Saturday night to 12:30 Sunday morning before, their work was completed in rounding up the last batch of violators. The raiders were divided into two crews, one consisting of County Detective William E Jackson, Federal Officer William S Congdon and Lieutenant of Police Frank McLean and the second comprising Federal Officer Stanton L. Briggs, and Police Officers Roderick Lariviere and Grant Bombria.

The first call was at the store and home of Raymond Deroslers, corner of Ash and Main streets in lower village. No liquor was found, but the proprietor was held on a sale charge.

Harry Barrows of 87 Willowbrook street, in lower village, was placed under arrest on a sale charge. No liquor was found in his home. Barrows conducts an auto express, running from this city to Providence and other points.

Fred Chalifoux of Temple street was arrested on a charge of actual sale, after a fruitless search for liquor at his home Chalifoux admitted that he was a "carrier-bootlegger" his business being to receive customers at his home and then go out to some moonshine joint and bring back the order

A one-gallon can of alcohol, several recently one-gallon cans and a large basket filled with empty bottles were taken from his home.

Judge Foss imposed a fine of $100 and costs on each count amounting to $212.15, and added a five-day suspended jail sentence. A third count of reputation was dropped Shamback, who has been recognized as the leading bootlegger in the city paid up his assessment and informed the court one arrest was enough for him and from now on he was through with the business.

Burt Armstrong, who was arrested while he was in the cell room of the police headquarters visiting Mrs. Rose Spencer, who is being detained there awaiting the payment of her fine of $200 imposed Christmas day morning for liquor law violation, was charged with procuring liquor for sale and actual sale. He pleaded guilty and was fined $100 on the first count and $5 on the second. His total assessment was $160.15. Armstrong is employed on a train running between this city and Providence.

The 1925 mail business at Williman tic postoffice shattered all previous records, the delivery of first class mail having increased 20 per cent. over 1924 and over 3,200 sacks of parcel post matter being handled during the rush. The foreign money order business was the largest in history and estimated at 50 per cent. greater than in 1924. During the two closing days of the rush 61,000 pieces of first class mail were run through the stamping machine and over 12,000 pieces of outgoing mail matter of this kind were also handled in the rush Over 300 pieces of special delivery mail were handled Postmaster Frank M Smith was very grateful, at the close of the Christmas run of mail, for the excellent cooperation of every employe of the postoffice. That all of the boys worked and worked hard during the day and up to late evenings goes without saying. All the carriers, rural, city and parcel post employes were exceedingly busy men and well deserved a vacation on Christmas day A remarkable fact is that but one piece of mail remained to be delivered Saturday. This was a half dozen silver plated knives and forks wrapped in a piece of light blue contan flannel bearing a small card which said, "Mother to Ethel" The cloth and contents were found in one of the sacks without answering and the claimant is being sought.

He released without court proceedings. Later Wednesday he was again picked up and in court Thursday morning he was fined $10 and costs, amounting to $18.15 which he paid. He said he would start back for Chicago immediately but Thursday afternoon found him again in the cell room, this time with only fifty dollars to his name. In police court Christmas morning he pleaded guilty to intoxication and was fined $15 and costs amounting to $23.15. He paid this amount and promised the court that he would be out of town in twenty-four hours. He said he was going to work on a construction job in Springfield and had just enough money to get there. He left the station house in a hurry, but the alcohol called to him and he lacked the strength to deny it At five o'clock Chief of Police McArthur brought Tracy in again, this being his fifth time in the cell room in as many days and his fourth arrest. DANIELSON

WINDHAM CO. NAT'L. BANK CLOSES PROFITABLE YEAR

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Dec. 27—Saturday the directors of the Windham county National bank at their regular meeting declared the regular semi-annual dividend at the rate of 8 per cent., per annum, and in addition have added to their surplus the sum of $25,000. The year now closing is reported by the cashier as having proven the best year in the bank's history. In addition to the dividend paid stockholders at the rate of 8 per cent., per annum, the bank has paid, the liberal dividend rate of 4 1-2 per cent., to depositors in the savings department. Over and above this the institution has carried to its surplus fund $50,000, a most remarkable showing for this bank.

EASTFORD FIDDLER AT 78 ELIGIBLE FOR BIG CONTEST

DANIELSON, Dec. 27—Maybe Windham county has some old-time fiddlers? One must inquire to know, not knowing otherwise. This is suggested by the fact that an All-New England fiddlers' contest is scheduled to be held in Providence, under the auspices of the Town Criers, January 4

This is to be an effort to gather the old time wielders of the bow in Roger Williams' bailiwick at one time and one place presumably for the purpose of showing up Mellie Dunham—or is it Red Grange?—fame is now so fleeting and little worth while.

Any fiddler living in New England and being at least 40 years of age is eligible to enter the contest. Jonathan Whitford, 73, of Eastford, should be a contestant in this event, but there is no present indication that he will be present. But possibly there are other Windham county men to stand in his place and fiddle a championship of New England into some part of Windham county. A gold medal is to be presented to the winner of the contest, who will be termed the official fiddle champion of New England. A generous purse also will be given to the champion. Applications of fiddlers who want to try for the honor and the gold are to be mailed to The Town Crier Fiddle Contest committee, P. O Box 947, Providence, R. I.

Now, listen, Mr. Cloud Digger! Back in September you said this, during the course of a six months' weather forecast: "The last four days of December, unsettled weather with a warm wave the very last of the month running over into January." When we reviewed this at 2.47 Sunday afternoon with a thermometer outside registering just 8 degrees above zero, we were tempted to be a bit skeptical and peevish and inclined to complain that weather forecasts are unreliable anyway. But possibly this is unfair. This is the first of the last four days of December. If there is a warm wave playing havoc with things this (Monday) morning anywhere in the east something to please the Cloud Digger mightily will be said in compensation for the nagging this item may seem to contain. We are willing to wait and see what happens!

One can't be too previous about broadcasting compliments. A case in point is what was said in this column Saturday morning about there being no arrests here during the holiday season up to sunset Christmas afternoon. Like the weather, things in life change rapidly sometimes. Saturday morning four people—one of them a woman—were in the town court charged with either intoxication or breach of the peace and in some instances with both. Fines, costs and a jail sentence figured in the disposition of the cases.

The lone woman—deservedly—fared worst in the distribution of justice. She is Mary Kanina, of Goodyear, and she drew as a holiday gift a total of 210 days in jail—30 for having been intoxicated and 180 for breach of the peace. It will be no novelty for Mary to spend some months in jail. She, it was stated Sunday, has served three other jail sentences during the current year and has been arrested about a score of times. She hails from Willimantic, something one may be hoped to be excused for mentioning by the great numbers of good people who live in that city.

Columbus Smith, a native of Canterbury and long engaged in farming there, died early Sunday morning at the home of his sister, Mrs. C. H. Pellett, with whom he was spending the winter season, having come here in September from Norwich, where he had been making his home with his son Clarence D. Smith.

Mr. Smith had been ill for a number of days. At the week-end his condition became critical and Saturday practically all hope for his recovery had been abandoned. Mr. Smith was born in Canterbury, January 28, 1843, a son of Walter and Susan Waldo Smith. He had lived there during practically all his life, spending his active years as a tiller of the soil. He leaves his son, Charles D., of Norwich, and his sister, Mrs. C. H. Pellett, of Danielson.

Zero weather! For the first time this season, winter spouted its Arctic venom on Sunday and set humanity to shivering as a general proposition and some proportion of it to shoveling coal in greater quantities than coal buyers care to indulge in after a Christmas gift-giving season. Thermometers that are more or less reliable said at 7 o'clock Sunday morning, that it was 8 below zero in Danielson. Then came the Sunday papers with tales of the cold wave in the west and the comforting prediction that it will probably be 10 degrees colder than that this (Monday) morning. Well, the public is accustomed to weather predictions and, if they are unfavorable, always regard them with hope. Perhaps it will be frightfully hot here today. Perhaps it will not. Anyway, the icemen will tell you that Sunday's was perfectly good weather.

Officers of the Voiture—the Shriners, possibly, of the American Legion—have in this territory elected the following officers: Chief De Gare, A DeForrest; chef de train, Joseph Buton; correspondent, Bernard Casey; commissaire intendent, Ira A. Warren; conducteur, Clarence Reade; garde de la porte, Royal Choquette; garde de prisonneirs, Almour Grennon, Leon Bradley, Merrill Keith; cheminot locale, Albert Redman, John Reardon Eguide Desauniers. This organization represents various legion posts in northeastern Connecticut.

In these closing days of the year Killingly is complacent. Industrially, it is well set, as the boys of the day say in describing things that please them. There is no more than individual hardship here. In fact, one might mention that there is much money available for luxuries, not to mention the necessities of life. If Killingly can be as prosperous always and on the whole as it is today, there are those who will doubt that the inhabitants of the proverbial land of milk and honey—or was it home brew and crackers—had much on this town. May Killingly never be less prosperous! Its history is worthy of great good for all who live within its boundaries.

This week promises in Danielson to be much like last week—four days of work and another holiday season starting Thursday night—the eve of the new year. Much has been planned for the last of the real holiday periods until spring comes again. Danielson will have Watch Night services, and things far removed from such serious contemplation. It will have dances and dinner parties and the goings and comings that are incident to the passing of an old year and the birth of a new one.

This is one of the days on which owners of motor cars registered in New York state, may drive under 1926 numbers. The Connecticut motor vehicles authorities have agreed, with these administering like services for the state of New York that this state will recognize the arrangement. In turn, anyone hereabouts who has license plates for 1926, may put them on next Thursday—December 31—and no one in authority will say aught about it. It is going to be a bit easier all around this year for people who want to go somewhere New Year's eve and with the possibility of not getting back into Connecticut before January 1. That's better. There used to be a great deal of quibbling over nothing at all.

The observing public did not note anyone going up on Orient Heights to keep warm Sunday afternoon, if you know what's going on in town! A bonfire at times does some good and at other times gives thousands—not hundreds—a laugh.

Harry Warren writes from Miami of the congestion and turmoil of the hundreds of thousands who are trying to crowd into the alleged Eldorado for the winter. He says that it is almost impossible to get mail from the postoffice, so long are the lines of waiting people and so great the accumulation of mail matter. That sounds worse than cold weather.

A break in the hard coal strike is something that does not interest some people in the degree that was to be expected three or four years ago. The territory where hard coal comes from is regarded as rivaling the territory of the Kilkenny cats for turmoil and constant wrangling. Ten or twelve generations of New Englanders got along without hard coal from Pennsylvania, and ten or twelve more can do it if they have to.

At all the masses at St. James' church Sunday, announcements were made as to the special masses on New Year's day. The first of these masses will be at 5:30 a. m.

HE "MAKES UP" FIRST THAT LADY'S COMPLEXION MAY FIT

NEW YORK, Dec. 27—(AP)—A gentleman may defer to a lady and let her precede him in most matters, but when it comes to "making up" for the movies, John Gilbert says the honor has a reverse twist.

"If two persons playing scenes together make up independently, the make-ups might clash," explained Gilbert, who appears with Lillian Gish in La Boheme, a forthcoming M-G-M picture from the novel which made the opera famous. "If the gentleman makes up first, the lady may look at it and make up to suit.

'Otherwise she might have the trouble of altering her complexion—and no gentleman would put a lady to that inconvenience."

PUTNAM

REAR ADMIRAL GOODRICH DIES AT PRINCETON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Dec. 27—The people of Putnam and Pomfret learn with regret of the death of Carpar F. Goodrich, 78, Rear Admiral, U. S. N., retired, which occurred Saturday at his home at Princeton, N. J. From 1910 to 1915 he was a resident of Pomfret and had been an occasional visitor since then at the beautiful country house of which he retained ownership. During his eight years here he took an active interest in local civic affairs and was a constant contributor to local newspapers, and hardly a month passed that a contribution by him on national happenings, particularly on what referred to the navy was not found in national periodicals.

He had one of the most forceful personalities in the navy, whether on the active or retired list.

It was known by his friends here that he was ill but his death was unexpected although he was in his 79th year. During the period that he lived here he had the energy and activity of a man of fifty.

He was the ranking rear admiral when he retired in 1909. He was then in command of the New York Navy yard and had spent 45 years in the service, 20 of them on shipboard. He was a native of Philadelphia and entered the Naval academy in 1861, after it had been removed to Newport because of the activity of the Confederate army in Maryland. His class was rushed through in three years, Goodrich graduating at the head of it when only 17. In the fall of 1864 he saw action against the Confederacy on the old Macedonian. He was thus one of the last officers commissioned in the Civil war.

As midshipmah and ensign, Goodrich was assigned to various old fashioned warships in various navy yards. He made an exhaustive study of gunnery and later of torpedo work. In the eighties, he was special inspector of ordnance and head of the Torpedo board. While a captain, he became president of the Naval War college at Newport for the session of 1897-98. He had collaborated with Admiral Luce in founding the war college.

When the war with Spain began, command of the cruisers St. Louis and Newark was given him and he set out on a cable-cutting expedition. May 14, 1898, the St. Louis cut the cable to Jamaica at Santiago. The cable cutting squadron ran within 2,500 yards of the shore batteries and virtually silenced the i with small calibre guns.

Next Captain Goodrich ed the landing of 16,000 men in five days on the southern coast of Cuba, where there were no lighters to aid in the task. In July, 1898, he landed troops in Porto Rico and later took part of Manzanillo, Cuba. After the war he returned to the War college and later commanded successively the League Island and Portland Navy yards.

Early in 1905 he was advanced to Rear Admiral and took command of the Pacific squadron, with the cruiser Chicago, flag ship. On the morning of April 19, 1906, the Chicago received a wireless message, San Francisco has been destroyed by earthquake and is in flames." Within 48 hours Admiral Goodrich's men were helping General Funston to control the situation in the stricken city.

Goodrich was naval attache in London when James Russell Lowell was U. S. ambassador. Mr. Lowell presented him his own annotated copy of Dante. The Admiral's native taste and his service abroad developed in him a wide interest in the language and literature of many peoples. These interests he continued to foster even when he turned his attention to the technical problems of the Navy and especially to the reorganization of navy yards along modern lines.

The Spanish admiral, Cervera, after the destruction of the Spanish fleet at Santiago was for a time a prisoner in Admiral Goodrich's charge, and it is characteristic of the fine spirit of the American officer that this relationship developed into a friendship.

During the World war Admiral Goodrich re-entered service as commandant of the Princeton University Units in 1917; in recent years he has been one of the principal contributors to the naval journals and reviews.

Admiral Goodrich was for many years president of the Naval institute. He received the honorary degree of M. A. from Yale in 1885 and D. S. from Princeton in 1919.

He is survived by his widow and two daughters, one the wife of Col. C. T Davis of the British army; the other Mrs. J. C. Brennan of New York. His only son, Caspar F. Goodrich Jr., a graduate of the Naval academy, was killed by an explosion of the battleship Georgia in 1907.

BUILDING CONTRACTOR FINDS WINTER CONSTRUCTION BOOMS

LONDON, Dec. 27—(AP)—Eighteen has been whipped by the building contractor, and the increasing volume of contracts being let for winter construction indicate that its advantages are becoming better appreciated.

A survey by W. J. Lynch, vice-president of a large contracting firm, disclosed that one of the principal advantages of winter construction was that the more constant employment attracted better artisans, and tended to avoid the peak demand of high wages and scarcity of labor experienced every summer.

"There is little, if any difference in the amount of time lost between winter season and milder season work," Lynch said. "Delay due to severe cold and heavy snows does not amount to more than a week's time on a building and equal delays due to rain in the milder season seem to have been overlooked.

"It will be conceded generally that the quality of the work in winter will be unimpaired, but it is urged that the cost will be prohibitive. The cost of heating materials for concreting on a million dollar job will run less than one per cent and the cost of heat for interior work rarely exceeds one-half of one percent of the building's cost.

"One of the reasons for high wages in the building industry is the tremendous turnover and the contention of various trades that workmen have only seasonal employment due to the nature of the industry. Furthermore, scarcity of employment in the winter months is a deterrent to potential mechanics who would readily enter the trades were there an all season demand for their labor.

"The practice of letting contracts during all periods of the year would give greater utilization to the business instrumentalities of the industry."

The Hidden Dinner

Watch and wait. Watch and wait.
Thus, mayhap, we govern fate.
—Terror the Goshawk.

Jumper the Hare and Mrs. Grouse and Mr. Grouse have been neighbors so long that should anything happen to one the others would feel the loss very much indeed. So Jumper was worried, because everywhere he went he saw nothing of Mr. or Mrs. Grouse, and he knew that somewhere in the Green Forest was Terror the Goshawk, who had come down from the North. He knew, too, that there is nothing Terror is so fond of as Grouse, fond of to eat, I mean. So Jumper was filled with a great fear that either Terror already had caught those Grouse or would catch them. You see, he was fearful that they didn't know of Terror's arrival.

He knew that if Chatterer the Red Squirrel or Happy Jack the Gray Squirrel or Whitefoot the Wood Mouse should see Mr. or Mrs. Grouse they would give warning, but this didn't set his mind at rest, and he kept on looking. Finally he saw Sammy Jay.

"Hello, old Long-ears!" cried Sammy.

"Shhh-h," said Jumper, looking this way and that way, every way, anxiously.

Sammy stared at him. Then he began to make fun of him. "Just as scary as ever, I see!" he jeered at the top of his voice.

Jumper looked all about more anxiously than ever. "Shhh-h," said he again. "Terror the Goshawk is somewhere about."

Sammy Jay had his mouth open to jeer at Jumper again, but he closed it now without making a sound. You should have seen him look this way and look that way. Then he flew down near Jumper. "Are you sure?" he demanded.

"Absolutely," replied Jumper. "He tried to catch me."

"I find I have an engagement over in the Old Orchard near Farmer Brown's house," said Sammy, still speaking very softly. Then, without another word, he disappeared toward the Old Orchard, and if you could have seen him go I am sure you would have said that he was a frightened bird.

Jumper watched him disappear, then started on to search for Mr. and Mrs. Grouse. The snow was quite deep and soft. Jumper had no trouble, because of his big feet with hair between the long toes, which made them much like snowshoes. He was just about to poke his head out from under a hemlock limb when there was a roar of wings just ahead of him and he saw two brown forms plunge down from a tree into the snow and disappear. And almost on the tail of one was a great bird with legs stretched and great curved claws ready to seize that brown form. The snow flew in a cloud, quite hiding Terror the Goshawk, for that is who the great bird was. Jumper held his breath and his heart seemed to him to stop beating as he waited to see Terror rise. Would he have Mr. or Mrs. Grouse in those great claws? Would he?

It seemed a long time, though really it was hardly any time at all, before up rose Terror with—nothing in his claws. He had missed that Grouse in the snow. Such a disappointed look as there was in Terror's eyes. He flew to a limb just above and there he perched to keep watch. He was watching for some little movement to tell him where one, at those Grouse was. But there was no movement. No, sir, there wasn't the teeniest, weeniest movement. Mr. and Mrs. Grouse had been hunted before, and they knew enough to let well enough alone. They had no intention of giving themselves away. It was almost dark anyway, and they might just as well spend the night there as anywhere. So they didn't move.

Terror has some patience, but not enough to watch and wait indefinitely. He happened to think of the henyard of Farmer Brown's boy, and decided to visit that before the hens should go in the henhouse for the night. Jumper sighed with relief as Terror disappeared over the tops of the trees.

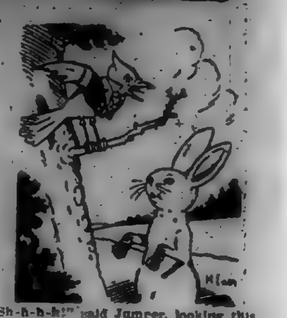
The next story: "The Good Hunter."



"Sh-h-h-h!" said Jumper, looking this way and that way—every way—anxiously

MINE EXPLOSIONS

In the search for greater safety in the coal mines attention has been directed within the past few years to the means of preventing explosions through the spreading of rock dust throughout the mines. Experiments with such treatment have been gratifying. They have made a good impression upon those who are wrestling with this problem and upon legislators who are seeking through legislation to reduce the death rate in the mines.

If rock dusting will prevent the explosion of coal dust it would appear to be a desirable practice. Some states have been prompt to insist upon such protection following large losses of life in the mines. Others have quite as good reason for action but as yet have not done so. It is one of the requirements in the English mines and it is obligatory in the state of Utah. Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Wyoming. Others which appear to be quite as much in need of similar protection have failed to act and seem to be waiting to be prodded along by a disaster which will mean the loss of many lives. It is unfortunate that the losses which occur elsewhere cannot be regarded as furnishing sufficient reason for action without waiting for, and almost inviting, disaster to call at their doors before doing something.

The loss of life is the real motive for requiring rock dusting in mines, but it is to be realized that the loss of property, loss of work, loss of production and the compensation and relief expenses all figure prominently in the reasons why rock dusting, or the prevention of coal dust explosions, should come in for greater attention.

Rock dusting costs, according to figures given, only about a cent per ton of coal mined. That is certainly reasonable enough considering the great waste that it eliminates. Disastrous explosions may not come forquently but when they do come they raise havoc and are frightfull, expensive. Prevention is far preferable and cheaper.

WHERE PHILIPPINES LOSE

The discussion which is being indulged in concerning rubber only serves to emphasize the point that while we are dependent upon other countries for our supply of raw rubber it is a condition which is unnecessary and ought not to exist. We have failed to realize the dependence of this country too late. We might today be producing the rubber we require, or at least a large part of it, but we failed to prepare for the situation that is now upon us. Instead of being independent we are dependent and we are paying a tribute to the tune of two thirds of a billion yearly for our dilatoriness.

Steps have been taken which will in time afford relief, but it is chiefly in Liberia where Firestone has begun a large, new development of rubber land that help can be expected, except in such as may come from the revival in the fields where the higher cost of production made it impossible to compete with the low cost areas.

One of the deplorable situations in connection with the rubber shortage is to be found in the Philippines where conditions are just suited to the production of this much sought product and yet the laws of the islands are such as to offer no inducement to the necessary capital. It cannot be expected that capital will invest in rubber plantations in the Philippines if it is possible for a company to own only 2500 acres while the control of all public lands, forests and mines in the islands being placed in the hands of the Philippine legislature furnishes another handicap.

In the development of the Philippines, successful rubber production would be of great benefit. The desirability of getting such an industry would seem to warrant favorable legislation and yet the situation as found by those who would have invested in such a business there is just the reverse. Capital is forced to go elsewhere to find an opportunity for breaking away from the grip of the foreign rubber monopoly.

TURKEY AND RUSSIA

When Turkey failed to get the decision in regard to Mosul it seemingly rushed into a treaty arrangement with soviet Russia as if to inform Europe and the league of nations that while it could not look to them for protection and justice it was not helpless as long as it had Russia.

Russia and Turkey make a combination that can command a large army, but when they promise not to attack each other in case one goes to war with some other country there may not be so much for Europe to worry about after all, especially if there is a demand for peace and the peace policy is to prevail.

Through these countries are neighbors they have not always been friendly ones. Russia fully recognizes the importance of the entrance to the Black sea and the desirability of having that kept open under all circumstances. Turkey has lived in fear of Russia for a long time, knowing as it did how much Russia would like Constantinople.

But how much respect is Turkey and Russia going to have for the signature of the other to the treaty? Turkey is a member of the league of nations and yet when its first test came it blankly refused to abide by the action of the league council because it anticipated that the decision would be adverse. Russia on the other hand is known to have had no consideration for the rights of others if they stood in the way of its ambitions. Signatures have meant nothing. Ordinarily it might be expected that in view of the treaty agreement it would not be necessary any longer to watch each other, but it can hardly be believed that either will take such a view.

Each may feel more secure now that they have their understanding down in black and white. Turkey hasn't however increased its prestige among the other nations and it is a question whether the new treaty is one that really causes any concern on the part of Europe or the league. It serves to show the dispositions of the nations which are directly concerned.

THE COAL CONFERENCE

More than the mining region is going to look with interest on the resumption of negotiations between the miners and operators in New York Tuesday. That doesn't mean that a settlement is going to be reached right away, but it seems to be evident that the effects of the four months strike are telling.

That the deliberations are expected to cover some time is indicated by the appeal made by the operators to the miners to go back to work at the wages which were being paid when the strike was begun. These they will agree to pay until the first of next September and in the meantime the negotiations in behalf of a settlement will go on. Production will not be further interrupted under such an arrangement.

That the miners want to get back to work is indicated by the conditions which exist, and it is disclosed by statements of those speaking for the miners. But there is no certainty that the miners have abandoned, or are ready to abandon, their leaders or their advice. They may not be as ready to accept the operators' view and the latter think they are.

To return to work now would be doing no different than the operators had sought to have them do last August. It was desired to keep the mines in operation and have the negotiations go on until a settlement was reached, the decision to be retroactive. The miners considered the strike would do the most for them, and probably it would have but for the fact that the consumers have turned quite extensively to substitutes, some abandoning anthracite entirely.

The resumption of production would of course result to the advantage of miners who are depending on soup kitchens, the operators and those who insist upon anthracite, but that gives no assurance that it will be brought about. Perhaps the miners' president will insist that the public hasn't had its rude awakening yet.

MORE WAR OR PEACE

Questions as to what France is going to do about this, that and the other thing are being freely asked these days. That country has a number of important problems to decide, and among these is its future course in regard to the war against the Riffians, or the manner in which it is going to deal with the Ruffian rebellion. According to figures which have been made public it is shown that there have been about 10,000 French troops killed or wounded as the result of the fighting that has been going on in northern Africa. That means that about one tenth of the French troops that have been involved, with no figures given for the prisoners and those missing.

France has not been making satisfactory headway most of the time it has been trying to regain control of the situation in that region, over which it holds a mandate. It is evident that the Moroccan rebels have made the most of their advantages, even though they may have lost heavily.

Much difficulty has been experienced in getting funds for the maintenance of the struggle in Morocco and the financial situation at home is such that there may be a growing disposition to adjust the situation across the Mediterranean by other means than bullets. The fight has cost much in lives and money. It is in addition to the trouble with the Druses, and France is not today in a position to finance such activities, especially since there is no financial gain at stake.

WOMEN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

To bring out the brilliancy of cut glass, add ammonia to the water in which it is to be rinsed.

Never beat or stir cereals or rice with a spoon. It makes them pasty. Use a plated silver fork.

To preserve lemons for any length of time bury them in a box of sawdust. They keep fresh for several months.

To mend a broken doll quickly bind tightly with strips of adhesive plaster. It will hold the broken parts firm for quite a while.

Prepare wood for painting by applying a very thin coat of glue size. Let it get quite hard before beginning to paint.

There is nothing more satisfactory for dusting than a piece of chamois leather that has been dampened. It gives the furniture a fresh, new look.

If new enamaled saucepans are placed in a pan of warm water and allowed to come to a boil they will last much longer, without cracking or burning, than if they are used immediately.

Adding hot milk instead of cold to mashed potatoes makes them lighter. Mash well, add salt, butter and hot milk last. Beat for a minute with a spoon.

Pails used for scrubbing should be washed and wiped perfectly clean and dry. The scrub brush and floor cloths should also be dried before returning them to their places. Wet brushes and cloths left in pails attract cockroaches.

An excellent coat hanger can be made from a portion of a wooden barrel hoop, cut to the proper length and bound well with white muslin, with a small loop of material fixed in the center by which to hang up the coat.

Crumpled artificial leaves may be made to look quite fresh again by holding them over the steam of a kettle for a few minutes. Then pull them out into shape and shake them until they are quite dry. This treatment works wonders with velvet flowers.

COVERING JELLY GLASSES.

When jelly glass covers are missing substitute round pieces of clean, white muslin dipped quickly in melted paraffin and pressed down well over the edges of the glasses, having first covered the jelly itself with melted paraffin as usual. Fruit jars may also be covered in the same way, only the pieces of muslin should be doubled.

CRISP LETTUCE.

Always place your lettuce in a cloth bag in the ice box for some time before using, keeping it directly on the ice. The lettuce will be lovely and crisp and it is always much more appetizing when cold and crisp.

MAKING TEA.

The method of making tea is always the same, but the amount required depends upon the kind of tea you are using. As a rule a teaspoon of tea to each person you are going to serve, and one teaspoon for the pot is about right. Have the water boiling before you pour it on the tea, and before putting the tea leaves in the pot run a little hot water in to heat up the pot. Then pour this out, place in your tea, and when the water is boiling pour it over the tea.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

If you have any difficulty in giving children powders, take a banana and cut it in half lengths. Scoop out some of the fruit, making a hollow in the middle. Put the powder into it, place together again, and give to the child to eat.

Boracic ointment is a capital thing for a sore heel or cuts. Any druggist will make it up for you. Spread a little on a soft piece of rag or lint, lay this on the sore place, bandage to keep it in position, and wear a soft shoe for a day or two until the place is healed.

If you have inherited a large nose from your parents you can do very little to improve it. The fleshy part, however, may be massaged and pinched gently every day to keep it from spreading. Mold it gently with your fingers toward the shape you desire for no more than five minutes a day.

If by any chance you are not so slender as you wish to be try the following recipe: Chop coarsely one pound cranberries, add four cups water and one-half cup sugar, beat to boiling point. Cook for ten minutes, then set aside until cool. Use half a glass of this mixture extended by one-half glass of water, hot or cold. Some add a little bran to the drink. This, of course, gives a further laxative quality which sometimes may be desirable.

PERIOD STYLES USED TOGETHER

Mixing period furniture is now being advocated to make a room more interesting and to give greater variety. Scale and proportion are prominent factors when this arrangement is considered. For example, heavy English, Spanish and Italian pieces will go well together, while a delicate Louis XV piece will be entirely out of place.

CIDER IN CANS.

We are losing the tradition of the autumn cider keg because few families will bother with a drink that turns so quickly to vinegar. However, sweet cider is a wholesome drink both for old and young and is an excellent refreshment at parties. It is also useful if kept on hand to be used in cooking as a prohibition substitute in recipes calling for brandy or wine. For all these purposes it may be purchased in cans and opened as needed. In this way it is always possible to have cider properly chilled and have it sweet.

CLING TO THE SMALL HAT.

It is one thing for designers to create and quite another thing for women to determine the mode. The number of women who remain faithful to the sail close shape of flexible felt or velour or the draped turban of velvet or black satin shows that it never does to make definite forecasts.

INTERESTING TABLE DECORATIONS.

Extremely interesting is a square shaped bowl of yellow pottery with Chinese designs in black and bright blue. Tall candlesticks and smaller bowls for the ends of the table complete a most attractive decoration.

LAUNDRY HINTS

Boiling water will remove fruit stains if applied at once. Put a bowl under the stained part and pour the boiling water through the fabric.

To remove mildew from clothes mix equal parts of soft soap with powdered starch, half as much common salt, and the juice of half a lemon. Spread the mixture over the mildew spots and then lay the article on the grass day and night until the stain comes out.

To remove oil spots from clothing first wash out the dust from the grease spot with warm water in which is sprinkled a few drops of household ammonia. Then cover the spot with a paste made of Fuller's earth and ammonia. Let it stand for a day or so, then lay blotting paper over the spot and press with a hot iron.

When ironing embroidery fold a blanket several times lay the embroidery face downward and iron on the back, pressing the surface evenly.

The following is an excellent way of removing scorch marks from a silk blouse: Squeeze the juice out of two onions, and add half a pint of vinegar, half an ounce of soap and two ounces of fullers' earth. Boil this little of the paste to the scorched until thoroughly mixed. Apply a part, let it remain there till dry then wash it off. This paste may be stored away in a covered jar for use at any time.

FASTNESS OF DYE NOT DEPENDENT UPON COLOR

It is a common fallacy that green, lavender, or some other color is less fast than blue or pink. Fastness depends on the chemical composition of the dye used, not on the color.

Dyestuffs are grouped into various classes according to their composition, and the dyes in some classes are more fast than those in others. Thus a green, blue, or any other fabric may have received its color from any one of a number of different dyestuffs varying widely in permanency. Without knowing just what kind of a dye was used—and it is practically impossible for the consumer to tell this—the fastness of color in two fabrics can not be predicted. A dye that is not one of the poorest of its class may have been used on one of the fabrics, while the other may have been dyed with one of the best. Green, lavender, or any color is just as fast as another if similar dyes are used.

LATEST DESIGNS IN COMBS

Even with the bobbed coiffures, combs are essential. The latest designs from Paris both in tortoise shell and ivory and galalith are made with tops like a set of stairs. They rise in steps to the center. Some of them are carved so as to fit closely around the tops of the ears.

HAS NO SET PLACE

Apparently there is no hard and fast rule applying to the exact position of the flare. It may take its position directly in the front of the frock, it may appear at both sides or only one, and it may even be placed in the center of the back, suggesting a line reminiscent of the days of the bustle gown.

HEAT IT FIRST

The amateur carpenter will find that by dipping a nail into hot water before driving it into a wall the plaster will not crack.

FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Pretty as well as practical are sets of tablecloth and napkins of damask in shades of rose, blue, and Chinese yellow with decorative borders.

DICTATES OF FASHION.

Shoulder pins of glittering gems are very ornamental on the afternoon or evening frock.

The gypsy girdle that is the wide scarf worn low over the hips is extremely attractive on the very slender figure.

Brilliantly printed crepe de chine, particularly in black, white and red, is used to make most attractive pajama outfits.

White velveteen is printed with futuristic patterns in bright colors and makes very attractive costumes for country club wear.

To carry in the evening with the formal attire are the most fascinating bags of black and white rhinestones set in alternate rows.

The newest coats show extremely circular and flared lines about the feet, and have wide turn-back cuffs of fur.

Matching handbags and parasol handles are novel accessories. Particularly in the vivid shades of red, green or purple leather, are very effective.

The newest version of the two-piece frock is made of red and white checked tub silk. A narrow belt of red leather gives it a tailored aspect.

An interesting evening gown of gold lace is banded at the hem with orange-colored velvet and has a girdle of orange with blue and orange French flowers worked into it.

With the velvet ensemble the blouse is inevitably of metal cloth and so is the coat lining. Once we would have considered such a costume too ornate for afternoon wear, but this season it is quite the rule.

Necklaces of Egyptian blue beads with square medallions of red gold are the latest importations from the land of the Nile and are a distinct novelty in the line of jewelry.

Instead of being fur tipped, the new hats are fur topped. The latest trend of millinery styles is toward the small toque, the lower part of the crown of which is trimmed with satin ribbon of a sharply contrasting shade, while the top of the crown is formed of fur.

ARTISTIC NECKWEAR

There are many lovely things in neckwear, notably pleating of sheer materials in artistic color schemes. Fichus of mousseline printed in a graceful design are edged with fine pleating or a frill of the same material. Some of these are of very decorative ombre chiffon.

VERY PRACTICAL TOO

One of the most popular combinations of the season is the velvet skirt and the jumper of metal cloth or of metal brocade shot with brilliant colors.

A SEASON OF COLOR

There is surprisingly little black used this year even for day wear. Very dark green, navy blue, reds and the tan shades have quite over-shadowed it.

RECIPES

Bread Sponge: Into a mixing bowl put one tablespoon, each of butter, sugar and salt; add one compressed yeast cake dissolved in one cup of lukewarm water; then gradually add two and one-half cups of bread flour, beating constantly. Cover and set aside in a warm (70 degrees Fahrenheit) place until mixture is light. It is light when full of bubbles. Use as directed.

Apple Pie: Line individual pie plates, measuring five inches in diameter and one inch deep, with plain pastry. Wipe, pare, core and cut apples in slices. Put a row around the plate and work toward the center until the plate is covered, then pile on the remaining apples. Mix one-half tablespoon of flour, two and one-half tablespoons of sugar (more if apples are not tart), one-eighth teaspoon of salt. Sprinkle over apples and dot over with one-half tablespoon of butter. Wet the edges of the pastry with cold water. Cover with a top crust, press the edges together firmly, then flute with the fingers. Bake in a hot oven (500 degrees Fahrenheit) for the first six or eight minutes, then reduce the heat to 350 degrees Fahrenheit and cook until the apples are soft. When cold sprinkle with powdered sugar and wrap in wax paper.

From Small Beginnings

Samuel Hood, the Great English Admiral

The British navy has always been able to point to a long list of distinguished sea-fighters who have brought honor to the English name. In that list there are few names that rank higher than the name of Samuel Hood, the great English admiral who did so much to develop the science of sea-fighting.

"What's the boy want?" an officer growled out one day, when a timid looking boy approached some sailors and tried to pass them. "He says, sir, he's looking for work," a sailor replied, as he saluted. "Work," the officer laughed. "We'll give him work! Let me talk with him."

So Sam Hood went on board the ship as servant to the captain. Bravely he endured the hardships that even officers had to share in those days. At all times he kept his manly spirit and his straightforward look. The captain, who was none other than the one who became the great Rodney, liked the boy's spirit and promoted him to midshipman. The lad was then nineteen. Three years later he became a lieutenant in the British navy.

Samuel Hood went about his work as lieutenant with the same fine, manly, cheerful spirit that he had shown when only a servant. In ten years he became a captain and began to do distinguished service for his country. In battle he was exceedingly clever in the management of vessels, and so he won fame. When he was 57 he went to sea under the same Rodney for whom he had worked before, but this time he went as one of the fleet officers. He performed such prodigies of skill and of valor in naval fighting that he was made a lord. From year to year, in various seas, Samuel Hood did such valiant service that the English people could not do enough for him. They raised him from position to position, so that before he died at the advanced age of 92 he had had the honor of being admiral, of being made a viscount, of serving in Parliament and of receiving everywhere all the honors that a grateful people could shower upon him. He remained in vigorous, active service until he was nearly 70 years of age. Even in his old age he maintained the quick, piercing look that had characterized him when a boy, the manliness and the bluff honesty that had made him so capable as a servant.

For the last 20 years of his life, from the time when he was 72 until his death at 92, Admiral Hood was in charge of the great Greenwich hospital.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Dr. Edwin W. Kemmerer, of Princeton University, who has left for Warsaw on a mission to strengthen the Polish financial situation, is a noted expert in finance whose services have often been enlisted by the United States and foreign governments. He began his career as an expert adviser for the government of the United States during the '90s, giving especial attention to the trust problem. Then, for two years, he taught economics at Purdue University. Enlisted again in the government service, he went to the Philippines and put the finances of the islands on a sound basis. In 1906 he joined the Cornell faculty and since 1912 he has been professor of economics and finance at Princeton. Dr. Kemmerer helped to draw up the "Dawes Plan," assisted in the organization of the new German Reichbank, and has been an expert adviser in finance to Mexico, Chile, Colombia, and South Africa.

Stories That Recall Others

Amen.

It was the week before Christmas. Father had gone on a short business trip and Jimmie asked whether he might say grace at breakfast. Into the silence that followed he prayed earnestly and impressively:

"Dear Father, we thank thee for the rest and protection of the past night. We thank thee for the food that is before us. We thank thee for the department stores and all we can get in them. Now then."

And nothing could persuade Jimmie that that was not the way in which his father ended his prayers.

A Rude Joke.

A middle-aged bachelor had a wide acquaintance in the theatrical profession was at lunch some time ago with an old friend, a ventriloquist. In the course of the meal, the ventriloquist invited a young woman who was appearing on the same bill to join them. Suddenly to the surprise of the bachelor, he heard the woman say: "Stop holding my hand."

Again, on taking leave, he was startled to hear her say: "See you after the show tonight, old scout."

It didn't dawn on the man that his ventriloquist friend was playing a joke on him. His friends have not been able to find out whether or not he was waiting at the stage door that night.

Season for Pelts

Fur is in prime condition for harvesting at one brief season only, according to the biological survey of the United States department of agriculture. Ill-advised open seasons are a natural result of the lack of sufficient information regarding the life habits of fur animals, says the department. A defect frequently noted in present fur laws is that the open season provided is so long that it permits trapping before pelts are prime in fall and after breeding has begun in spring. An open season of more than three months' duration it would seem, is not justifiable anywhere in the United States. Far too many unprofitable pelts are coming to the raw-fur markets every year. Pelts of superior quality would reach the market if these facts were appreciated and laws framed accordingly.

CHILD TRAINING

"BUY ME SOMETHING"

Lenora Bailey

Bobbie had begun to go to school. Mother always went to meet him and walked home with him. Almost always they came around the public square.

One day they met Grandfather McKee on the street. Bobbie was saying over and over as a sort of mournful refrain:

"Buy me something, Mother!"

"My, my! What is this?" asked Grandfather. "I never before heard such a big boy making such a doleful noise on such a beautiful day."

"I want Mother to buy me something," whined the little lad.

"Isn't he naughty!" said his mother. "I never come to town with him but we have this sort of scene."

"That is very bad for both of you," answered the quite old gentleman. "What do you do about it?"

"Well, I stand just so much of it, then I get him something. There is one consolation, just anything satisfies him. It annoys me, though, to have him act in such a way."

"I should think it would annoy you. Would you really like to break him of this dreadful habit he is forming?"

"Indeed I would."

"If you mean it, you can do it with just a little effort, I think. Beginning with this time, do not buy him anything."

Bobbie, who had been quietly looking in a window for a few moments, set up a wail demanding that he have something.

"You see how hopeless it is," said his mother in a discouraged tone.

"I see nothing of the sort. Of course, firmness on your part will be attended with some discomfort for a few times. But that will be far better than waiting for him to outgrow this sort of thing. Take him home without buying him a thing. Then, hereafter, when you start to town with him, tell him whether or not you will buy anything for him; then stick to it. For several times it will be better to buy nothing. You have let him think that you will do what he wants you to do if he keeps up his demands long enough, so he is playing a sort of game—seeing who can hold out the longer. He'll stop soon enough after he finds that you will pay no attention to him."

Bobbie's mother marched him home without buying him anything although his cries became louder and louder all the way. He never created another scene of that kind.

The next day when his mother met him she said very quietly, "Bobbie, I shall not buy anything for you today."

He looked at her seriously for a few seconds, saw that she meant what she said, and began to tell her about something he had seen, never mentioning his usual demand.

The next day he met her with, "Are you going to buy me something today, Mother?"

"Not today, Dear."

"Mother, we made birds and chickens today. It was the most fun! Mine were good, too and Mrs. Shields said I could bring them home something to show you."

Many a mother has gone through a similar ordeal. Children know whether or not parents mean what they say, and no mother who really follows this grandfather's advice ever suffers for any great length of time. Just a few experiences, generally, will teach a child that Mother means what she says.

WESTERLY, R. I., Dec. 27.—The Rickenbacker sedan owned by Arthur Fowler of Jamaica; N. Y., caught fire Sunday night about 8.30 o'clock on Granite street near the junction of Vose street from what is supposed to be an excessive amount of alcohol in the radiator. In company with a friend he was en route from New Bedford, Mass., where he had passed the Christmas holiday to resume his duties as a Y. M. C. A. secretary. BEAUTIFUL CHRISTMAS PAGEANT AT CENTRAL BAPTIST CHURCH

Followers of the Star, a pageant depicting the happenings before and after the birth of Christ, was presented at the Central Baptist church, Sunday evening, before a large congregation. The pageant, this year, was entirely the work of the young people of the church and was carried out in a most impressive manner evoking considerable praise from those who witnessed it.

The pageant opened with the appearance of Isaiah, who spoke the words of prophecy, and the appearance of the three Magi, who had learned of the star which was to appear to tell the birth of Christ, and, at its appearance in the east, they followed in that direction, having the star to guide them to Bethlehem. In the second scene the shepherds were watching their flocks and commenting on the strange events of the night, angel voices being heard, a strange stillness being in the air. Finally the star appeared to them and they hastened to Bethlehem.

In the third scene, Mary and Joseph appeared in the manger with the Christ child, the star shining overhead. Shepherds appeared and kneeled in adoration and they were followed by the three Magi, who paid homage by offering gold, incense and myrrh.

In the closing scene, the spirit of the church appeared and called for followers. Youth appeared and seemed to question and spirit of the church called upon spirit of education, spirit of healing and spirit of democracy, to show Youth what the message of the star had meant for the world. Nations appeared, all asking that the Christian message be carried to their homelands and youth no longer in doubt, offered to follow wherever Christ would have him go to serve His kingdom.

Song numbers by the church choir added much to the beauty of the pageant, each group being greeted or announced by the singing of a hymn. The pageant was most impressive and was one of the prettiest of the annual pageants presented by the Central church at Christmas time.

The characters in the pageant as they appeared were as follows:

Isaiah, Edwin Abel; Three Wise Men, Gaspar, Floyd A. Lambert; Melchoir, Robert Storms; Balthazar, Earl Davey; Edward Smith, Shepard B. Palmer, Jr.; Edward Smith, Shepard B. Palmer, Jr.; Austin Covey, Stanton Smith, Benjamin Covey; Mary, Florence Bushnell; Joseph, Ledlie Pitt; Spirit of the church, Mildred Cass; two heralds, Sidney Pitt, Frank Dodge; Youth, Courtnay Pitt; Spirit of Education, Dorothy Spencer; three monks, William Wyman, Norman Smith, Arthur Armstrong; college graduate, Robert Sage; Spirit of Hearing, Amis March, two nurses, Helen Hastings, Mary Peckham; missionary physican, Arnold Smith; Spirit of Democracy, Helen Denison; Early Christians, William Parkhurst, Raymond Parkhurst; Puritans, Susie Hargreaves, Viola Hill; Spirit of Ignorance, Unabelle Harbeck; Children of Poverty, Helen Bellows, Emily Hill, Jessie Hill; Spirit of Superstition, Marion Royce; China, Mary Hargreaves, Edna Hastings; Japan, Elaine Wilson, Elsie Schellin; India, Frances Bushnell, June Woods; Spirit of Hatred, Eugenie Dean; Sorrowing Mothers, Doris Waters and Leonora Chapman; pageant choir, Mrs. William Crowe, Jr. soprano; Mrs. Olive Adams Potter, contralto; Frank Steinke, baritone; Frederick J. Maples, tenor and director; Miss Dorothea Tucker, organist.

The stage setting was in charge of William S. Spencer, while the lighting effects were carefully handled by Carl W. Brown, Henry Aurelio and Willis Hill. The pageant was managed and directed by Miss Edith Adelaide Ellis, assistant pastor of the church, and its pleasing appearance and manner in which it was presented, reflects much credit to her ability as a director as well as to the ability of the participants who handled their character parts in a most creditable manner.

The service of the evening was opened by Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D., pastor of the church, who also pronounced the benediction at the closing.

CHRITMAS AND JESUS' WAY OF LIVING

Christmas and Jesus' Way of Living was the topic of the annual Christmas service delivered Sunday morning at the Central Baptist church by the pastor, Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D. The preacher took as his text, "Follow Me"—Luke 9:59, saying in part:

We have just celebrated another Christmas festival and for the time being the world was different. If we would adopt Jesus' way of living we would have Christmas all the world round and Christmas all the year through. As it is now, Christmas is the unusual; some day Christmas will be the normal, the usual for every day in the year.

I have thought of this in connection with the course of study we have been pursuing in the men's class on Jesus Way of Living. You cannot understand Christmas merely by reading the accounts of the birth of Jesus given in Matthew and in Luke. To understand Christmas you must read beyond the early chapters of Matthew and Luke; you must read the four gospels and the rest of the New Testament; you must read Christian history and know somewhat of the difference that Jesus' coming has made to the world down to the present.

Let us think, then, for a little while not only of the way Jesus came into the world as a little child, but also of the way He lived in the world. One of the first things that impresses us is the normality of the child, the youth, the man. He increased in wisdom and stature and in favor with God and man.

We must not overlook the place of a Godly home in the development of Jesus. It was there that He learned obedience. So significant was that home that when He became the teacher of men nearly all His teachings were couched in terms of the home. It was Jesus who taught us that what the best parents are to all their family, God is to all His children and more. Prayer is the child talking to the heavenly Father. Providence is simply the Father providing for His children's needs. Repentance means a wandering child coming back home and forgiveness means the Father running out to welcome him home again. If we are to have Christmas in our families all the year, let us continue to thing of the Holy Family in Nazareth. Let us as children learn to treat our parents even as Jesus treated Joseph and Mary in Nazareth. If we do, the spirit of Christmas will abide in our homes all this year. It is my conviction that every family can have just as much of the spirit of Christmas this year as it desires to have.

Let us now pass beyond His childhood and think of Jesus' youth and its meaning for the youth of today Now no one can read the four gospels without realizing that Jesus was a very social being. So far as we know, He never rejected an invitation in the interest of friendship and fellowship. Jesus was never accused of being a 'kill-joy'. This, however, ought to be said regarding the social life of Jesus. Wherever He went His took His standards of conduct with Him. He was governed always by His own conscience ratner than by what some one else was doing. My word to our young people is this, if you have a purpose akin to Christ's and a conscience that is genuinely Christian it makes little difference where you go, if you would have Christmas in your life all this year follow Him in His spirit of sociability, but follow Him taking with you a sensitive conscience and an increasing purpose.

In every instance He rejected public opinion and chose what He believed to be the will of God.

Now every young person who amounts to anything must meet and settle that issue as Jesus did. Public opinion sets up certain standards of success. If you allow youseelves to be governed by these in your choice of a life work, then you are falling a victim to the temptation which Jesus rejected.

Young men and women, if you would have Christmas in your life all the years hearken as the Master calls to you, saying, "Follow Me."

Now as we pass through the portals of the new year no one knows what it holds for him but it is safe to reckon that our year will not be all spring nor all sunshine. Have we such a triumphant faith that whatever sorrows or disappointments come we can cry, "Who shall separate us from the love of Christ?"

CHRISTMAS WREATH SERVICE AT TRINITY M. E. CHURCH

The time honored custom of lighting the Christmas wreath took place Sunday evening at Trinity M. E. church. Despite the extremely cold weather there was a good sized congregation present for the attractive programme given by the children of the Sunday school.

The service opened at 7:30 o'clock with the organ prelude, Christmas Eve by Otto Mailing. Then came The Christmas Message, with the hymn, O, Little Town of Bethlehem, the Scripture lesson, prayer and carols. After the hymn, Silent Night, the White Gift Service took place followed by the singing of It Came Upon the Midnight Clear. Then came the pretty custom of Lighting the Christmas Wreath in which the children of the Sunday school took part. The processional hymn for the lighting of the wreath was Hark, the Herald Angels Sing. The recessional hymn was Joy to the World.

The pastor, Rev. J. Harlow Graham, delivered his annual Christmas sermon at the morning service. His text was John 3:16- God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son and Matthew 2:11, They offered unto Him gifts, gold and frankincense and myrrh. The topic on which Rev. Mr. Graham spoke was Giving and Receiving Gifts, and in part he said:

Ralph Waldo Emerson in his essay on Gifts says, "The only gift is a portion of thyself. Thou must bleed for me. Therefore the poet brings his poem; the shepherd, his lamb, the farmer, corn; the miner, a gem; the sailor, coral and shells; the painter, his picture; the girl, a handkerchief of her own sewing. This is right and pleasing when a man's biography is conveyed in his gift."

Such thoughts are most appropriate when applied to the greatest gifts and the greatest givers. Only he who loves greatly has a right to give greatly. The New Testament writings present God in the role and course of a giver, who gives Himself.

Back of His Gifts is love. Such a giving exalts him upon whom the gifts are bestowed. All that God has is ours when we can use it. Thus Christianity pictures God, as giving without patronage but giving without limit. This is the God of Christianity, the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ. He loved us and gave Himself for us. Man in receiving His Gifts does not grovel. He is not pauperized in spirit. He looks his Father face to face. The heavens are vocal with a message for men. Angels become our ministering spirit.

And Emerson says "He is a good man who can receive a gift well." Here the wise men excelled. The gift of God they sought and found and fittingly received.

Rev. Mr. Graham then spoke of acceptable offering to God in token of His gifts, as the gold of noble character, the frankincense of acceptable worship and the myrrh of devoted unassuming service.

JUDGE RESERVES DECISION IN RESTAURANT CASE

Reserving decision, Judge Charles B. Waller, in the court of common pleas Saturday at New London, took the papers in the case of Harry Hick of New London and Max Markoff, proprietor of the Winthrop restaurant, New London and who also conducted a restaurant at Ocean Beach last summer. The case arose from a claim by Hicks for $356 alleged due him for overtime rendered to the defendant last summer when the plaintiff employed him as cook.

It was brought out in court that Hicks started work for $35 a week and later in the summer had his salary increased to $50. Hicks testified that the defendant was unable to get another cook and told him that if he did the work he would at the end of the season give him a bonus which would amount to $300 and probably more. He said that after the restaurant at the beach was closed he went to work for Markoff in the Winthrop restaurant, where, after four or five weeks' work, the defendant told him that he would have to work for $25 a week. The plaintiff stated that Markoff knew he would not work for that and he did not.

Mrs. Hicks testified that she on several occasions, heard the defendant tell her husband that he was going to give him a bonus at the end of the season.

Markoff testified that he never told the plaintiff personally that he would give him a bonus but that he told all the employes collectively. He denied that "$300 or more" had ever been mentioned in connection with the bonus. He said that he gave the plaintiff $25 and the latter thanked him for it.

The plaintiff, when recalled to the stand, said that he received $25 after having asked a number of times for the bonus and that when Markoff gave it to him the latter said that there was more coming later.

Attorneys presented brief arguments and after Judge Waller took the papers he ordered court adjourned until Monday.

LONG WAITING LINES AT REGISTRY OFFICE

As Jan. 1 approaches, the line of automobile owners registering their cars at the Connecticut motor vehicle department in the Turelle building, New London, grows lenathier. For several weeks past the office had been kept busy making out 1926 registrations and dispensing the new yellow and black number plates but each day now finds the number of autoists appearing there much larger.

State policemen are on hand to maintain order in the office and to direct the applicants to the proper windows and to answer queries. The system used in the office makes the waiting as short as possible, the card being taken from the owner, along with the necessary money. The owner is then given a receipt upon which is stamped his new 1926 number. The original card is turned over to one of the many typists on duty and the latter makes out the new registration, then the number is called and the owner presents his receipt and secures his new registration and number plates. The plates have a yellow background with black numbers.

RECOMMEND PENALTY FOR TACKLING PLAYER ABOVE HIS SHOULDERS

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—(AP)—Unnecessary roughness and huddle and shift plays in football came under criticisms at the annual meeting of the Eastern Association of Intercollegiate Football Officials here today.

The association, which includes all the well known officials east of the Alleghenies addressed four recommendations to the football rules committee, the most important of which is that the ball be declared dead the moment the man carrying it touches the ground except with his hands and feet, the proponents contending that piling up without penalty will be impossible.

Tackling above the shoulders would be penalized as unnecessary roughness. The field judge would use a whistle to declare the ball dead on kicks that cross the scrimmage line, thereby preventing touchiag of the receiver of kicks.

The recommendations which would make piling up indefensible would have the ball declared dead when the carrier touches the ground with any part of his body except his hands or feet whether or not he be in a grasp of an opponent which, it is argued will eliminate any reason for crawling.

The fourth proposal is aimed at the huddle system which was much in vogue this season, and was developed in the east to a remarkable degree by the Princeton eleven, champion of the "big three". The huddle play calls for the congregating of the players in a closely locked group behind the scrimmake line for the purpose of receiving signals. From this circle the men jump to their positions and the ball is snapped back and the play put in motion without an audible word.

The eastern association recommends that no movement of the feet or swaying of the body be permitted at the time the ball is put into play. It is contended that the players should come to a full stop in the shift and, in case of doubt, that penalty should be inflicted. Present rules declare that players must not be in motion when a play starts, but officials have been unable to agreement upon what constitutes "motion."

CHIP DUGAS REPLIES TO LETTER OF FRANKIE BARBER

In a letter to the Bulletin Chip Dugas intimates that Frankie Barber was not strictly adhering to the truth in his letter that appeared in Saturday's paper. His letter follows:

Sporting Editor: In reply to Barber's cute little write up about his tying down in the tournament I wish to say a few words. Yes, we know Barber is from the Brass City and he has been polished off in great shape and he also has a bunch in Danielson whom he has polished off but when it comes to polishing me off he has a pretty tough piece of metal to shine. Night after night in the last tournament Barber and his friends lost plenty. Even Fillmore took him in for plenty and yet he laid down. I guess we look pretty bad to Barber down this way and we must be different than they are in different parts of the state.

Barber asked me to took at other games and I have and all tournaments are conducted the way I mentioned. Are we fools enough to let Barber tell us where we are at? Now he talks about how much money there is in Danielson. He showed us how much he had in the last tournament. The first night in Taftville I gave him a $100 bet and beat him. At the return match in Danielson I offered him the same money and he only covered $50 and by good luck he won. Then he bowled Mike Morin and I also bet him another $100 and Mike won. In the return match it was worse for he could only raise $43. After the match he was offered another $70 on a three string special match and the best he could do was to cover $50 which he lost. Did he throw this match, too? Then the special match between Barber and myself was fixed up. He was to have $25 in the Bulletin office before the match started. Did he? He had just a little over half and I had to take a chance for the balance. Why should I do that?

When he claims I wouldn't bowl him for fun, money or marbles he is far from the truth for I offered to roll him for $100 and his cry was that he would not roll for less than $200. If he acted according to his means, age and weight he would not be recognized by many bowlers and he would soon be forgotten in this section.

As for me I claim to be the best average bowler in Eastern Connecticut, and I have proved it in the last two tournaments. Now if Barber thinks he is what he ain't let him get this tournament going any way he likes, because if he don't have it all his own way he won't come in, and when he does he will have plenty of action. As for me I think Barber is four hearts and a spade.

I remain in sports,

MULLER'S LONE TOUCHDOWN GIVES WEST VICTORY

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 27.—(AP)—The West defeated the East, 6 to 0, when representatives all-star football teams met here yesterday in a benefit game. Proceeds went to the hospital for crippled children conducted by the Ancient Arabis Order Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, who arranged the contest.

"Brick Muller, California All-American end, scored a touchdown in the third period, the goal kick failing. "Navy Bill" Ingram, Indiana coach, took part in the contest.

The West's all-star aggregation was selected from the sunset side of the Rocky Mountain while a similar squad was picked from the sunrise side of the great divide. Muller's score resulted from a forward pass—imlay to Muller—for a gain of 29 yards.

With numerous All-American selections of former years in the two line-ups the play was brilliant except for several fumbling spasms resulting from insufficient practice.

Wyckoff, dashing fullback of Georgia Tech, starred for the East. One of his punts traveled a distance of 76 yards.

The play for most of the game was in the East's territory, but several times, as the result of the wide open basketball-like character of the contest, the East threatened to score, but always fell just short of the West goal line.

A capacity crowd of 20,000 persons nessed the game which was played Ewing Field.

OMEBODY STEALS TUNNEY'S COLLECTION OF GOLF CLUBS

ST. PETERSBURG, Dec. 27—(AP)—Gene Tunney, American light heavyweight champion, reached St. Petersburg today minus his famous golf bag and sticks, clubs which have been used by Bobby Jones in winning the amateur championship, Walter Hazen in the national professional, Willie McFarlane in the national open, Jim Barnes in the British open, Chick Evans and Miss Glenna Collett made up Tunney's prized collection.

Some one in Tampa stole the bag and sticks while Tunney stopped over there for a few minutes last night, coming here from Miami for the Dan O'Dowd bout Tuesday, the first of a series of three bouts in which the champion will participate during his Florida visit.

Hagen, president of a local club, started Tunney off on a new collection of championship sticks today, following a round between the two by presenting to Tunney the brassie which he had used in winning his memorable championship last summer.

INGRAM HAS NOT COMMUNICATED WITH NAVY

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 27—(AP)—Reports that he is a candidate for football coach at the United States naval academy, drew a statement today from William (Navy Bill) Ingram, Indiana university mentor to the efect that he has had no communications with the academy officials.

TWO FAST INDOOD GAMES AT STATE ARMORY TONIGHT

This Monday evening at the Armory the Norwich indoor league will swing into its fifth week of activity when the Nutmegs and Stars clash at 6.30 and the Battery and Tigers meet at 9.30. All of these should be first class as the four teams are pretty evenly matched.

In the 6.30 contest the Nutmegs and Stars will meet. Last week the latter eased out a 12 to 9 decision after a hard struggle. However, tonight the Nutmegs strengthened by the addition of Teddy Bonville star hurler from the wilds of Canada and Ed Nevieus, hard-hitting outfielder formerly of the Taunton Blues.

The Nutmegs will lineup as follows: Tombari will catch; Jim Kelly will pitch with Kampf at first, Falcone at second, Ellie Segal at third and Gibbs and Jab Burnes at left and right short, respectively. In the outfield Brown, Couture, Nevius, Healy, Lambert, W. Burnes, Winters and Vonville will perform. The latter will also be available for mound duty in case of emergency.

For the Stars the usual lineup will perform which contains the names of many local stars.

In the 9.30 game the Tigers and Battery meet. Last week the latter came out on the long end of an 18 to 3 count but tonight the situation may be different, as the Tigers will be out to oust the Battery from their lofty perch as they now lead the league with three victories and no defeats.

For the Tigers Boyd will pitch with Goldblatt or L. Hamil on the receiving end. Burke will play first with Tibbets at second and P. Labenski at third. At the short steps Cimikoski and Nevins will Cavort. In the outfield E. Hamil, McGowan, B. Labenski, Jarvis, Yerrington and Tombari are expected to perform.

For the Battery the old reliable lineup which has cleaned up everything so far in the league will be seen, namely Robertson, pitch; Mgr. Goodrow, catch; Lemieux, first base; Beausoleil second base; Berberich, third base; Mish, left short stop; Elchelberg, right short stop; Coleman, left field; Prodell, center field and Red Lewis, right field.

All players are requested to report on time so that the games can be started at the above stated times.

The following is the league standing to date:

	W	L	Pct
Battery B.	3	0	1.000
Nutmegs	1	2	.333
Stars	1	2	.333
Tigers	1	2	.333

KEARNS TO GET SHARE OF WILLS DEMPSEY FIGHT

CHICAGO, Dec. 27.—(AP)—A fight between Jack Dempsey, heavyweight champion, and Harry Wills, giant negro, or Gene Tunney, young former marine, as any time would net him his contractural percentage, Jack Kearns, maker and manager of the chimpion, said yesterday. He was en route east from California for the appearance on Jan. 23 of his other champion, Mickey Walker, against Tommy Milligan, the Briton, in a welterweight championship contest.

Kearn's contract with Dempsey expires Aug. 15, but under its terms, Kearns pointed out, he entered into a contract with Tex Rickard for Dempsey's appearance against Wills or Tunney. The contract as Dempsey's manager gave him full power of attorney and representative, and he had Dempsey's instructions to match him, said Kearns.

"I have been informed by the best attorneys in New York and here that no matter when Dempsey meets Wills or Tunney, I still share in the receipts, my usual 50 per cent. He can go ahead and be his own manager in all other affairs.

ALL-EAST TEAM TO PLAY ON NEW YEARS

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 27—(AP)—The All-Star football team from the east that lost a hard fought battle six to nothing here yesterday, to an All-Western eleven, is not to disband immediately but will journey to San Diego to oppose a selected navy team there on New Year's day. This was announced today by William (Navy) Bill Ingram, captain and coach of the eastern squad.

Ingram said he had accepted an invitation to bring his team to San Diego and would leave here next Tuesday. The contest will be held under the auspices of naval authorities and city officials of San Diego. It will be a benefit game and the proceeds will go to the navy relief fund.

BATTERY E FIVE LOSES TO SNAPPY FIVE TEAM

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, Dec. 27—The largest gallery so far this basketball season witnessed the cleanly-played and as fast game as the early season could produce, in amateur basketball at the state armory, Dixon street, westerly on Saturday evening. The somewhat one-sided score of 35 to 13 by which the Battery E five were defeated by the Snappy five of Westerly would hardly indicate the brand of ball played.

The Snappy Five were made up to a certain extent of former Westerly High school basket shooters, baseball and football stars, and their game showed them to be "right in training." Battery E is developing a team of new basketball players and fast pass work at time by them showed that training had not been in vain although at times opposing players were left uncovered with results that baskets were chalked against them.

In the two previous Saturday night games scores were put up as follows: Dec. 12—Battery E 11, Westerly Tigers 26. Dec. 19—Battery E 17, Westerly Sanitary Corps 46. Saturday night's game showed that if the Westerly High should put a basketball team into an interscholastic league, the outcome of the series would not be a matter of conjecture for these W. H. S. players, whose series last year was interrupted by an epedemic quarantine, have another year in school after this one. The non availability of suitable playing hall this year may prevent the High school players from keeping in top form and any move to beg, borrow or build a hall would be most timely.

In Saturday night's play the first basket was caged in 30 seconds by Left Forward Harvey for the Batterymen, who also scores his team's only foiw throw; Right Forward Lomb connected for three baskets and Sullivan and Killam for one each.

J. Salemano for the Snappy Five was way in the lead with eight goal baskets and two fouls to his credit and the "Fat" DeRocco totalled five with four in the second half. Center S. Turco had four goal baskets and D Turco caged one foul.

Herman F. Driggs was the referee. Thomas Visgilio, timekeeper, and Alexander Greig, scorer. Four ten-minute periods were played. Battery E players—Lamb, right forward; Harvey, left forward; Killam, c., rf.; Blanchard, lg.; Shortman, rg., lf.; Spry, rg.; Sullivan, lg.; Maxwell lg., and rf. Snappy Five—D. Turco, rg.; T. Fiore lg.; S. Turco, c.; J. Salemano, lf.; G. DeRocco, rf., and subs., Gencarella, Adimari and Pignataro. Dancing to the music of the Crandall-Sutcliffe orchestra was enjoyed until midnight.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

Johnny Hennessey, one of the few ranking American tennis players who stars in other fields of athletics, has laid aside his racquet for basketball. He will play again this season with an amateur team of Indianapolis.

The minor leagues' annual convention this winter will be held on Catalina Island, Cal., Jan. 12 to 14 and a party of 300 officials of the smaller baseball circuits are expected to leave for the western tour from Chicago on Jan. 8.

Thirty-six Canadian curlers are sailing from St. John, N. B., on New Year's day for a trip to Scotland. They will go to Glasgow first, and, beginning Jan. 6, will curl twice a day until Jan. 31, when they will make a tour preliminary to the Manchester test matches. They are planning to sail for home Feb. 12.

William (Navy Bill) Ingram, football coach at Indiana university, is a candidate for football coach at the United States Naval Academy, according to a special dispatch from Annapolis to the Indianapolis News. The dispatch says that Jack Owsley, present coach, is not expected to sign a new contract.

The spring training schedule for the championship Pittsburgh National League baseball team, shows that the pitchers and catchers will leave on Feb. 21, a week earlier than the other players for the camp at Paso Robles, Cal. Infielders and outfielders are schmeduled to depart for the west on February 28.

Dave Shade, who has been taking life easy since his fight with Mickey Walker last September, will go into action again on New Year's night, in a 10-round bout with Roland Todd of England at the new Madison Square Garden. Tommy Freeman, hard-hitting Cleveland welterweight, is to make his New York debut against Sergt. Sammy Baker and Willie Harmon is to oppose Nate Goldman in other 10-round contests.

A world championship dog derby "to the top of the world and back" will be run for the first time in the history of dog mushing at the Banff winter carnival. The course, from Calgary to the Great Divide and back to Banff, will be the longest dog race ever staged, so far as records indicate, and will exceed the Pas Derby by 26 miles. The Strongheart trophy and $1,000 in cash will go to the winners.

A dispatch from Lincoln, Neb., states that Ed Weir, captain of the Nebraska Cornhuskers during the past season and an All-American tackle last year, will next spring enter into Y. M. C. A. work. Weir is a senior at the University of Nebraska this year and upon graduation next June intends to go into "Y" work as a secretary of the association in his home town, Superior, Neb.

An amendment to the constitution of the National Football League seeking to prevent the signing of college players until their classes have been graduated will be submitted at the annual meeting of the professional gridiron circuit at Detroit, on January 25, by officials of the New York club.

PROFESSIONALISM IN FOOTBALL TO BE DISCUSSED DURING WEEK

NEW YORK, Dec. 27—(AP)—(By the Associated Press)—There are two types of profession in football—the instructor and the performer—and the one does not go hand in hand with the other.

Tomorrow the American Football Coach's association meets here and undoubtedly one of the most interesting discussions will center about the other side of professionalism. For professionalism in football has been attacked this year as never before and the instructors cannot very well pass over the issue.

The new onslaught on college football is born of the rush of stars into professionalism, especially for service in Florida this winter without completing their college courses. Examples are Red Grange of Illinois and Ernie Nevers of Stanford, both all-American selections of many experts. But the coaches also have come in for criticism and already there have been suggestions that professional instructors be eliminated or else be compelled to sit in the grandstand away from the play.

This is a serious situation for the mentors, and proposals for rule changes are likely to receive scant consideration in tomorrow's meeting. A year ago the forward pass, attacked in some quarters, received the commendation of the association. It was agreed that the pass had made football a better game. For the most part the changes made a year ago appear to have worked to general satisfaction.

Still another discussion designed to determine football's place in education will be conducted by the National Collegiate Athletic association, meeting here Wednesday. Coaches of all sports, faculty representatives and physical directors will take part in the argument which will be open to by President Hopkins of Dartmouth.

This session of the N. C. A. A. also will debate the subject: "Resolved, that the amateur law should be observed in all intercollegiate contests." The commission of athletics for the western conference, Major J. L. Griffith will take the affirmative while Professor Nolsom of the University of Colorado will oppose the N. C. A. A. executive committee. Meeting takes place Tuesday.

Tennis

The eleventh annual national indoor tennis championship tournament starts tomorrow at the Seventh Regiment Armory here with 100 entrants. Leading youthful net stars of eleven states are listed for the competition, including Malcolm T. Hill of Wabanna, Mass., who last year captured the junior doubles title with Henry L. Johnson, and Edward Jacobs of Baltimore City college, who won the boys' title in 1924.

Yale and Pennsylvania quintets meet at Philadelphia Friday in the first contest of the Eastern Intercollegiate Basketball league. Princeton, last year's winner with nine victories and one defeat, plays its first contest of the new season a week from Saturday, meeting Columbia. Princeton's only reverse last season came at the hands of Pennsylvania in the final contest of the schedule.

Hockey

Amateur hockey, neglected by New york for several years, once more has come into its own. Two games were played in the newly formed Eastern league, an amateur organization, at Madison Square Garden last night. Tomorrow Boston college meets Montreal on the same rink in the afternoon and Princeton encounters the Royal Military college of Canada there at night. The opponents will be reversed on Tuesday.

Boxing

Another invader, Roland Todd, of England, will make his appearance in a New York boxing ring Tuesday night. Todd's opponent will be Ave Shade, the clever Pacific coast welterweight. The next championship bout, that between Mickey Walker and Tommy Milligan of Scotland for the welterweight title, is four weeks away.

TAFTVILLE MAN SUES HIS SISTER FOR $12,000

Damages of $12,000 are asked for by Joseph Parrella of Taftville in a suit which he has brought in the superior court against his sister, Clarinda Simard, also of Taftville, charging that she gained control of his property by use of "unconscionable advantage" and has become "enriched without any consideration on her part."

According to the papers it is alleged that the plaintiff was the owner of land and buildings on Merchants avenue in Taftville on January 19, 1923. He claims that on that date he was engaged in obtaining a divorce from his wife on grounds of intolerable cruelty. He was undergoing nervous tension at the time the property transfer took place. He was unable to read and write and did not understand the nature of the transaction.

It is alleged that the defendant was, at the time stated in such a relation of trust and confidence that he depended upon her aid and guidance in carrying on the divorce action and for advice and support in carrying on all of his affairs.

While the plaintiff was in the condition of mind and body described above the defendant persuaded him to convey to her the real estate, by promising to him to act as housekeeper for him as long as he lived and she further promised to convey it back to him whenever he should request her to, it is alleged.

Immediately after said transfer and up to within a few months, the plaintiff continued to collect the rents and pay the expenses of said real estate. The plaintiff has repeatedly requested the defendant to convey the premises back to him, but she has refused to do so, and ordered the plaintiff to leave the premises. A decree, that the defendant reconvey said premises to the plaintiff or otherwise vesting to him title is also claimed.

INCOME TAX WIPED OUT STAGE SUCCESS OF GIRL PRODUCER

CHICAGO, Dec. 27—(AP)—Jack Frost year-old Marian Wilson made $85,000 on her production of 'The Beggar's Opera and lost it all, and more too, on The British Ballett.

The income tax got the girl producer. While money was rolling in from The Beggar's Opera, she forgot all about the income tax and did not lay any of her money aside. Instead she put it into a new production which was not a success and when the tax collector came round she faced disaster.

So the ambitious producer went back to work as an actress. She danced for a time in a cabaret at Nice, then joined up with Ben Greet's Shakespearian players and has been playing all over provincial England.

KNOX ANSWERS CRITICS ON MANY POINTS RELATIVE TO COLLEGE SPORT

BOSTON, Dec. 27—(AP)—James L. Knox, Harvard second team coach and chief football scout, today answered the criticisms of modern college football with a signed story in the Boston Herald. Citing the Harvard Crimson's editorials, George Owen's magazine article and Red Grange's entry into the professional game as sparks which ignited the controversy which flared up at the end of the season, Knox presented what he termed "the true facts, rather than the half-truth and one-sided arguments of the critics.

"The primary hue and cry this year is the score of over-emphasis" he declared, "but if we analyze the game we find the 3.8 per cent. of the college year is actually devoted by the player to football. Football is not compulsory for the player, the other students the alumni or the public spectators."

Answering those who have deplored the building of huge stadiums for the spectacle of football and decried the publicity accorded the game, Knox said: "Stadia has been built simply because of the known demand for seats. The seats are in demand because football comes nearer crystalizing the underlying traits of human nature than any other game evolved and the American public especially loves a contest.

"The amount of newspaper space allotted to any given subject is determined by an editor who draws his salary primarily because of his ability to determine the amount of space which his paper's readers want on that given subject."

The money received from football is spent to small part on the football squad and in a large part on other branches of sport, even to corrective exercises for students who have physical failings and never engage in a competitive sport," Knox declared. "Scouting today is open and above board. Scouts' tickets are complimentary and the scout personally calls upon the rival coach and makes his presence known before the game.

"I wonder how many of those who talk about endowing the athletic department so that their pet theories can be carried out would like to attempt to raise the $10,000,000 or $15,000,000 necessary for such an endowment."

HOLD-UPS AND NEAR HOLD-UPS REPORTED TO NEW LONDON POLICE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 27—John Bosko, 91 North Bank street, lodged complaint with Sergeant Patrick Murphy Saturday night, alleging that the night before he was attacked and beaten by four men. He declared that he had refrained from making a complaint at the time of the attack being made upon him because his wife had entreated him not to complain to the police. Bosko declared that he was about to enter his home Friday night when the four men, two sailors and two civilians, attacked him, all four assailants beating him. During the fight, Bosko declared, he lost his hat, which had been knocked from his head and when his attackers dispersed he found another hat, evidently one that was worn by one of the fighters, and this he turned over to the police last night. The hat bears the mark of a Fall River, Mass., establishment Bosko says that he knows of no reason why he should have been attacked as he did not know any of the assailants, and can ascribe the acts of the fighters as being due to the motive of robbery only.

Frank Wyrod, of 275 Huntington street, proprietor of a meat market, 869 Bank street, complained to the police early Saturday morning that he had been the victim of a holdup man and that he had been relieved of his roll of $475, the money representing the market receipts of Thursday and Friday forenoon. The story as related to the police by Wyrod is such that the investigating officers are inclined to regard as somewhat fishy and they greatly doubt that Wyrod was robbed. Wyrod appeared at the police station shortly after 3 o'clock and declared that he was operating his automobile through Huntington street, a quarter of an hour earlier, on his way to his home. He declared that he had spent the evening until midnight at a social at a Main street hall and from midnight until about 3:45 o'clock he had been at the home of an acquaintance on Colver street. Wyrod started for home and declares that he carried his money in the right hand undercoat pocket. When his car reached a point on Huntington street and was being operated at a slow rate of speed because of the slippery condition of the highway, he observed a car approaching from the opposite direction. Just as Wyrod's car reached Richards street, Wyrod declares, the operator of the approaching car caused the latter machine to turn in front of Wyrod's auto and come to a stop across the highway and directly in front of Wyrod's automobile. According to Wyrod, there were five or six occupants of the car and one of them vaulted and going to Wyrod's auto seized something against Wyrod's side and demanded Wyrod to stick them up. The holdup man then reached across Wyrod's body to the opposite side of Wyrod and placing his hand in the market man's pocket removed the money, then running to the waiting car, which was speeded through Richards street and disappeared through Hempstead street. Wyrod then lodged complaint at the police station and Patrolman David Nagle accompanied him to the site of the alleged holdup, while Sergeant Patrick Murphy and Patrolman Edward Riordan made a tour of the city in the police car, in the hopes of locating the holdup car. The only description of the holdup car Wyrod could furnish was that the machine was a large one and of the touring type. He did not even take the registration of the machine, also declared that all the time that the alleged holdup man was standing on the left hand running board and reaching for the pocket where the money was located, he failed to take his hands from the steering wheel, but allowed the holdup man to remove the money without a semblance of a struggle.

BREAD AND BUTTER OWNER APPLIES QUITE TOO LATE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 27—Christmas eve, Adelbert J. Richards, 44 Talcage avenue, Groton, appeared at the police station with a quantity of bread and butter, which he found in the automobile, which car had been parked on Masonic street, the foodstuffs having been deposited in the machine by someone who believed that the articles was being placed in his own car that was parked near the Richards automobile. The butter and bread were delivered to the B. P. Learned mission, Christmas day, when a claimant did not appear for the articles. Yesterday, however, Mrs. Peaslee, a resident of Waterford, visited the police station for the purpose of claiming the articles, but the bread and butter had proven a part of the holiday dinner served the lodgers at the mission.

Edward Syronski, taken into custody drunk was in the police court Saturday. He said he had been a boarder with one Paul Bryschkowski for eight years and had never been in the court. It was Paul who made complaint against him for he was creating a disturbance at his rooming place. Because of his good record Edward was allowed to go free without any penalty.

Edward Zaneski was charged with having struck his wife. He has four children, the oldest 12. He makes a practice of filling up with liquor occasionally and when he does that he makes life miserable for his family. He was sentenced to jail for ten days and then the execution of judgment was suspended that he might make good a promise to reform. The probation officer is to take notice of how Zaneski conducts himself in the future, for the suspension holds good for a year.

Edward Devine, a young fellow was found drunk by Policeman David Nagle. Devine became boisterous and from that condition he progressed to actual violence and pitched into the officer, kicking him in the stomach. That meant a walloping for Devine and he got what was due him and was locked up also. Appeal was made for him in court that he was the support of a widowed mother. He was fined $20, and after Judge Prince warned him that he was on the road to serious trouble unless he changed his habits, execution of the judgment was suspended for one year. It is understood that Devine promised that he would take the pledge not to indulge in liquor during that time.

Christ Sauers, who was held here at the request of the authorities of Hazelton, Pa., who charged him with non-support of his wife and with desertion, was to have appeared in court Saturday, but had left for Pennsylvania with officers from that state, so the New London authorities had no further claim on him. He is a sailor on the ship Camden at this port and declares that he has a written statement made before the court at Hazelton in which his wife disclaims any desire for support from him.

Walter Hussey, carpenter's mate aboard U. S. S. Burrows, state pier, and residing at 95 Bank street, was arrested Saturday afternoon by Sergeant John Cavanaugh charged with breach of the peace in beating his wife, Olive. He was released upon furnishing a surety on his bond of $300 for his appearance in the police court Monday morning. Hussey according to his wife returned to his home about noon and a short time later quarreled with her. Finally he started to beat her and did a fairly successful job. So much so that Mrs. Hussey visited the office of Acting Prosecuting Attorney Perry J. Hollandersky, who issued a warrant for Hussey's arrest, after hearing the allegations of the woman. Mrs Hussey declared that Saturday's beating was not the first one that she had received from her husband, for she stated that of late he had made it a practice to thrash her whenever he became displeased.

Oskar Hill, a laborer, residing at 62 North Bank street, was taken into custody Saturday afternoon by Sergeant John Cavanaugh and Patrolman William Riordan charged with intoxication. He is now a prisoner at the police station awaiting the convening of court Monday morning. Hill has been arrested numerous times of late charged with intoxication.

Another mean species of thief was revealed Saturday afternoon when Charles M. Smalley, sexton of the Methodist church, complained to the police that during the day a thief had visited the church's Christmas tree, corner of Huntington and Broad street, and stolen a dozen or more electric light bulbs that were used for illumination of the tree at night.

Lieut. Dierdorff, stationed aboard U. S. S. Camden, submarine base, complained to the police Saturday afternoon that his Waltham watch had been stolen from the ship, earlier in the day.

Samuel Lawrence of 10 Pearl street: Romaine Rose, 312 Main street; Mrs. Urbano Gangan, 20 Allen street Groton; Miss Alice Hill, 176 Bank street and Miss Louise Marshall, Groton, patients at Lawrence Memorial Associated hospital, were discharged Saturday.

Miss Dorothy Ames Church, 28, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayland Church, 41 Waller street, died Thursday at the residence of her parents, where she had been ill about a year. Miss Church was born in Montville, but for several years had resided in New London and where she had been employed as a social secretary. Besides her parents, Miss Church is survived by a sister.

Luke Bowman, 59 Garfield avenue, has returned to his home after having been called to Boston by the death of his mother.

T. Harold Pinney, pursuing law studies at New York, is spending a few days with his parents, Captain of Police and Mrs. Charles A. Pinney, Howard street.

James Firby of Tilley street, is spending a few days with Providence relatives.

Mrs. H. J. Coggeswell and daughter, Mrs. Louise Cushman, of Hartford, have returned home, having spent several days with relatives in this city.

The intensely cold weather that struck this city Saturday night and continued Sunday, caught many householders who had not taken precaution to avoid freezing water pipes to be without water today. Plumbers were in demand about the city their services being rendered only with double pay for working on Sunday. But the same story is told every year with the first severe weather. The temperature went to zero Sunday morning and some thermometers recorded even lower temperature.

Thomas Pianpiano of Pratt street, was arrested Saturday night by Patrolman Edward Riordan and Policewoman Jane Cassidy, charged with the neglect of his minor children, Nancy 6, and Mary 15. The accused was apprehended at his home, following Acting Prosecuting Attorney Perry J. Hollandersky issuing a warrant upon information supplied him by Mrs Cassidy. He will be given a hearing in the police court Monday forenoon. Pianpiano, his friends declare, earns $28 weekly and does support his children, but the elder girl borders close to an incorrigible. The younger of the girls was taken to the home of the policewoman to await the convening of the police court, but Mary, surmising that the police were to take action in the case, hastily departed from the house a few minutes prior to the arrival of the officers and since has remained in hiding. It is believed, however, that the girl has gone to the home of a relative in Pawtucket, R. I., and the authorities of that place have been requested to detain the girl, should she put in an appearance there.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stockel Saturday caused the operator's license of Fred Bosworth, 180 Crystal avenue, to be suspended. Commissioner Stoeckel also caused the operator's license of Richard Shea, 17 Viets street, recently suspended, to be returned to the owner.

Philip Preston, L. A. Smalley and Krick Pinder, all members of the United States coast guard, state police complained to the police this evening that they shared their room at 33 Golden street with Harold A. Smith and that Smith stole three overcoats and two suits of cloths belonging to the complainants.

Five youths, one of them over 17, went to the Empire theatre this evening and there created a disturbance, both by their conduct and by their utterances, the latter being of a nature that was decidedly objectionable to other patrons of the motion picture house. Special Officer Timothy Sullivan attempted to remonstrate with the fellows, but was set upon by the gang, who attempted to beat up the officer. A call for assistance was sent to the police and Patrolmen John Sullivan and Clarence Wells responded with the result that the entire gang were brought to the police station and a complaint lodged against them of breach of the peace. The youths were turned over to the custody of Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield and will be presented in the juvenile court.

George E. Sullivan, United States coast guard and Sylvester Gorley neither over 20 years, were taken into custody Saturday night by Sergeant Samuel Hick and Patrolmen John Sullivan and Clarence Wells charged with carrying concealed weapons. Both were made prisoners at the police station and will be presented in the police court Monday morning. The pair were occupying room 411 at the Crocker House and both possessed revolvers. Gorley declared that he received his weapon from a woman whose husband is a member of the United States coast guard.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

A glance at the advertisement of the Broadway theater in another section of this paper will easily convince the discriminate theatergoer that it is a program of exceptional entertainment value and makes this a remarkable show to complete the year of 1925.

"Married?", a screen version of the novel by Marjorie Benton Cooke, with Owen Moore and Constance Bennett in the leading roles, was presented for the first time yesterday at the Broadway theater. It is a highly entertaining and exceedingly absorbing story of a marriage by proxy, with scenes laid in New York City and in the big woods.

This is the kind of motion picture production that is thoroughly worth while from every point of view. It is the motion picture at its very best and the sort of entertainment that every lover of good movies will be decidedly sorry to miss seeing. We endorse it most highly.

One of the big thrills in Married? comes when Evangeline Russell, one of the supporting cast, leaps from the top of a high chasm into the swift current below. It is a thrill worth going miles to see, and this is but one of the many good things to be found in this Jans production. It will be at the Broadway theater today and Tuesday, Wednesday.

SAWA SKIGRAN AGAIN DEFIES PROHIBITION LAW

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Dec. 27—Sawa Skigran, proprietor of a restaurant at 13b North Bank street, was taken into custody Saturday night charged with violation of the prohibition law, following a raid conducted by local and prohibition officers. Skigran furnished a bond of $1,000 for his appearance in the police court Monday morning. Mrs. Esther Lubchansky becomes surety on the bond. Skigran was taken into custody last Monday when state and local police raided his establishment and the following day he was convicted on two counts, being fined $200 on each count and sentenced to 10 days in jail on the second count, the execution of the sentence being suspended for one year.

The police have been keeping a close watch on the Skigran place since the raid of a week ago and were satisfied that Skigran was continuing to dispense hooch. Saturday night Sergeant Samuel Hick obtained a search warrant from Judge S. Victor Prince and about 10:30 o'clock, accompanied by Prohibition Officer Joseph Fitzpatrick and Patrolmen Ernest Opperman Frank Philopena and Edward Riordan swooped down upon the place. There were but few patrons in the room when the officers arrived. After a search of half an hour, a gallon concoction, or white mule was found and this the officers seized as evidence that liquor was maintained in the place for purposes of sale.

EDITH PALMER GIVEN WEEK TO BEAT IT FOR N. JERSEY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 27—Edith Palmer, a young wife of a Filipino, who has been in the public eye because of her conduct of late, was presented in court for contributing to the delinquency of the Armstrong girl who has lately been committed to the House of the Good Shepherd at Hartford. She pleaded guilty as charged. The woman is only 19 and is the mother of two small children. The court was inclined to send her to the state farm for women, but it was represented that her husband was in the custody of the naval authorities and upon the disposition of the case made by the court would depend his punishment as encouraging the woman who is his wife in the path she has been pursuing. He has no money and the woman is also destitute. She was finally given a week to get out of town and to go to her parents, who reside at Elizabeth, N. J. The probation officer is to provide the money with which Mrs. Palmer may leave the city. That was deemed the best solution of the matter by all who had interested themselves in the case.

Communists and Cake

Communist newspapers comment humorously on the predicament of an enthusiastic member of the party. This communist's wife started to bake the usual cake for a church holiday. He explained that as he did not observe such days a cake was unnecessary. The wife insisted, and he finally agreed that the cake be baked, but specified that it be different in shape from the ordinary. The wife replied that a cake of any other shape would be foolish and began to cry. The communist became angry, declared that he was head of the family and forbade his wife to bake the cake. Then he recalled in a communist family husband and wife are equal, and that he could not give orders. So, ask some communist writers, what can a loyal communist do if he wants peace at home, especially if he likes cake?

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Lyceum Theater

New London is to be made joyous by Rainbow Rose, George Macfarlane's colossal and colorful musical comedy, which will open a two-day engagement at the Lyceum theater on Tuesday, December 29th, also playing a matinee and night performance on the following day, Wednesday. This company carries its own syncopated orchestra under the direction of F. Wheeler Wadsworth.

What might be termed a Rainbow Division of coryphees, because they have been picked from all remote places of the land, is one of the features of the show. Then there are countless Charleston charmers, described in the advance reports as catlectrotonic in their antics.

In the language of the poet Rainbow Rose has been dipped in the dyes of heaven, its beauty in the main is that of radiant ambitious youth. Such an array of perfect pulchritude has seldom been gathered on the American stage.

In the cast are George Macfarlane, Louise Galloway, Charles Williams, Lucille Sears, Jack Whiting, Alexander Clark, Viola Gillette, Margaret Walker, Billy Tichenor, Teddy Hudson and Paisley Noon. There are 24 dancers and with the Rainbow Rose orchestra the membership totals sixty.

Zelda Sears wrote the book, made from her story called Broke and later A Lucky Break. Walter DeLeon made the adaptation with Harold Levey and Owen Murphy supplying the many musical numbers, including the popular Rainbow song. Messrs. DeLeon and Murphy wrote the lyrics.

All in all an imposing array of talent. Mr. Levey wrote the musical score of the newest Greenwich Village Follies and is well remembered for the swinging tunes of The Clinging Vine. He is a protege of Victor Herbert, giving his tunes the same whistling qualities of that celebrated musician.

At the Breed

The night life of Monte Carlo, with its gaming tables, its beautiful women, its tragedies, amours, and honeymoon romances, all figures in Norma Talmadge's latest photoplay, The Lady, now playing at the Breed Theater.

For Norma's new picture director Frank Borzage, has combined real scenes taken in the Montagasque capital with studio reproduction of Monaco life made from photographs. The gambling rooms, the dance halls, "suicide terrace" and other well known spots in Monte Carlo all are shown with realistic fidelity.

The Lady was adapted to the screen from the famous stage play by Martin Brown. Much of the action takes place in the year 1900 and the gowns worn by the chorus girls and the fashionable women seen in The Lady were all designed from photographs taken in 1900.

The picture is proving particularly interesting to fathers and mothers who remember back twenty years, as well as to the flappers and sheiks of 1924.

Announcement

The New Year's eve frolic and dancing party to be held in the armory on Thursday evening should be one of the best evening's entertainment put forth for that night. The citizen soldiers of the First Combat Train have been fortunate in securing for that night the crack orchestra of the 11th Coast Artillery of New York, to help swell the mess funds of both train and orchestra.

The orchestra is made up of fifteen musicians including instrumental soloists and carry a vocalist of exceptional ability. They have played on shore for many high ranking army functions at posts ranging from Governor's Island, New York, to Fort McKinley in Maine, and at naval functions ashore and afloat, at stations and those given by army and navy personnel at the shore hotels.

They play all the latest dance numbers with the snap and precision of a well-trained musical military organization under the able leadership of Warrant Officer Donecelly.

Those attending are sure of a musical treat whether dancing or not and are helping a good cause, to fill up the boys "kitchen larder" for our Tobyhanna camp next year.

Palace Theater

W. C. Fields and Carol Dempster came to Norwich by the way of the silver sheet at the Palace last night and its safe to say that everyone who saw Sally of the Sawdust will welcome this pair back again at anytime. Fields as the tricky Professor kept the Palace audience in an uproar all evening and its safe to say that there were few dry eyes after Carol Dempster made her impassioned plea to the judge for her Pop. The kids—all of them from eight to eighty had a great time. The circus scenes are nothing short of wonderful if you can't imagine you smell the hot dogs, peanuts and pop corn your imaginative powers are dull. In short it's great entertainment for everybody. It's proof that Griffith free from all financial worries is still the world's greatest director. Today four exceptional vaudeville acts will be given in addition to the picture and the management promises every act is a big time timber. The Miller Marks entertainers nine people with special scenery, a jazz band, novelty dancers and special comedy number is the feature attraction. Burns and West who have been here before are back again and it's safe to say they will be welcome. If there is two boys who know how to get laughs out of an audience it's these two funsters and who doesn't like to laugh. The Three Victors a sensational hand to hand casting act opens the bill and is followed by Dorothy Jardon the six cylinder singer who makes them listen from the time she steps out of the wings until her last number. With so much pep in the vaudeville and the countless laughs in Sally of the Sawdust, the patrons of the Palace are going to enjoy a hilarious two and a half hours.

AFRICAN MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS BARRED BY CUBAN PRESIDENT

HAVANA, Dec. 27 (AP)—Playing of the tambor, or tom-tom, or other musical instruments of African character, with singing and contorted dancing, have been prohibited by presidential decree.

President Machado's decree says this class of music and the "rumba" are contrary to the good custom and public order of Cuba.

POETRY

Resignation

I ask no more that I may know
The way God has for me,
I only care that He shall show
My duty momently.

At first I sought with restless mind
To know the entire way,
But now I am content to find
My path from day to day.

I am not idle, for it seems
That much on me depends,
But telling all my fondest dreams
I take what Heaven sends;

Not always gladly, but resigned
I wait the Father's will,
Believing that though I am blind
He walks beside me still.
—Arthur W. Eaton.

The Constitution: "Old Ironsides"

Raise up her tattered ensign, at royal-mast and peak;
Again, in her emphatic tones, let this old frigate speak.
Through many years her name and fame were known around the world,
For daring deeds, on many seas, when cannon shots were hurled.
She still abides, a glorious ship, a priceless heritage,
From hopeful hearts and willing hands, to cheer the present age.

Raise up her tattered ensign; renew her well-worn deck,
And "iron sides" that never wave nor hostile shot could wreck;
Renew every rope; set every spar as trim as days of yore,
The victor ship of other years shall plow the waves once more!
Set all her sails, tis drawing full they give the thrill of life
That sent her always forward to greet the battle's strife.

Raise up her tattered ensign! and raise it o'er a ship
On which not war nor tempest's shock could lay a fatal grip;
Restore her guns, and give them voice to shout again her fame,
That generations yet may know the "Constitution's" name.
Again may she the God of Storms face as in the days of old,
And show the world a grateful land reverses this frigate bold.
—John Stuart Barrows in Boston Transcript.

PLAINFIELD

EVENING SCHOOL PUPILS HAVE CHRISTMAS PARTY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PLAINFIELD, Dec. 27.—The Plainfield evening school for non-English speaking adults will be resumed this evening after a brief holiday recess. Over 50 pupils have been enrolled in the three classes since last October and due to the efficient direction of the faculty and the sincere interest of the pupils themselves. The attendance has steadily increased. Tuesday evening, December 22, at the close of the fall term the members of the three classes united in presenting a Christmas program which combined musical and literary numbers. The program opened with brief words of welcome by Miss Mildred R. Healey, principal of the school. The opening address was followed by an accordion duet by Carl Swedeburg and Joel Ollson, which was heartily applauded. John L. Chapman, superintendent of schools, then addressed the audience and congratulated pupils and teachers on the splendid showing and marked progress made so for this year. As a token of their appreciation of his sincere interest and earnest co-operation in the work of the evening school, Miss Healey, in behalf of the evening school faculty, presented Mr. Chapman a pair of suede gloves.

Gotfried Kaiser of the advanced class then read a most interesting and entertaining paper on Christmas customs in Germany which was followed by a violin trio by George and Paul Couett and Wilfrid Bree, of the intermediate class. Rene Brocher recited a Christmas poem and Miss Cecilia Ellis, teacher of the intermediate class read "The First Christmas."

The feature of the evening was a dainty minuet, danced with remarkable skill and grace by little Miss Mildred Goldberg and Master Donald Zercle, members of this year's graduating class of Moosup grammar school. Little Peter Soronocki, of Jewett City grammar school, then gave a group of Polish dances with agility and these also were greatly enjoyed. Miss Catherine Dodd, teacher of the advanced class, made the closing speech, after which Santa Claus visited the assemblage. The members of the evening school classes presented their respective teachers generous gold pieces.

Following the presentation of gifts, dancing and a social evening was enjoyed. The program also included a chorus, Adeste Fidelis by the school and the chorus, Silent Night, school, with another story, The First Christmas, Miss Cecilia Ellis, accordion duet, by Messrs Swedeburg and Ollson, violin duet by George and Paul Covett.

The Ford Delivery wagon, belonging to Fontaine and Charron of Plainfield, skidded off the road at the foot of Hopkins Hill the other evening and was badly damaged, the driver escaping injury.

Clarence Winsor, teach of mathematics at Wilbraham Academy, Mass., is spending the vacation at the home of his parents and will resume his duties January 4th.

The lawsuit between Carl D. Gallup and Downing Brothers, tried at a recent court session, resulted in favor of Mr. Gallup. A bill of long standing was the cause of the action, Mr. Gallup placing an attachment on the ice plant of Downing Brothers. Judgment was awarded Gallup for the full amount of the suit, including costs.

As the clock struck 10 Thursday night, a fire started on the side of a hill, overlooking the railroad tracks, and before many seconds took the shape of a beautiful fiery cross, which could be seen for miles around. It was rumored after some time that a 100 per cent. American organization, were celebrating as part of its annual custom.

The Christmas tree paryt and entertainment, was held at the Congregational church Thursday evening and true Christmas spirit was displayed, when Santa Claus made his appearance. Each child was presented a package of goodies, which caused great pleasure. Games were played, and many gifts were distributed from the tree to members of the audience.

Arnold Adams of Whitensville spent the Christmas holiday at the home of his brother James, Plainfield street. Other guests at the house, were Charles Olin and Sidney Goosey.

Constanbe, the year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Burdick, who is in Backus hospital, Norwich, is reported as much improved condition.

The meeting of the Ladies' Aid society of Plainfield is to be held early in January.

The women's guild of the congregational church recently held its annual election. Those elected and installed were: President, Mrs. Percy H. Wilcox; 1st vice president, Mrs. Charles H. Barber, 2nd vice president, Miss Ruth Hall; secretary, Mrs. Edward Hall, secretary, Mrs. Edward Hall, treasurer, Mrs. Ida Pratt, leaders Mrs. Everett E. Dawley, and Mrs. Winifred Gardner. Wednesday afternoon the executive board of the guild is to meet with Mrs. Gardner.

Thursday evening all the organizations of the Congregational church will meet in the vestry.

The committee comprises Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lathrop, Edward Hall, Miss Rose Beaudry, and Percy H. Wilcox.

Albert Axleson of Worcester was a visitor over the holidays at the home of his parents. Other guests from Detroit, Michigan were present.

Alden White of Hartford was a week end visitor at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Adams.

Arthur J. Tierman of Miami, Fla., who has been a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ledger is to sail from New York, Tuesday morning for Miami, leaving Plainfield on the morning train today (Monday).

A family reunion was held Christmas day at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Royle. Twenty one were present at the dinner including Mr. and Mrs. John Kingsley.

Elmer Phillips and family motored to Hartford Sunday, to visit Mr. Phillips' father, who is confined to his bed at the hospital.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE AWAKES

Inconsistency

Around her neck, whose beauty was a constant joy to her,
She wound a wondrous flippet of most expensive fur.
Then in her arms her little dog she carried to her ear,
A pet perfumed and glossy as all such darlings are.

Now this is writ to tell the dream her little Gracie dreamed.
He snuggled in her arms and dozed and then to him it seemed
The fur around the throat of her spake to his canine ears
And told a tale of horror that tapped the sleeper's tears.

"I ought to choke the life from her," the flippet seemed to say.
"That's what the snare the trapper set one dark day did to me.
Around her throat I find myself—God, what it is to choke!—
If I should take revenge on her, would you call that a joke?"

She felt her little pampered pet grow restless in his sleep.
And then he wakened suddenly, and made a frantic leap;
He tore the fur from off her throat, and barked and barked again—
She clasped him in her hungry arms and hugged and kissed him ten

Can These Be Men?

Oh, is it Life we love,
And seek to love—
Or Death, that brings release:
That makes Life cease
To be? In Death, no ache
Could ever make
Our hearts shriek out their cries,
Through tear-dimmed eyes.
But Life—where men can smile
And scoff, the while
They kill—or watch men kill,
Holds torture still.

Today, I saw this thing—
And so I bring
The tale to you as though
You did not know.
A little hero dog,
A mongrel dog—
His Master's life had saved.
For him he'd braved—
And now, today a man,
But is he man?
Drove by—and struck his head—
The dog is dead.

I saw men at their work,
Who even smirked
With glib lack of love,
For that dog's love.
Some others turned their heads
"He's dumb."—they said,
And never cared at all
To see him fall—
And he who took that life
Passed on, as if
A stone had struck his wheel.
Are these men real?

As long as men are hard,
And life is marred
For those who cannot see
That there can be
The richest truest love
In silent love;
And those who cannot speak
Are labeled weak:
As long as men exist
Who are like this—
Then must the world go on,
And ever on:
While heaven keeps away!

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE AWAKES

At this time we have all enjoyed a merry Christmas, also the many good things which come on that glorious day. The next big day which will come into our lives is New Year's day and in this day there is much food for thought.

In 1926 are we going ahead and follow the same course we pursued in 1925, or are we going to set a better and higher goal for our achievements during the coming year. Successful men have always given the credit for their position in life to a noble ambition and a constant striving to reach the goal set early in life.

It is admitted that what might be termed success comes to some who do not earn it, comes to some through a lucky break (as we are pleased to term it), but real success comes through hard work, the striving to do things right, the courage to go on when things look black, and above all things, the giving of a square deal.

Possibly some men never give a square deal in gaining what they term success. No matter what they feel, no man can ever become a successful man if he gains his position by not playing fair. He may make money some people may call him a leading citizen, but deep down in the heart of everyone there is that honest feeling which keeps saying things undcomplimentary about that "successful" man.

He is not a successful man because he lacks the one thing needed to make anyone successful, he has not conquered selfishness. That man who has gained everything in life, seemingly, has lost the one thing that counts most. He is not a success for he himself is a failure. His good qualities have been stunted in growth and the bad have been allowed to grow until he is dominated by his worst nature.

Perhaps there is too much of this type of success in the world today but in you members of the Wide Awake Circle, and in boys and girls just like yourselves, there is the rising generation. You possess the ability to change this selfish type of success and in its place substitute that success in life which includes the most important of all "Success with Self."

LETTERS WRITTEN BY THE WIDE AWAKES

Helen's First Birthday Cake

Dear Uncle Jed: Helen is a little girl and she was three years old in December 14th. As she is the only little child her mother thought she would give her a happy little birthday.

Two days before her birthday her mother made her a nice big birthday cake. It had cherries, nuts, and a lot of other little dainties in it to make it taste good. It was covered with white and yellow frosting and had her name and ages on top in black frosting which made it look very pretty.

And in the middle there were placed three candles, which little Helen was to blow out on her birthday.

Soon the cake was made and was put away for little Helen. Soon her birthday came and she was a happy little child. She invited six of her little playmates and her mother let her blow the candles and cut the cake and pass a piece to each of her little friends, also a dish of cream to be eaten with the cake.

After we played five or six games it soon came five o'clock and we thanked Helen for the good time that she had given us. We hurried home very tired but happy.

Dear Uncle Jed as this is my first story I hope all the Wide Awakes will be glad to read it.

Buy Christmas Seals!

Dear Uncle Jed: At Christmas time we should all buy Christmas seals. We do not buy these seals just for Christmas but to help the government, for when we buy these seals we are helping the National Tuberculosis association. All the money that this association receives goes to promote the child health movement.

Through this movement millions of school children are taught the daily habits of cleanliness, diet, exercise, and rest, in order that they might become healthy men and women.

The Christmas seal sale began Nov 23 at Washington, D. C. A big reproduction of the seal bearing two tall candles was placed in the large window of the White house. When Mrs Coolidge lighted these candles the campaign was on. Then president Coolidge bought the first seal from an eleven year old girl whose name is Andrienne Mayer, one of the health crusaders of the national capital.

Last year one billion, two hundred-fifty million seals were printed and sold.

Christmas Seals

Dear Uncle Jed: My teacher asked me if I would sell some seals. I said "Yes." I sold one hundred and twenty seals. Don't you think that was good Uncle Jed? I am in the fourth grade.

The Rose

Dear Uncle Jed: There was once a poor woman who had two children. The younger one went every day in the forest to fetch wood.

Once when she strayed away, looking for branches a little fairy came to her and said, "What are you doing my little maid?"

"I am gathering wood for the fire at home," she answered. "This is my task every day and though it is hard work I like it very much because it takes me among the flowers I like so well."

"Take this rosebud," said the fairy, "and when it is blown I will visit your home and you will not need to work hard any more."

The little girl took the flower home and told her mother what her new acquaintance had said. The mother put the fragrant flower into water and she and her two daughters watched it gradually open, waiting for the time when it would be in full bloom.

One morning the child did not make her appearance at the breakfast table. The mother, wondering what the trouble was climbed up to her daughter's little attic room where she found her little child dead. That morning the rose was in full bloom. The fairy had taken her to a better world.

Isaac Hull—

Dear Uncle Jed: One of the shrines of the United States is the old frigate Constitution, often called, "Old Ironsides," a 44 gun ship that now lies in Boston, where it is visited annually by thousands of people. That old frigate was built in 1797 and would have been sold for junk had it not been for the stirring poem called Old Ironsides, written by Oliver Wendell Holmes.

Our Studies

Dear Uncle Jed: Today I thought I would write to you and tell you what the high 5th grade is doing in geography. We are studying about South America. The Amazon river drains all of Brazil. We have studied about Argentina, Paraguay, Uruguay Valparaiso, Peru, Chile, Buenos Aires, and Montevideo. This is all I can think of the countries and cities now. I will tell you some more when I write again.

Johnie Boy's Lesson

Dear Uncle Jed: I have not written you because I had no time. Tonight I happened to be reading Monday's Wide Awake Circle and having time I sat down and I am writing now here is my story. I already have read it in front of the class.

Johnie was a very good little boy but he had one fault. He was disobedient. When his mother called him he would not answer her. It was mother's birthday (a very sunny day.) When she came down to breakfast many packages awaited her. When she saw them all she said Johnie's the best. It was a sheet of paper saying, 'Dear Mother: I love you. I will obey you always at your first call."

JOHNIE.

It was the same morning Johnie was by the brook trying to catch some small fish. "Johnie, Johnie," called his mother. "I see some smoke near the track. Will you see what it is? Your father is away and no one is here but you."

"Oh! dear," thought Johnie, "I will pretend I don't hear." "But still," paused he, "I have promised I would obey her every time I heard her. Well I am going just the same." And away he ran to the track. He looked on one side. Nothing met his eyes. But on the next side lo and behold, a bridge which was a covered bridge was burning fiercely. No time to run for help. The nearest house was three miles away and besides he heard the whistle of the fastest express train coming.

Quickly coming to action he ran and picked up a stout long pole near by, took off his red sweater and waved it in the air vigorously.

"Get out the way you little devil," hollered the engineer but not a step did he move. The engineer quickly stopped the train with the thought that something must surely be the matter.

When it stopped all the men in the train got out and asked him what was the matter. Among these was his father. In stuttering words he told them the tale of the burning bridge. They were so thankful that they gave him money enough for a dandy knife and gold watch and a chain.

Yours truly and sincerely,

A Venture Into the Woods

Dear Uncle Jed: One Saturday morning, when the sun was shining brightly, and the leaves had all fallen from the trees, I thought I would venture out into the woods.

I started down a long lane which led to the woods. In the distance I could see cows, and as I came to the woods I saw a rabbit running and all of a sudden I heard a terrible noise which sounded like thunder. This frightened me and I was afraid to move. Then I had to laugh to see a flock of quail flying up into the air.

I waled on and on and came to some large chestnut trees. I had filled my pockets almost full, when I heard a noise in the leaves. I turned around expecting to see a little squirrel, but instead it was something big that looked more like a dog.

My first thought was to run, but I seemed glued on the spot and I could not move I was so frightened. It seemed like hours that I stood there, but of course, it was only a second.

Finally, I was able to climb up a tree. I heard dogs barking, then I heard a shot. The animal ran and soon the hunters came. I climbed down the tree and told them what I saw and they sent the dog after it.

I went home as fast as I could feeling so scared that I decided that I wouldn't venture out in the woods very soon again.

A few days later I read in the paper of hunters finding a wildcat in the very same woods, which must have been the animal I had seen.

Our Breakfast Foods.

Dear Uncle Jed: Did you ever think of the past history of an article of the breakfast table? Just take for instance, one of the familiar American breakfast goods, the orange. Even that has a history. It was raised in a pleasant, sunny garden of California and after many days it was picked and packed in a crate with many others. Then came a long journey across the country in a stuffy box car. When it arrived in the east it was sold to a large store and now its history, as the history of many other appetising foods ends on the breakfast table.

The cocoa has had a longer travel. it came from a cacoa-pod on a cacao tree of Brazil. It was dried in the sun by the natives. It was sent to America in a large shipment of cacaos and here it was taken out of the sacks and put into pound cans, in this form it is sold. It is used for flavoring and frostings, but mostly for the well known refreshing drink, cocoa. Let us also trace the drinks of our mother and father, tea and coffee.

Tea's history starts in China in a large tea field. It was picked and dried there. It is graded and most of the second class tea is sent to the United States for the first class is only used by their emperor and wealthy people.

Coffee is raised in Brazil and sent to the United States where it is used extensively as a drink; even though it is bad for the heart.

Toast is one of the best breakfast foods and is much used all over the United States. A small part of the yield of large wheat fields of Minnesota is made into toast.

Toast is eaten in some homes every morning.

What is the history of sugar? Why: the sugar was raised in the south by cheerful darkies who sing as they work. These negroes plant it, raise it and pick it. The sugar-cane is crushed by large rollers. It is then boiled down and part of it is made into molasses while the rest is crystallized, which gives it its name of refined sugar.

Your friend,

WILLIAM M'NAUGHT, Age 12.

True Americans

Dear Uncle Jed: The indians are a copper colored people with coarse, straight, black hair, and black eyes. Some dress in blankets and some in skins. They wear moccasins on their feet and beads around their necks, legs, and arms. The chiefs and other men paint their faces with juices of fruits and berries. The babies are called papooses and the women carry them on their backs. The children hardly ever wear clothing. The Indians are very fierce people. They move about like gypsies and the women carry the tents while the men carry the bows, arrows, tomahawks and other things. The women do most of the work about the homes and the men go about hunting deer and birds for food and fur. The teachers are used to make headdresses for the warriors. The indians are made up into tribes ruled by chiefs.

In colonial days the indians were very cruelly treated by the Spaniards and other men. They cut off their hands, and other cruel things.

We have tried to civilize the Indians but have spoiled them because they were not accustomed to our living.

RUTH WIGHT, Age 11.

Winter

Dear Uncle Jed: It is winter. The winds blow keenly the ponds are frozen over and all nature seems to be asleep. The ground is covered with snow and week after week, I may even say months, we look at the landscape to see an immense white sheet spread over mountains and trees. Horses and cattle have left the pastures and are now in warm barns. Folks who are out of doors wrap themselves in heavy clothes and I try on.

Now we meet the sleighs filled with laughing people dashing along to the tune of jingling bells. Boys spend their Saturdays coasting down hill or gliding over the glassy surface of ponds.

Indoors there are hot fires and merry games, also pleasant books, to pass the long winter evenings. All is joy especially when the whole family is at home. Every season has its feasts and joys but this season brings the happiest feast of Christmas. Everyone is happy even the poor for Christmas the Saviour of the world, was born this day. This is my story of winter. I hope all the Wide Awakes will like it.

PARKER HOUSE RELICS WILL BE PRESERVED FOR FUTURE

PORTLAND, Ore., Dec. 27—(AP)—Out Parker House, Boston's historic hostelry and birthplace of the "Parker House Roll," is giving way to wreckers, several of its traditional sections may be preserved by faithful friends as relics of the past.

Plans call for the restoration of the mirror room—the big main floor dining room—in its entirety. This may be set up in an inn, not far from Boston.

Restoration of the crystal room, the noted banquet hall, also is under consideration. It may become the salon of a retail establishment.

Some of the mantels and other interior finishings have been sold as relics. The finishing of the reading room, the writing room and the second floor ladies room have been preserved so that these mahogany rooms may be rebuilt in the new hotel which will open in 1927.

Few of the landmarks of Boston are richer in memories than this vanishing ruin. Charles Dickens passed a winter under its roof and his rooms have been maintained as a literary shrine. In 1878, President Grant and several members of his cabinet were guests there. Among others were Patti, Bernhardt, Ada Rehan, Henry Irving, Edwin Booth, Mansfield and Clara Louise Kellogg.

The Parker House has played a large part in the politics, business and social life of Boston.

LOWLY DESTINY CONFRONTS MILLION OR SO MUSTANGS

BOSTON, Dec. 27—(AP)—Although the glories of mountain range and plain into the soap vat or fertilizer bin is the ignominious destiny that seems in prospect for the western mustang—small, mostly useless, and numerous.

For those in the Pacific Northwest, this lowly end approached appreciably close when a Portland company began the construction of a plant in which this rendering will be done.

The sturdy, roving bands of undersized horses eat off the range that is needed by stockmen and upon which depends, to a large extent, the game in the western states. In Montana alone it was estimated that there are 250,000 of these wild horses. Other thousands perplex the livestock interests of Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Nevada and Colorado, swelling the total to a million or more for which no ordinary commercial market exists except for the leather and by-product value.

Dr. E. E. Chase, Portland city veterinarian, has added to the indictment against the mustang a charge that it spreads contagious diseases among cattle and sheep.

GAVE SUNDAY PROGRAMME AT W. W. BACKUS HOSPITAL

The Christmas music Sunday at the W. W. Backus hospital was arranged by the Connecticut Council of Catholic Women and gave the patients an hour of special enjoyment. The St. Mary's trio comprising Edward A. Connelly, Nicholas Spellman and Horace Corning rendered several of the Christmas hymns, notably the ever beautiful "Silent Night," also Gesu Bambino arranged by Pietro Yon. Each singer gave great pleasure with their solo numbers. The Angel song, The New Born King and Comfort Ye all specially appropriate for the Christmas season. The second part of the programme was arranged by Henry J. LaFountaine, organist of St. Patrick's church, the opening number being Adeste Fidelis, the ancient and inspiring Christmas hymn, the solo parts being well sustained by Roderick E. Sullivan, Mr. Fontaine singing in duet in the second stanza and Raymond and Walter Fontaine taking up the chorus with admirable effect.

Each singer gave great enjoyment with the solo numbers. The duets by Henry J. and Walter LaFontaine being especially pleasing. The accompanists with Mr. Spellman and Mr. LaFontaine The committee on arrangements were Mrs. Thomas J. O'Rourke, chairman of the hospital visiting committee, Mrs. R. E. Sullivan, Mrs. John J. UNIDENTIFIED MAN DROPPED DEAD AT TAFTVILLE SUNDAY AFTERNOON

An unidentified man, believed to be about 60 years of age, dropped dead Sunday afternoon about 3 o'clock in front of the Taftville Pharmacy. The man evidently arrived in the village on the bus from Providence and was walking toward the drug store when he suddenly fell to the sidewalk. People nearby went to his assistance and word was sent to Dr. George Thompson. The man was carried into the drug store but it was believed that he died almost immediately after he fell to the sidewalk. Dr. Thompson viewed the body and notified Medical Examiner C. C. Gildersleeve, M. D., who gave permission for the removal of the body to the rooms of Undertaker George G. Grant, at Taftville.

The man's clothing failed to reveal anything by which he could be identified. Medical Examiner Gildersleeve stated that the man appeared to be of English birth, about five feet seven inches in height, was wearing a brown overcoat, green or blue checkered suit a dark brown hat, bearing the name Manhattan on the inside band, and shoes of Manchester, England, manufacture.

The man had evidently been spending Christmas with relatives or was about to visit relatives for he carried a package containing a white soft colar, blue necktie and two white handkerchiefs, also two individual parcels, Christmas presents evidently intended for relatives.

One package contained a fancy white apron, inside a Christmas box, decorated with holly and evergreen, with a card inscribed as follows: "From Aunty Becca and Uncle Enoch to our niece Ruth."

A second package, wrapped in brown paper contained two Startex towels and a plain white handkerchief, also a post card with the inscription: "To Ruth and Jim (or Tim) from Enoch and Becca."

The only other article of value, beside a sum of money was a silver cased stem-wind watch with heavy gold chain attached. At the end of the chain was a small gold tea-pot, set with a stone of red and cream color. The key number was "five" but the manufacturers name or make of the watch was not inside the case.

Both parcels were wrapped in a piece of red tissue paper on the outside of which, written in lead pencil was the following inscription, "To Uncle Enoch. from Eva Tates (or Gates)" this being written twice.

It is believed that the man's first name was Enoch and that he was carrying gifts for relatives. The articles and other belongings are being held by Medical Examiner Gildersleeve and any word to identify the man will be welcomed by the authorities.

HUNDRED MILLION DOLLARS IN MOTOR VEHICLES

Approximately $100,000,000 is invested in motor vehicles in Connecticut this year, it has been determined by applying to the total number of registered vehicles the latest average of assessed valuation for the state. This is slightly more than twice the investment in motor vehicles in Rhode Island, which has recently been computed by the department of public roads of that state.

As nearly as can be approximated motor vehicle taxes and fees paid in Connecticut thus far this year, exclusive of federal taxes, and incidental fees, aggregate $6,722,017, of which the towns and cities in which the motor vehicles are owned received about $2,100,000, and the state about $4,622,000. These figures are computed by taking 21 mills as the average rate of assessment throughout the state under the property tax, and by adding the receipts from the gasoline tax to the motor vehicle registration fees. Receipts from additional cars registered and the gasoline consumed in the last half of this year will increase the total of taxes on the $100,000,000 investment to a figure well toward $8,000,000 by the end of the calendar year, but the investment itself will also be increased by car purchases made in the meantime.

The motor vehicle department annually forwards to the board of assessors in each town a list of the automobiles registered by people of that town during the year. This is to prevent evasion of payment of the property tax. The money paid by motor vehicle owners to their own municipalities is used for general governmental purposes in their home towns What they pay to the state is used exclusively for the improvement and extension of the state highways.

A percentage of the state receipts come from 2,324 motor vehicles registered in Connecticut but owned by outside individuals or corporations Most of these "foreign" cars are owned in New York state, in which the owners of 1,300 are located: Massachusetts comes second with 269, and New Jersey third with 236, followed by Pennsylvania with 100; Rhode Island with 86; Florida with 80; Ohio with 19 each; Washington, D. C. with 29; New Hampshire and Maryland with 19 each: Washinton, D. C., with 18; Virginia and Michigan with 15 each: Vermont and Wisconsin with 14 each; California and North Carolina with 13 each; Missouri 7; Indiana with 8; Alabama with 5; Delaware Kentucky, Minnesota, South Carolina and Canada with 4 each; Colorado with 3; Iowa, Tennessee and Oklahoma, 2 each; and Arizona, Arkansas Washington, West Virginia, Kansas, Oregon, Mississippi, Wyoming and Hawaiian Islands, one each.

SPECIAL HOLY NAME TALK TO CLEAN SPEECH SOCIETY

Although the temperature was below zero, Sunday mornings it did not cool the ardor of the members of the Holy Name society of St. Patrick's church, the members attending the 7:30 mass to receive quarterly Holy Communion. As usual, the mass was read by the rector, Rt. Rev. Msgr. M. H May, who complimented and commended the society for the manifest sincerity of its purpose. This organization in the Catholic church not only stands for reverence for the name of Jesus, but is banded in protest against profane, impure, suggestive speech in general. Monsignor May's sermon was wholly on the aims and value of the organization.

The society has had a very prosperous year, largely due to the efforts of its president, who is Letter Carrier Michael J. Murphy. At his own expense throughout the year, Mr Murphy has provided each member of the organization with regular copies of The Holy Name Journal, the national publication of the order.

The world-society has its own special feast day, in January, when the epistle of its mass is Acts 4. 8-12, ending "for there is no other name under heaven given to men, whereby we must be saved," and its gospel, Luke 2. 21- "His name was called Jesus which was called by the angel before He was conceived in the womb."

FAVOR MOTOR BUSSES FOR NEW HAVEN ROAD

The returns on Referendum No. 19, recently submitted to the entire membership of the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce and which favors "in general" the operation of highway motor busses by the New Haven road or its subsidiary, indicate, to date, that the chamber's members favor this general policy by a ratio of 27 to 1.

The vote among the local chambers of commerce on the state chamber's referendum favors this policy by a ratio of 12 to 1.

Referendum No. 19 was on a question as to whether the temporary policy favoring "in general" the operation of busses by the "New Haven" which was adopted by the state chamber's directors on November 20th, should be made a permanent policy of the chamber.

Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Park B. Smith of Danbury, announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Cordelia Smith, to Arthur T. Wickers of Passaic, New Jersey. Mr. Vickers is secretary of the Laurel company, Garfield, N. J. and is well known among the younger set.

MOVING PICTURES OF CHRIST AT Y. M. C. A.

There were two showings of the feature moving picture "Christ, From Manger to Manhood," at the local Y. M. C. A., Sunday afternoon. One was for boys only at 2.30 and the other at 4 p. m. for others. The pictures were very realistic, portraying as they did the birth and infancy of Jesus, the flight into Egypt, the return to Nazareth, etc. Also an interesting period of His ministry, especially the miracles He performed, and His teaching and preaching. The final picture was Jesus walking on the water, There were frequent quotations of scripture shown on the screen, making it easy to follow the story of His most wonderful life.

At the boys' meeting, Clarence E. Carpenter, chairman of the Y. M. C. A. boys' work committee gave a most interesting and impress' talk to which the large audience of boys gave fine attention. Mr. Carpenter told of the birth of the wonderful child, and what His coming into the world has meant and will continue to mean. He spoke of the fact that Christ was continually doing good to everyone He met, and that He never condemned anyone. We condemn others but He never did. He gave what He had and we can all do the same. Some have money and give that. We don't have to have money to do good. We have something to give. We can give our love to our mothers and fathers and others, even if we have much else to give, and we get great joy in giving of what we have to others. That is to be good boys, and He wants you to pray to Him; not long prayers, for they do not always count for much, but just short prayers, telling Him what you want. Ask Him to help you to be good boys, and when you make mistakes, when you sin ask His forgiveness, and He will forgive you. You may understand what I am going to say now, but it is true that He has gone to prepare a place for you, and some day if you are good boys He will take you to that beautiful home which He has prepared for all who love Him and live right."

At the 4 o'clock meeting Hugh Kinder furnished both vocal and instrumental music much to the pleasure of the audience that filled all the chairs and several were standing. Between the reels Secretary Edwin Hill gave a brief talk. He spoke in part as follows: I have never before been impressed with the significance of the wise men following the star as at this Christmas season. They saw the unusually bright light in the heavens, and they followed it until they found the Babe under where the star stood still in the heavens, and they offered to the Christ the best they had. So we should offer our best to Him. You remember that Jesus made great claims for Himself, all of which were fully justified. He said on one occasion, "I am the light of the world," and this is just as true as that the bright light led the wise men to Him at His birth.

"Every person, though they may have all that this world can give them, if they do not have the Christ enshrined in their hearts they are in darkness. There are those in our city as elsewhere who are walking in darkness for they fail to walk with the Christ. There is no companionship like companionship with Him; no pathway is other than darkness without His blessed companionship. You recall that when the two men walked with Him on the road to Emaus, when they discovered who He was, and He suddenly disappeared from them, one said to the other, "Did not our hearts burn within us as He talked with us by the way." Let us all secure, as it were, that holy heartburn that we get by walking with Him. Let us all resolve that as for us we will, as never before, walk in His footsteps and thereby walk in the light and not in darkness. Let us do our best to help all of those who are walking in darkness because they are walking apart from the Christ.

SPIRITUAL INVENTORY TIME, WARNS FR. GALVIN

Yesterday, the Sunday within the octave of Christmas, Rev. Myles P. Galvin, who preached at the 9 o'clock mass in St. Patrick's church, cited the business man as giving a good example to all Christians. As the year ends, he declared, it is the acceptable time to take spiritual inventory, as does the merchant, like him, to consider stock accounts, receipts and expenses finally to balance profits and losses, realizing that unless gain exceed outgo it will mean ruin.

The principal business of life is saving one's soul—for what doth it profit a man if he gain the whole world, yet lose his own soul. Christ has impressed this upon His followers. At each one's birth, the Creator put him, as it were, into business—gave him, as the Scriptures tell, talents to increase and improve. All are not alloted the same—as narrated in the parable, to one is given five talents, to another two—but to each is given at least one talent, to be utilized in God's service.

Now, as the merchant, in preparing for each new year ponders the cause of his failure or success, deciding to retrench, restock, expand, as the case may be, every Catholic should follow his example. If the inventory show a year of discouraging lapses, lack of that great asset bestowed by God—grace—if the soul be marred and battered by sin, the first thing is to fix upon the reason for spiritual failure This may be some bad habit, some certain occasion of evil-doing sluggishness in taking advantage of the help of the sacraments, omission of daily prayers.

There may be a class of persons who have failed to advance in their souls' business because of their lukewarmness. The Saviour abominates those who are neither hot nor cold—threatens to vomit them out of His mouth, in His condemnation of negative goodness.

Other some—and the preacher expressed the conviction that this applied to the great majority of the parishioners, must have the consoling encouragement of looking back upon a year in which they have truly advanced in the business of their soul. But such were warned not to stand still which would mean instant going backward. To feel satisfied with one's self is the first proof of spiritual weakness and unworthiness. For the guidance brief code of New Year resolutions was and inspiration of the three classes a outlined, Father Galvin stating that in his opinion the whole parish must have advanced spiritually, since there had never been a year in which there had been so great a number of Holy Communions—the test of the spiritual vigor and practical character of any people's Catholicity. As though to accentuate his statement, when Rev. John J Reilly, who read the mass, gave communion later, Father Galvin assisting him, the number was astonishingly large.

The day's epistle was Galatians, 4. 1-7 and the gospel Luke 2. 33-40. Organist Henry J. LaFontaine repeated much of his Christmas music, the Junior Choir singing the hymns very smoothly and with evident understanding of their motive and beauty. Mr. LaFontaine's offertory was his own arrangement of "Holy Night," with obligato of the organ chimes.

At the three masses of the day the rector and assistants expressed their acknowledgment for the generous Christmas offering of their people. It might be added that the parish, too, in taking an end-of-the-year inventory, would consider itself specially blessed and favored, in having three leaders who are eloquent and scholarly preachers, splendid singers, edifying in the activity, devotion, humility and the exemplary character of their lives, true shepherds of souls, in whom their people have confidence, for whom they cherish reverence, respect and gratitude, having learned by experience week after week that each is heart and soul "about His Father's business." Another rich asset with which the great parish, in its harmony and prosperity, ends the year is the possession of a gifted and consecrated body of teachers in the parish school—nine Sisters of Mercy spending their holy lives in the service of the people, their children, the poor, the sick and afflicted. The parish is free from debt, its various organizations strong in number and finances.

West Side Christmas Tree.

The West Side Communited Association's first Christmas tree at the junction of West Main, Asylum, Elizabeth and Mechanic streets, was the scene of a programme of Christmas carols given last Wednesday evening. The programme was given by the children of the Mt. Pleasant and Elizabeth street schools under the direction of Miss Nina E. Perry. The singing was led by cornets. The tree, an unusually attractive one, was brightly lighted by colored electric lights.

Their 57th Anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Jorn A. Button observed their 57th wedding anniversary on Wednesday eening at their home, No. 52 Broadway. Owing to the fact that Mr. Button is in ill health there was no special programme for the evening. A number of callers were received by Mr. and Mrs. Button, including Mr. and Mrs. Babcock of New Haven. Many congratulatory cards were received by the couple.

CHRIST IDEALS AND THE HISTORIC JESUS

The annual Christmas service at the Church of the Good Shepherd, Universalist, was held Sunday morning with a large congregation. The Christmas message was delivered by the pastor, Rev. A. N. Foster who spoke on the topic The Contract Between the Christ ideals and the Historic Jesus. His text was Mark 1:14.—Jesus came into Galilee preaching the gospel of the kingdom of God. In part Rev. Mr. Foster said:

Four or five of the Christ ideals of church history will illustrate the contrast with the simple teachings of Jesus of Nazareth. First, the ideal of the Jewish Messiah—the thought of which permeates the gospel of Matthew. Yet Jesus never completely fulfills that idea of the redemption of Israel.

The second, the ideal of the man from heaven, the second Adam, the center of an elaborate doctrinal system as proclaimed by the genius of the great Apostle to the Gentiles. Yet, Paul hardly makes any reference to the earthly ministry of Jesus and does not know him as the simple teacher of the people. Also the conception in the pages of the fourth Gospel implying the doctrine of pre-existence and reflecting the influence of the philosophy of the ancient Greeks, and also the conception of Angelo's Last Judgment involving the authority and the severity of the Roman in history.

How remote are these composite ideals—influenced by teachings and traditions of Greeks and Egyptians and Hindus and Romans—from the simple teaching of the parables at the sea port of Capernaum and the lovely beatitudes on the hill slopes of Galilee. If Christianity under the Emperor Constantine conquered Rome and the world, is no less true that the original teachings of Jesus had been much diluted and strangely perverted from their early simplicity.

As we read the Westminster Confession, we may well say—"is it not strong that so many zealous and would be followers in Christian grace have imputed so many things to Jesus that he did not teach!"

There is also the later ideal which makes Christianity synonymous with goodness and so magnifies the adoration of Christ as to all but forget the supremacy of his Father and his God! The presumption of saying there can be no righteous men among the followers of Mahomet and Guatama and Confucius!

The greatness of Jesus of Nazareth in history is not based on the power of conquest although that idea has many times been uppermost in the thought of his professed followers. It does not rest on intellectual supremacy—else Plato and Kant would be more widely honored than they are. It is rather the disposition of Jesus, the blending of humility and forgiveness with the strength to command. Read his reported words in the Beatitudes of Matthew and the fourteenth chapter of John and in view of the tender beauty and the thrilling inspiration, ask yourself—"Did man ever so speak before?"

His leadership is due to the vision which sees the common place things of life in the transforming light of heavenly purpose.

The recent public utterance of Rabbi Stephen Wise of New York recognizing the historic character of Jesus indicates the common inheritance and the common purpose of the liberal mind seekers after truth today.

The simple gospel of trust and service will yet show itself the most effective means of blessing the Earth.

The humanitarian words of Matthew Arnold ring true, "Was Christ a man like us? Ah, then, let us try if we too may be such men as He!"

SETTLEMENT OR TRUCE IN COAL STRIKE IS FORECAST

Representatives of the Miners and Operators Are Arriving in New York For Conference Today—It is Apparant to Observers That the Feeling is Not as Tense as It Has Been—William Green, President of the A. F. of L., Sunday Predicted That the Strike Would Be Settled Within Ten Days.

NEW YORK, Dec. 28—(AP)—A ray of hope for a settlement, or at least a truce, in the strike in the Pennsylvania hard coal fields, which has kept 158,000 miners idle since September 1 and caused a great shortage of anthracite, was seen tonight as representatives of the miners and operators arrived to attend a joint conference tomorrow. It will be the first time the two groups will have met since negotiations were broken off at Atlantic City last summer.

All of the thirteen men who will sit at the conference table, had not arrived tonight and the respective official spokesmen, by agreement, declined to discuss the situation in advance of the parleys. Tomorrow morning there will be separate informal conferences and the joint meeting behind closed doors will be called at 3 p. m. at the Union League club. It was indicated that the first meeting would be brief and that the conference would not get down to actual business until Wednesday.

Notwithstanding the absence of formal statements from the two groups it was evident to observers that the feeling was not as tense as it has been. The principal basis for hope of a settlement was the statement issued on Sunday by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor that the strike would be settled within ten days.

Before he became head of organized labor, Mr. Green was for many years secretary-treasurer of the United Mine Workers of America and he is conversant with details of the controversy. He was intimately associated with John L. Lewis, head of the miners, and it was Mr. Lewis who placed Mr. Green in nomination as president of the federation.

During the last convention of the federation at Atlantic City, when labor voted unanimously to support the miners in their strike, Mr. Green declared that the mine "would be as silent as King Tut's tomb" before the miners yielded to their demands. His statement of Sunday, therefore, was regarded as significant.

Mr. Green is expected here on Wednesday to address the American Association for Labor Legislation, but he will not take part in the parleys, so far as is known. He would be easily accessible for a conference with Mr. Lewis and his associates, however, should such a course be deemed necessary.

Alvan Markle, chairman of the joint negotiation committee, who called the conference, and who will preside tomorrow, arrived early tonight.

The anthracite operators' representatives are: Major William W. Inglis, of Scranton, chairman; George Hadesty of Pottsville; J. B. Warriner, of Lansford; E. H. Suender, of Frackville; A. M. Fine of Scranton and Thomas Thomas of Wilkes-Barre.

The miners delegation consists of: John L. Lewis, of Springfield, Ill., president; Philip Murray of Pittsburgh, vice president; Thomas Kennedy of Shamokin, secretary-treasurer; and the following district chairmen; Rinaldo Cappellini, of Scranton; Andrew Mutchy, Hazelton and Chris J. Golden, of Shamokin.

It was generally conceded that one of the first things to be discussed would be the offer made by the operators last Saturday for the miners to return to their work at once at the scale of wages fixed in the contract that expired on August 31. The operators, in declaring that "the door was open," offered to pay these wages for the next eight months, pending the drawing up of a new contract. This new contract, the operators proposed, must be for a long term, and "must provide a way to bring out all the facts, prevent suspension and adjust wages."

The operators flooded the hard coal fields with advertisements and circulars detailing their proposal. Union officials, in reply, announced that the miners "would not be stampeded back to work."

TO REPRESENT LABOR DEP'T AT COAL CONFERENCE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28—(AP)—The Hywell Davies of the bureau of conciliation to act as its observer of the meeting between anthracite operators and United Mine Workers officials tomorrow in New York, to discuss proposals for ending the long suspension in the hard coal fields.

Mr. Davies, who is considered one of the department's foremost coal experts, will chose one other member of the conciliation service in New York, and the two will keep a full record of the conference, in which officials said they saw reason to hope for an early resumption of work in the anthracite mines.

The appointment of government observers is not to be taken as an indication that the government is planning to take a hand in the controversy, officials declared, pointing out that the department has kept a detailed record of the suspension to have it available if needed.

BIGGEST COUNTERFEITING HAUL IN SEVERAL YEARS

NEW YORK, Dec. 28—(AP)—A new and ingenious photographic method for counterfeiting money was uncovered today by secret service agents who arrested five members of what officials believe to have been an international counterfeiting gang operating from Elizabeth, N. J. The Canadian Royal Mounted Police cooperated with the secret service in tracing the gang, and their apprehension comprised one of the biggest counterfeit hauls in several years.

A method of photographing separately the various colors of each bank note, done in a way not yet fully solved, was discovered by the agents when they seized the photographing plant at the home of the supposed leader of the ring, Frank Wiegand.

Wiegand, who was a jeweler until his firm went bankrupt two years ago confessed he printed the money at his home, aided only by his 19-year-old son, a cripple. The son was not arrested. Four other men were arrested with the father. They are said to have passed about $35,000 in counterfeit bills in this country and Canada during the past nine months.

The plant found in the Wiegand home was described by the arresting agents as an ingenious improvement over all known counterfeiting methods. Separate plates bore photographs of the various colors of banknotes, which were imprinted on a fine imported bond paper.

The only defect, the agents said, was in the tracing of the silk threads, which had been cleverly done by pen. Wiegand was experimenting, it was said, with bleached $1 bills to be raised to larger amounts.

In the counterfeiting outfit also was found a set of photographic plates of stock certificates of the Northern Ohio Traction and Light company, which Wiegand said had been sent him by two New York lawyers now under indictment for passing bogus bonds.

Wiegand pleaded guilty to a charge of counterfeiting when arraigned before United States Commissioner Pfaff in Elizabeth today and was committed Essex county jail in default of $10,000 bonds.

"PUSSYFOOT" JOHNSON'S VIEW OF PROHIBITION

LONDON, Dec. 28—(AP)—Prohibition has produced such prosperity and efficiency in the United States, that "even the best American burglars now are total abstainers," William E. (Pussyfoot) Johnson told a press association reporter, who sought comment from him on England's Christmastide festivities.

"There is an increasing public opinion in England," he said, "that drinks are a bad thing for both individuals and nations. Public opinion is going in the direction of prohibition all over the world, and Great Britain will come along in its own time. The Scandinavian countries, where I have just visited are going that way very rapidly."

Johnson arrived here last week after a vigorous speech making tour of Turkey, Bulgaria, Jugoslavia, Denmark, Norway and Sweden. He will sail on the steamer George Washington Wednesday for New York for a tour of the United States and Canada.

BREAK IN COLD WAVE IN THE MIDDLE WEST

CHICAGO, Dec. 28.—(AP)—The holiday zero wave which overspread almost the entire country was broken today.

While cold weather in many sections below the season's normal, is expected for today or two, the backbone of the wave was smashed when changing winds throughout the middle west caused the mercury to start to climb that did not stop until it had cleared the zero mark by a comfortable margin.

A toll of upward of two score of lives, a property loss from fires estimated at $1,000,000 in Chicago alone, and interference with transportation facilities and wire communications were recorded.

The largest death toll was in Chicago where seventeen persons died in four days. Half a dozen persons were found frozen to death.

In Ohio 13 deaths were attributed indirectly to cold weather, most of them asphyxiations.

Weather forecasts indicated moderating weather continuing tomorrow and that it is moving eastward rapidly. The cold wave before it had been partly checked finally extended from the Rocky Mountains to the Atlantic seaboard with the coldest points in the northeast and northwest.

The heart of Dixie and beyond to the northern limits of sunny Florida felt the cold. New Mexico, Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas reported new lowy weather records for the year in many sections. The Ohio river in many places was choked with ice and traffic was tied up.

FLOODS IN EASTERN FRANCE OF ALARMING PROPORTIONS

PARIS, Dec. 28.—(AP)—The floods in eastern France are assuming the proportions of a disaster. The River Doubs and its tributaries are far out of their banks and have converted the plain of Montbeliard into a vast lake. The inhabitants of several of the villages had to decamp hurriedly in the night. Many farms are isolated and the Bresse plain, famous throughout France for its chickens, is under water.

The Saone is rising an inch an hour and the fields are flooded all around Chalone, while the lower parts of Chagny are foundated. The Rhine, however, appears to have reached the maximum, and it is hoped will begin to recede tomorrow. But it has already done much damage.

Floods are also beginning to appear in the Chateaux country in the department of Cher. The Seine and its tributaries, Yonne and Marne are swollen and still rising. They have done no damage thus far and river traffic continues.

The authorities forecast a further rise of eighteen inches between now and Wednesday morning.

FREIGHTER WAS RAMMED AND SUNK BY STEAMER

To Resent British Rubber "Monopoly"

Bill Filed With Clerk of Mass. State Senate Would Promote Reprisal Against Great Britain.

BOSTON, Dec. 28—(AP)—The people of the commonwealth of Massachusetts may be offered an opportunity "for reprisal against Great Britain for artificial hardship" they have suffered through increased rubber prices if a senate today becomes a law. The bill, bill filed with the clerk of the state by Senator William I. Hennessey of Boston would direct the commissioner of insurance to compile and transmit to the legislature and list of British insurance companies doing business in Massachusetts and the total amount paid in premiums to these companies in the last five years, "in order to enable the people of the commonwealth to take such action as they may deem effective by way of reprisal."

The bill would provide for the printing and distribution of the data as a legislative document and would direct the commission on the necessaries of life to publish it in newspapers of the state "to such extent as may effectively apprise the inhabitants as to what extent their insurance premiums are enriching British interests.

When he filed his bill Senator Hennessey asserted that $700,000,000 a year was being taken from this country in excess prices by the British rubber "monopoly," and declared that press reports indicated that British interests have decided to support a similar Brazilian coffee monopoly.

"They have in reality declared a trade war against the United States and have invited reprisal," he said.

"The gleeful laughter of the British has reached us. We must begin our reprisals by cancelling all insurance carried by British companies."

EVEN SCIENTISTS KNOW HOW TO RUN NEWSPAPER

NEW YORK, Dec. 28—(AP)—What he described as the slighting of science and invention for politics in the make up of the newspaper was decried today by Prof. Nelson Antrim Crawford of Kansas State Agricultural college in an address at the convention of the Association of American Schools and Departments of Journalism.

He declared that the reporter of today had no working knowledge of scientific matters and that the average reporter knows little more of the arts "than does a policeman."

"Teachers of journalism may wisely lend their aid," he said, "to placing social sciences on the same foundation of realism and inductive reasoning as are the natural sciences."

Professor Joseph S. Myers of Ohio State university spoke on the "Qualities required in teachers of journalism," listing, practical experience, knowledge of teaching, and a talent for inspiring.

Grant M. Hyde, professor of journalism at the University of Wisconsin, in discussing the problem of supplying the reportorial and editorial needs of large newspapers said that the economic waste in frequent turnovers of staffs showed that American editors need an expert placement bureau to supply them with trained journalists. He also laid stress upon the need of journalists for a similar organization to enable them to find the "right job."

BELIEVES CHAS. KLEINER "UNJUSTLY CRITICISED"

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 28—(AP)—Joseph L. Berry, who represented the Connecticut company in recent wage arbitration proceedings today wrote James H. Vahey of Boston, who represented the men, that Charles Kleiner, the neutral member, was being "unjustly criticised" by the men and that he regretted that Mr. Vahey "had felt obliged to treat Mr. Kleiner as you have in your opinion (minority)." Mr. Berry further said: "I realize that probably a large part of your criticism is leveled at him in order to appease the men, and if Mr. Kleiner could understand that this is so I have no doubt that he would be able to endure it. I am positive in my own mind and have been from the beginning that whatever award was given by Mr. Kleiner would represent an honest and impartial viewpoint, based upon such evidence as he deemed was relevant, material and convincing."

NO AUTHORITY TO GIVE THE STATE'S CONSENT TO BE SUED

HARTFORD, Dec. 28.—(AP)—Governor Trumbull is without authority to give the state's consent to be sued, as proposed in the move to restore to the First National bank of Putnam, property alleged to have been stolen by former State Treasurer G. Harold Gilpatric and delivered to the state treasury, according to an opinion which the governor has received from Attorney General Healy. The only authority which can consent to such a proposition, the attorney general advised, is the legislature.

The next regular session of the legislature will not convene for a year and, unless a special session should be called, which is unlikely, civil action cannot be instituted with the state consent until January, 1927, at the earliest, although the governor has announced that he would welcome a suit to have adjudicated in the courts the controversy whether the state is holding stolen property in the form of Liberty bonds.

101 ALLEGED GAMBLERS ARRESTED IN NEW YORK

Raid Was Made on a Tip Furnished by Mayor-Elect Walker—Nine Detectives of the Special Service Division Conducted the Raid on the Top Floor of a Three Story Private House in West 55th Street Near Broadway—All the Men Arrested Were Discharged in Night Court For Lack of Evidence.

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—(AP)—Acting on a tip furnished by Mayor-Elect Walker, nine detectives of the special service division arrested 101 alleged gamblers today in a raid on the top floor of a three-story private house in West 55th street, just off Broadway. Two were charged with keeping and maintaining a gambling establishment and the rest with disorderly conduct.

Less than two weeks ago Mayor-Elect Walker charged at a dinner that the present administration had allowed the town to become "wide open" in a plan to discredit the new administration. Mayor Hylan replied to this by sending a telegram to Mr. Walker in which he said that if the latter had any information concerning vice conditions in the city, he ought to turn it over to the police department and it would be quickly acted upon.

Mr. Walker responded by saying that such information had already been given the police and that no action had been taken. The controversy grew more heated daily and was further involved when Police Commissioner Enright denied that any information concerning widespread vice conditions had been given to him.

In a series of Sunday raids which followed the controversy several hundred persons were arrested in small clubs and rooming houses but were immediately discharged in magistrate courts all over the city.

All of the gamblers were discharged for lack of evidence when they were arraigned in night court.

TO FULFILL PROMISE TO RETIRE WHEN HE MADE MILLION

BOSTON, Dec. 28—(AP)—A promise made 31 years ago when he was earning 10 cents an hour that he would retire when he made $1,000,000 will be fulfilled on New Year's day by Joseph S. Donovan, president and treasurer of the Donovan Motor Car company here. On that day, at the age of 45, he will relinquish control of one of the largest automobile distributing agencies in New England and will devote the rest of his years to play, which he says will mean winters in Florida, summers by the New England shore, with perhaps a trip abroad now and then.

Donovan was 14 years old and a mechanic's apprentice in the New York Central car shops at Depew, N. Y., when he made his promise. His grease-stained overalled companions laughed at the idea and told him that with his 10-cents-an-hour pay envelope, his million should never worry him.

But his promise was inspired by the sight of an old man, leaning heavily on his cane and tottering towards his office, where he hoped to amass more millions. He was then master of one. Donovan decided he would never become a spectacle such as that.

Donovan, born in Rochester, N. Y., May 8, 1880, became a mechanic in a Cleveland auto plant, then tried insurance, and finally returned to the plant. Within a few years he was buying and selling used cars and from that point a sub-agency was but a step. In 1912 he assumed control of the retail branch of the Studebaker company here and developed it into one of the largest of the Studebaker chain.

ACCUSATIONS DENIED BY CHARLES FROST

BRIDGEPORT, Dec. 28—(AP)—Sweeping denial was made emphatically by Charles Frost, Larchmont and New York city, when he took the witness stand in criminal superior court this afternoon, of accusations lodged against him that he inspired, for a price, the burning of his Bethel factory.

Abraham "Whity" Friedman, New York gangster, has alleged he and Frost held many negotiations preliminary to the setting of the Bethel factory fire on April 2. Frost asserted the first time he ever saw Friedman was on July 30, two days after he was arrested himself. There was a commotion at midnight in the county jail, he said. All prisoners were ordered to stand at attention with lights on. A man he later learned to be Friedman followed State Policeman Caroll past his cell, he said. The man said: "Hello, Charlie." Frost declared he had never seen him before.

As proof of his declaration that money had passed between himself and Frost in connection with incendiary fire, Friedman showed a tissue paper tracing of a check for $150 which, he said, was given to him by Frost. The check was made out on the account of Meyer Bernstein on May 9, little over a month after the fire, to "Cash." Friedman said Frost desired that his name not appear on it.

REFUSED TO DISMISS CASE AGAINST A DETECTIVE

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—(AP)—Judge Talley refused in general sessions today to dismiss the indictment charging Noel C. Scaffa, private detective, with compounding a felony through his participation in the return of $683,000 worth of stolen jewelry to Mrs. Jessie Woolworth Donahue.

"The victim of the crime is not the only person concerned in the happening," Judge Talley ruled. "It is the people of the state who are primarily aggrieved and it is their dignity that has been infringed and their peace invaded by the commission of the crime.

The jewels were stolen from Mrs. Donahue's apartment at the Hotel Plaza recently by a thief who entered while she had stepped into the bathroom. A few days later Scaffa, who was employed by the insurance company which had issued a policy on the jewels, turned the gems over to the police. He said that he had received them from a go-between unknown to him and that he had paid the man a reward of $65,000 for the insurance company.

ALFRED J. LARIVIERE IS HELD FOR TAX SHORTAGE

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 28—Alfred J Lariviere, City tax collector on the grand list of 1923, was bound over to the next criminal term of the Windham county superior court, by Judge Frank H. Foss, of the police court Monday morning, when probable cause was found on a charge of misappropriating funds collected by the accused as city tax collector The shortage was placed at $3,619.61. The allegation is that the former collector used the money for his own illegal purposes. He pleaded not guilty After three state witnesses had been heard Attorney Harvey for the defendant stated that he would not introduce any witnesses. Lariviere was then ordered bound over under the same bonds of $3,000.

The state witnesses heard were John A. Kelley, of this city, a public accountant City Clerk and Treasurer James S. Donahue, Jr., and John Edward Ladish, a representative of the Hartford Accident & Indemnity company with which concern Lariviere was bonded during his term of office. Mr. Ladish stated that the amount of shortage charged to the collector's account had been paid to the city by the bonding company. City Clerk Donahue substantiated this statement Mr Ladish declined to state whether or not his company had brought any action against the defendant, but advanced the information that an arrangement had been made whereby Lariviere was paying back the money which the company had had to pay the city. His investigation of the collector's account disclosed figures corroborative of those arrived at by Mr. Kelley, who made a thorough audit of the books.

John A. Kelley, the first to be called to the witness stand, testified that he had been called in to investigate the books of the former city tax collector who collected on the grand list of 1923 The amount collectible in accordance with the rate book was $171,034.06 By checking carefully, with the city treasurer, stubs, receipts and credits with the cash accounts of the collector he found the shortage to be $6,619.21. His statement of accounts was as follows: Debit, Oct. 1, 1925: Amount of taxes collected with stubs to support them $163,129.87; amount of taxes collected without stubs to support them, $1,031.60; amount of taxes, verified by city treasurer as paid to collector, $175.80; amount of interest collected on tax stubs returned to city treasurer, $149.08; totals, $164,506.05. Credit amounts paid the city treasurer or collector's account, June 15, 1924, $1,000; July 9, 1924, $2,000; July 15, 1924 $23,137.74; July 25, 1924, 136,477.20 October 2, 1924, $5,500; February 25 1925, $1,500; March 12, 1925, $1,500 July 18, 1925, $771.30; total, $161 886 .4. Balance due city treasurer, $2,619 61. The 6,574.52 uncollected taxes plus the charge shortage/makes up the real collectible list.

City Clerk and Treasurer Donahue testified that he first noted the shortage and called the attention of Tax Collector Larivier to that fact. The latter said that he would make it right and he and Lariviere went roughly over the books. They found about $1,600 shortage, at that time Later the matter was reported to the then Mayor George W. Hickey, who gave the information to the common council. An investigation followed and later the bonding company reimbursed the city treasury. At the closing meeting of the outgoing board of aldermen in November, Alderman William E. Jackson, who is also Windham county detective, was appointed to make an investigation of the accounts. The former collector was arrested a short time later.

Dr. Herman C. Little, of the American Thread company, and Dr Edward J Ottenheimer testified that they had examined the child several days following the alleged assault they stated that there was evidence that the child had suffered some form of mistreatment which appeared to have been caused by some form of instrument about one-third of an inch in diameter, although they could not advance any theory as to just what was responsible for the condition which existed. The court room was cleared of spectators and Mrs McManus carried the frightened child to the witness stand. Asked if the man who had mistreated her was in the courtroom the child sobbed loudly and answered in the negative. The court officials conferred and without taking other testimony, Judge Foss discharged the accused for lack of evidence

EARLY MORNING FIRE FOUGHT UNDER HANDICAP

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Mr. Gomes and the Comagers returning Sunday afternoon. They found everything frozen up in the house. How the fire started is uncertain. Mr. Gomes was awakened first and aroused the Comagers and ran for help clad in his night clothes. Only eleven firemen out of forty-seven members of the company responded to the alarm, which was blown twice after the first alarm was sounded. The foreman, Austin Harris stated that if it had not been for outside help, they could not have handled the fire. Three lines of hose were laid those laid across the railroad holding up the State of Main express for over an hour. With the few helpers that the foreman had, he showed the best of judgment in the skill with which he controlled the situation. The building is a wreck inside on the lower floor as much from water and smoke as from the fire. Mr. Gomes' family was not to return until Monday, which was very fortunate. Much trouble with the chemical truck was experienced both in the afternoon and at the later fire.

ELDER SON OF PRINCESS MARY STATE'S MOST BORROWED BABY

HARRAGATE, Dec. 27—(AP)—Gerald Henry Hubert, elder son of Princess Mary, has become the most "borrowed" baby in England.

King George and Queen Mary, the grand parents, are particularly fond of the boy, and when he isn't romping about Buckingham Palace or Windsor Castle, George is "loaned" to Lord and Lady Harewood, parents of Viscount Lascelles, at Harewood House near here where a playground has been fixed up for his especial benefit.

Now and then George Henry goes to Curzon House in London, the residence of the Duke and Duchess of York. Ever so often he is taken in St. James Palace to pay his respects to his uncle, the Princes of Wales, and Prince Henry.

Goldsborough Hall, between York and Ripon, is really the home of George Henry, but he has been so busy making his visiting tours this fall that his parents have seen but very little of him. Two nurses accompany Master George on his tours in a powerful limousine which the young man, who will be three years old February 7, already claims as his alone.

DANIELSON

FIRE HYDRANT THREADING IS TO BE STANDARDIZED

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Dec. 28.—Danielson is among Windham county communities that is to have its fire hydrant threading standardized to meet the accepted arrangement of the insurance underwriters, fire chiefs' clubs and other organizations striving to have a standard thread for all hydrants so that apparatus from one town may be used in another town in case of a great fire emergency. The work in Danielson is to be done in the spring.

Chief A. P. Woodward of the Danielson department said Monday afternoon that all the hydrants here are to be gone over. The interested parties will supply the necessary tool to re-thread the hydrant connections, changing them from 7 1-2 threads to the inch to 7 to the inch.

Chief Woodward says that much of the hose the Danielson department has purchased of late is for 7-inch hydrant threading. This hose goes onto the hydrant fittings as they are now, though the fitting cannot be screwed up as far as will be possible when the mentioned changes are made. This would not be apparent to the casual observer, however.

BANKING INSTITUTIONS HAVE HAD A BIG YEAR

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Dec. 28.—Banking statements covering 1925 that will be issued the first of the year will show that Danielson's banking institutions have had a remarkably successful twelve months. The deposits are at a new high figure, the surplus accounts have grown greater and the general positions of all three banking institutions here strengthened. Danielson now is the most important banking center in Windham county, something of which its people are rather proud.

Mrs. J. Herbert Smith of Broad street is to have the members of the Fortnightly club at her home this (Tuesday) afternoon. This is to be the Christmas party of the club.

Prayer service for Columbus Smith at the home of his sister, Mrs. C. H. Pellett, No. Main St., Wed., Dec. 30 at 11 a. m. Funeral service at Westminster Congregational church at 1 p. m.—Adv.

Radio receiving set owners here may request wire service companies for such co-operation as will bring about the clearing of "grounds," so destructive to good radio reception. The set owners propose to do this in the most friendly manner, believing that the wire companies will do all in their power to correct a difficulty that can be corrected if attention is given it. Complaints of grounds come from various parts of the borough, so the annoyance to set owners is more or less general. Practically all these owners are patrons of the companies whose lines ground and cause the trouble. That's one important reason why it is believed the companies will be pleased to co-operate in clearing the trouble.

Endeavoring to climb Dark Lantern hill without chains, a big motor bus operating on the direct line between Providence and Hartford, found itself in difficulties. After some delay an arrangement was made whereby the big vehicle got over the top of the big incline and continued on its way.

At his office here Monday morning, Arthur G. Bill heard witnesses in an inquest of the Gaumond automobile accident case, which developed at North Grosvenordale. Other witnesses in this case will be heard by Coroner Bill before he makes his finding.

Seventy guests came to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Birch on Brooklyn road Christmas eve to observe with them the silver anniversary of their marriage, which took place in Lancashire, England.

The anniversary observance was one of the great events in the life of Mr. and Mrs. Birch. It was delightful from every viewpoint. A Christmas eve, beautiful weather, a pleasant and cheery home filled with guests and every prerequisite of happiness.

Numbers of the communities in this territory were represented by the guests.

A Christmas time supper in old English style with rabbit pie and a bountiful menu of other good things to go with it was served. The home was prettily decorated.

Musical numbers, including vocal and instrumental solos and duets, dancing and other diversions were features of the evening. Among the soloists were Joseph Greene of Goodyear, Miss Nancy Whittaker of Goodyear, Miss Ethel Chadwick of Putnam and Miss Ethel Birch

Many were the gifts, and beautiful that Mr. and Mrs. Birch received from their guests and many, too were the expressions of good will and wishes that they may have many more years of happy married life.

Mr. and Mrs. Birch have two children, Albert and Ethel, both of Danielson. Before her marriage Mrs. Birch was Miss Sarah A. Lindley. They have been residents on the Brooklyn road since they came to the United States 11 years ago and during their residence in this territory have made a great many friends. Mr. Birch has been engaged in business here for years and also, as a side line, has a teamel at his home place. He is known as one of the most expert dog fanciers and breeders in Connecticut, and numerous indeed are the ribbons his entries have won at bench shows in some of the largest cities of the east.

Frozen water pipes in many homes in Danielson were a legacy of the Arctic weather this place experienced during Saturday night and Sunday.

Chief John McFarland, doing duty Sunday, declared it about as cold a day as he ever spent on the street as an officer.

Monday of next week the schools of Killingly will open after the holiday vacation.

Copies of the flag code have been sent to the various schools of Killingly by Colonel Edward Anderson camp, Sons of Veterans. Some of the teachers have had the codes framed, that they may be constantly before the children.

Some farmers who harvest ice for their own use are engaged in cutting at the present time in surrounding communities from small bodies of wate .

Arthur G. Benson of Fall River is spending a few days with relatives in Danielson.

Rumblings of discontent grow louder because the new bridge over the Assawauga river in Main street remains closed so long, nothing being done to complete the work. The concrete has been in for weeks. Removal of excess materials from the roadway and only a temporary surfacing would make the bridge ready for use and permit discontinuing the detour through Water and Franklin streets.

The Paco Manufacturing company is closing one of its most successful years. The concern operates two mills in Danielson and one in Putnam. Day and night work is done at the plants here.

This morning sections of the coves and shore line of Alexander's lake will be dotted with tilts, for the fishermen were making their plans Monday to be out today. Central sections of the lake are not regarded as safe for fishing yet.

His many friends in the town of Killingly are interested in the announcement that Warren Braley, directing his Club Royal orchestra, will broadcast the dinner concert from WJAR, Providence, Thursday of this week.

Included in the list of presentations of gifts from employes of the Paco Manufacturing company at the Christmas party should have been a fountain pen and gold pencil to Edgar Messier.

Ice at Quinebaug lake is about 6 inches, it is estimated this morning. The thin blanket of snow that covers the surface of the lake is retarding the freezing. It is from this lake that Danielson gets much of the ice it uses during the course of a year.

Officers of the Service Battery have invitations to be at Hartford for the National Guard banquet to be held in the near future.

New Year's day will be observed here as a holiday, with mills, banks and stores closed and a holiday schedule of service in force at the postoffice.

Various minor accidents to motor cars have been due to the machines skidding on icy highway surfaces.

The call of motor car drivers that something be done about repairing a place in Water street is becoming insistent. This place is between the trolley rails, just below Cottage street. A machine that hit the deep and dangerous hole Sunday came within an ace of going out of control nad over the embankment to the river below, something that is not unlikely to happen to a car unless repairs are made.

Final days for paying personal taxes are at hand in Killingly unless one cares to pay through the courts, as numbers have done here, at much extra expense, during the past year.

Antonio Longo, student at Connecticut Agricultural college, is recovering at his home here from a surgical operation for the adjustment of a trouble with his knee.

Hunting and fishing licenses expire at midnight Thursday, a matter that is of interest to large numbers of Killingly's citizens.

WESTMINSTER

News of the death of Columbus Smith Sunday morning at the home of his sister, Mrs. Charles Pellett, Danielson, where he was spending the winter, was learned with profound sorrow in this vicinity, where he had been a resident for a number of years. Mr. Smith until the death of his wife was for many years a resident at Brookside farm, which he sold to the present owners, the Deans. He was a devoted member of Westminster church. At the funeral Mrs. Keech of Danielson is to sing and Rev. Chester J. Armstrong of the Baptist church, Danielson, will give the address.

The postponed Christmas exercises of Westminster school are to be held Thursday evening.

FLORA OF SOUTH CALIFORNIA AND CHILE SHOWS SIMILARITY

CLAREMONT, Cal., Dec. 28—(AP)—A year of botanical research with the view of clearing up the mystery of the similarity between the flowers of California and those of Chile is the object of Professor Ivan Murray Johnston, Pomona College botanist, now in South America.

For many years botanists of southern California have sought to solve the evident relationship, but have forced to admit themselves mystified, principally because there were not enough Chilian specimens for comparison. Botanists believe that study of Chilian flora by an expert will explain how the original plants crossed the equatorial area.

An interesting feature in connection with Professor Johnston's work is that a few common species exists not only in South America and in southwestern United States, but also in the Rocky Mountains and in a few isolated sections of Newfoundland. That the plants in Newfoundland constitute the remnants of a once widespread flora was indicated in a theory advanced by Dr. M. L. Fernald, of Harvard.

MOTOR BUS SCHEDULE TO ACCOMMODATE PATRONS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Dec. 28—In response to inquiries regarding the schedule of the motor busses which have supplanted the trolleys through Putnam, Manager Samuel Anderson writes from Norwich that timetables showing schedules and rates of fare are in every bus. The timetables are for distribution to the general public and over 7,000 have already been taken. Mrs. Sarah Lussier, found murdered in a house at Bridgeport Sunday is well remembered by Putnam people. She herself was tried in the courts of Windham county for murder. This was in May, 1918. At her home in Moosup on March 3rd of that year she killed George McCarthy, a mill worker in the same town, for an assault on her young son. She was defended by Charles L. Torrey of this city and Charles E. Searles, state's attorney, prosecuted assisted by S. B. Harvey, of Willimantic. By arangement with counsel she pleaded guilty to manslaughter and was sentenced by Judge Maltbie to not more than fifteen nor less than fourteen years in state prison. She was pardoned in 1922. HUGGINS CAN ALMOST FIND A CRACKER TEAM IN HIS ROSTER

ATLANTA, Dec. 28—(AP)—If Miller Huggins, manager of the New York Americans, next year uses all the players he has purchased from the Atlanta Southern Association club, fans of this city can go to New York feeling like they will see a second Cracker team in action.

Benny Paschal, former Atlanta star, who marked his appearance as a substitute for Babe Ruth in the opening game of 1925 by clouting a home run was in New York's lineup regularly during the latter part of the season.

Frankie Zoellers, rated by many as the best left fielder in the Southern association, is one of the Crackers purchased by the Yankees. Small in stature, he is fast on his feet and possesses a strong throwing arm. He makes an excellent lead-off man.

Nick Cullop, center fielder and home run king of the Southern, already is the property of New York. He was sent to Atlanta under terms relating to the purchase of Paschal. Cullop is expecting to wear a Yankee uniform next season.

Johnny Brock purchased by Huggins, has been catching for Atlanta several seasons, establishing a reputation as one of the best receivers in the circuit. He formerly played in the American association.

Mike Gazella, LaFayette football and baseball star, came to Atlanta at the opening of the past season. He was used first as a utility player, but developed so rapidly that shortstop soon found him as its regular occupant. In announcing Gazella's sale, Dan Michalove, president of the Atlanta club, said Huggins probably would groom him for third base.

New York city has more than 21,000 telephone operators.

MORE FOREIGN GROWN CLOVER SEEN NEEDED

"First, and best, where it can be had, is domestic clover. Where such seed, cleaned and tested, is available, it is likely to withstand the winter weather and attacks of anthracnose and mildew better than others, and if it was grown near the place where it will be sown, it is the more likely to be acclimated, and resistant to disease.

"We import a little red clover seed from Canada, which may be considered as domestic seed. Last year we got more from Canada than from Italy.

"But all the red clover seed produced in our clover growing states and Canada is not sufficient to maintain our clover acreage. We are informed by Doctor Pieters of the Department of Agriculture that not less than 10,000,000 pounds more must be found in other continents, if our established crop rotations are to be undisturbed. Foreign grown seed, except Italian, has shown very good results in the department's experiments. The principal sources of approved supply are Chile, France, Great Britain and Germany.

"To be sure that the seed you sow is from one of these sources approved by our agricultural experts, two things are needed. First, go to an established dealer of known reputation whose entire success has been based on the dependability of his goods and service. Second, tell him what you want, and in reaching a deal with him, have a thorough understanding as to what you are getting. Your dealer can sell you any kind of seed you are willing to pay for. He can certify to its origin, its purity and germination. There is no sort of seed service which good farmers demand, which the established seed dealers of the United States are not able and ready to supply."

DEALING WITH MICE IN THE ORCHARDS

In all commercial orchards where mice are abundant, poisoning is undoubtedly the quickest and most satisfactory method of destroying them. The formula recommended by the bureau of biological survey of the United States department of agriculture is as follows:

Mix together, dry, one-eighth ounce of powdered strychnine and one-eighth ounce of baking soda. Sift the strychnine-soda mixture over one quart of rolled oats, stirring constantly to insure an even distribution of the poison through the grain. Thoroughly warm the poisoned rolled oats in an oven and sprinkle over them six tablespoons of a mixture of three parts of melted beef fat and one part of melted paraffin mixing until the oats are evenly coated. When the grain is cool it is ready for use.

If larger quantities of the bait are needed, use in the proportion of one ounce of strychnine, one ounce of soda, eight quarts of rolled oats, and one and one-quarter pints of beef-fat-paraffin mixture. In applying the coating it is very important that the beef-fat-paraffin mixture be hot and the poisoned rolled oats thoroughly warm, otherwise it will not be possible to obtain an even coating.

Teaspoonful quantities of the poisoned rolled oats should be placed in small containers such as wooden pill boxes, tin cans, etc., well distributed over the infested area. The poisoned bait may also be scattered along runways and within entrances of burrows, a teaspoonful at a place. In orchards where mice are abundant it is advisable to place one "poison station" under each tree. The poisoned bait should be distributed late in the fall, again during the winter, and preferably also in the spring.

Many fruit growers have observed that when the trees are pruned in the fall of the year and the prunings have been allowed to remain on the ground until spring, the mice will feed upon these relatively tender branches in preference to the tree trunks. Consequently some growers are pruning off a few branches from every tree in the fall and feeding the mice with these to save the trunks of their trees. In many cases this method has been quite effective but growers are cautioned not to rely upon it alone.

'COONS AND 'POSSUMS— FUR, FOOD, AND SPORT

"This item is for the ladies," said a radio announcer reporting a big football game. "As I look around the stadium, I see 1,000 red hatsc, 1,500 orange hats and about 30,000 raccoon coats." Though his guess on the number of raccoon or other fur coats was doubtless wide of the mark, the number of fur coats worn by both men and women for sports and driving has increased enormously in the past few years, and this bit of comment at such an unusually large outdoor gathering is not surprising. The raccoon ranks third among the four most important fur bearers in this country from the standpoint of financial returns from the annual catch, the other three being muskrat, the skunk, and the opossum.

It would seem that this animal should be more highly valued and protected throughout its range during the breeding period and the time of unprime fur, since it affords not only fur, but also food and sport, yet it shares with many other fur animals the charge of being harmful to poultry, a fact which has doubtless delayed favorable legislation. Thirty-seven states have given the raccoon protection, with open seasons ranging from one to five months, while it is still unprotected in ten states. Three months, in the opinion of the Biological survey, is a sufficient open season for any fur bearer, and if the coming generation of boys and girls want raccoon coats to wear to football games and elsewhere, evidently some effort must be made to conserve the source of supply.

The same considerations apply as well to the protection of the opossum, which, like the raccoon is valued both for fur and food. The natural habitat of the opossum is confined to 29 states where the close season should, says the Biological Survey, begin not later than March 1 and extend at least to November 1. This would protect the opossum during the breeding season.

SWEET CLOVER A GREAT MANURE

Rather astonishing results as to the value of sweet clover as a nitrogen-furnishing manure are announced by the Ohio Agricultural experiment station. After three years test it was found that not less than 10 pounds of nitrogen were contained in an acre of sweet clover on May 10 in any of the test years. An application of 400 pounds of any high analysis fertilizer such as 3-12-4, would add less than nine pounds of nitrogen to the soil.

These figures were developed in tests to determine the best time of the year to plow under sweet clover. It was discovered that the plants had the greatest nitrogen content about the middle of May, May 10 being the peak accumulation in the experiments.

The white sweet clover was used in the experiment stations. Since the value of sweet clover as a manure has been demonstrated seed houses are handling larger and larger quantities of the seed carefully tested for germination quality and cleaned and recleaned to free it from weed seed and other foreign substances.

The outstanding practical lesson of the experiments is that for economic soil improvement it is best to plow under the growth of sweet clover from April 1 to May 10, so that the fall growing season may be utilized by the crop of corn. Sweet clover left to stand over for the full second year produced more organic matter, it was found, but not much more nitrogen, and not that the west clover was than when plowed under May 10.

The experiment demonstrated that an acre of sweet clover on May 10 contained sufficient nitrogen for the bushels of corn and the stalks to produce of extreme value as a rotation crop to be plower under in the spring.

CHESTNUT STUMPS RICH IN TANNIN

The stump wood, root wood, and root bark of the American chestnut trees are very rich in tannin. This is a discovery recently made by chemists of the United States department of agriculture. On the average sound root, they say, the bark was found to contain more than 30 per cent tannin, and root wood more than 17 per cent. This yield is fully twice as great as that obtained from the trunks and limbs of the tree, now our most important domestic source of tannin for commercial use.

With reference to the horizontal distribution of tannin, these chemists also found that the [illegible] of the heartwood of the stump and trunk is much richer in tannin than is the central zone of the heartwood. This indicates that from a given stand of chestnut, slab wood will furnish a higher yield of tannin than will the remainder of the wood.

This work suggests the possibility of increasing our domestic supply of tannin through the commercial utilization of chestnut stumps, roots, and slab wood, particularly the slab wood selected from trunk and butt logs. There are some difficulties in the way of the commercial use of the stumps which weigh against their high tannin content. Among these are labor costs, value and nature of land, method of handling wood supply, quality of stumps, size and shape of stump and root pieces, with consequent difficulties in transportation and preparation.

JERUSALEM ARTICHOKES— WEEDS OR DELICACIES?

In many localities Jerusalem artichokes grow so abundantly that they are regarded as a nuisance, but if the preparation of them for the table were better understood, they might be greatly relished, says the United States department of agriculture.

This vegetable does not in the least resemble the French, or globe, artichoke; it is a tuber, dug out of the ground as potatoes are. These tubers are often small and irregular in shape, covered with many knobs, so that they are tedious to pare or scrape. Their flavor, also, is very mild and easily destroyed by overcooking. One good way is to bake the artichokes in their skins, after first scrubbing them well. Another way is to boil them, either peeled or unpeeled. They are served with other grated raw vegetables such as raw carrots turnips, or celery.

COASTING ACCIDENTS

The killing of a girl in Woonsocket as she was turning her sled around after sliding down hill, by an automobile that skidded indicates that the season is at hand when the dangers of the highway from this combination are due to be revealed. More and more does it become evident that the time has come when motoring and coasting on the same stretch of road should be prohibited. Likewise the coasting down hills that are crossed by other streets through which vehicles or electrics are driven constitutes one of the worst kinds of dangers.

There are already too many accidents and fatalities in the highways with which coasting has nothing to do, but with children on sleds, intent upon their fun and oblivious to the peril from fast and silent moving vehicles, the toleration of such conditions simply means an encouragement to accidents in spite of the care that may be attempted to avoid them.

There always have been and always will be coasting accidents and fatalities with which the automobile has nothing to do. They occurred before the auto came on the scene, but with the great increase in auto traffic the wisdom of keeping coasters off of hills which are open to such traffic, or of denying the use of streets to autos which are used for coasting, or vice versa, seems to be clearly established. Such a move is in the interest of prevention.

No one desires to see the children curbed of their pleasure in sliding and yet no one wants to give them the encouragement in such practices that are going to lead to their untimely death or bad injury. Coasting in the streets today is quite as perilous as playing there, unless little frequented hills are set apart for such purposes and autos are excluded therefrom during certain hours. As a matter of protection it is quite important that consideration be given to such a situation before the sacrifice of life makes it absolutely necessary.

UNSOLICITED GOODS ON APPROVAL

It may be that it will have the same effect as the attempt to get a child labor law through congress did upon Georgia, where child labor conditions have been greatly improved since the agitation was started, but whether it does or not there will be much sympathy in behalf of the bill which has been introduced in congress at the instigation of the Norristown Times-Herald to stop the use of the mails by those who forward merchandise to be paid for or to be returned.

Probably there are few who have not received first and last so much mail of this character that they are thoroughly disgusted with the practice and long since have wondered why it was permitted. It is invariably merchandise for which there is no desire and yet the receiver is held responsible for seeing that it is returned. Whether this obligation actually exists is a question, but most people probably go to the bother of returning it in the belief that it is the easiest way out of the matter.

For those who might be in the business of peddling goods from house to house licenses are exacted, and yet those who use the mails for such a purpose are avoiding all the requirements that others must take and are of course trying to get ahead of the local business men. That they should object, when their over head expenses and taxation are considered, is not surprising.

Whether the bill will be enacted is as yet uncertain. It deals with a well known and unpopular situation. It is entirely possible that the fact that something has been started in this direction will be sufficient to curb the activity of those whose efforts fall little short of being a nuisance. Whatever can be done to relieve the public of such annoyance—some even feeling that they should buy and not think of returning the goods since that would subjecting them to the rating of being small—will be welcomed. Although the wholesale returning of such packages ought to serve as a sufficient warning to those responsible.

RESTRICTING PRODUCTION

In connection with the fact that we are raising a howl and starting a congressional investigation over the rubber situation the control of which is held by the British, it is being pointed out that the cotton planters have on various occasions undertaken to restrict production and increase the prices, that combinations have been urged for the purpose of keeping up the price of wheat and that reduced acreage has been advocated for keeping down the output of that necessary product. There are also other commodities about which much the same thing might be said.

But after those conditions have been pointed out it is to be realized that the situations are not alike. This country is not making its protest over the fact that efforts are being made to overcome a situation where there is a large overproduction, but it is protesting over the fact that it has been done by legislative enactment. In all the restrictions that have been undertaken here no federal legislation has accompanied it. The government has undertaken no price fixing by law and where restrictions have been urged the aim has not been to saddle an unwarranted price upon the foreign consumers. It is not surprising that there should be a demand for a profit, whether it concerns rubber, wheat, cotton, corn, copper or anything else. But when rubber is boosted five and six times the former price through restrictive legislation there is a basis for a howl.

We cannot escape the fact in this connection that we are to a certain degree responsible for letting such a situation develop when it was possible for us to have gone into the production of rubber on a scale that would have insured protection against such a foreign monopoly. We have failed to appreciate this situation too late to escape the penalty. But the fact that we are being gouged should make a lasting impressing. We have reason to stop the waste that is now taking place in the use of rubber and to hasten as rapidly as possible the day when we shall be independent of the rubber fields which are now forcing sky high prices.

FAVORABLE TO WORLD COURT

Confidence has reigned in Washington that there would be a sanctioning of the adherence to the world court as advocated by the president under such reservations are have been incorporated in the Harding-Hughes-Coolidge plan.

Such confidence has sprung to a large degree from the sentiment which has been expressed about the country. That this has made its impression upon the members of congress is only natural. Reaction may be somewhat slow but there are reasons for believing that it is positive.

When the announcement was made a few days ago that Senator Pepper had withdrawn his own plan for adherence to the court and would support the administration in its effort there was evidence that the opposition was giving way to pressure. For that to be followed by the change of front on the part of Senator Norris, who has strong insurgent inclinations on many other questions than the world court, indications are that the resistance to the adherence to the court is fast dwindling. It indicates the basis for the declarations that there would be a sufficient number of senators to provide all the votes required and with a few to spare.

Senator Borah hasn't cast his lot with those who have changed their minds but it apparently isn't necessary. He must see, nevertheless, that the chances of success for his opposition are fast disappearing. If it was a fight against the league of nations he might stand a chance of winning but the country is taking a decidedly different view of the world court and is getting tired of the studied opposition chiefly for the purpose of being on the other side.

BACK TO THE MARINES

Withdrawing his resignation from the marines and of course accepting such assignment as given him on his return thereto, General Smedley D. Butler leaves Philadelphia in a much different light than when he went there. Without a doubt he has made mistakes, many of them. He has perhaps accomplished as much as anyone placed in a similar position. He would have been given credit for that without certain unfavorable bits of publicity had he pursued different tactics. He has found that conducting the public safety department of the Quaker city is a decidedly different proposition from directing the United States marines. There are different conditions encountered and different rules must govern.

When General Butler announced that he would clean up Philadelphia in 48 hours he displayed plenty of confidence in himself but none too much knowledge of the conditions he faced. He has been obliged to struggle against many bothersome opposition, including the uncertainty as to just how the public felt about his work, and he has done much for the Pennsylvanian city. But he didn't accomplish all that he hoped to in 48 hours, in a year or in two years, and the manner in which he has wabbled about on the question of leaving the marines to accept the job during the remainder of the Philadelphia mayor's term has left a bad impression. The flare up and the statements which he has made following it caused much surprise to his friends and gave much satisfactor to his enemies. They created the view that his return to the marines was the logical course after all. There certainly is no question about his leadership and worth in that line of activity.

EDITORIAL NOTES

When it comes to the daily dozen it is everyone to his own liking.

Sand is a great thing to have but also to use on slippery walks.

Snow is something which neither the dry cleaner nor the wet wash is prepared to tackle.

The man on the corner says: The past year in many ways can be used as a guide for the next.

Not much interest over the week end in participating in the proposed flight over the north pole.

It is well to begin practicing a little each day on 1926 just to be prepared to use it when Friday gets here.

There are days which make it decidedly less certain how long the "adequate" winter's supply of coal is going to last.

Had Gen. Butler really resigned from the marines he would have been available as the police commissioner of New York with two years' real experience in Philadelphia.

Conscience is a powerful force. The New Britain woman who received back $390 of the $1000 she lost some years ago must be a firm believer in it. She may yet get the missing $10 and the interest.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29.—Congressman Freeman of the second Connecticut district is nearing the top of the rivers and harbors committee at rapid strides. Owing to resignations, change of committee placements or otherwise, Freeman has now reached the seat of ranking member on that major committee, thus adding to the list of up-top assignments of the Connecticut delegation.

Sometimes we hear criticisms of congress on account of battles of words between its members; or in rare instances, of attempts to settle personal difference by fist fights, or throwing things" like ink wells and books.

But our legislators are lamblike in comparison with the French chamber of deputies under popular government, as described by Speaker Longworth at a recent banquet here.

Mr. Longworth spent many months in Paris this year and was a frequent and specially privileged visitor to the chamber. Talking to the Ohio club a few nights ago, Mr. Longworth is quoted as saying:

"Popular government as I saw it in the French chamber of deputies mystified me. There was a system of bells used to quell disturbances between members of the right and left wings of the chamber. During sessions when I was present, numbers of the combatants had blood on their faces from being scratched. M. Herriot rang one bell and 40 aged sergeant-at-arms rushed in but their efforts were without avail. Again M. Herriot rang and guards, armed with drawn sabres, entered to put down the disturbance. And they succeeded. My curiosity was aroused as to what would happen should M. Herriot ring the bell a third time, so I asked him. He replied with a smile, that on the floor above them had been prepared a great reservoir of water and that in an emergency if the factions persisted in their disputes, the water could be turned loose. But as the third bell didn't ring perhaps the last resort may be taken with a grain of salt.

According to the by-laws of the Womans' Congressional club, women members of congress are said to be neither fish, flesh or fowl.

The club, which is the social center for women of congressional families admits to its membership the wives and daughters of senators and members of congress, for it was organized and in full swing long years before a woman member of congress was more than a mere dream.

This rule won't affect, however, the status of Mrs. John Jacob Rogers, of Lowell, now serving out the term of her late husband, as representative from the third district, for Mrs. Rogers is already a member of the club having joined as the representative's wife, and the rules of the club allow the continuance of such memberships the same is true of Mrs. Nolan, the newly elected woman representative from California, but the third woman member of the house is Mrs. Norton, who has no affiliation with the club. If she is to enjoy the privileges it must be on invitation and under special rule. That is expected to be the case, unless the club amends its by-laws so to make women congressmen eligible. The matter came up when Miss Rankin, and Miss Robertson were members of the house, but as neither of them seemed to be over anxious to join the organization, nothing was done beyond invitations is sued specifically to them as guests. Mrs. Huck, the only other woman representative, was a member when her father, the late Senator "Billy" Mason, was in office, so her affiliation with the club was of long standing and unquestionable.

It is not generally known that Sam Small, of Georgia, who represents one of Atlanta's well known journals in the press gallery, is the Sam Small, the Evangelist, of revival fame. But that is the fact. Small doesn't spend much time in the gallery but is seen there on special occasions. Moreover Robert Small, the noted correspondent and columnist, is a son of Sam Small, all of which is "news" to many a member of that organization.

Miss Robertson, the member of congress from Oklahoma during the 67th congress, is back in Washington trying her hand at newspaper work and representing an Oklahoma newspaper as well as writing syndicate matter as a special writer. Miss Alice has more than "turned 70" but is starting out on her new career with energy and entirely unperturbed by her lack of experience.

Speaker Longworth had a Christmas gift of two big easy chairs from admiring friends who forgot for a moment that Miss Alice blue was the predominating color of the Longworth home color scheme and selected chairs of a deep crimson. So the senator tactfully remarked that he needed just such chairs in his big office known as the speaker's room, and there they now hold a place of honor without disturbing the color harmony of the Longworth mansion.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Cloud Digger's Predictions

Mr. Editor: Just to remind your readers that on Sept. 23, The Cloud Digger said, "the last two or three days of December will be a mild period running over New Years, then bad weather." Every paper in New England and New York said Sunday "There will be no relief from the cold wave until after New Years."

I am writing this with the thermometer nearly down to zero and am willing to chance my scientific predictions made in September, against the U. S. weather bureau's, made less than 24 hours ago. Give a fellow a chance.

THE CLOUD DIGGER

A Correction

Mr. Editor: As a tribute to the memory of the late Richard R. Graham, beloved rector of Christ church, I should like to correct a statement in your issue of December 25th, to the effect that the mid-night service held in Christ church this year, was the "first of its kind in many years."

This service was instituted two years ago by Mr. Graham, with the hearty cooperation of his parishioners. The beauty of that service lingers in the memory of Mr. Graham's parishioners and friends.

Solution of Yesterday's Puzzle

SAILING

The water had turned gray and a gray veil shrouded the air. A shrill wind had sprung up, but the girl in the heavy sweater coat, with her bobbed locks flying in the breeze, looked contented as she watched the young man who had started the little catboat off on another tack.

"Kind of a change for you," the young man said suddenly, "from yesterday! Loafing along in the sun on a prize-winning yacht that is scrubbed up six times a day! I am still wondering at my good luck—Burgoyne White didn't look as though he liked it when you said you were abandoning the Whippoorwill for the Katydid! And it looks as though you were in for some rough sailing!"

The pretty girl smiled at him, but said nothing. Waves slapped the boat smartly, spray brushed their cheeks. Ahead of them was the narrow outlet into Lake Michigan that gave into this long bay, with the lighthouse and coast guard station. This wind grew steadily. Vagrant rain spattered.

"Want to go back, Caroline?" the young man demanded. "Back to the crowd and—and Burgoyne's boat?"

She shook her head calmly, "No," she told him, ducking a splatter of water, "I like this! The Katydid's a perfectly safe old tub that couldn't tip over if she tried! Aren't you ever going to paint her, Phil?"

"Nope," he told her shortly. "She's too old a lady for rouge and lipstick—she is nice and gray and dowdy and fat and comfortable, and the sun won't fade her. I expect you are horribly uncomfortable after wicker deck chairs and awnings—I've got cushions in the cupboards—"

"Never mind," said the girl. "I'm quite all right—are you going out into the big lake, Phil? Let's!"

"Only girl I know who wouldn't be scared to death," said the young man.

They scudded by the coast guard station with a handwave at the men, who watched them dubiously. They reeled out into the gray vastness of the big lake. The sky lowered above them, gulls flew screaming. They were the only two persons left in a cold, fierce world.

"We're all right," the young man shouted at her, "as long as we keep straight ahead—we could cross right over to Chicago in about five minutes at this gait!"

"Well, go on!" she shouted back at him with a queer glint in her eyes. "You forget," he said when the wind lulled a bit, "that Burgoyne expects you back! You—you are sailing on his boat and this just an interlude—why, anybody would prefer a yacht to this! I was crazy to take you on this jaunt and freeze you to death, but—well, I was so glad to see you and I wanted you with me a bit. I'll remember this sail!"

"So shall I," she said frankly. "It's heavenly! Must we go in so soon?"

"Don't like that cloud," he said, getting ready to put about. "Come over here and hang on, because it's—going to—be—nip—and—tuck!"

The wind flattened the catboat out against the water as she swung out and there was a grueling instant when the girl clung to him as well as to the rail. Then they were beating back.

"Whew!" gasped the young man looking at her anxiously, "pretty close!"

The wind had changed and an irresistible force spun them up against the piles of the breakwater when they shot into the ship channel. They were glued to it fatefully, bobbing up and down. They could not get away any more than a tack could depart from a steel magnet.

"Well!" exploded the young man, humiliated. "This is the limit! Those guards will roast me to death when they get here—see, they're putting off now! I'm so sorry, Caroline, to have given you this rotten sail—I thought—I had planned that we were to have such a good time—"

She slid along the narrow seat toward him and her eyes were very sweet and frank. "It's been Wonderful, Phil," she said. "Will—will you take me out again tomorrow?"

"Mean it?" he asked a little breathlessly. "What will Burgoyne say?"

The coast guard boat was very near. Suddenly she looked straight at him again. "It doesn't matter what Burgoyne says," she said distinctly "I—I'd rather go with you, Phil, wherever you go—truly!"

"Hey," yelled the men in the coast guard boat for the third time before they attracted any attention whatever.—Exchange.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

NAPLES

"Recent heavy storms along the west coast of Italy, damaging shipping in the Bay of Naples and nearby places, is of interest to more than those with marine property at stake,' says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society. "Naples, with its almost perfect arrangement of sky, sea and mountains, is one of the principal 'journey's ends' of the world. Anything likely to alter this setting is of more than passing concern to thousands of former visitors, as well as to residents.

"When the Neapolitan advertises with sloganeer's modesty, 'Vedi Napoli e poi muori' (See Naples and then die) he has in mind, of course, the city and surroundings taken as a whole. The city alone, although the largest and most populous in the Italian peninsula, is a hodge-podge of narrow streets and tenement houses, teeming with life and gaiety; sordid, yet possessed with a vast vitality. In buildings and monuments of historic and artistic interest, however, Naples cannot vie with the towns of central and northern Italy.

"Naples is comparatively young among cities of the Mediterranean. In the eighth century B. C. Greek colonists from the nearby city of Kyme recognized the superior advantages of its great half-moon bay and laid the foundations for later Roman settlement. In time the district became the favorite residence of Roman magnates. Augustus frequently resided at Naples and Virgil completed some of his most beautiful poetry here.

"Before the days of a united Italy Naples was the capital of the Kingdom of Naples. A large Royal Palace, with white marble stairways and a throne room filled with art treasures bears witness to its former imperial wealth. Today Naples is Italy's most important seaport, connected by fast steamship lines with every part of the globe. Its streets are lined with factories, large and small, while the surrounding farm districts are fertile and productive. As a tourist center it is surpassed, probably, only by Paris.

"For all its commercialism, dirt and squalor, however, Naples is extremely picturesque. Rising in amphitheater fashion on the slopes of the hills in the northeast corner of the Bay of Naples the city is full of quaint, steep streets, where broad steps take the place of the slab paving of the downtown thoroughfares. Following the cholera epidemic in 1884 many of the narrow streets and high balconied tenement houses were replaced with broad avenues and standard buildings.

"It is in the remaining canyon streets, however, that one finds the most typical Neapolitan scenes. All Naples lives outdoors—to cook, to work, to play, to gossip and almost to sleep! Street singers with their mandolins, charcoal sellers and venders of sweets and drinks add their colorful bits to the daily pageantry. Macaroni factories line the streets of the eastern part of the city, the fringes of macaroni on racks collecting a little of the dust every passing automobile and push cart stirs up.

"For whatever the city lacks in neatness and beauty, its famous bay more than makes amends. The Bay of Naples is a yardstick of marine perfection. Few who have seen the Bay of Naples will grant that it is eclipsed elsewhere for spacious and perfect loveliness. Its dreamy headlands and the incomparable contour of Vesuvius in the center at once distinguish and sublimate it. Artists have painted it from every angle, musicians have composed songs without end to its beauty. Writers back up their choicest cargoes of superlatives and unload!

"From the Monastery of San Martino, overlooking the city, a picture spectacle is spread. The great, blue, half-moon bay, dotted with red and white sails, and surrounded by a mountainous coast line which fringes off into the Mediterranean at each end in rocky islets, looks more like a stage fountain than a reality. It is Vesuvius that 'makes' the Bay of Naples. It is its distinguishing mark from other bays; its stamp of individuality. The crater rises majestically in long sweeping curves from the flatlands to the east, smooth and green on the lower slopes, steep and a rugged brown on the upper cinder and lava cone. A long column of smoke and steam curls from it day and night.

"From Vesuvius, with the ruins of Pompeii at its base, the eye follows the curving shore line to the mountainous Sorrento peninsula, purple and hazy in the distance, ending with the rocky crags of the island of Capri. At sunset the colors are so rich, and at the same time so soft, it seems hardly possible that they are real. The bay is a rippling sheet of gray and green and blue. The rocky headlands and islands are the softest and most delicate lavender. A rolling stream of purple smoke rises from the crater of Vesuvius and floats across the sky, while, in the background, billowy pink clouds catch the last rays of the blood-red sun as its drops in the Mediterranean."

From Small Beginnings

Robert Blum, an American Artist

"I like to draw—but it's no use! What can I do? I can't go to an art school, I might as well give up!' Yes, that is true. Such a person might as well give up; for he will not succeed in anything. The man who succeeds is the one who finds his opportunities where he happens to be; who does not wait for chance or luck, or instructions, but who works by himself.

As Longfellow wrote: "The heights by great men reached and kept were not attained by sudden flight; for they, while their companions slept, were toiling upward in the night."

Constant, determined effort toward any desired goal will always bring a certain degree of sucess. The one who "gives up" will never succeed in the best sense of the word. Robert Blum, who was born in 1857 wished to become an artist. He had no money with which to pay for art instruction. He did have to work for a living. Therefore, he found his way into a place where they made lithographs, and there learned as much as he could. He learned rapidly, and became even more enthusiastic in his pursuit of art as a career.

Blum found time, in spite of everything that seemed against him, to attend art schools. Meanwhile, in addition to his work, he studied and practiced by himself. "Why don't you give it up, Bob?" one of his associates asked him. "Give it up!" he exclaimed. "Why, I couldn't give it up! It's fun! The very trying keeps me alive!" He was only 46 when he died, but by that time he had made himself known as one of the most promising of American artists. Somehow, out of his dreams, there had come a rare ability to produce remarkable delicate effects. His work found its way into the best magazines. The delicacy, the charm, the grace, the beauty of his work gave a rich promise for the future. On the day when he was made a member of the National Academy of Design he must have thought of his old days in the dirty place where he had helped to make cheap lithographs, and his heart must have swelled, as he realized that he made his wish to become an artist a reality indeed. The desire often makes the man.

Stories That Recall Others

Clock Had Racing Hands

They had gone to the big city for a short visit and stood in the lobby of the hotel waiting for a third friend to arrive. Dials showing the movement of the elevators were white enameled and the floors number 1 to 12. The question of time came up and, looking over his shoulder, Charley announced that it was "ten minutes after two."

His friend apparently didn't hear him and soon asked for the time again. "Why it's a little after two," Charley said, looking toward the elevator dials. By that time the hand was racing toward 12 and considerably confused he pulled out his watch to make comparisons. Then he awoke to the fact that these were elevator dials and not a battery of clocks.

Now You Tell One!

After you have fished all day with the finest of flies, grubs and casting rods and have sunburned the back of your neck, tolerated buzz flies, snake feeders and innumerable insects of the type and at the end of the day you have folded up your equipment with several muttered imprecations against the finny tribe in general because you have nothing to show for your day's labor, what could possibly get your goat any more than to see a two pound bass deliberately jump into the canoe of a young man who had absolutely no fishing equipment other than a pair of hands?

Such was the case one summer afternoon when Harry was out for bass. The fish in quest of a fly jumped well out of the water and landed in the canoe to the surprise of everyone, at least that was the story that Harry told Christmas day when talk turned to fishing experiences.

Another Disappearing Resource

The water trough and the hitching post seem to have gone the way of the corner blacksmith shop. Motor cars stand without hitching; they take their water from long-nosed cans; no forge and ringing anvil are necessary to their well-being. With them has gone something of the picturesque from urban life.

If we had Ted Robinson's gift of verse we should write an ode or something to the disappearing water trough which, unless we rally to defend, is likely to become as extinct as the carrier pigeon. Haven for thirsty horses, heaven for barefoot boys, its bubbling presence on numerous street corners made city life measurably more endurable when the world was younger. It is not surprising that the spokesman for the Humane Society laments the trough's passing.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Good Hunter

Hunters are both good and bad;
Some folk make happy, and some sad.
—Old Mother Nature.

There was a hunter in the Green Forest, a hunter with a terrible gun. It was quite astonishing how rapidly the news went all through the Green Forest. Never had any one hunted there at this season of the year, and the little people didn't know what to make of it. In the first place, this Green Forest was owned by Farmer Brown and he allowed no hunting there. Once in a while a hunter slipped in there when Farmer Brown and Farmer Brown's boy were not at home, but this was seldom. Now a hunter was boldly going all through the Green Forest with a terrible gun.

Such a hurrying and scurrying to get out of sight as there was. Sammy Jay followed the hunter and from a safe distance screamed a warning to other little people. For a long time Sammy's screaming was the only sound. Then came the "bang" of that terrible gun, and every one wondered, and shivered as they wondered, who had been shot at. For a long time after that no one dared move. But by and by the little people began moving about very stealthily.

"Do you know who he shot at?" asked Jumper the Hare of Mrs. Grouse.

"Do you know who he shot at?" asked Mrs. Grouse of Chatterer the Red Squirrel.

"Do you know who he shot at?" asked Chatterer of Happy Jack the Gray Squirrel.

"Do you know who he shot at?" asked Happy Jack of Lightfoot the Deer.

And each in turn said: "No. I wonder who it could have been."

And then in the distance, but not so far that it didn't sound loud and dreadful, banged that terrible gun once more. This time Sammy Jay came hurrying from the direction of that dreadful bang, and it was plain that Sammy was excited. He didn't look a bit frightened but he did look as if he was fairly bursting with news. He was.

"What is it?" cried the others anxiously.

"I've found out who it is that is being hunted!" cried Sammy.

"Who?" asked all together.

"Guess," replied Sammy.

But they couldn't guess. So at last Sammy told them. He just couldn't hold it any longer. "It is Terror the Goshawk!" he cried.

"Terror the Goshawk!" they all repeated after him.

"Not really and truly!" cried Jumper the Hare.

"Do you know who he shot at?" asked Chatterer of Happy Jack the Gray Squirrel

"Really and truly," replied Sammy. "I saw him with my own eyes. I saw him shoot at Terror."

"Did he kill Terror?" asked Chatterer the Red Squirrel eagerly.

Sammy shook his head. "No," said he. "I guess Terror was too far away. I can tell you one thing, and that is that Terror left in a hurry and it looked to me as if he intended to go to a long distance. Here comes the hunter now. He is what I call a good hunter."

Sure enough, coming through the Green Forest was some one with a terrible gun. Who do you think it was? It was Farmer Brown's boy! Yes, sir, that is just who it was. He was smiling, and didn't look at all as if he had been trying to kill some one. The truth is he hadn't. There had been no powder to make a noise. You see, Farmer Brown's boy had seen Terror catch a plump hen from the henyard the night before. He knew how Terror was feared by all the little people in the Green Forest. So he decided to give Terror a taste of his own medicine, as the saying is. He would make Terror afraid, as Terror made others afraid. And so he had. After the second shot Terror had made up his mind that there were other places where he would rather be, and off he had gone.

And all the little people of the Green Forest were grateful to Farmer Brown's boy, for they knew that by driving Terror the Goshawk away he had saved the lives of some of them. (Copyright, 1925, by T. W. Burgess)

ENGLAND EXPERIMENTING WITH LIGHTED STREET POSTS

The British have now begun to use the same white lines to separate traffic that have been used in America these past years. After a conference at the Ministry of Transport in London, the minister is going to issue a circular letter to the local authorities to standardize the use and method of these white lines.

An interesting difference in traffic regulations in England and America is in the lighted posts at intersecting roads. At present the posts are in England only "an experiment" in the Mall, the Great West road and in Kent."

They are mounted 10 feet above the road in England, the object being to show the light above the motor lights on the road and so that no vehicle can hide them. In the majority of cases the posts are placed on the side of the road instead of being in the middle.

In 1923 French commercial planes made 9,270 trips with but six accidents.

Cured His Rupture

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no lost time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation if you write to me. Eugene M. Pullen, Carpenter 239 M Marcellus Avenue, Manasquan, N. J. Better cut out this notice and show it to any others who are ruptured—you may save a life or at least stop the misery of rupture and the worry and danger of an operation.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Company, Atlanta, Ga. (adv.)

HISTORIC VOLUNTOWN MANSION IS DESTROYED BY FLAMES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

VOLUNTOWN, Dec. 28.—About one o'clock this morning the village of Voluntown was aroused by the alarm of fire in what is known as the Briggs Mansion. In spite of strenuous efforts of the men, the building burned to the ground with the contents of the unoccupied part of the house. A pumper was used and the water was so drawn down that the mills could not run Monday. The workers stood up to their knees in water, and were caked with ice. The wires were all down, so no help could be called from outside. The ell of the house was occupied by Grayson Young and his son and daughter, the last named a teacher in Glasgo school. She is away on a vacation. There had been a chimney fire in the afternoon, but it seemed to have gone out. Evidently the fire had worked its way into the wood work. The house is owned by Mrs. George W. Carroll, of Norwich and was furnished in every room of which there were many very large ones, with valuable furniture, in the drawing room there were two large cut-glass chandeliers, and all other furnishings were on the same elegant, old time scale. The house was built probably eighty years ago by Joseph Doane, whose daughter, Miss Juliette Doane, lives in Norwich.

Part of the house was made from material taken from the old Nazareth meeting house which stood on the Pendleton Hill road, in the billiard room at the top of the house the old pew doors were used as paneling for the sides of the room. When the house was bought by Ira Briggs he made additions which beautified the place both as to the house and grounds. For years the house has been unoccupied by the family, except at intervals. It has always been known as the Ira Briggs Mansion, and is an historic and picturesque landmark which will be greatly missed by older residents of Voluntown and Griswold.

CHAMBERS CO-OPERATE IN SOFT COAL CAMPAIGN

Many insurance companies, public utilities, mercantile establishments, chambers of commerce and other organizations have agreed to co-operate with the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce in carrying out the campaign of public education regarding the use of anthracite substitute which is being conducted by Governor Trumbull and his coal committee of eleven.

The educational campaign is being carried out under the joint auspices of the coal merchants of the state, the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce and the Manufacturers' Association of Connecticut. Each of these three groups is handling different phases of the campaign. A large quantity of the governor's "statement relative to the coal situation" and of the folder of instructions in the use of soft coal is being distributed by 388 coal merchants, 83 high schools, 58 chambers of commerce, 34 mayors and city officials, the various Manufacturers' Associations and the public demonstration stations in Hartford and New Haven.

Part of the educational campaign includes public mass meetings held by the various chambers of commerce which are being addressed by coal experts. Charles L. Wright, who is in charge of the demonstration, work in Connecticut, has already addressed the East Hartford Chamber of Commerce and the Wethersfield Business Men's Association. Plans are now being made to address the New London and Manchester chambers and others in the near future.

At Governor Trumbull's request, Dr. A. B. Meredith, commissioner of education, has sent a letter to the various high school principals asking them to distribute the governor's statement and folder of instructions to each pupil to take home for the benefit of his parents.

The New Haven Chamber of Commerce, in co-operation with the Sheffield Scientific School of Yale University has established in Mason laboratory a large demonstration station in methods of burning bituminous coal. The New Haven chamber has also provided offices and clerical facilities for the demonstration work in that city.

In Hartford, the public demonstration station has been established through the co-operation of Mayor Stevens who has provided the space and other facilities.

At a recent meeting, the Bridgeport Chamber of Commerce decided to establish a public demonstration station in that city with an expert in charge as at Hartford and New Haven.

Thus far the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce has received assurances of cooperation from the following insurance companies: The Aetna Life, the Travelers, the Hartford Fire, the Connecticut General, the Phoenix Mutual Life, the Hartford Steam Boiler the National Fire, the Orient, all of Hartford and the Security Insurance company of New Haven.

Thus far the following public utilities have expressed their willingness to co-operate: The Hartford Electric Light company, the Northern Connecticut Light & Power company, the Southern New England Telephone company, the Eastern Connecticut Power company, the New Haven Water company, the Ansonia Water company, the Waterbury Gas Light company, the Putnam Light & Power company, the Bridgeport Hydraulic company and the Danbury & Bethel Gas & Electric Light company.

The returns from the mercantile group thus far show that the Shartenberg & Robinson company, the Gamble-Desmond company, and the Charles Monson company of New Haven and the Howland Dry Good company of Bridgeport will take an active part in the campaign.

Chambers of Commerce in the following cities have indicated an active interest in helping to carry out the campaign: Hartford, New Haven, Bridgeport, Waterbury, New London, Bristol, Middletown, Manchester, Naugatuck, Greenwich, Stamford, Winsted, Seymour, Unionville, Southington and Saybrook.

IDENTIFIED HUSBAND'S BODY AT UNDERTAKER'S ROOMS

Mrs. James H. Anderton and her grand daughter, Ruth, of No. 7 North Third street, Taftville, identified the body of the man who dropped dead, Sunday afternoon in front of the Taftville Pharmacy, as that of their husband and father, the body having been taken to the parlors of George G. Grant. The family learned of the death of a man in Taftville, early Monday morning, and immediately went to Mr. Grant's funeral parlors where they identified the body.

Mr. Anderton left Taftville on Thursday of last week to visit a sister-in-law in New Bedford and he was on his way home when stricken with heart trouble. Mrs. Anderton stated that as far as she knew her husband was in his usual good health, but, she said, he was a man who could not stand intense cold and she believed that the long ride from Providence had been too much for him.

Mr. Anderton was born in Blackburn, Lancashire, England, April 21, 1864, the son of Henry A. and Isabella Anderton. He was educated in his home town and mastered the trade of an engineer. With his wife and daughter he left England a year ago and located in Taftville, being employed in the cloth room at the Ponemah company. He was a member of the Taftville Congregational church and took an active inter st in church activities. He was united in marriage, in Christ church, Blackburn, England, with Ruth Gardner, when a young man.

Mr. Anderton was not affiliated with fraternal orders. He was a man of quiet habits and took pleasure in his home and family. News of his sudden death came as a shock to his friends in the village and his family has the sympathy of the public in their bereavement.

Mr. Anderton is survived by his wife and one grand daughter, Ruth, both residents of Taftville, and one brother Robert, and two sisters, Mary Alice and Margaret Ann Anderton.

SUSIE WRITES ABOUT CHRISTMAS, SPORTS AND NEW YEAR'S RESOLUTIONS

Susie in her weekly letter to the sports editor writes on a number of subjects including Christmas presents, sports and New Year's resolutions. Her letter follows:

Dear Sports Editor:

Well, Xmas has came and went once again. And I suppose its left its usual line o' Xmas jokes behind it. I know it did up to our shanty. I hope you got what you wanted but as for yours truly I was outa luck entirely. Everybody what knows me is askin' if the boy friend give me the ring and furcoat. Well, I'm here to tell this frearry old earth that he did—NOT. That guy's so tight he wouldn't give a nickel to see the statute of Liberty do the Charleston. Whatda ya think he give me for a presence? Nothin' but a box o' candy and a pair stockin's. The candy want so bum, but them sox, they was fierce. All cotton and a yard wide. Gosh, I wouldn't wear 'em to one o' them basketballs games. I give 'em to my kid sister to make a rag doll with. The candy was all done up in white an' green crape paper an' inside was a penny Xmas card what says on it "Sweets to the Sweet." Ain't that touchin'? So aboriginal. Why that line's been pulled from the days of Mark an' Cleo down to the days o' Kip an' Alice by every kid what's given a lollypop to his girl.

Yes, an' me savin' up all my money for the past coupla months to buy him a cigarettes case, with his 'nitials on it, an' everythin'. I guess he must be way ahead on that swap o' gifts. If he did like that so everybody in his family I guess he's so far to the good he don't need to work no more. I give the old man a neckstie an' he give me one o' them red slickers like them college girls is wearin'. Gosh, I look like a ten-alarm fire when I go down the street. I was standin' in a doorway the other nite an' a feller starts to ring in the fire alarm. I gotta lot o' other gifts but this ain't no place to mention 'em. Ask your wife an' maybe she'll tell what they was.

Well, I been readin' the sports pages durin' the week and them letters from the fellers what calls himself Chips Dugas and the feller that lives up in Danielson what calls himself Frankie Barber. Them too fellers like each other, don't they? They's regular pals they's so chumpy like. Them letters is got me dizzy an' seein' how's I don't know nothing about bowlin' I don't knows whose champion and whose ain't. First one feller says he's the champeon and calls the other feller a lotta mean names and then the next day the other feller says he's the champ and thinks up some meaner names to call the other feller.

The best thing I can think of is to give them two fellers a set o' box fightin' mittens and let 'em settle it that way. I don't like them mud slingin' letters in the paper an' if you was I I wouldn't print no more o' them epistols. But if them two bird's do get to bowlin' each other after they gets through writin' them letters. I'm sure goin' to be there if I hafta hock the slicker. The boy friend is goin' to take me bewlin' some nite so's I'll know what I'm seein' when them fellers get together.

Well, its pretty near New Years an'-everybody is makin' revolutions to break durin' the comin' year. I suppose you has got some to make like the rest. Gosh, I'm goin' to make some too, but I ain't sure what they is goin' to be. Believe me, the boy friend is gotta make some, too, if he's goin' to keep comin' up to my house. The first one I picked out for him was to revolve to be more big-hearted an' let go that strangle hold what he's got on them shekels o' hisn. Specially when he's ost with me an' its Xmas time. 'Course I wouldn't want him to be that way with everybody 'cause then he wouldn't have enough to furnish a home if we ever gets hitched. A nother thing he's gotta do is sell that 'cumulation of tin an' iron what he calls a autamobile. I has took my last ride in that ahimmying go-cart. If he can't get a regula car why he can't expect me to love him no more. The's lots other things I kin think up for him to swear off'a during the year but I ain't goin' to tell the public.

As for me I don't swear, smoke, drink nor chew or stay out very late at nite so's there ain't much for me to resolute. The old man says I better resolvate to wash more dishes an' do less letter writin' if I knows what's good for me. Ma says I oughta cut out the slang and lipstick an' try to be a sensible lady. Gosh, ain't parents funny peoples, they is so unmodern. They's a lotta good things I could think up for a lotta peoples in Norwich but I dasn't say what they is in a letter 'cause they might think I was tryin' to be fresh. Them Barber an' Dugas fellers might resolvate to cut out the letter writin' an' get to bowlin', but I suppose it'd be just like all the New Years oaths, they'd be forgot the next day.

New Years revolutions is just like the prohibition laws, we make 'em but they don't mean nothin'. If everybody lived up to their resolves what they make this would be a darn fine place to live in. I guess everybody what makes New Year's resolves means to keep 'em but the first thing you knows somethin' goes wrong and 'way goes the resolve. Gosh, just think if everybody kept their resolves for a year what would happen in this country. The bootleggers would become paupers 'cause most everybody resolves not to drink no more bum hooch after New Years; the lawyers would be outa jobs 'cause lotsa people says they's goin' to be on the level during the year; there wouldn't be no divorces 'cause 'bout all married folks resolve to treat each other better; you wouldn't need no locks on your doors an' you could throw your keys away, 'cause most every crook, no mater how bad, resolves to go straight on New Years; there wouldn't be no need o' cops, the jails would be empty, ther wouldn't be no wars and everything'd be so peaceable and nice. But would we have any fun? I guess its the busted resolutions we get the kick outa rather than those we keep.

CROWLEY REAPPOINTED COACH OF COLUMBIA FOOTBALL

NEW YORK, Dec. 28—(AP)—Charles E. Crowley, head football coach at Columbia university the past season, has been reappointed, the university council on athletics announced today. Much success, which included a victory over the army, came to Crowley in his first year as head coach. RECHECK SHOWS TAFTVILLE PLAYED TIE WITH RIVERVIEW

At the State hospital on Monday evening in the bowling match between the Riverview team and the Taftville five, the Taftville team at the end of the game had apparently won the game by a margin of five pins. The Taftville team left the hospital thinking they had won but in a recheck of the score it was found that the scorer had made an error of five pins which would give the Riverview five a tie count with the Taftville team.

In figuring up the score of Dinty Moore, it was found that the scorer had made a mistake and that his string in the second game should be 114 instead of 108. This made a difference of six pins and would have won the game for Riverview but another mistake in the second string rolled by Erickson, showed that he had 128 instead of 139 and this left the score tied for the match at 1654. The scores follow:

Riverview

Gaudette	111	101	145	357
Erickson	108	138	98	344
Moore	111	114	99	324

RICKARD TRYING TO MATCH CARPENTIER AND DELANEY

NEW YORK, Dec. 28—(AP)—Tex Rickard, Madison Square promoter today cabled Francois Descamps, manager of the French light heavyweight, Georges Carpentier, an offer for a bout between Carpentier and Jack Delaney of Bridgeport, Conn., in New York, in the near future.

Carpentier once held the world championship at the weight. Delaney lost a decision to the present titleholder, Paul Berlenbach, two weeks ago.

JUNIOR DOUBLES CHAMPION GETS SETBACK AT HANDS OF UNKNOWN

NEW YORK, Dec. 28—(AP)—Seeding of tennis players on the basis of their last year's performances came in for renewed discussion today when Malcolm Hill, of Waban, Mass., generally considered the favorite in the national junior indoor championship, went down to unexpected defeat in the first round before Julius Seligson, of New York, an unseeded entry, by decisive scores of 6-1, 6-2.

Hill, holder with H. L. Johnson, of the indoor junior doubles crown and seeded No. 1 in the draw, failed to cope successfully at the net with superb driving from the back court by Seligson. The New York boy, who came back from defeat in an early round of the indoor boys' tournament last winter to win the municipal outdoor junior title here, drove with such rare pace and decision as to stamp him a formidable contender for the title won last year by Horace Orser.

Seligson raced through his Massachusetts foe for five straight games in the opening set after extending Hill to deuce four times to win his opening service. He maintained his form throughout the second set, outstanding the Waban youth in the baseline exchanges and passing him repeatedly at the net, despite the fact that Hill appeared to be at the top of his spectacular volleying game.

Of nine other seeded players, one additional entry, W. A. Stranger, of the University of Pennsylvania, shared the fate of Hill, losing to Morton Baker, of Baltimore, in the second round, 6-4, 6-3. The remaining eight came through to the third round. They were Donald Strachan, of Philadelphia, protege of William T. Tilden. Harry Wolf, of Montclair, N. J., Edward Jacobs, of Baltimore, Gregory Mangin and Lemoine Heuser, of Newark, N. J., Warren F. Coen, Jr., of Kansas City, John S. Millen, of the University of Pennsylvania, and Eugene McAuliff, of Yonkers, N. Y.

McAuliff, Coen, Strachan and Heuser were double victors, while the others profited either through byes or defaults. The Yonkers youth, depending chiefly on a terrific service to overcome wildness in his stroking, put out E. W. Williams, of Brooklyn, 6-3, 6-4, and John H. Pitman, of New York 6-2, 6-4. Coen's victims were George F. Becker, New York, and Conway MacDonald, of Montclair, N. J., the scores being 7-5, 6-1 and 6-2, 6-3.

Strachan was not extended to win against Louis Gast, of Brooklyn, 6-1 6-0, and John S. Clark, of Westfield N. J., 6-2, 6-3, but Heuser required three sets in the first round to dispose of H. H. Murphy, Jr., of Hastings-on-Hudson, N. J., 6-2, 4-6, 6-3. He then eliminated J. W. Keyes, of New York, 6-1, 6-4.

Jacobs, winner of the boys' indoor title a year ago, easily won his match from W. S. Samuels, of New York, 6-1, 6-2, while Millen hammered his way to victory over Robert Kaufman, of Yale, in the second round, 6-1, 6-1, after disposing of Edward Mandell by 6-2, 6-4 in his first match.

Wolf advanced through a bye and a default. Mangin was a victor over Henry S. Moore, of White Plains, N. Y., in the second round, 6-4, 6-2. Seligson, following up his clean-cut victory over Hill, advanced with other favorites to the third round by taking the measure of Spencer Clayton, Yonkers, N. Y., 6-0, 6-1.

Play in the boys' championship, which has drawn an entry of sixty, in the junior doubles tourney will open tomorrow.

Eddie Shevlin, who recently lost the New England welterweight championship to Al Mello of Lowell, has been boxing professionally for nearly 20 years.

The man who laid a bet two years ago that Jack Dempsey never again would step into the ring to defend his title appears to have a good chance of copping the coin.

Decision by Captain Phil Bunnell of the Yale football eleven to name thesame coaches which developed the eleven the past fall has forestalled an acute discussion of football coaching as Harvard has just passed through.

Of the nine matches held to date the West has won four and the East 3, while two of the games resulted in a tie score.

NINA BANG TO DENMARK IS BEST CABINET MEMBER

COPENHAGEN, Dec. 28—(AP)—Here in Denmark they say Nina Bang, the first woman member of a Danish Cabinet, is the "best man in the whole Statsraadet" or Ministry. Whenever conversation turns upon prominent women of the land, her name springs spontaneously to the lips of every Dane.

The widow of a well known writer on economics and herself a learned writer on the same subject, Mme. Bang sprang into prominence as a forceful administrator upon her appointment as Minister of Education in the present Labor government.

As the author of a standard work, The History of Sound Dues (Taxation,) published with financial support of several foreign governments, she already had established her reputation as a scholar.

Today she is more debated than any other Danish woman. She is praised and caricatured to such an extent that she has become almost a myth.

Her first ministerial act was the reorganization of the Danish State theater, which enjoys an annual subsidy of about $250,000. Too many cooks were spoiling the state dramatic broth, she thought, so with a single pen stroke she dismissed six managers, including the titular head of the theater, a King's chamberlain and a belted earl, whom the woman minister characterized as a "sediment of the days of autocracy."

The reform of the national stage was an acknowledged success.

Her daring in dealing with the aristocratic cast was characteristic of the woman, and she tackled other reforms with equal success.

Always independent in thought and action, Madame Bang has been in the center of the public spotlight by her steadfast refusal to stand in the presence of King Christian or while the Danish anthem King Christian Stood by Lofty Mast, is being played. Longfellow turned the words of this song into beautiful English verse.

This attitude has turned the admiration of many Danes to solid hatred of Our Lady of Denmark as she is called derisively by her opponents. Others of the public, however, have rallied to her and praised the republican refusal to respect a song that "glories in the gory lust of bruising respectable neighbors," as the Minister of Education herself describes the anthem.

BERKELEY DIVINITY SCHOOL MAY LEAVE MIDDLETOWN

Of interest to local Episcopalians is the following from the Middletown Press:

The trustees of the Berkeley Divinity school met yesterday in New Haven and voted to employ counsel for the purpose of securing a declaratory judgment from the superior court with reference to their duties as trustees in the event of the school removing from Middletown. The trustees were advised that this step was necessary as supplementing the action of the legislature at its last session when the charter of the school was amended to enable them to move the school to "any town or city in Connecticut in which there is or shall be located any incorporated college, university, or other higher institution of learning."

It is understood that this action is part of a plan which the trustees have had under consideration for some 26 years to move the school to New Haven, where it will be in proximity to Yale University and can have the advantages of the libraries, museums and other educational facilities connected with the university. It is not expected that the move can actually be accomplished for some years to come.

The trustees say that their plan is in accordance with the modern trend in the education of a student for the ministry, that the New Haven location will attract more students, and that they have assurances for better financial support for the school in case it is moved, whereas it has become increasingly difficult to raise funds for the support of the school in its present location. They believe that only in the event of removal can they adequately carry out the intents and purposes of the founders of the school.

HOUSEWARMING FOR HICKORY STREET COUPLE

The spirit of Christmas, with the spirit of the old fashioned housewarmings was much in evidence last Thursday at the new home of Mr. and Mrs. James Ringland, 184 Hickory street. The holiday proved a reuning time for the family, including the grandchildren, to gather for the first time in the new home. Dinner was served at 6 o'clock and covers were laid for twenty-two, after which entertainment was in store for the family.

The family gift was a five tube radio set and this immediately proved its worth as an entertainer. James Ringland, Jr., and George Chappell, Jr., accompanied by the former's mother, entertained with violin duets and solos.

Among the guests from out of town were Mr. and Mrs. John R. Ringland and son, Wallace, of Newark, N. J., Mr. and Mrs. Henry S. Ringland, of Hartford, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Dee and son, Donald of Bridgeport, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Gilman and family of New London and Mr. and Mrs. James Ringland and son, also of New London.

HOUSE AND CONTENTS BURNED TO GROUND

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 28. — An eight room house owned by Charles Lewis located about one and one-half miles north of Chaplin on the Willimantic-Phoenixville road was burned to the ground by fire of unknown origin about 11 o'clock Monday night. The blaze started while Mr. and Mrs. Lewis and their child were visiting several miles away. They had been gone about two hours and returned to find the roof and walls of their home crumbling to the ground. Nothing was saved from the wooden structure. Neighbors and motorists who had stopped at the scene could do nothing to fight the blaze and devoted their efforts to consoling the grief stricken family. The fact that the wind blew in the opposite direction saved a barn located about 50 feet from the house from being added to the loss in the conflagration. Mr. Lewis is employed as a truck driver by the local station of the Gulf Refining company of New York.

Mrs. Bromley was instantly killed and her husband was badly injured, how seriously it was not learned.

PERSHING ADVISED TO ABANDON TASK

ments as to procedure among its members, has been further delayed by storms in the mountains where the line must be surveyed, and Col. Morrow is expected to take advantage of this opportunity for a visit home.

Word of General Pershing's ill health and probably return and of Colonel Morrow's projected visit home reached the Associated Press today despite the barrier of official silence which has surrounded all aspects of the Tacna-Arica negotiations. Neither at the White House nor the state department, however could any comment be obtained as to the general's exact physical condition, nor as to the significance his return might have in connection with the future proceedings of the plebiscitary commission.

It was admitted at the white house that the president was aware of General Pershing's ill health although no word had come from Arica showing that he had decided to come home.

Decisions as to when he will call from Arica presumably on the cruiser Denver which is at his disposal there, rests with the general himself and Maj. Jones. Development of the symptom of overwork and prolonged strain which Maj. Jones has noted probably will determine the date.

Word that General Pershing was showing the effect of the ordeal in Arica caused grave concern in official quarters, although it had been known for some time that the condition of his teeth was causing him considerable discomfort. He had hoped to get an opportunity to return home for dental attention a month or so ago but would not put aside at that time his official duties because of the critically delicate phase into which the commissioner's work had entered.

Since then the strain of attempting to reconcile the conflicting views of his Chilean and Peruvian colleagues has been redoubled, and there is little doubt that this, added to his trouble with his teeth, brought on the increase in blood pressure which Major Jones has reported.

Whether General Pershing will be able to return to his work in Arica later also depends, presumably on what the verdict of his physicians may be after he has had the benefit of the sea voyage home and treatment here. In the meantime, it may become necessary for the president to name some member of the American staff now in Arica to act, at least temporarily, for the general in his absence.

If that course should be taken, it would cause no surprise here if President Coolidge designated William C. Dennis legal adviser to General Pershing, to carry on the work of the commission. That course was in prospect when General Pershing took up the question of a visit home a month or so ago.

General Pershing was in the best of health when he went to Arica last July, despite his more than 65 years and the trouble he has experienced at intervals with his teeth. Because of his age, the radical change in climate he was to undergo, and the probable difficulties of the negotiations over which he would preside, however, Major Jones was added to his personal staff so that every possible precaution to safeguard his health might be taken.

Detailed information as to the extent of the unfavorable symptoms Major Jones has noted is lacking. It is regarded as certain by General Pershing's intimates in the army, however, that he would consent to lay aside his task, even temporarily, only if the situation was urgent.

COACHES' ASSOCIATION ADOPT RULES REGARDING PROFESSIONAL PLAYING

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—(AP)—Members of the American Football Coaches' Association went on record today as favoring the present football rules and voted not to recommend a single change.

Several changes were discussed including one which puts the game on a play instead of a time basis and the elimination of the international safety, but in the end the coaches agreed that the game could not be changed to advantage and voted to disregard all suggestions, a departure from the custom of annually recommending several changes.

Four resolutions recommended by the trustees were adopted without much discussion, as follows:

"Resolved that a committee be appointed to stabilize the profession of football coaching.

HORACE P. DODGE DIES— WAS ILL WITH PNEUMONIA

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Dec. 28—At his home, 7 William street, Pawcatuck, Monday noon, the death from bronchial pneumonia occurred of Horace P. Dodge, 79. He was taken ill a week ago Saturday shortly after his wife became ill and was taken to the Westerly hospital for treatment. In years of service, "H. P." was the oldest store clerk in Westerly and for more than 47 years was in the employ of his brother, Edward M. Dodge, who first engaged in the clothing business in Westerly in 1875 under the firm name of "Dodge and Wells," in the Dixon House block, a few years later the name becoming "E. M. Dodge and Co." which it remains. For nearly twenty-five years Mr. Dodge had been a member of Franklin lodge, No. 20, F. and A. M., of Westerly. Besides his wife, Josephine F., he is survived by a sister, Mrs. Phebe M. Card, 36 Palmer street, Pawcatuck.

Mr. Dodge was born in Westerly, Jan. 10, 1846, the sixth of a family of eight children of Heremiah Sims and Rebecca Pendleton Chase Dodge. His father and grandmother were born on Block Island and followed the water in fishing and coastwise vessels.

He married Josephine Flanders June 27, 1877. Like his forefathers he followed the water for nine years and then entered the clothing business of his brother, E. M. Dodge, as a clerk. Aug. 16, 1878.

When superior court for Washington county opened in Westerly Monday morning before Judge Copotoste, Assistant Attorney General Louis V. Jackvony appeared when Alberto Costanzo of Providence, alleged proprietor of the "Yellow House," in South Kingstown, who is held under $25,000 bail on two counts, of harboring and keeping, was called for sentence. Mr. Jackvony stated that he had a physician's certificate from Dr. Mago, of Providence, which stated that Mr. Costanzo was ill with acute entritis. Mr. Jackvony said that he was not entirely satisfied and thought that another physician should be appointed to examine into the case. He asked that the case be continued to Tuesday morning and then if serious illness did not prevent the defendant's appearance in court, a capias would be issued.

Attorney Thomas L. Dorney, of Providence, representing the defendant, stated that at 9 a. m. Monday morning his client was reported by telephone to him as still being in bed and agreed that he would be satisfied if the attorney general had another physician examine the man. Judge Copotosto said that the certificate was not in regular form, in that it was not sworn to and by it he understood that the man was suffering with some intestinal infection, Dec. 27. He agreed with the attorney general's choice of Dr. Griffin of Providence to examine the man and Mr. Jackvony agreed to proceed in the matter just as soon as he could turn to Providence. This finished the attorney general's docket and the civil trial calendar was taken up.

The case of Lewis S. McNeil vs. Henry M. Brightman, represented by Attorneys Clarence E. Roche and Herbert W. Rathbun, respectively, in which suit was brought to recover $16,000 for contract work done on the defendant's property on the Post road. Before the jury was called Judge Copotosto asked to see the opposing counsel in chambers and when they emerged, counsel and clients retired to a jury room. Upon their return it was announced that a settlement had been reached and by it the plaintiff will receive $1,100 on the contract work done on the house of Mr. Brightman.

When it appeared that there were no cases to be tried Monday, Judge Copotosto excused the jurors to report again this (Tuesday) morning.

In taking up the trial calendar, the next case ready was found to be that of Electric Paint and Varnish company vs. Frank Digianci. Loanze H. Kenyon vs. Grandville was marked to follow, then J. G. Phelps Stokes vs. Louis Tillinghast and Anna Evelyn Faulk vs. Lydia M. Davis, executrix, was announced as ready for trial on Tuesday with Joseph Ferraro vs. Louis Weisinger, alias and Edith M. Barber, et al. vs. Thomas H. Barber, guardian. Before court adjourned Judge Copotosto informed the jurors that their term of service for this session might be at an end Wednesday.

Before Judge William A. Wilcox in the Monday session of Stonington town court in Borough hall, two cases were taken up. Joe Salamini of Pawcatuck, charged with parking an automobile on Cornwell street, Dec. 22 contrary to the by-laws of the town of Stonington in such cases pleaded guilty and made a statement to the court. Judge Wilcox found him guilty and ordered him to pay a fine of $2 and the costs of court taxed at $9.21. He paid the bill. John Doe, alias Richard Roe, of Stillman avenue, Pawcatuck, was in court on a complaint charging violation of the liquor laws of Connecticut. He was represented by Attorney Benjamin H. Hewitt of Mystic. The interests of the state were in charge of Prosecuting Attorney George R. McKenna. The accused was not put to plea. The facts were complicated in this case. A raid was made but nothing of an intoxicating nature was found, although several bottles and a jug of weak home brew were procured. The alcoholic contents were not sufficient to warant a conviction. The prosecuting attorney stated that he had no evidence to establish a reputation on the place or an actual sale. Attorney Hewitt also spoke on the case. Judge Wilcox found the accused not guilty and ordered his discharge.

STUDENTS LEARNING TO FLY AT UNIVERSITY NIGHT SCHOOL

MADISON, Wis., Dec. 28—(AP)—Students in a half dozen universities of the middle-west are learning to fly.

They are enrolled in naval aviation courses in the University of Wisconsin, the University of Minnesota Washington University of St. Louis Case University, Purdue and the University of Chicago.

The second year of the course at the University of Wisconsin, offered by the naval reserve, has just opened with an enrollment of approximately 30 men. The instruction is given in a ground school, conducted throughout the winter. The navy department furnishes an outline of the course and the students study aerology, theory of flight, navigation, structure and rigging, aviation nomenclature, aviation engines and naval history. The class meets for two hours every Friday night.

Last year 22 men were enrolled of whom 12 finished the course. This year the course will be continued along the same general plan as last. After a course in flying at the Great Lakes Naval Training Station, those who pass the tests are sent to the naval station at Hampton Roads, Vt.

RUSSIAN PRIESTS BOB THEIR LOCKS TO DISTRACT NOTICE

MOSCOW, Dec. 28—(AP)—Russian priests are bobbing their long hair after the fashion of the American girls. Some of them are also discarding their beards.

This is done for reasons of hygiene and convenience, but more particularly to render their appearance on the street less conspicuous. For among atheistic Bolsheviks a priest is looked upon with disdain. Formerly members of the Russian orthodox clergy wore long flowing hair which fell loosely over their shoulders, giving them a patriarchal appearance. Many of them cultivated bushy whiskers which reached almost to their waists.

Ever since the Soviet government separated to church from the state, large numbers of priests and bishops have been discarding their clerical robes and scrapping their high conical black hats. They found if they wore their ecclesiastical garb they could secure neither employment nor recognition.

Five school houses burn daily in the United States.

FLOWERS AND NOISY COLORS FEATURE PAJAMAS' REVIVAL

PARIS, Dec. —(AP)—Pajamas in the fashionable French haberdasher shops seem to run to flowers and are in extremely noisy colors. After a temporary fall from grace, they are being vividly revived and are becoming as popular as ever for boudoir wear.

"Sold for Palm Beach" was the label tagged on one garment displayed in the main window of the flashiest and most expensive shops. Les Roses Merveilleuses was the title of another of the most gorgeous, a coat of brocade in designs of red, yellow, pink and gold, made upon a foundation of black velvet, and flaring smartly over trousers of gold.

The colors went to contrast in another model of exquisite delicacy called Quelques Fleurs. They were of pale green, blouse of pale rose, an overdrapery of purple, with a front panel and borders of modernistic flowers in a blending of all these colors.

She Could Never Have Done It With Piles!

Bless the American girl who has glorified all the sports! She makes a pretty picture in the water, and is a plucky swimmer, too. Piles are unthinkable for active women. If you have them, you ought to know this simple thing to do!

At any hour or moment that you have the least distress or discomfort from piles, use a simple Pyramid pile suppository—and go happily on your way! The worst hemorrhoids, even bleeding and badly protruding piles respond at once to the soothing suppository applied in perfect privacy. But bear the name in mind; Pyramid is the one every druggist has, usually the only one he will sell his patrons. Pyramid is marvelous. Why suffer another single half-hour with painful piles?

Sixty cents the box, the world around. But for proof, a free box plainly wrapped will be sent those who write Pyramid Drug Co., 200 Pyramid Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NORWICH

With only three more days until the first of the year 1925 building operations in Norwich and vicinity have made considerable progress during the last week and many contractors will complete contracts during the present week. The slack season of the year is at hand but a large majority of the builders have much work ahead that will keep their men busy throughout the winter. The extreme weather of the past few days has held up exterior work as well as plaster and cement work where it has been impossible to heat the buildings where the work is being done.

The major portion of the work being done now is interior work on buildings that have reached a stage where it is possible to operate the heating plants. Many buildings in Norwich and in the town have reached this stage and indications are that there is plenty of work of this kind to keep the contractors busy until the spring weather.

The year 1925 has been a record year in new building in Norwich, both in the town and in the city. The permits issued by Fire Marshal Howard L. Stanton have exceeded all previous years in number but the total valuation as placed by the owners is somewhat below the record year of 1924. There has been a marked decrease in the number of new buildings outside the city limits as is shown by the records of Town Clerk Holbrook who now issues building permits for the town. During the six months that this has been in effect Clerk Holbrook has issued a large number of permits for new dwelling houses until it is possible that the figures will reach 50 by the first of 1926. A record of the number of permits issued in the city and town, with the valuation will be published in the New Year's edition of the Norwich Bulletin on next Friday.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

In Norwich during the past week there were 8 sales of real estate as compared to 18 sales for the corresponding week in 1924. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $58,794 and $48,497.

The sales of real estate in New London during the past week totaled 15 as compared to 5 sales for the same week a year ago. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $33,475 and $27,400.

State Building Permits

Building permits for the week, granted in the leading cities of the state numbered 229, comparing with 216 in the like week of 1924 and 203 in the like week of 1923. The cost of new construction for the current week was $772,487, comparing with $807,528 in 1924 and $707,676 in 1923

BRITISH SAILORS TURN FROM OLD RAW LEAF TO CIGARETTES

LONDON, Dec. 28—(AP)—British sailors are turning from old raw leaf tobacco, soaked in rum and rolled up in twine, to the cigarette.

When the Prince of Wales made his recent voyage on the Repulse, 1,808,000 cigarettes were sold, according to D. Kennedy, manager of the canteen. There were but 150 pipe smokers among the 1,200 men in the ship's company.

"Sailors follow one another very closely in their choice of smokes," he said. "But the fashion changes mysteriously from time to time. On this voyage of the Repulse those who did not roll their own cigarettes concentrated on two of the three very popular brands, quite ignoring the third. There was a run on a well-known high class cigarette as soon as the men got shore leave."

NORWICH DOINGS 75 YEARS AGO

Tuesday, December 24, 1850—Feeling is running high in this city over the detestable trick of that person who is called the most detested thing in the world, the secret spy or common informer, who went to a local house and asked for something to eat, then made out that he was cold and asked for hot rum slings. One was served and at repeated requests the man obtained five more, all of which he drank with a relish. Going out he soon returned and arrested the women selling the rum having her on six separate counts of sale. This detestable method of apprehending people selling liquor does not meet the favor of the people of this city, even the temperance people, who are high minded people and detest that sort of method.

A conviction was of course secured but the shed who was guilty of the trick thought best to leave town and Norwich is better off without him.

Norwich stores report an excellent Christmas sale this year, the many fine assortments of Christmas articles having found a ready sale. All store windows have been attractively decorated during the past few weeks but the amount of merchandise has grown steadily smaller as the days went by and Christmas drew nearer.

Thursday, December 26, 1850—We are indebted to H. T. Hough, assistant deputy marshal, for the population of the following towns.

Windham	4,636	3,882
Pomfret	1,849	1,563
Hampton	928	1,146
Chaplin	799	794
Willington	1,399	1,268
Mansfield	2,580	2,276

The increase in Windham is 1,254 during the past ten years.

The annual Firemen's ball has been set for December 31st at Uncas hall, with music by Hazen's Quadrille band.

Saturday, December 28, 1850—The directors of the Norwich and Worcester Railroad Co., have just declared a dividend of 2 1-2 per cent, on the preferred stock of the company, payable at the transfer office of the company at New York city, on and after the 15th day of January next. Meantime the stock of this company has reached within a fraction of $70 on the share in the N. Y. market. We shall not be surprised to see it as high as $75 or $80 before long.

Rumors that Jenny Lind and party were drowned when the steamer on which she was traveling to Charleston, N. C., was wrecked, were proved unfounded yesterday when word was received that the ship had reached port, although it was in a badly damaged condition from fighting its way through the high seas for several days.

Our New London friends are rejoicing, as well they may, over the late and high gratifying intelligence from quite a fleet of their ships on their way home full-freighted with blubber. These vessels have most of them made remarkable short voyages. It is said, and the spoils with which they are returning are very rich indeed. According to the estimates of some of the shrewd ones in New London, the value of the cargoes of oil expected to arrive there during the coming summer, will not be less than $1,500,000. We heartily congratulate our neighbors on their good fortune.

Application was made in 1850 for a charter for a railroad from Norwich to Westbrook, Middlesex county.

BEAUTY OF CASTEL NUOVO TO BE REVEALED TO TOURISTS

NAPLES, Dec. 28 (AP)—After 30 years of intermittent efforts on the part of the successive mayors of Naples, supported by prominent art lovers, it has been decided to raze the cluster of unsightly buildings which so long has marred the superb beauty of hte famous stronghold known as the Castel Nuovo.

The Castel Nuovo was built in 1279-83 by Charles I of Anjou from a design supposedly supplied by Pierre d'Angicourt, and was enlarged successively by Alphone I in 1442, by Don Pedro de Toledo in 1546 and by Charles III in 1735. The kings of the houses of Anjou and Aragon and the Spanish viceroys one after another used it as a dwelling.

Besides its outward architectural beauty the castle contains a famous 14th Gothic armory.

BELGIAN QUEEN TOLD HER HIGHEST HOPES ARE DOOMED

SIMLA, India, Dec. 28—(AP)—Queen Elizabeth of Belgium has been told she will never achieve her greatest hopes, whatever they are.

Traveling incognito and accompanied by a lone lady-in-waiting, the queen entered a fortune teller's tent while visiting the old town.

"Madam, you have had unpound ambitions," the Hindu soothsayer said as she studied the queen's hand. "You were greatly desirous of occupying a high situation but you must abandon that hope and console your wish or see your hopes fulfilled."

The queen smiled as she replied:

"I have a situation that suits me quite well."

The Fire company was called out for two chimney fires. One at the town farm house required a tank of chemical to subdue it. This occurred at 1.30 p. m. The company had just got the pumper back in the house when another still alarm came in for a chimney fire at the home of Michael Zanowich, in Hammond Court. This blaze was also put out with chemicals. The quick response of the company prevented a more servere fire.

FRENCH CABINET CRISIS LIKELY TO BE DELAYED

PARIS, Dec. 28.—(AP)—The cabinet crisis, delayed because of Christmas week, now appears likely to be delayed until the chamber reconvenes for the regular session January 12.

"I have been thrown down to often to quit now," was Premier Briand's comment on the situation this afternoon. This was interpreted as meaning that the premier intends to fight the issue out and resist the indirect pressure which is being brought to bear on him by the groups of the left likes to give up the helm of government or throw his minister of finance overboard.

M. Briand declared that he was going to do everything in his power to bring about a conciliatory solution of the question and would make every effort to retain in his cabinet any members disposed to leave it. He was thought to refer to the radical members of the government who are maintaining stout opposition to M. Doumer's financial measures.

The situation thus reverts to the period when M. Painleve introduced his measures for financial renovation and encountered opposition from the groups of the left. The issue then was between the partisans and opponents of a capital levy, the question now is between those preferring direct taxes to indirect taxes.

The lineup on either side is much the same. But with the difference that the radical group, which is opposing M. Doumer's scheme for an increase in direct taxes has seven men in the cabinet. M. Painleve ceded to the left coalition and was overthrown by the chamber. M. Briands thus far has refused to submit to the conditions of the left groups in the chambers, and risks being overthrown in his own cabinet.

Behind the parliamentary maneuvering against the cabinet, political experts aver, is the desire of the left bloc to get rid of both Doumer and Briand and pave the way for the return of M. Herriot. The socialist leaders seem to entertain a slight hope that in default of M. Herriot they may be called upon to take over the power. The question of their participation in the exercise of the executive power will be decided so far as the socialist policy is concerned by the national congress of the party on January 10.

BIRTH RATE HAS BEEN RE-ESTABLISHED IN FRANCE

PARIS, Dec. 28.—(AP)—France is the only country of all those engaged in the great war which has succeeded in re-establishing its birth rate at pre-war figures, M. Durafour, minister of labor, told the chamber of deputies today in contradicting the general impression that France's birth rate has fallen.

"The figures for 1925 show that France in that year even surpassed the 1913 average," M. Durafour said. There were 191 births to every 10,000 inhabitants in 1913 and 192 in 1924. In other countries there have been notable decreases, in the birth rate, especially in England, where the rate has fallen from 241 births per 10,000 population before the war to 188."

SAWA SKEGREN SENT TO JAIL AND FINED $200, AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 28—This city stepped into the class of towns of varied crime today, when the session of the police court was held. There were liquor law violators, wife beaters gun carriers without permission, drunks and disturbers of audiences in public playhouses, a varied assortment of offenses to be alleged in a place the size of New London in a single day. Sawa Skegren, who operates a supposed restaurant at 133 North Bank street was accused of selling 43 per cent. or what goes for gin, even if it is only half water and half alcohol. Sawa discovered today that he was in the wrong business for he was fined $200 and sent to jail for ten days' stay. Last week Wednesday, he paid a fine of $200 into the court for the same offense. A sailor who had visited the "restaurant" came away with a bottle of the stuff that Sawa dispensed there and making known the fact, was sent back to get another bottle. He paid a dollar a half-pint. Then a search warrant was issued and examination of the restaurant disclosed a half gallon of the so-called gin. Sawa will abandon the gin and of his restaurant now, for another conviction will mean a greater penalty than he has yet paid.

FORMER COAST GUARD MEN FINED AND SENT TO JAIL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 28—A couple of youths, formerly coast guard sailors, supposed to be hunting down liquor, were charged with carrying concealed weapons and were severely punished. The court fined each $100 and sent the pair to jail for a stay of six months. They are George E. Sullivan and Sylvester Cormley. One of the pair had a room at the Crocker House where the police declared he had a victrola and cigarettes enough to stock a store. The other was his companion and both had been associated with Edith Palma, the wife of a Filipino sailor, who was convicted of contributing to the downfall of a young girl sent to the House of the Good Shepherd last week. Sullivan said he and Cormley were visitors at the Palma woman's home and represented that they met her at dances. The story connected with the Palma house episode is too vile to print. The youths arraigned today had made the acquaintance of a young drug clerk in this city and by stories told to him and won his sympathy, so that he had been very kind to them. Then they represented that he had been connected with them in the gun-toting business, but their story was proven false, with little effort. They then admitted that they had received the guns from Mrs. Palma and she represented that she had obtained them from her husband. The breaking up of the Palma place is recognized as a benefit to the city. She is to leave New London during the current week, with instructions not to appear here again unless she is ready to go to the State Farm for Women. She is the mother of two children, one of them an infant.

Clayton Beck with Walter Hussey

the latter a carpenter's mate on the United States ship Burroughs of the coast guard service, were charged with wife beating and each pleaded guilty. The former's appearance was his first in the court. He simply got drunk and then assaulted his wife. She asked for his arrest. He is the father of two children and these were taken into consideration, in handing him his penalty. He was placed on probation for a year that his promise to conduct himself properly may be tested as to its sincerity. If he breaks down he will have to pay a fine of $10 with the costs of his trial. Hussey was fined $10 and paid it. He smashed his wife and knocked her down. Still the woman was considerate enough of the brute to not desire his committment in jail as that would take from his record in the service of Uncle Sam, in which he has been enrolled nine years and a half. Judge Prince was disposed to send him to jail and would have done so but for the statement made by the wife. She works and earns $10 a week and said the only comfort she has is in attendance upon some dance "once in a while."

Oscar Hill, a Russian, who makes infrequent appearances in court was there this morning for his old offense —intoxication. He pleaded guilty and was fined $10. That cost Oscar about $20, but he paid willingly that he might not have to serve time in jail.

THEATRE ROW MAY MEAN STRICTER LAW ENFOREMENT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 28—Four young rowdies taken from the Empire theatre Sunday evening, today were in the police court. They were fined $10 each, but the judgment was not executed, that they might go to work. They were, however, denied admission to the theatre in the future, for no tickets will be sold to either of them. Perhaps the case in hand today may lead to the shutting out of many children from the picture houses unless they are accompanied by older people. A law that provides for that management of the youths is on the statute books but it has not been enforced. Adherence to it would be beneficial to the young patrons of picture shows.

Thomas Pianpiano, employed as a laborer by the water department, was charged with neglecting to support his six-year-old daughter. He has before been complained of for neglect of his family. The accused man resides on Pratt street. Neighbors complained of the treatment of the children and an investigation found a cleanly home without heat other than what came from a gas range used for cooking. The man's daughter, Mary, 16 years old, fled from her home Saturday because of her father's alleged abuse of her. She is declared to have carried a blackened eye when she left home, the result of a blow from the father's hand or fist. Judge Prince did not regard Thomas as a fit person to be the guardian of the children so he issued an order to commit the six years old girl to St. Aloysius home, a Catholic institution, in Providence. She was taken there after the session of court. The girl of 16 was located on Shaw street this afternoon. A fine of $100 was imposed upon Pianpiano and with the understanding that if he would consent to the children being taken from him and committed to a place where they would be taken care of, judgment was suspended. Thomas represented that he allowed the older daughter $2 a day for the support of the home, but he changed the figure later to a dollar sometimes and sometimes two dollars. His testimony in that respect was not of value in determining what allowance he made to the children.

Joseph Mitchell, of 146 Broad street; Edwin H. White, 269 Thames street, Groton; Mrs. Clarence Noyes and infant daughter, Mystic; Mrs. Patrick Murphy, 59 Harrison street; Dominic Quartarone, 519 Bank street; Mrs. William Sanford and infant son, 107 Baker avenue, Groton, and Mrs. Moses Goldfarb, 38 Washington street, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were dismissed Sunday and today.

Frederick W. Mercer has sold a building lot on Hillside avenue, to J. Roberts and Angela F. Mead, of Great Barrington, Vt.

The condition of Miss Mary Mc Carthy, nurse at Lawrence hospital who has been under treatment there several days with pneumonia, is reported this afternoon as slightly improved.

Mrs. Lucy A. Pratt, 86, widow of John R. Pratt, died this morning at the residence of her brother, Capt. Nathaniel S. Keeney, 364 Pequot avenue. Mrs. Pratt had been ill several years.

Miss Mary Perry, about 65, died Sunday at her residence, 38 Denison avenue, after a lingering illness. Miss Perry was born in the Azore Islands but had resided in New London a long time. She is survived by two brothers, Joseph and Sylvester Perry, both of this city.

The funeral of Mrs. Charlotte Jacques, widow of Francis Jacques, of Waterford, was held this morning at 10:30 o'clock at Mrs. Jacques' home. The services were conducted by Rev. George H. Strouse, pastor of Waterford Baptist church. Relatives acted as bearers. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

The funeral of Miss Dorothy Ames, Church, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayland Church, 41 Waller street, was held this afternoon at the residence of her parents, the services being conducted by Rev. George R. Atha, pastor of Groton Heights Baptist church, and Rev. Joseph R. Elder, pastor of Huntington street Baptist church, officiating. The body was placed in the receiving vault in Cedar Grove cemetery.

The New London police force was greatly crippled today when four officers reported off duty, ill. The patients are Sergeant Nelson Smith and Patrolmen Michael Dorsey, George Laboue and Walter Rehn. Patrolman Edward Daniels, who has been ill at his home on Howard street for several weeks, communicated with Captain Charles A. Pinney this afternoon stating that he would resume his patrol tomorrow, providing his physician would consent; if not, the officer would report for duty Wednesday.

George Sullivan, of Warren street, early this morning informed the police that an automobile had been parked in front of his home several hours. Patrolman Edward Riordan inspected the car and found that the radiator had frozen because of the extremely low temperature and it was impossible to operate the machine. This afternoon it was learned that the car was the property of John Stone, employed at a State street store. The owner was ordered to have the car removed from the highway during the day, which he did, causing the car to be towed to a garage.

John J. Dodds, 457 Ocean avenue, carpenter, this afternoon informed the police that tools belonging to him had been stolen from a house which he is having erected at 26 Dell street. The tools included a bench grindstone, chisels and a cutting iron.

It being next to an impossibility to purchase hard coal in this city, many families are beginning to feel the hardships of winter. At all the coal yards but a small supply of the fuel is available and this is being saved for distribution to regular customers and in small lots, although Saturday one or two dealers dispersed of a few bags of the fuel to needy householders. Another evidence of the scarcity of the fuel was given this afternoon when Mrs. Emma L. Gardner, 20 School street, complained to the police that the cellar of her home had been entered several times of late and small quantities of fuel stolen. Mrs. Gardner also stated that she had neglected to secure one of the cellar windows and that she believed that the thief entered and left the house by this method.

The Hartford state police today came into custody of a Ford commercial automobile that was found abandoned on the outskirts of that city. The machine is registered in the name of George Hannon, 143 Asherroft road, this city. Whether the car had been stolen and then abandoned, it is not known, for Hannon could not be located here. Hannon has not reported the theft of the machine to the New London police.

Advices were received here this afternoon from New Haven hospital, where Mr. and Mrs. Harold Winslow, 80 West street, are patients as a result of their automobile being wrecked at Branford, Christmas eve. The machine skidded on a wet highway and then crashed against another car. Mrs. Winslow's condition is considered critical because of the nature of an abdominal wound which brought about an internal injury, but Mr. Winslow's condition was favorable today.

Arthur T. Salter and Miss Ethel M. Branch, both of New London, were married this afternoon at the parsonage of the First Church of Christ by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth.

Bertram Bruce, 112 Golden street, complained to the police late this afternoon that he is engaged in moving from the premises he occupies at present and during the course of transferring his household effects earlier in the day a thief entered the house and stole two electric fans.

Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon, at 2 o'clock, at 48 Shapley street for Frank D. Miner. Rev. Edward L. Niell, pastor of the Montville Baptist church, officiating. The bearers were Dan D. Horne, Everett Chapman, Norman Allen and Edward Rogers, all of Montville. Burial was in Comstock cemetery, Montville.

The police were summoned to a State street store, Saturday afternoon, upon complaint of the proprietor, who alleged that a woman had been detected shop-lifting. However, when an officer reached the place the proprietor of the store had ascertained that the woman was a member of a highly respected family in the city and as all of the plunder the woman had taken had been recovered the proprietor did not desire to force a prosecution.

Benjamin Pumerantz, son of Mrs. Goldie Pumerantz, of Montauk avenue, and Miss Ida Rosen, daughter of Rubin Rosen, Stonington, were married at the Crocker House Sunday evening, the ceremony being performed by Rabbi Wolf Roggin, pastor of Ahavat Chesed synagogue. Joseph Foner, of New York, was best man. Miss May Rosen, of New York, was maid of honor, and Mrs. Joseph Keller, New York, Miss Lena Rosen, Stonington, and Miss Rose Solomon, New York, were the bride's attendants.

Willard Francis Prior, of Oneida, N. Y., and Miss Alice Stiles Bennett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howell S. Bennett, of 260 Ocean avenue, were married this afternoon, the ceremony being performed by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth, pastor of the First Church of Christ, at the home of the bride's parents.

THOMAS E. TROLAND CHOICE FOR DIRECTOR OF LAW

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 28—The city council at its meeting this evening accepted with regret the resignation of Charles B. Whittlesey as director of law, then chose unanimously to the office Thomas E. Troland a young lawyer. He was nominated by Councilor Murray. There were no other nominees for the position and the clerk was instructed to cast one ballot for Mr. Troland.

Half a dozen permits were requested for permission to build and they were granted.

James E. and Amy Minor deeded land to the city for improvement in Boiles avenue at Rosemary street. The land was accepted and the improvements authorized.

The Connecticut Power company with the recommendation of the city manager proposed a new plan of street lighting, whereby certain street lights are to be relocated, lights of stronger candle power put in where they are deemed needed and the candle power of other lights lessened. It was represented in the proposed scheme that the city could get better service for the same expenditure it is now making. There are clauses providing for the city paying for all breakages and other provisions so that the matter was referred to the committee on public safety to study and confer with the members of the council before the contract is accepted.

The New London Real Estate and Improvement company offered a strip of land to the city, on Thames street extension, three feet wide and some 850 feet long that water and sewer privileges may be provided residents on that street extension. A provision was added so that the city will not lose any street lights now attaching under the charter of the city.

Resolutions for sewers on Broad street to Ledyard street and on Coleman street were offered. These are in connection with work of building to be done by Sydney Suliman.

The city manager reported against the making of improvements asked for on Boiles avenue at this time, but he represented that improvements could be made when some changes now contemplated are carried out.

W. Schall petitioned for the removal of bathhouses near his premises on Pequot avenue, declaring them to be a nuisance and unsightly. He represented that the bath houses were erected when he was absent in Europe, that they are an encroachment upon the highway and that they usurped the privileges of the city in the highway. The matter was referred to the committee on public works and that committee will pass upon the matter so far as it pertains to the encroachment upon the highway.

The Community Chest asked the privilege of stretching a banner across State street at Union street during a period of about two weeks in January. The request was referred to the city manager with power.

Councilor May moved extension of new year greetings by the council to city officials and to all others who had the welfare of the city at heart. The council did not adopt the resolution but let it be understood that the best possible was hoped for the officials and citizens generally.

JONES' CAR COLLIDED WITH BUSHNELL CAR, NORWICH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 28—The continued case of Edward L. Jones, machinist's mate second class, stationed at the submarine base, also driver of the official automobile of Commander E. J. King, charged with reckless driving, was tried before Judge Cornelius C. Costello in the Groton town court this forenoon. After considerable testimony, the charge against Jones was upheld. Jones was taken into custody last Wednesday by State Police Officer Joseph J. Bobnick, Groton barracks, following a collision in Groton between the navy car and a machine owned and operated by John C. Bushnell, Norwich. Testimony introduced in court today revealed that the collision occurred on a highway, curve near the parklet at the entrance to the Thames river highway orders. The Bushnell automobile, with Mrs. Bushnell a passenger, was en route from Norwich to New London. The car skidded and in his endeavor to get control of his car, the machine was operated to a point on the highway other than the direction in which the car was originally headed. Jones stated he saw the Bushnell car approaching in an irregular course and applied his brakes moderately in an effort to prevent skidding. In the navy car at the time of the collision were the three daughters of Commander King.

Swedish Powers Runs Copenhagen Trolleys

A swedish waterfall now runs the trolleys in Copenhagen, the capital of Denmark, thanks to the completion recently of the most powerful electric cable laid under water. Replacing a smaller cable that had been in use since 1914, it is capable of transmitting 50,000 volts and thereby adds "white coal" on a large scale to the list of Swedish articles of exports. Besides the Copenhagen trolleys, the electricity transmitted under water also runs a factory machinery and gives light to the city and the surrounding countryside. Crossing the sound, or strait, that separates Sweden and Denmark at its narrowest point, the new cable leaves Sweden at Helsingborg and enters Denmark at Elsinore within sight of the Hamlet castle, called Kronborg. In length, it is about three and a half miles and it weighs more than 200 tons. It was made in six sections, and the "sleeve" covered joints, completed as the cable was being laid, are of a new type. To hold the cable ship steady six anchors were used. The cost of the new cable is about $500,000, defrayed jointly by the Swedish power company and Danish municipalities. The power comes from the River Lagan, in southwestern Sweden.

Bread Theater

Marseilles, where the dregs of every sea-faring nation in the world mingle in the dance halls, where sailors and women outcasts of all nations try to forget their troubles in wild and nerve-rending gayety, is reproduced in The Lady.

Norma has two roles, one of a 1900 flapper—a pretty sourbrette in a London theater—and the other of a disillusioned expatriated mother maintaining a cafe just behind the battle-front during the Great War.

Tragedy and gayety, the wild life of the Monte Carlo gaming tables, the Barbary Coast, of Marseilles, the seacoast at Havre, the aftermath of the battlefields of France, the hectic night life of theatrical London, the seamy side of the slums in the British metropolis—all figure in the picture.

The Lady is a First National attraction produced by Joseph M. Schenck. It will be shown at the Bread theater today and Wednesday.

Who Is the Champion Fiddler of New England?

That question will be answered January 4, 5, and 6, in Providence, Rhode Island, when all fiddlers in the six states comprising the New England group meet to decide for all time the problem which has been disturbing every hamlet and countryside since Mellie Dunham accepted Henry Ford's "invite" to play at his barn dance in Detroit.

The Town Criers of Providence, an ancient and honorable organization announces the All New England Fiddlers' contention will be held under its auspices.

It furthermore states that it will present a solid gold medal emblematic of the fiddlers' art to the winner. The Albee theater, the leading Keith-Albee vaudeville house in Rhode Island, will give $50 in gold.

All fiddlers, 60 years of age or more, are eligible. As the lists close on Saturday of this week, any fiddler who wishes to enter his name must send it at once to the Town Criers' Fiddlers Contest Committee, P. O. Box 947, Providence, R. I.

Already scores of cat-gut scrapers are getting out their old home-made Stradivarii for the big contest. Each vows he will come back to his home town with honors for himself and his community.

This competition is expected to be the most unique ever held in the northeastern section of the country as there is scarcely a village or town which hasn't a prize fiddler.

Even blase New York has evinced a deep interest in the affair and every issue of the metropolitan papers carries a new story on the great round-up of fiddlers which will mark an epoch in fiddlers' history throughout the land.

A big reception committee has been appointed by the Criers to welcome the fiddlers on their arrival. The contest will be staged in the magnificent Albee million dollar palace, one of the most costly and beautiful theaters in New England.

If there are any fiddlers in our town who think they can outplay their rivals from the length and breadth of New England, let them get ready to journey to Providence for the grand convention.

The Town Criers will fete the fiddlers at a monster banquet to be held in the Providence Biltmore Hotel ball room Monday afternoon, Jan. 4.

Don't dope YOUR COUGH
It is not wise to use remedies which depend upon "dope" such as narcotics, chloroform, cannabis or tar products. They may stop your cough temporarily by numbing the tissues, as most cough mixtures do, but this is not enough.
The inflamed air passages must be soothed naturally, the germ-laden mucus loosened and expelled in order to effect a lasting recovery.
PERTUSSIN assists Nature to accomplish these results in a remarkably short time—and it is absolutely harmless.
Sold by all druggists in large and small bottles.

WORKED AS BLACKSMITH FOR SEVENTY YEARS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—(AP)—Washington's village blacksmith is dead.

Back in the days when the national capital was little more than a mud hole, John Hartman, who reached an age believed to be 106, started shoeing horses and during his 70 years of plying that trade he became known to many prominent persons who took their fine carriages and horses to him.

He had been ill five years in a hospital when he died Christmas day. There were no surviving relatives to attest his exact age.

WREATHS PLACED ON WOODROW WILSON'S TOMB

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—(AP)—Wreaths from nearly half a hundred cities and local organizations throughout the country were placed on Woodrow Wilson's tomb in the Episcopal National Cathedral today in commemoration of his birthday.

The date was further observed tonight with a dinner at which a number of the war president's friends and admirers spoke, the place cards each bore, in addition to a quotation one of the new 17-cent Woodrow Wilson stamps were placed on sale today for the first time.

The more explaining a man does the less use the world has for him.

POETRY

An American Girl

She's had a Vassar education,
And points with pride to her degree!
She's studied household decoration;
She knows a dado from a frieze,
And tells Corots from Boldonis;
A Jacquemart etching, or a Haden,
A Whistler, too, perchance might please
A free and frank young Yankee maiden.

She does not care for meditation;
Within her bonnet are no bees;
She has a gentle animation,
She joins in singing simple glees.
She tries no trills, no rivalries
With Lucca (now Baronin Raden),
With Nilsson or with Gerster; she's
A frank and free young Yankee maiden.

I'm blessed above the whole creation.
For, far above all other he's;
I ask you for congratulation
On this the best of jubilees:
I go with her across the seas
Unto what Poe would call an Aidan,—
I hope no serpent's there to tease
A frank and free young Yankee maiden
ENVOY
Princess, to rest the western breeze
Bears many a ship and heavy laden.
What is best we send in these?
A free and frank young Yankee maiden.
—Brander Matthews.

The Tapestry

I shall weave a tapestry;
The lady will stand
With a bosom high and white
And a white long hand.

The knight will hold his red horse
At the river brink;
He will look back at the lady
And let his horse drink.

I shall put splashes of flowers
Where the river laves;
I shall fix the river water
In scalloped blue waves.

I unravelled bitterness,
Sorrow and disgrace;
I shall web a tapestry
Of worried in their place.

And people will say to me,
Without rest or lull;
"What a beautiful tapestry;
Oh, how beautiful!"
—By Marie Luhrs.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Though clothes do not make the man, many men owe quite a lot to their tailor.—The Progressive Grocer.

Dentist (as usual)—Now, my little man, I am not going to hurt you.

Small Boy (who has been there before.)—Liar!—Punch, London.

He—Can you cook, dearie?

She—I don't know, Jack. But I used to make the most wonderful mud pies.—The Progressive Grocer.

Dora—How did it happen you broke with George?

Flora—Well, he said he liked marble tombstones and I said I wanted granite.—Life.

What's your father's name?
Same as mine.
Oh, then you're a junior.
No, ma'am. Just a freshman.—Cornell Widow.

She—Do you mean to insinuate that I am a liar?

He—No, I wouldn't be so rude—but you have every qualification to be a weather prophet!—Vikingen, Ohio.

First Tramp—Strange how none of our youthful dreams come true.

Companion—Oh, I dunno. I used to dream about wearin' long pants and now I guess I wear 'em longer than anybody else in the country.—Washington Star.

"I hope that's a nice book for you to read, darling," said a conscientious mother to her engrossed schoolgirl daughter.

"Oh, yes, mummy," said Miss Thirteen. "It's a lovely book, but I don't think you would like it. It's so sad at the end."

"How is it sad, darling?"

"Well, she dies and he has to go back to his wife."—London Tit-Bits.

OILS FEATURED MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 28—(AP)—Strength and activity of the oil shares today featured the resumption of the upward movement of stock prices after the triple Christmas holiday. Trading showed a market expansion in volume, the day's sales exceeding 2,000,000 shares for the first time since December 16. The average of 20 leading industrial shares advanced to a new high record, about two dozen individual issues exceeding their previous peak prices for the year.

Bullish enthusiasm in the stock market was created by the optimistic tenor of the first 1926 business forecasts to make their appearance, by the announcement of the details of the proposed merger of the Standard Oil of California and Pacific Oil companies, by the continuance of heavy freight traffic and by the publication of excellent earnings statements by the Hudson Motor Car company and several railroads.

The relatively stiff renewal rate of six per cent. for all money which followed the calling of about $35,000,000 in loans, was disregarded as a stock market factor. While the banks' action was somewhat of a surprise in view of the fact that Saturday's clearing house statement showed excess reserve of over $35,000,000, the high rate was generally regarded as temporary.

Commodity markets also displayed a firm undertone. Cotton futures closed 40 to 83 points net higher with foreign buying of the domestic product stimulated by the downward revision of the Indian crop estimates. Wheat advanced sharply at the opening on more unfavorable weather reports from the Argentine, but some of the gains were reduced or cancelled by a late wave of profit-taking. Coffee and sugar prices showed nominal gains.

Pacific Oil was the outstanding feature of the petroleum group, soaring about 8 points to a new record high at 7 1-2 and closing within a fraction of the top price, on total transactions of about 115,000 shares. Union Oil of California and California Petroleum touched new 1925 tops while General Asphalt showed a net gain of two points. Associated Oil being heavy.

Heavy accumulation also was noted in several of the high grade rail road stocks. New York Central advanced over a point to 133 7-8, the highest price since 1909 and Atchison advance nearly 2 points to 137 5-8, the highest price on record.

Chicago and Northwestern and Omaha preferred touched the highest prices in a year, or longer, while Delaware and Hudson, Erie first preferred, Illinois Central common and preferred, Pere Marquette, Reading, Frisco common, Southern Pacific, Texas and Pacific and Union Pacific showed net gains of 1 to 3 1-2 points.

Pools were again active in a number of industrials specialties. Among the many issues to attain new maximum prices were American Smelting, Burns Brothers A and B, Continental Can, Devoe and Raynolds, Federal Mining and Smelting, General Cigar, Goose Wiles Biscuit, National Enameling, National Enamel, Postum Cereal, Standard Milling and Twin City Rapid Transit.

Early gains in the motors were reduced by heavy profit taking in the late trading. Hudson closed fractionally higher at 110 1-2 after having touched 114 and Mack Trucks dropped from a high of 224 to 218 and then rallied to 219 1-2 off one half on the day.

Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Trading in the foreign exchanges was of a holiday character, with price changes largely nominal. Demand sterling held steady around $4.84 11-16 and French francs ruled about 5 points higher around 3.69 1-2 cents.

NORWICH MAN INVOLVED IN GROTON AUTO CRASH

Ernest L. Jones, machinist's mate, second class, stationed at the Submarine Base, driver of the official car for Capt. E. J. King, commander of the base, was arraigned in Groton town court Monday morning before Judge C. C. Costello on a charge of reckless driving. The case was nolled. Attorney Thomas E. Troland of New London represented the accused. Jones was placed under arest last Wednesday night by State Policeman Joseph J. Bodnick of the Groton barracks, following an accident, in which the navy car figured in a collision with a touring car owned and operated by John C. Bushnell of Norwich.

Testimony introduced in court showed that the collision occurred upon a curved portion of the highway near the parklet at the entrance to the Thames river highway bridge. Bushnell stated that he was driving from Norwich towards Groton and admitted that his car skidded several feet, so that in an effort to right his machine he was compelled to turn off onto the road leading to New London. He also admitted that when th car came to a stop it lay at an angle of about 35 degrees with the edge of the road. Jones said he saw the machine approach and seeing it followed an irregular course, he applied his brakes gradually and came to a stop a few feet away from the car. Testimony as to which car struck the other was of a conflicting nature.

GAVE PAGEANT AT CHRIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH

On Sunday night, St. Joseph's Day, at 7 o'clock in Christ church, a delightfully effective pageant called The Nativity, was presented by the young people of the parish. The Manger and great star over the high altar gave a charming setting for the scene. The vested boys' choir led the carol singing with Mr. Pierce at the organ. The role of St. Mary, the Virgin, was carried in a most reverent manner while St. Joseph, the shepherds, the Three Wise Men, the crowd of angels and a Pilgrim each acted their parts to perfection. The lighting effects were wonderfully done, and the large congregation appreciated it all, as they heartily joined in the carols. After the Christmas tree event is over, the children and young people will feel they have had the happiest holiday season that they have experienced for the last few years in their parish life at Christ church.

M'CLOSKY IS FINED ON THEFT CHARGE

Frank McClosky, 18, of West Main street was fined $25 and costs and given a 15 days jail sentence, execution suspended, when he appeared in police court Saturday morning, before Judge Arthur F. Libby. McCloskey, through his counsel, Public defender Charles L. Stewart, pleaded not guilty to the charge but testimony by George Amburn, an employe of the Eaton Chase company, identified the stolen revolver, and testimony of officers who worked on the case was strong. City Attorney asked for a fine but not for a jail sentence owing to the age of the accused.

In fining McClosky Judge Libby stated that a fine of $1,000 and five years in jail could be imposed for carrying a gun and that the maximum fine and jail term under the charge against the accused could be $25 and 60 days in jail He then imposed the maximum fine and announced the suspended sentence of 15 days.

McClosky was originally charged with obtaining goods under false pretenses but on account of his denials to the police and the concealment of facts the charge was changed to that of theft.

Arthur Simons, colored, of 59 Myers avenue was charged with breach of the peace and was given a jail sentence of 30 days. A suspended sentence of 10 days on a similar charge was also added, making 40 days in jail. Costs in the case add another 10 days if Simons cannot pay the court bill. Five cases of intoxication were tried and the usual fines given by the court, there being no jail sentences.

FRANK COVELLO COUNSEL IN MAULUCCI CASE

Attorney Frank Covello, son of A. Covello, of this city, is counsel for Guiseppe Mauiucci, 62, Bloomfield farmer, who has been arrested charged with killing his cousin in Italy, 22 years ago. Maulucci insists that he is innocent of the crime which has so suddenly arose.

September 3, 1903, it is charged, Maulucci caused the death of his cousin, Sebastino Mauiucci, in Accabio Italy, by rolling a stone off a roof on to his cousin's head. Guisseppe fled from the country with his wife and a few young children, and a year later when he tried "in absentia" in Italy and convicted of having made the assault with intent to kill he had already entered this country.

Frank Covello, his lawyer, says there is considerable doubt as to whether or not Guisseppe meant to kill his cousin. He further says that he was not convicted until after his entrance into this country and this may remove the charge that his entrance was illegal. The right to deport, the lawyer thinks, expired since no action toward that end was taken within five years after his arrival in United States.

BANKS AID COLLECTIONS FROM TARDY TAXPAYERS

HARTFORD, Dec. 28.—(AP)—The Hartford banks give invaluable assistance in the collection of property taxes from delinquent taxpayers, Collector Otis J. Hart told a meeting of collectors, assessors and other town officials from more than seventy five communities in the state held at the capitol today under the auspices of the state tax department.

"When a delinquent, with one or more mortgages against his property, avoids or refuses to pay the tax," he said, "the bank holding the mortgage is notified and invariably co-operates with the collector by notifying the delinquent that before there can be further extensions, before the next interest payment is due, the bank expects to see a receipted bill for taxes on the property."

Collector Howard S. Challenger, of Bridgeport, who is engaged in enforcing the "ripper" bill and whose office has been a storm center for the past several months, declared that the position of the tax collector should not be elective. An efficient collector should be given more than two years to untangle any complicated situation that has arisen in previous administration and to put his own systems into effect, he said.

Governor Trumbull, addressing the meeting, urged adoption of the spirit of the budget in municipal affairs and told the collectors to look beyond the mere collection of money by doing everything possible to curtail expenses. Especially he said, urge the town authorities to pay bills promptly, while making as near 100 per cent. collections of taxes as possible, which in turn would make possible the prompt payment of charges against the municipality.

There were nine speakers before the meeting on various subjects concerning taxes. The length of the program, the numerous discussions and the hundreds of questions answered by Commissioner Blodgett forced adjournment before the "question box," containing many written questions could be opened.

These questions will be answered, with others, at a future meeting to be called by the special advisory committee to Commissioner Blodgett. The meeting today was the second of its kind, and while principally for collectors of the larger towns and cities, officials of other towns were present.

PROPOSAL FOR PERMANENT PEACE IN HARD COAL FIELDS

Made by Alvan Markle, Chairman of Joint Committees, to a Joint Conference of Operators and Miners—Calls For Continuation of Present Working Conditions For One Year; Creation of a Fact Finding Commission Made up of Three Operators, Three Miners and Three Impartial Citizens, the Latter to Be Selected by the President of the United States—Miners Object to the Arbitration Provision.

NEW YORK, Dec. 29—(AP)—A new proposal to insure permanent peace in the hard coal fields of Pennsylvania, where 158,000 miners have been on strike since September 1, was presented to a joint conference of operators and miners today by Alvan Markle, chairman of the joint committee. His proposal was unexpected and was submitted shortly after the committee met in executive session at the Union League club in an effort to end the long-drawn out suspension.

The contract and working conditions which were operative up to the time of calling the strike shall be continued for one year.

Creation of a fact finding commission, consisting of three operators, three miners and three impartial citizens representing the public, the latter to be selected by the president of the United States.

Adoption of the principle of collective bargaining, "resting upon reason and not endurance."

Provision that the award of the anthracite coal strike commission and subsequent agreements be ratified and continued until September 1935, subject to renewal every ten years thereafter.

Selection of a firm of reputable certified public accountants with authority to investigate and report promptly on ever phase of the industry.

This committee of nine shall meet as a whole to reach an agreement as to wages and possible changes in the contract. The public representatives shall meet as a whole to reach an agreement as to wages and possible changes in the contract. The public representatives shall not be entitled to vote, unless the operators and miners fail to agree. Then a majority vote shall rule.

Should the committee be delayed in fixing rates through unforeseen circumstances until after September 1 in any year, there shall be no lockout or strike. Any decision rendered afterwards shall be retroactive as of September 1.

In presenting his proposal, Mr. Markle read a letter in which he recounted that during the present suspension "labor has lost more than one hundred million dollars in wages; capital has forfeited not only legitimate returns on its investment, but many millions in maintenance and fixed charges; the most prosperous communities of the country, without exception, now feel the paralyzing influence of industrial and commercial stagnation; actual want and privation menace the health and happiness of countless households; and the unwilling; but now generally accepted, substitution of other fuels for anthracite threatens the curtailment of production and the irretrievable loss of heretofore profitable markets."

MINE WORKERS OPPOSE ARBITRATION FEATURE

NEW YORK, Dec. 29—(AP)—The plan of settlement of the anthracite strike proposed tonight by Alvan Markle, chairman of the joint wage conference, was opposed by the mine workers on the ground that it contained an arbitration feature, the miners stated they were as much opposed to arbitration today as they were four months ago and will continue their opposition.

All of the various peace plans offered since the suspension began Sept. 1 were placed before the joint conference and discussion on them continued tonight.

The following agreed statement was issued by the joint conference tonight:

"The various plans heretofore submitted were made part of the record. It was agreed that all plans could be brought before the conference. Among the plans offered were the following:

"Plan of Governor Pinchot; the legislators' plan; the engineers' plan and the answer of the miners thereto. The letters and correspondence of priests for and against arbitration were made part of the record. Letters from the Panther Creek Business Men's association and Scranton ministers also were entered in the record.

"Chairman Alvan Markle submitted a plan for the settlement of the strike. The plan was discussed at length. The miners voiced opposition to certain parts of the Markle plan, claiming it was arbitration. The chairman said the plan did not amount to arbitration. There was discussion of the Pinchot plan. The miners argued that the Pinchot plan offered a constructive plan for settlement, while the operators claimed that the Pinchot plan was destructive and unworkable.

"The miners stated that they were as much opposed to arbitration today as they were four months ago and will continue in their opposition.

"The attitude of the operators was that an acceptable plan should provide for a long term agreement, provision for wage adjustments if economic conditions require, and some means of avoiding deadlocks in case of disagreements."

EXPECT U. S. REPRESENTATIVES AT DISARMAMENT ACTIVITIES

GENEVA, Dec. 29—(AP)—Dispatches from America predicting that the United States will accept the invitation of the league of nations to participate in its preliminary disarmament studies and that the senate is ready to approve American adherence to the permanent court of international justice are causing intense interest in league of nation's circles. There they are interpreted as indications of increased American co-operation with Geneva.

Beginning with the meeting in February of the preparatory commission on disarmament, the league is looking forward to a formidable program of activities for 1926. With Germany probably entering the league in March, league officials expect Geneva to become an increasingly important international center possessing a growing practical interest for the United States.

The expected participation of the United States in the league's disarmament activities is regarded as particularly fortunate, as it is believed that the American delegates can be of considerable aid to the attainment of practical results provided they avoid taking sides on land armament questions which particularly concern Europe and which may cause differences between Germany, France and England. Germany is expected to make a strong bid for the disarmament of her neighbors in the same proportion as her own enforced disarmament.

PROSECUTION OF SENATOR WHEELER DROPPED

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29—(AP)—The prosecution of Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana, by the department of justice, was halted abruptly today in the District of Columbia supreme court.

The indictment returned here against the senator alleging an oil land conspiracy was dismissed on the ground that it failed to charge a violation of the federal statutes. Previously Mr. Wheeler had been acquitted by a jury in his own state of the charges brought against him there.

Unless an appeal is taken in the case here the decision today ends the prosecution's started in 1924 while Senator Wheeler was conducting the sensational investigation of the administration of the department of justice under Harry M. Daugherty.

Officials of the department said tonight they had not decided whether an appeal would be taken.

BELIEVES FALLING METEOR CAUSED THE BRIGHT LIGHT

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Dec. 29—(AP)—The phenomenon of the sky witnessed generally in northeastern New York early this evening also was visible in southwestern Massachusetts and Rhode Island. A number of reports of having seen the light were received in Providence newspaper offices. Prof. H. C. Currier of Brown University department of astronomy, said that, although he had not seen this particular phenomenon, he believed from description that it was another of the particularly brilliant meteors or "falling stars, scores of which have been visible to observers in New England during November and December.

CREDITORS OF GILPATRIC TO RECEIVE 10 PER CENT

HARTFORD, Dec. 29—(AP)—Creditors of the bankrupt estate of former State Treasurer C. Harold Gilpatric will receive a dividend of slightly under ten per cent., the amount of their claims it is indicated by a list of claims aggregating $791,071.32, which has been prepared by Judge Arthur E. Howard trustee of the estate, for the approval of Referee in Bankruptcy Saul Beran.

All but one claim has been disposed of, so far as Trustee Howard is concerned, the exception being the claim of the Mary Garden estate. The total of the claims passed by Judge Howard is $791,071 and includes substantial amounts sought by several Hartford banks, Lawrence A. Howard, counsel for Trustee Howard, has asked John K. Carpenter, counsel for the Mary Gardines estate, to file a brief in support of his client's claim. If the amount of that should be fixed at $70,000, the aggregate of claims against the personal estate of the defaulting cashier of the First National bank of Putnam will reach $861,071.32.

"PAT" CROWE WAS GIVEN A SUSPENDED SENTENCE

NEW YORK, Dec. 29—(AP)—"Pat" Crowe, 57-year-old former outlaw, who in 1900 with "Jim" Callahan kidnapped Eddie Cudahy, 16-year-old son of the Chicago millionaire packer and who received a ransom of $50,000 when the boy was returned unharmed was given a suspended sentence on a charge of vagrancy when arraigned today in the Essex market court. He was specifically charged with begging in a subway.

Crowe held up the St. Joseph and Council Bluff railroad train, near St. Joseph, Missouri, many years ago. He and his confederates securing $32,000, and a reward of $50,000 was at that time offered for him "dead or alive."

Crowe told reporters he had dissipated the proceeds of his escapades on "wine, women and song"; that he "had done time" in Missouri penitentiary for his part of the railroad robbery and subsequently reformed. Reduced now to beggary, he said he preferred to be rather than steal and that accounted for his present plight.

FORZLY CONFIDENT HIS FORTUNES WILL TURN

NEW YORK, Dec. 29—Nicholas F. Forzly, ill and "broke" after a spectacular career as a race-track handicapper in the south and east, is confident his fortunes will turn as soon as he gets back in the game.

"I'm flat on my back now," said "Nick F" today at the Roosevelt hospital, where he is recovering from an attack of pneumonia, "and I've been so for a long time, but I've got as much grit as I ever had—and when the bugle blows for the first race at Jamaica in April, I'll be there. I'll be back in the game after a little while, and I won't let 'em wriggle off the hook this time."

Forzly was reputed to have "cleaned up" $800,000 at New Orleans' tracks, but lost most, if not all of this, in subsequent ventures at eastern courses.

Five Persons and Launch Missing

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 29—(AP)—Five persons were reported missing today in the launch Lady Grace, which had not returned after a fishing trip yesterday afternoon. DEDICATION OF THE NEW PEABODY MUSEUM AT YALE

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 29—(AP)—A thousand evolutionists this afternoon dedicated a temple to their faith—the new Peabody Museum of Natural History at Yale university.

The ceremony—attended by notables from the whole nation—took on a nature almost religious amid severe surroundings relieved only by the green of a few palm plants and the black, gold, blue, red and purple of the academic robes in which the speakers—high priests of science—were vested.

A towering armored stegosaurus in the center to the great hall brooded over the assemblage. A gigantic primordial turtle loomed in the rear. The skeleton of a mammoth dinosaur stretched its gaunt form above the speakers' platform.

Pigmy-like amid thes elemental reminders, leading authorities of the United States on the history of man consecrated the handsome Gothic building which houses one of the most imposing visual exhibits of evolution in the world, in the words of President James Rowland Angell, to the undying "search for hidden truth."

Henry Fairfield Osborn, president of the board of trustees of the American Museum of Natural History and author of "the Earth Speaks to Bryan," delivered the principal address on "the origin of species," in which he challenged fundamentalism with the announcement that evolution is no longer a theory, but a law.

HIGH GRADE LIQUOR SEIZED IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Dec. 29—(AP)—A million dollars (bootleg prices) of high grade liquor was seized today by prohibition agents under Director Foster, whose efforts, combined with those of District Attorney Buckner against bootleggers of denatured alcohol assumed the appearance of a sweeping pre-New Year's offensive.

The liquor, consisting of as yet unadjusted whiskeys, wines, cordials and liquors, was seized in two raids in Manhattan and the Bronx. The agents said it was worth at least half a million, and would have sold for twice that much after it had been "cut" and put on the market. The apparatus for diluting it was seized in one of the raids.

Though Mr. Bruckner's agents made no arrests in addition to the ten of yesterday in his roundup of sellers of alcohol through illegal channels, he said the price of alcohol to bootleggers had jumped from $1.50 to $5.20 a gallon.

The Manhattan liquor raid netted 3,000 cases of alleged high grade liquors 200 ten-gallon cans of Belgian alcohol. Diluting apparatus of enough capacity to dilute the entire stock before New Year's eve, and four prisoners. All were found in a warehouse far downtown.

The Bronx raid was on a garage, above which a sign said the firm dealt in "vermin exterminator." Three prisoners, 500 gallons of liquor, and 500 gallons of alcohol were seized. Complete outfits of labels were found in both places.

COL. JOHN C. COOLIDGE IS VERY COMFORTABLE

PLYMOUTH, Vt., Dec. 29—(AP)—Colonel John C. Coolidge, the president's father, was "very, very comfortable," his physician reported late today. He sat up in his wheeled chair for half an hour and was apparently not fatigued by the exertion. But he had lost the use of his legs through faulty blood circulation and his physician, Dr. Albert W. Cram of Bridgewater, said the prospects of his ever regaining the use of the leg were remote.

The defective circulation, Dr. Cram explained, has prevented the proper amount of blood from reaching the neoves in the parts affected, and the result is "a sort of paralysis."

Dr. Cram was in telephonic communication with Major James F. Coupal, the president's physician in Washington, but the possibility of the latter's coming to Plymouth was not discussed.

A NUN MAY PROPERLY CLAIM MONETARY DAMAGES

SAINT QUENTIN, France, Dec. 30—(AP)—The plea that a nun's life and safety have no value in law because she has taken the vow of poverty and cannot properly claim monetary damages for injury has been vigorously thrown out of court in a suit here.

Sister Marie Saint-Martin, made a cripple for life when struck by an automobile, was offered only 600 francs (about $24) by adjusters for the company with which the automobile owner was insured, on the ground that she had voluntarily bound herself to a life of poverty. The court stigmatized this as "an odious conception" and said that "a life that has been dedicated to the poor could not possibly be considered as having no value." Sister Marie was awarded 20,000 francs (about $800).

Floods Cover Vast Area in Europe

Great Sections of France, Belgium, Switzerland, Germany and Austria are Inundated.

PARIS, Dec. 29—(AP)—The year 1925 may still be remembered in history as the "great flood year" in central western Europe, if the warm winds which have swept the highlands and caused rapid melting of the snows do not give place to colder airs soon. Already there have been many lives lost in Rumania and Hungary, while vast sections of France, Belgium, Switzerland, Germany, Austria and Czechoslovagia are inundated. The weather predictions point to continued warmth and heavy rains.

The most alarming conditions are reported from central Europe Turda (Thorenburg), Rumania, has been swept by a torrent of overflowing waters that smashed houses by the score.

Direct reports from Turda report the loss of hundreds of lives along the Rumanian frontier, with the waters sweeping bodies and debris through the streets of that city.

In the Bekes district of Hungary more than 100,000 acres are covered with water and the situation is growing worse. Between Vesztoe and Okant the huge masonry dams are threatening to give way and the whole population has turned out in an effort to avert disaster.

An ice jam has added to the seriousness of the situation in the Theiss river, near Tisza Lads, and sappers have been hurried to the scene with dynamite to blast it away and thus allow the escape of the water. The river Sajo likewise has overflowed its banks and is menacing the entire Borod district. At Sluj, Transylvania, 50 houses and factories have been destroyed by the torrents.

Through all of Belgium there are serious floods. The riverside quarters of many towns are submerged and people are abandoning their houses. Navigation has been interrupted on the Meuse.

The rise in the waters of the Rhine and Moselle is becoming most disquieting. The Rhine is already over its banks at Kreuznach and part of the town has been evacuated. At Coblenz the Rhine is rising an inch an hour and the situation is considered threatening. The Moselle likewise is over its banks and menacing the railway lines. All the cities in the Rhine and Moselle valleys are taking precautions against further floods and are preparing barracks for the reception of flood victims.

In Switzerland, Bavaria and Austria avalanches and floods have wrought much damage and are likely to cause much suffering.

NEGOTIATIONS FOR THE MERGER OF CORPORATIONS

NEW YORK, Dec. 29—(AP)—Negotiations are under way, it was learned in Wall street today, for a merger of the Barnsdall corporation, Simms Petroleum company and the Waite Phillips company. No official confirmation of the report was obtainable from Blair & Company, bankers who are said to be engineering the amalgamation, although it was learned from other sources that the matter has been under discussion.

There has also been talk that the Associated Oil company, controlled by the Pacific Oil company, might be included in the new combination, now that plans have been completed for a merger of the Pacific Oil company and the Standard Oil company of California, but present negotiations do not involve that company.

Blair and company recently purchased the Waite Phillips company for a price reported to be between $20,000,000 and $25,000,000. The Barnsdall corporation, with total assets in excess of $42,000,000 is controlled largely by Robert Law, Jr., president and son-in-law of the founder of the company. The Simms Petroleum company, with total assets of about $20,000,000, has about 3,500 stockholders, one of the largest being the American International corporation which owned 85,744 of the 633,251 shares of Simms stock outstanding on December 31, 1924.

Blair and company also are reported to be negotiating for the Burnsdale Refining company of Oklahoma, for possible inclusive in the new combine.

Young Stevens caught one of the Griffins as he was going down, but cracking of ice forced him to let go. The brothers were drawn under the ice by the current.

Stevens and Walker went back to the Hockanum river for help, but the other boys refused to believe their story.

The boys, who were sons of Porter Griffin, lived at Station 19, Main street East Hartford.

GIGANTIC MERGER OF NEW YORK BANKS UNLIKELY

NEW YORK, Dec. 29—(AP)—Through a maze of categorical and qualified denials, Wall street today came to the conclusion that an eventual merger of the Chase National and Mechanics and Metals National Banks might materialize but that the possibility of a consolidation embracing several other banks with total resources of more than a billion dollars was unlikely.

Executives of four large banks which had been mentioned in the merger report—the National Park, Chemical National, Central Union Trust company and Chatham and Phenix National Bank and Trust Company, flatly denied their institutions were considering any sort of consolidation.

STORY OF SLAYING OF SARAH LUSSIER IN BRIDGEPORT

Details Given to Coroner Phalan by Tony Lupo, Who Witnessed the Tragedy—Crime Was the Result of Quarrel Over Who Was the "Boss" of the Household—Lupo Named as the Murderer Girolamo Scirpoli, a Man More Than Twenty Years the Senior of the Victim

BRIDGEPORT, Dec. 29.—(AP)—The story of the slaying of Sarah Lussier, 41, whose mediocre talent had groped futilely to achieve tepid verse, in the dowdy and illicit establishment at 61 Evitts lane, last Saturday, was told to Coroner John J. Phelan today by Tony Lupo, 38, of 191 Sterling street. He named as the killer, Girolamo Scirpoli, a man more than twenty years her senior.

The woman, as a gesture of disdain for Scirpoli's insistence that he was "the boss," was described as giving way to an hysterical frenzy that spent itself in the deliberate smashing of furniture.

That wild outburst of destruction did not change Scirpoli's opinion of the relative importance in the household of himself and Mrs. Lussier. He grappled with her, and together they lurched from the debris-strewn "front room" into the kitchen. Scirpoli stood with his hands behind him, against a door. Only a few feet away Mrs. Lussier leaned against a table. Lupo watched timorously from the door between kitchen and "front room."

"Who is the boss?" demanded Scirpoli.

"I am," Mrs. Lussier declared. He again asked her who was boss. She gave the same reply.

It was dark in the little kitchen Lupo could not see clearly and observed no movement made by Scirpoli. But the report of a revolver sounded and Mrs. Lussier pitched backward and sprawled out on the floor. Neither she nor Scirpoli said anything. Lupo could not say that Scirpoli moved, but while the woman lay quiet, stretched out on her back, he saw a flash of fire and a second report. So fearful was he then of injury to himself, he ran from the house. The woman's dead body was found four hours later. Police are looking for Scirpoli.

Mrs Lussier was in ill humor much of Saturday afternoon. It was testified. She had dressed for the street and was about to leave the house. It was said, when Scirpoli objected. "If you go away, you will never come in this house any more," Scirpoli told her. "I'm going," she responded, "and I'll come back again." It was her intention to go to a theatre.

PREMIER BRIAND AVERTS FRENCH CABINET CRISIS

PARIS, Dec. 29—(AP)—Premier Briand today avoided a threatened cabinet crisis by boldly declaring that the resignation of radical ministers who threatened to leave the government if M. Doumer's financial plans were adopted would be accepted "with regret, but without despair." His plain intimation that the departure of former Premier Herriot's friends would not be allowed to disrupt the cabinet caused a sudden and complete transformation of the situation.

The radicals accepted the finance minister's measures without a dissenting voice, and the decisive issue between the government and the coalition of the left, which seemed imminent for the past ten days, has been put off at least until the regular session of the chamber on January 12.

"The spirit of Locarno has been introduced into the cabinet," was the way M. Briand described his victory over the recalcitrant ministers after the meeting. There was a disposition in political circles, however, to regard the premier's success as temporary. The radical ministers, it was argued in the lobbies of the chamber, had been outgeneraled but not subdued. They preferred to remain in the cabinet rather than furnish a chance for the head of the government to enlarge his majority in the chamber by putting representatives of other groups in their places.

The fight will begin again when the chamber meets after the holidays, and will continue even if it is necessar to form new groupings of the parties that will give the cabinet a stable majority, bent upon solving the difficulties of the hour without regard to party interests.

SOME FACTS OF INTEREST ABOUT RADIO RECEPTION

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 29—(AP)—Actual radio reception depends not only on the signal strength of the broadcasting station, but also on the ratio of the signal to static, J. C. Jensen of the Nebraska Wesleyan University told delegates to the American Meteorological Society at the convention of the American association for the advancement of science here today.

When static interference begins to approximate the signal strength reception becomes impracticable, Jensen said. Static noises are known to vary from day to day and have been shown to be worst on the approach of a storm area. When the storm has passed, he said, the high area which follows is characterized by settled weather in which "atmospherics" are largely absent.

"Fading varies greatly in intensity from night to night," Jensen declared, "and may change considerably in an hour or two. The changes in signal intensity due to fading vary in different directions and have a periodicity from maximum to minimum of from one to five minutes although these limits are not definitely fixed in either direction."

MUSSOLINI'S TRIBUTE TO KING VICTOR EMMANUEL

ROME, Dec. 29—(AP)—Premier Mussolini pays tribute to King Victor Emmanuel in an article commemorating the 25th anniversary of the king's enthronement, published in a special edition of Rassegna Italiana.

"Twenty five years is a very short period in the life of a nation which counts its history in the thousands," writes the fascist leader, "but I can affirm that no country in modern times has accomplished such profound rapid progress as has Italy during the first quarter of the twentieth century.

"What was the dream of generous poets a few decades previously has become a living, operating reality. United within fortified frontiers; politic, industrious, rich in the past, but anxious for the future—that is Italy as seen by a soldier—poet.

"One cannot think of the admirable renaissance of our people without turning his thoughts to the sovereign who, with sagacity equal to his valor, has guided their destines and represented in sorrow and happiness their highest, most secure and worthiest ambitions."

MRS. HADLAI HULL TO SUE FOR $250,000 DAMAGES

HARTFORD, Dec. 29—(AP)—Mrs. Ellen B. Hull, of New London, widow of Hadlai A. Hull, former state attorney of New London county, announced through her lawyers, Herbert W. Rathbun, of Westerly, R. I., and Frank L. McGuire, of New London, that she would bring suit for $250,000 damages against the firm of Sage, Allen and company. Vice President Edward N. Allen and Miss Florence Kenefick, store detective, for alleged false imprisonment, malicious prosecution, assault and battery and slander.

She also authorized her lawyers to say that Detective Sergeant Nicholas R. Gallicchio, who arrested her, will not be made a party to the suit because it was felt by her that he had only done his duty in acting on the complaint of Mr. Allen and the store detective.

Her announcement followed the action of the state in dropping the charge of shoplifting against her when she was arraigned in police court today on complaint of Sage Allen and company that she stole goods valued at $8.36 from its store on December 15.

Prosecutor John L. Bonee, told Judge Nathan A. Schatz that after "thorough investigation of the facts in this case, and under all the circumstances, I will recommend a nolle of this case to this court."

Judge Schatz accepted the recommendation of the prosecutor.

Had the case gone to trial, her lawyers said that depositions testifying to the good character of Mrs. Hull from prominent men and women throughout the state would have been read.

In addition her lawyers said Mrs. Hull stood ready to produce Mrs. Sidney A. Miner, regent of the Lucretia Shaw chapter, D. A. R.; Mrs. George T. Brown, Mrs. G. Fred Brown, Mrs. Stephen R. Whiteman, prominent New London county, women, and Mrs. Charles Hadlai Hull, her step-son's wife, to testify in her behalf. Of these Mrs. George T. Brown and Mrs. G. Fred Brown, were in the store with Mrs. Hull, although in a different part of the store, when she was arrested.

Mrs. Hull's claim, as outlined by her step-son, is that she had selected some undergarments at one counter while the sales girl was busy, had then stepped across the aisle and picked up a pocketbook, and then, seeing the Brown women, had started toward them when she was tapped on the shoulder by Miss Kenefick.

"She had intended to charge the articles," said her step-son, "because she had a charge account." He produced a bill, dated December 26, 1925, for an October account of $5.13, which Mrs. Hull had received while her case was pending, to show that she had a charge account with the firm.

Mrs. Hull's lawyers, in outlining the suit which they intended to bring, said the allegation of assault and battery on which damages will be sought is based on the search of her person against her will.

JEWETT CITY

WHEN GAS IGNITES GARAGE FIRE THREATENS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, Dec. 29.—The fire company was called out a second time Tuesday, shortly before four p. m., for a fire in Floyd Barber's garage on Mathewson street.

Gasoline became ignited on the floor, when workmen were repairing a transient machine.

Chief Austin Harris and his men arrived to find the fire mostly under control, thanks to the efforts of the garage men and willing helpers who rushed in. The whole building seemed threatened for a few minutes with the great sheets of gasoline flame. A dozen cars on the main floor were removed to safety. One of the Blake trucks was backed into E. S. Hiscox's Ford, doing some damage to the radiator. Last summer, when this building was the Anderson garage, it was gutted by fire.

WHEN LISBON POSTED EARLY BOOTLEGGERS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, Dec. 29.—Harry L. Hull, first selectman of the town of Lisbon, has discovered among a package of ancient records, kept back in the early 18 hundreds, by John Gray, of the board of Lisbon's town officials, a book, wherein he spread a copy of all his office correspondence. Gray, judging from his records, was evidently as fearless as he was efficient. Under the date of September 24th, 1830, he wrote a letter to the selectmen of Griswold. It seems that men from Lisbon crossed the Quinebaug and came over into this town, where they were liberally supplied with what was known then as 40 rod whiskey. Complaint was made to Mr Gray, whereupon he wrote as follows:

"To the Selectmen and Civil Authority of Griswold:

"For the general good of society, and the interest all have in the suppression of intemperance, I take the liberty to hand you a list of our "posted and admonished" asking your assistance in making this course effectual.

"Most of Lisbon sots get the stuff in the village of Jewett City, where it is purchased of—(Here the letter gives the name of the man, who has been dead 40 years)—if you will furnish me with reliable evidence that a retailer of Tavern is selling contrary to law, we will prosecute. It is a strong pull and pull altogether that must stop this infatuated drinking."

Following the letter is a long list of Lisbon's "posted" and "admonished" men and women few of whom the oldest inhabitant would now remember.

Worshipful Brethren George H. Prior, William C. Bromley, Edwin M. Gray, Benjamin R. Gardner, Dr. Frank D. Browning, John N. Lewis, Fred L. Kanahan and Edward F. It was an after-Christmas party, and in a Christmas tree game, Violet Harris won thep rize. Stockings to be hung on a miniature fireplace, gave the first prize to Mrs. Walter Hyde and the consolation award to Emma Dearnley. In the snowball tossing game, Mrs. Hyde again won the prize, and Doris Bliven the consolation award Other games were played which were of a very ludicrous kind, and kept the party in gales of merriment. The hostess served salads, rolls, fruit jelntine and whipped cream, cake and cocoa.

Miss Winifred Scates and Miss Kathleen Dearnley go to the Children's hospital in Boston soon. Miss Scates has finished her probationer year, and is now a first bander. Miss Dearnley enters Simmons college, which is a part of the hospital training for a part of the year.

George K. Brown, called the hermit of Catnip Valley, near Melrose, Mass., mad some weather "prognostications" in October which have come right along just as he said. He deprecates the theory of a summerless 1926, and said the winter would be a normal one. He says these sunspots and ocean currents are all bosh; it's the Polar currents, the birds, animals and trees that tell what's going to be. One prophecy is for right now, and says that the last week in December or the first in January will surely bring a great blizzard Snow will be at least two feet deep and when the weather clears the coldest snap of the season will come. Which will it be the Cloud Digger's warm spell or the Hermit's blizzard?

Solemn requiem was sung at St. Mary's church Tuesday morning at the funeral of John Plontek. Rev. J. J. McCabe was celebrant, Rev R. F Morrissey deacon and Rev. J. P. Tyler subdeacon. DANIELSON

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE IS TO BE REVIVED

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Dec. 29—Rejuvenation of the Danielson Chamber of Commerce and acceleration of its activities is confidently expected to date from January 5. On that date members of the chamber are to meet, enjoy a banquet and get down to cases as to taking advantage of various promising prospects for Danielson's advancement as a transportation and commercial center.

It has been said more or less naively during the past year that the Chamber of Commerce here is a dead issue. If that has been true, it has been largely due to the fact that the average man who should be interested in Danielson's welfare has been willing to "let George do it." In other words, he has not been willing, in the interest to Danielson's development, to sacrifice any of his time or energy for the greater good of the community and, if anyone else cared to do so, he was not averse to reaping the share of the benefits that might accrue. This may be rated a harsh indictment, but it is the truth.

On the threshold of another year there is a movement afoot to overcome the lethargy that has existed relative to boosting Danielson and making the most of its opportunities. It can be done and it will be done if Danielson's commercial interests care anything about the future of this community and are alert to grasping special opportunities that a kind fate has placed on its doorstep.

Keen minds in the community have sensed these facts Plans why the Chamber of Commerce banquet and talkfest has been arranged, and out of it should come much good.

Attention of the public may be disposed to a few outstanding and all important developments of the year now closing that are bound to be important factors in trade and general commerce from now on. These developments have to do largely with transportation matters. A trolley service has ceased Gasoline cars have replaced passenger trains on the steam road Motor coache service has come—and come to stay. What does all this mean to Danielson? The answer is a great deal that is in its favor and that opens a field of alluring possibilities.

Danielson up to a year ago was a way station on a branch railroad line Today it is a junction point for motor coach lines carrying more passengers every day than ride through here on the steam road in three days. This is but the beginning. If Danielson will grasp this now and do something about it, the rewards five years hence will be amazing. Today there is worrying about losing retail business to neighboring cities. Doing what it can to do if it will, Danielson will laugh about that another Danielson can give more than it can lose by displaying real cohesive, go-getter activity, and that is what the Chamber of Commerce proposes shall be done. But all must help -help enthusiastically to be really successful.

Danielson is to be made one of the principal transportation centers of eastern Connecticut. This accomplished, Danielson's trade transactions will soar. It can be done by securing the establishment here of a motor coach terminal for the lines operating on regular schedules between Providence and Hartford, Providence and Willimantic, Putnam and Norwich and New London and Worcester. The north and south routes and the east and west routes cross here. Therein lies the big advantage. Again, Danielson can get an airport if it goes after it with sufficient vigor—and there's another reason. Danielson is the favored place for such a development and it's well worth while for Danielson to go after it.

As a transportation center, thousands of people would be attracted here, for one reason or another. And it is the habit of people who come to a town to spend money

Danielson has a big chance in 1926 if it seizes upon it and pursues it with sufficient enthusiasm, the dividends will make even the pessimists cheer But it means expenditure of time energy, money and any other legitimate force that can put Danielson over big. Prospect for full achievements rests largely on full co-operation of all interested in the town's commercial future.

Having in ming the matter of transportation, mention is frequently made now by Danielson people of their experiences they have in Providence while seeking a motor coach on which to get home. Competition is so keen between the lines running out of Providence through this territory that you are apt to get an answer yes to the question "Is this such and such a line to Danielson?" The starter always knows—and its always exactly the line you are looking for. Of course no great harm can be done. The chief objection to the practice is that one is made to wait sometimes longer than is really necessary to get a coach for home—the other line having sent one out meanwhile. All of this can be overcome by finding out here before starting, all about the return trips It can be done by asking a few questions.

A man who came here Tuesday from Pawtucket, and learned that eggs are being released in lots by some poultry owners in this town for 55 cents a dozen to be later re-sold in the city, got a bit of a surprise Hpays $1.10 per dozen for fresh eggs in the Rhode Island city The chief interest in this to poultrymen here is that there is a 100 per cent. profit in eggs from the time they leave the farms here until they reach the consumer in a city but 30 miles away. A poultryman gets $56 for a lot of eggs that sell the next day in Pawtucket for $110. The day may come when there will be a better distribution of the profit to the egg producer than that Certainly, all the time and effort considered, he is entitle to more than those who handle them from the time they leave his farm.

KILLINGLY ENDS YEAR PROSPEROUS INDUSTRIALLY

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Dec. 29—Killingly tomorrow, rounds out a very prosperous year. Largely dependent for its general prosperity on its manufacturing plants, it has come through twelve months when practically all of the concerns have operated steadily though some of the mills have for periods somewhat curtailed their production. On the whole the year in this respect has been much better than 1924, when some of the big plants were on short time for weeks.

Outside workers have been scarce all through 1925, and at times none were to be hired. Many opportunities to work presented themselves to this kind of labor, and this, too, has been a cause of gratification. If Killingly can have every year as good as 1925 is will have little to complain about for it has been a better year than any experienced here prior to the World war, if not quite so good as some of the hectic years during that period

At Wauregan Tuesday morning, in the Sacred Heart church, funeral services for Miss Mary T. Hill, 14, were held, Rev. J. C. Mathieu, the pastor, being celebrant of the high mass of requiem. Burial was in Sacred Heart cemetery. The bearers were Silvio Larose, Eudore Perry, Andrew Plankey Edward Penn, Bertrand Perry and Edward Aubin. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements

No notice of extension of time having been received here from the state motor vehicle department, the understanding is that running cars under 1925 registration markers after midnight of Thursday, will lay one liable to arrest and prosecution for driving an improperly registered car. On the other hand, today is the last day on which those registered for 1926 need use their present registration plates The 1926 ones can be used this year in December 31.

Three months will be required to complete the alterations to be undertaken right after the beginning of the new year on the lower floor of the Danielson Trust company building The remodeling plan involves an extension of the present art metal equipment to all the extended interior of the bank's quarters.

Thursday afternoon members of the Roundabout club are to meet with Mrs. A. E. Withington.

Miss Helen Dowe, R. N., of White Plains, N. Y., has been a visitor with her mother, Mrs. Helen S. Dowe.

Just after 5 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, an alarm from Box 15, called the department over to Prospect avenue, in the Riverview section, for a chimney fire at the home of Charles Hale.

An alarm from Box 14 Monday evening, at 6:13, called out the department for a chimney fire in the Warner cottage on lower School street.

Opening of enlarged School street mrage today. See display adv. elsethere on this page.—adv.

Continued cold weather Tuesday heightened the prospect for an early arvesting of Danielson's ice crop.

James R. Walsh said Tuesday that he found the meeting of tax collectors of the state at Hartford, Monday, most interesting and worth while.

In various communities hereabouts Christmas trees are being kept lighted nightly until after New Year's.

Diggett's Popular band, of Goodyear has an invitation to broadcast a concert from one of the Providence stations, and it is likely this will be accepted for a date somewhat later in the winter. This band is making an excellent record.

Danielson's banks will be closed on New Year's day and business generally will be suspended by the stores.

When the new K. H. S. gymnasium is complete and ready for use, it is likely that the town hall will be abandoned for basketball playing and redecorated interiorly, treatment it sorely needs.

Good skating, a wide choice of places to skate and many out to enjoy the great winter diversion, was the rule Tuesday afternoon.

Goodyear has an interesting time planned for the New Year's period—the accustomed old English tea party

Having paid out $57,000 in Christmas club money this month, the officials at the Danielson Trust already in the new 1926 club, see a forecast of even a greater amount to be distributed next December. This year's club reached a new high record mark.

WESTERLY

THREE YEARS IN PRISON FOR ALBERTO COSTANZO

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., Dec. 29—Alberto Costanzo of Providence, who has been out on bail of $25,000 since his arraignment at this term of superior court for Washington county, on two complaints of harboring in connection with the so-called "Yellow House," in South Kingstown, was sentenced for the harboring of Mary Campanelli, to three years imprisonment in Rhode Island state prison at Providence, by Judge Antonio A. Copotosto, after the opening of superior court in Westerly Tuesday morning. A continuance for sentence was granted in the case where Mary Weish was concerned. Following the imposing of the sentence the judge stated that if the defendant was a foreigner, the United States at the termination of his sentence could deport him, if it saw fit, which should act as a deterrent to similar cases where charges are brought.

Reviewing cases in connection with these resorts of unsavory reputation, the judge said on similar complaints Barrone had been sentenced to one year on a deferred charge and to 3 more years on a harboring complaint. Pettino had received a sentence of one year's imprisonment in jail and a fine of $1,000, and Riche two years in jail. Congratulation was paid the attorney general's department for cleaning up this form of vice and the special investigator, John DeAvilla. Through the fair dealing of the defendant's attorney, Thomas L. Dorney of Providence, the judge said, two years had been saved on the sentence given the defendant.

In taking up the civil trial calendar the first case called was that of the Electric Paint and Varnish company vs. Frank Diganci, represented by Attorneys Clarence E. Roche and John J. Dunn. Settlement of the case was reported.

Following the calling of the next three cases, when it was found that there were none ready for trial that morning Judge Copotosto dismissed the jurors, saying, "Amuse yourselves in any way proper to 2 o'clock." When these jurors returned from their "amusement," at 2 p. m. they were greeted with locked doors and the announcement that no cases were ready for afternoon trial and that they were to report again this (Wednesday) morning at 10:30 o'clock.

Before the jury were dismissed in the morning when the case was called of Thomas Healy, represented by Attorney Dunn vs. James W. Burke, for whom Attorney Roche appeared. Attorney Roche claimed that his client's health was such that he could not appear in court and that a certificate could be had from Dr. C. Grant Savage to that effect, but he was willing that another physician should be called to examine into Mr. Burke's health.

Judge Copotosto called Mr. Healy and questioned him as to what he had told him regarding the health of respondent and learned that on the day, Tuesday, when the judge had left Westerly, Mr. Healy had seen Mr. Burke enter the Boston Market on Main street. The case was finally left for the doctor to be heard from and if a return was made that Mr. Burke's health was so that he could appear, the case would go on.

A stipulation was filed and settlement was reached this morning in the case of Loanze H. Kenyon vs. Grandville E. Crandall, which was an action of assumpsit in which the plaintiff sued for a breach of promise to marry on or about Dec. 30, 1924. The plaintiff sued for damages to the amount of $500. A settlement was made for $200. The plaintiff resides in Charlestown.

An alarm was sounded from Box No. 66, corner of Oak and Haswell streets Tuesday afternoon about 3:50 for a fire in the east end of the cutting shed of Joseph Coduri Granite manufacturer off Oak street. The R. I. Ones hose wagon and the Alert Hook and Ladder truck responded with firemen but when they arrived at the shed alongside the tracks of the New Haven railroad, it was found that their services were not needed.

An overcoat hanging across a steam pipe in the pockets of which it was thought there were matches, blazed up and the blaze licked up the side of the shed to the skylight. Prompt action by workmen, who threw the blazing coat outdoors and threw water where the blaze came in contact with woodwork prevented any great amount of damage. A quantity of plaster packed in bags on the floor suffered some damage from the water thrown on the flames. This was the sixty-third alarm responded to by the Westerly Fire department since Jan. 1, 1925.

Recorded in the office of the Westerly town clerk appears the following transfer: Dec. 28. Heirs of Alzada H. Saunders to Charles M. Lamb, a parcel of land on the west side of Winnapaug road, at Pleasant View.

Workmen in the employ of the Westerly Highway department have been engaged during the past few days in taking out a section of the curbing on the west end of the property of the Westerly High school building on Broad street, next to the Wilcox park property. Two curved sections of curbing are being set on either side of the building and the cement sidewalk edge cut down to meet the street grade.

The P. S. Barber Hose company has added to its equipment a quantity of new rubber hats, coats and heavy rubber boots from a Cambridge, Mass., supply house. The department also has on approval until the next meeting a new Portalight, which is a powerful storage battery searchlight which throws a strong beam of light a great distance, yet is so small and compact that it can readily be carried about by hand and put in operation, to throw a strong light on roofs or into windows at a moment's notice.

Monday morning at 8 o'clock, Miss Helen Holland and Louis Pingatore, both of Westerly, were married at the church of the Immaculate Conception by Rev. J. F. Vincent, S. M. Fr. Vincent also celebrated the nuptial mass which followed the ceremony. The wedding music was played by Mrs Frank G. Ahern. The bridesmaid was Miss Theodora Holland, sister of the bride, and Frank Espanaro was best man.

Sheriff and Mrs. Fred T. Mitchell, of Beach street, entertained Christmas eve and Christmas day, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Blase, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil C Crook, of New York, Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Kenyon, of Riverpoint, Miss Mertice M. Browning, of Providence ClarkLewis E. Leonard, of Newport Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Maxson, Mr. and Mrs. James Thompson and Dallas A Clarke, all of Bradford, Misses Carolyn and Virginia Shortman, Mrs. Minnie J. Leonard and Charles Girouard of Westerly.

William Edgar Maxson, 7 year old son of Edgar F. Maxson, of Westerly, got a broken left wrist, Tuesday afternoon, from a fall while skating with his father. He was taken to Dr. J Irving Helfrich to reduce the fracture and went to the Westerly hospital to have an X-ray taken of the break.

WESTERLY TOWN COUNCIL HOLDS LAST 1925 MEETING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, Dec. 29—A special meeting of Westerly town council was held Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock when among other matters discussed was the proposed calling of a special financial town meeting to take action on the lowering of the grade of Cooki Hill on Union street and the continuation of that street through to come out on Main street, on the property of Mrs. Orville George Barber.

This discussion was shortlived, for the highway commission withdrew the petition for action and the matter will probably not be heard from again until the regular February financial town meeting.

The meeting was called to order by Council President John D. Nichols. Other councilmen present were Roger C. Tanner, Harry H. Coleman, Peter Nardone, Isaac G. Smith and A. Clifford Crough. Thomas F. [illegible] was the only absentee. There was also present Council Clerk Everett E. Whipple and Town Solicitor John Ferguson, Jr.

The payment of bills from balances remaining in the various funds was first considered. In the town hall account there remained a balance of $2,163.85 against which were paid bills C. G. Stanton Co., $374.87; W. C. Hiscox Co., $267.65 for work done in the highway department office. Westerly town hall and another bill of repairs for $46.44; H. A. Dunning, $5.32 and to the Westerly highway department $172.72 for putting in the town hall service driveway off Union street. In the miscellaneous funds was a balance of $13.53 against which were bills amount-

MAKE THEM FIREPROOF

No better argument in behalf of fire proof structures when they are being built for the housing of children, adults or aged persons can be offered than the repeated instances where fire raises havoc in wooden buildings and endangers the lives of those living or staying there. Whether the building is for school purposes, a hospital or a home the very fact that so many lives are at stake demands that safety should get the needed consideration. And when it comes to protection there is none better than prevention. In buildings which are fireproof there will be small chance for calling the firemen.

Fire in a three story maternity hospital in Jersey City did not result in the loss of life. Through good fortune the babies and their mothers were removed in safety from a building which was considerably damaged in basement due to a defective flue. But it is a case which goes to emphasize the need of eliminating even such situations through different construction.

Cases of that kind bring to mind the many other instances where homes for children or aged have burned with a deplorable loss of life. Invariably it is the case that existing buildings have been employed for such purposes and the old structures, which may be fit aside from the fire danger, have been enlarged as needs demanded.

It may be too much to expect that there will be a wholesale abandonment of hospitals and homes which are otherwise in good condition, because there is a danger from fire. In such cases the need seems to be to establish all necessary precautions and exert due care to remove the chance of fire, but when it comes to new construction there can be no doubt as to the advisability of providing a type of building that will not burn.

The helpless, the young, the sick or the aged are sufficiently handicapped without being subjected to the terrors of being caught in a fire and unable to get away. Fireproofing is the best form of insurance against such a situation.

NEW YORK'S CHANGE

New York is to have a new police commissioner. The change is coming about as the result of a change in the administration. The new mayor has named the bank commissioner of the state as police commissioner of New York city. It doesn't appear that the filling of the one office has exactly fitted him for the other, but there is confidence in his judgment, and inasmuch as he has given an efficient administration of one public office it is expected that he will in another. At least he is being told that he will have full control of the important post, that there will be no lines on him and that the best possible conduct of the police department is expected.

A Tammany mayor is going out. With him go his appointees. A Tammany mayor is coming in and he is selecting his friends to help him. Tammany is still in the saddle and it is making the most of the situation to impress upon the people that the change from one Tammany office holder to another is going to eliminate all the evils which have been tolerated or complained of in recent years.

The conduct of the police department and the crime situation in the big city have been subjects for much discussion for a long time. The choice of the new police commissioner is expected to convince the people that there are to be radical changes, that New York is going to be cleaned up and that the criminals are to be run down and punished. Perhaps that will result, but there will be a better chance for judging that after the new regime has been in power for six months or a year. It is to be realized that talk, and increased salaries, will not alone turn the trick. There must be a sincere effort and even then there may be a failure to reach the goal desired.

Thus far New York is being deluged with promises. Every move that is being made is being pointed to as a fulfillment of a campaign pledge. So far so good, but it will be in the results accomplished that the real test will be applied. The preliminaries can be easily outweighed by other things later on.

STEALING FOR CHRISTMAS

Every year there are those who through circumstances believe that their families are not going to have as much of a Christmas as they would like, and who seem to feel that they are justified in going to any length in order to see that they do. There are for instance numerous cases at Christmas time where women and men are caught stealing and give as the explanation of their conduct their desperate resort to crime to bring cheer to their little ones.

Without any doubt there are just such cases. On the other hand it is a time when such a plea can be made for the best possible effects. Much will be excused then that might not be at some other time. Such stories invariably get a response that few know anything about. They touch the hearts of many.

But there are those Christmas stories which do not seem to hold water. When a woman pleads that she stole for the sake of getting some presents for her two year old, or when a man stole that he might have a fitting dinner for his family that day, it doesn't seem quite consistent that the former should have found it necessary to get the assistance of a neighbor in committing the theft or to take goods to the amount of many times the price that the child's presents would cost. Neither does it appear that the man would be justified in depriving someone else of a Christmas dinner or of taking goods that amounted in value to far more than such a dinner would cost.

Various organizations make special efforts at Christmas time to deal with cases of just such a character. While no one may be keen for applying for charity it would seem to be far preferable that such action should be taken without publicity than to resort to crime and the publicity which is sure to accompany it.

That each one should desire as good a Christmas for their families as the next one is laudable, but even in the cases of the poor and the unfortunate it does not appear to be necessary for them to steal to obtain it. It is better to submerge pride and let conditions be known to those who stand ready to help in such instances than to resort to the more desperate and discreditable method.

GETTING AUTO MARKERS

The annual rush for 1926 automobile plates is on and it is feared that there is going to be serious congestion at Hartford unless the applications are speeded up.

Thus with the added provisions made for taking care of this business the prospects a few days before the end of the year are that conditions which have been experienced other years will prevail. Last year it will be remembered that prosecution of those who failed to show their new markers for several days after the first of the year was refused because the department had not handled the applications which had been made to it. Applicants stood for hours in line only to have the door shut in their faces when the closing time came. The added facilities this year do not seem to be eliminating the congestion and it is possible that they are no more than taking care of the increased demand for markers because of the greater number of auto owners.

One of the deplorable things in connection with the distribution of markers is that the auto owners of every city are not provided with these facilities. Favors are being handed out to certain cities. Owners in the remainder must pay a notary fee or go to some city which has a substation in order to get their markers. This serves to create delay and congestion. There is in fact no reason why every city in the state should not be provided with the accomodations which are now being furnished for certain ones. Why should many thousands of be auto owners of the state be forced to pay an additional fee or to drive distances up to 60 miles in order to get their markers when others simply have to go around the corner?

GENERAL PERSHING'S RETURN

Sincere regret will be felt that General Pershing is obliged to leave Arica and return home because of ill health. Likewise there will be regret that three are evidences of a disposition to disagree on the part of Chile and Peru in coming to terms concerning the plebiscite.

Some idea of the bitter feeling that has prevailed in these countries over a long standing dispute concerning the provinces of Tacna-Arica has been furnished since the attempt was made to get down to the terms for holding the plebiscite. The fact that it has existed for more than a generation indicates that it was no mere diplomatic rupture. Surprise was manifested when the two countries agreed to arbitration of their differences, even though that was the logical course, and now after leaving the adjustment to the president of this country and agreeing to abide by the decision they are unwilling to facilitate the holding of the plebiscite.

This country has no interest in the matter other than to see a peaceful adjustment and do whatever it can to bring it about. General Pershing will be able to throw an interesting light on the situation there from such report as he makes of the situation, but thus far it has been demonstrated anew that the way of the peacemaker is hard and the gratitude that results from such efforts is often apt to be meagre. The situation between Chile and Peru seems not to be so different from many conflicts between capital and labor, with each wanting its own way.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Once more the thermometer is getting an increased amount of attention.

Still the icemen are not anticipating anything more they had learned from experience to expect.

The thermometer is one of those things which while it may be down it is always able to come back.

The joys of Christmas would be greatly increased if there were no bills to be expected a week later.

There will be no exchange of New Year's greetings between General Butler and the mayor of Philadelphia.

"London wants to know if Turks are bluffing." The British attitude ought to disclose that very quickly.

The man on the corner says: The turn of the year and it will be impossible to suppress the talk about baseball.

No one has been reporting robins on the lawn during the past few days, but the rear guard of the flies hasn't as yet disappeared.

New York is going through the agony of changing mayors and police commissioners. But will New York be anything but New York with its crime, Tammany and all?

MUCH ATTENTION.

"What a perfectly darling place," exclaimed Felicia when she and Jack were ushered into their room at the small summer hotel where they had come to pass Jack's vacation. "And just look at these lovely white flowers. What are they?"

The trim woman clerk who was receiving them smiled at Felicia. "We are always so glad when we have white Canterbury bells to put in a room for — for young people like you," she said.

"Well, we certainly appreciate them and thank you ever so much," returned Felicia, and when, a half hour later, they were shown to a small table, prettily set in the bow window of the dining room, Felicia again exclaimed over the flowers—a charming arrangement of white verbenas and maidenhair ferns.

"Isn't this the most wonderful place, Jack? And this dear, cozy table all to ourselves! You know we must be careful about expenses."

"Don't worry about expenses, Felicia," answered Jack. "I made a bargain all right, and besides I think we rate a little luxury. How do you think you're going to get along a whole week without any cooking or dishwashing to do?"

"You just watch me pine for it," laughed Felicia, "but I do feel selfish to be here without Nancy. Why were you so determined not to bring her? We could have gone to a cheaper place and then it would not have cost any more for the three of us."

"It was not a matter of finances, dear. I want you to have a real rest, and Nancy will have a bully time with mother and dad, so rest easy, young lady."

With the dessert the waitress brought a beautifully frosted white cake and set it with a flourish in front of Felicia. "Will you please cut it?" she asked.

"Why—yes; if you wish me to," answered Felicia, much surprised. It's a marvelous looking cake.

"The management will be right glad that you are pleased," remarked the waitress. "After you have taken your pieces, I'll pass it to the rest of the guests."

Felicia cut the cake with a trembling hand. She was beginning, as she said to Jack as soon as the waitress left, "to feel funny."

"I don't understand it all at all. We are treated as if we were royalty or something. Why should we have the cake first?"

"Why not? Nobody likes cake better than we do."

"Oh, Jack, don't be silly. You know that we're being treated very oddly."

"I don't call it oddly. I call it jolly. Certainly this cake isn't hard to take. I guess we struck the right place all right. If you've finished let's go down and take a look at the lake."

As they left the dining room six young girls of "sub-deb" age, formed an aisle through which they had to pass, and lifting to their lips combs covered with tissue paper began to play with great gravity the first bars of the Lohengrin wedding march. Felicia gasped with astonishment.

"Why girls, what do you mean?" she asked. "What's the joke?"

"You're the first bride of the season here," answered one of the musicians, "and we want to do you honor."

"But, oh, my dears, I—"

"Thank you very much, young ladies," broke in Jack. "This is our wedding journey, though it's about four years late. When we were married a wedding trip was not compatible with the state of our finances. I heard that this was a particularly nice place for honeymooners, so we came here as soon as circumstances allowed. We bid you good evening for now we are going for a moonlight stroll." Jack made a sweeping bow to the girls and offered his arm to the blushing Felicia.

"You wretch!" she said, as they walked toward the lake.

"Now you see why we couldn't bring Nancy. When I wrote for the bridal suite I couldn't very well mention a 3-year-old daughter, could I?"

"Oh, Jack, you old silly. Don't you think you're smart?"

"Quite so," admitted the proud husband, squeezing his wife's arm.—Chicago News.

Stories That Recall Others

He had Views of His Own

A small boy went into the library and asked for a good book. As he was about the primer age, the librarian gave him a picture book. She felt sure this book would meet all requirements, because it had a gay, shiny picture of Santa Claus on the back. But the youngster refused it emphatically, with the remark: "I'll stand for George Washington, but I won't stand for Santa Claus."

Anyway, He was Happy

He was one of those wiggly, friendly mutts that makes hundreds of friends every day. Being delighted with the pat they had given him on the head, he followed two girls as they boarded a street car. He paid his hurried respects to everymon, woman and child in the car and could have adopted any of the homes they represented had the opportunity been more favorable. Even the hard hearted conductor smiled as the little rascal jumped up in the laps of the women and kissed them impertinently square in the face, but, of course no dog is allowed to ride in a street car without a permit, and this joyful pup had nothing but his happy disposition. Limousines, flivvers and all traffic stopped. The door of the car opened and what was the amazement of those automobile folks when they saw the street car had stopped and everyone delayed to permit a wiggling smiling cur to step daintily down, look around to nod approvingly at the conductor and finally jump to the street.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

This is the 60th birthday anniversary of Rudyard Kipling, the famous English poet and author, whose recent critical illness has been a cause for anxiety among friends and admirers throughout the English-speaking world. The author was born in Bombay, India, of English parentage, and was sent to the mother country to receive his education at the United Service college. After his return to India he became an assistant editor of the Civil and Military Gazette and Pioneer, and it was during this period of his career that he first launched out into literature. During the '90s he traveled extensively in many parts of the world and for several years made his home in Vermont. Today, after the lapse of many years, his early stories continue to sell at the rate of some two million copies a year, bringing to the author a handsome income.

From Small Beginnings

Jean Guerin, a Great Artist

In 1793, in France, in the time when the Reign of Terror was at its height and no man's life was safe from the madness of the mob, a small boy of ten went about with his father, making keys and repairing locks. Little Jean Guerin carried the tools, handed them to his father when they were needed, held the small vise, and did the other things that a boy of his age could do. Once, in a jail, when the father was working on a huge black lock, the boy trembled so that he dropped a file.

"What's the matter, boy? Afraid?" the father asked. "I hate the black place!" little Jean cried out passionately. "I hate it. I like the bright places' the beautiful places!"

On another occasion they were working in a great mansion. On the walls there hung numerous pictures mostly of gallant men of the past. Jean Guerin stared at them so long that his father called out: "Boy! are you sleepin'! Hand me the vise." Before they left the place the lad had looked long and lovingly at the pictures. "I like those pictures, my father!" he said on the way home. "They made me forget all else. How I should like to make pictures!" From that day on the boy began to try to draw. Those were stormy days in which he lived. Jean Guerin had been only six years old when the French Revolution began, and he saw his native land torn by turmoil and war. The guillotine worked overtime, and then came the Napoleon, calling more and more for men to feed his vast armies. Jean Guerin was a man before anything like peace came again to France. Fortunately, there was no charge for tuition. If there had been, he could not have studied. Thus it came about that in a time when almost everyone else in France was thinking of bloodshed, Jean Guerin was thinking of beauty. He delighted most in richness of ornament and line, as though he would find in his art the luxury he had been denied in his youth. In the same year in which Napoleon made his ambitious marriage with Maria Louis of Austria, the young locksmith-painter had some of his paintings exhibited in Paris.

He was then 27—and very proud he was to see his work hung before the public. Five years later, in June of 1815, Napoleon was overthrown at Waterloo, and royalty again reigned in France. By that time Jean Guerin had achieved real fame. He was called upon to make the royal palace at Versailles a thing of new beauty, and he who had once been too poor to live in anything except the humblest of dwellings now spent his time in the most ornate palace in the world.

So he went on from year to year, always devoted to art, and always doing better work. Great people came to him to sit for their pictures. He painted great pictures, now treasured in art galleries. He died at 72. In some respects the story of the self-educated locksmith-painter is more pleasing than the story of the great Napoleon.

TALMAN STREET HOUSE DAMAGED BY FIRE

At 2.45 o'clock this (Wednesday) morning, fire of undetermined origin badly gutted the interior of a three story frame house at No. 28 Talman street, occupied by Joe Vincent and family. The family were awakened by smoke and were forced to flee from the house scantily clad. Joe Vincent, with a blanket thrown around his shoulders ran from the house as far as Ferns restaurant looking for a telephone in order to notify the fire department.

About the time Vincent reached Ferns' restaurant someone pulled in Box 6, Talman street and Main street calling out the fire department. The department made a quick response and on arriving at the scene found the house in flames wit dense smoke rolling from the windows.

Two lines of hose were laid and the fire was quickly under control. The recall was sounded at 3.05 o'clock. The buildin is a three story frame house, stone walls on the ground floor. It is thought that the fire may have started from the heater.

OVER FOUR INCHES OF ICE AT FORD'S POND

Although some cities north of Norwich report ice about ready for harvesting there will be no harvest by local ice men for some days to come, for the ice has not yet reached sufficient thickness.

Ice on Ford's pond at East Great Plain has reached about 4 1-2 inches in thickness and cutting will start when it reaches 9 or 10 inches. Other dealers are not yet ready to cut but another week of cold weather should bring the ice to sufficient thickness to warrant the start of the annual harvest.

Wauregan Well Child Conference

Children, like grown folks, care for sweet things during the holiday season. No doubt, fond parents, aunts and uncles, have showered the little ones with plenty of candy during the Christmas holidays. If so, parents may have learned the wisdom of providing for children during the holiday season, sweets of a simple nature. The candy which is alluring in color and rich in flavor, is apt to upset the digestion of little children. Very simple candy can be made by melting sugar over low heat and pouring into a shallow pan. This is pure sugar and not harmful to children if taken in small quantities.

Such candy appears also in the stores as barley candy and it is a safe kind to buy. Other sweets can be made from a mixture of finely chopped raisins, dates and figs. These may be cut into very small squares or made into small balls and given to the children as an extra sweet now and then. Children can eat these safely. With its sweet taste, it satisfies the child and at the same time it provides very valuable iron, which adds to its health score.

Such aids to health are discussed at the monthly well child conferences which are held in Wauregan. The conference next month will be on Tuesday afternoon, January 5th., in Company hall, from 3 to 4 o'clock.

HEALTH PROSPECTS LOOK BRIGHT FOR THE YEAR 1926

The current issue of the weekly health bulletin issued by the Connecticut state department of health carries an instructive article on the topic, What Was 1925 Worth? The article says:

On the threshold of the New Year one's steps naturally linger over the last days of 1925 while the events of the past year pass in review. Was it a successful year in point of accomplishment? What contribution did our efforts make? Is there an encouraging note of progress as the new year starts? Do we feel healthfully equal to the task ahead in 1926? Those and many other questions crowd in our consciousness.

On the whole the prospects for 1926 look bright, judging from some of the high lights that have marked the year just passed.

As the year closes it would seem that the cases reported for most of the diseases will be below the average and for such diseases as typhoid fever tuberculosis, smallpox, diphtheria, encephalitis, poliomyelitis and scarlet fever, it will be below the total number of cases reported for 1924.

During the year there has been no outbreak of disease involving a municipal water supply and conditions in regard to disposal of sewage in the state has improved over the preceding year. There has been an increasing demand of the people to eliminate existing nuisances and improve the standard of meat that is being sold as food. The supervision of the production of oysters has been eliminating oysters which are taken for market from polluted beds.

The laboratories of the department have been increasingly used during the year and the total number of specimens examined will be the greatest number for any year.

Due to the monthly check system for venereal diseases there has been an increase in the number of physicians reporting and in the number of cases reported. Additional assistance was rendered the clinics through the follow up work by a field worker. Three additional treatment stations were established in South Manchester, Norwich and Danbury making a total in the state of sixteen treatment stations and six clinics.

For the first ten months of 1924 there were 214 deaths due to automobile accidents. The corresponding months for 1925 witnessed an increase of 48 bringing the total deaths due to this cause to 262. This increase of 48 is of more than statistical significance. Apparently there are still many who take a chance: 262 have taken their last chance.

There has been a great demand for well child conferences in sections of the state where no nursing service is available, or to assist local nurses: 5,950 children are now enrolled, and come regularly to the forty-five conferences.

Seventeen new conferences were added to the list during the year, making a total of 45 now in operation.

Many public health nursing associations have expanded during the year and now employ additional nurses. East Hampton, and Westport were new towns to organize public health nursing associations, making a total of 37 towns who now enjoy this service. Bethel, Mondur village and Durham are planning ways and means to supply this service.

Nearly one hundred towns in the state were supplied with some special form of health service. Thus health instruction was spread by means of moving picture films stereopticon slides, posters and exhibits. Over two hundred talks were given covering every phase of health. Many of these were illustrated by films, slides and posters. Health exhibits were sent into some twenty five towns, the health tent being set up at twelve of the agricultural fairs. Upwards of one hundred and fifty thousand people have thus received some form of educational health message not including radio talks and regular field service.

NEW YORK TO NORWICH BEFORE STEAMBOAT DAYS

Raymond E. Stefferson, formerly of this city, and now counsellor at law New York city, has sent to The Bulletin, an extract from the diary of Jonathan Taft, who conducted a private school in New York city, relating to a journey which he made from New York to Norwich, Canterbury and return, in the summer of 1831, which was before the advent of the steamboat.

The extract follows:

August 2, 1831: Shut up house and set out on journey to Connecticut with wife, two oldest and youngest sons. Left New York in packet sloop "Maria" Capt. Colt, for Norwich, at 3 o'clock, p. m., with fair wind from S. W. passed Throgs point at 1-2 past 4. Some heavy showers in the night, my wife and myself seasick; arrived safely at Norwich next morning, 3rd instant, at 6. Rain abated; commenced raining again at 8 or 9 and continued till 12 when it cleared off very pleasant, and having hired a coach, we set off for Canterbury, Westminster Society, a distance of 14 miles, so called, but we thought it 16 or 18 as we were just 4 hours in traveling it over a very bad road part of the way.

August 4: Carried one night at Capt. Chandler's, who with his son, David, and with one horse carriages, conveyed us on Thursday, the 4th., to Brother Thomas, West Woodstock, a distance of about 25 miles, the way we went, which though not the nearest, was thought to be the best; via through Brooklyn and Pomfret. Arrived at Pomfret considerably fatigued at 1-2 past 4.

August 5: Left Thomas at 2 p. m., on our return to New York, Brother T. accompanying us to Norwich, went to Canterbury, and tarried this night. Left at 8 next morning and arrived in Norwich at one p. m., an hour too late to take the stage by Connecticut river, which we intended to do if we did not find a speedy passage from Norwich this day. Finding no conveyance from Norwich this day, we put up at A. G. Pink's, a pleasant situation on an eminency in the eastern part of the city overlooking the river where we stayed until 3 o'clock the next day, Wednesday, the 17th., when we took passage on board the Diamond, Capt. Lovell, for New York with a fair, though very faint breeze, blowed all the afternoon, and shifted between 3 and 4 and blew from the south right ahead. At 1-2 past 4 we had the last sight of Norwich. One-half past 7 anchored on the eastern shore, perhaps 5 or 6 miles from Norwich for the night.

Next morning, 18th, all hands up and rowing before sunrise and afterwards hoist sail to catch the light breezes which blow sometimes from west, sometimes east, sometimes south. One-half past 10, have been in sight of New London 2 hours or more and likewise the Groton monument on the left which was erected last year by subscription, I understand cost $12,000, height 120 feet, spiral stairs inside to the top. Passed New London at 12 o'clock, 18th., wind increasing from west and S. west. Friday, 19th., wind shifted to N. and northeast, find ourselves off Huntington light on Eaton's Neck, wind fair, passed Mamaroneck about 9. Passengers on board a sea captain by the name of Hilliard, a Mr. Wentworth, potter of Norwich with a quantity of furs on board, a good singer of hans, a Mr. Bushnell, of Norwich, and daughter-in-law, who resides at the forks of Bowery and Third Ave., a Mr. Burnham, merchant of Norwich, who was much annoyed by the bed bugs which made considerable sport for the company. The crew consisted of captain and two sons and two or three other hands and the steward, a black man, a very good natured, oblizing and accommodating fellow. Passed Sands light at 1-2 past 9. Throg light 1-3 past 10. Wind died away and we were obliged to anchor after passing Hurigate. In Hallett's Cove at 1-2 past one, and after dining were sent on shore at Hurigate Ferry and took the Mamaropeck stage at Yorkville.

The extract was secured by Mr Stefferson from Freeman B. Hathaway, South Orange, N. J., a great grandson of Jonathan Taft, who was related to ex-President Taft's father.

EDWARD RANDALL RECEIVES OVER $70 FROM FRIENDS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

ABINGTON, Dec. 29—A Christmas tree was enjoyed at the Haven Christmas day. All were made happy by many gifts from friends. Their greatest pleasure was in seeing Edward Randall receive his shower of letters. Although the shower was planned as a post card and quarter shower, evidently the story of his helpless condition, resulting from a fall of 40 feet to the pavement, breaking his back, prompted many to respond generously to amounts sent varying from a dime to five dollar bills. The total amount received was $71.55. Among those who generously remembered him was the "Cloud Digger."

Some gifts were sent with no name some given in "his name," some were from friends and neighbors, and others were who have seen him at the Haven and noted his patience and courage in spit of his sufferings. For twenty-six months he has been confined to his bed or wheel chair with helpless limbs.

The shower came as a complete surprise, and he says it gave him the best Christmas he ever passed.

The amount he has received will be placed in his checking account, to be used to help cover his expenses.

Mr. Randall expresses his sincere gratitude to all who so generously and thoughtfully remembered him.

NAMES COMMITTEE ON PROFESSIONAL-AMATEUR SPORT

NEW YORK, Dec. 29—(AP)—Styling professionalism as the "bugaboo of American athletics," Colonel Henry Breckinridge, president of the National Amateur Athletic federation, today appointed a committee to deal with the problem of drawing the line between amateur and professional sports.

Addressing the annual conference of the federation, Colonel Breckinridge said:

"The professional athlete is perfectly all right in his own sphere, but when you have the amateur and professional spheres of athletics mixing, it is like the conomic law of bad money driving wood money out of circulation.

"Our colleges are not to train gladiators. College athletics training is a means, not an end. I object to the college-trained athlete who sells his services all over the country."

To illustrate his contention of a decline in amateur athletics, Colonel Breckinridge asserted that amateur baseball had fallen off fifty per cent. in the last three years.

The committee named by Colonel Breckinridge on the amateur-professional problem consists of Brig. Gen. Palmer E. Pierce, president of the National Collegiate A. A.; Matthew Woll, director of the Sportsmanship Brotherhood; Frank C. Cross, director of Americanization work of the American Legion; Major W. C. Rose, athletic officer of the Second Army Corps area, and Dr. L. H. Smith, executive of the National Federation of High School athletic associations.

TILDEN'S PROTEGE FIGHTS WAY TOWARD TILE

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—(AP)—Adding a hard fought triumph in the junior competition to love set victories over two foes in the boy's event, Warren F. Coen, Jr., 14 year old Kansas City protege of William T. Tilden, 2nd, today made rapid strides toward national indoor tennis championships in both divisions of play at the Seventh Regiment armory.

The midget western contender scored his shutouts in the boys' championship over Abraham Lekus of New York and Paul Peavy of Hastings-On-Hudson, N. Y., to gain the third round. He encountered more stubborn resistance from Gordon Tweedy of New York in his quest of the junior title, saving a third round match after two deuced sets, 7-5, 6-4, by remarkable steadiness under the severe drives of his opponents.

Favorites triumphed without exception in the junior tournament but three of the seeded entries in the boys' event were eliminated. These included Arthur D. Noble of Newton Center, Mass., who went down to defeat before Judson Morris of Hartford, Conn., without winning a game, 6-0, 6-0, and Peter Carry of Westport, Conn., whose elimination at the hands of Donald Fram, Windsor, Conn., 3-6, 6-4, 6-1.

Frank Shields of New York, national boys' outdoor champion, and Walter Thomas of Elizabeth, N. J., runner-up for the same title both scored impressively in the boys' tourney.

Shields drew a first round bye and then smashed his way to an easy victory over D. E. Whitehead of Southboro, Mass., 6-1, 6-0, while Thomas was not extended to take his first round match against Albert Erdmann, Jr., of New York, 6-1, 6-1.

In the play for the junior title, Edward Jacobs of Baltimore, winner of the boys' indoor title last year, Gregory Mangin and Lemoine Heuser, both of Newark, N. J., three seeded entries, raced through thier third round opponents easily.

TWO BASKETBALL GAMES AT ARMORY TONIGHT

A treat is in store for local basketball fandom this evening when two fast contests will be played at the armory. The first is between the Nutmegs and the Emeralds. The Nutmegs after losing their last contest, are out to start on the winning path once more and expect to defeat the Emeralds. On the other hand, the Emeralds, composed mostly of former Valiant men, will go onto the floor intent on rolling up a large score against the Nutmegs. If they are successful it will be the Nutmegs first defeat on their home floor.

The Nutmegs will take the floor this evening as follows: Burdick, center; Burns, Bergeron and Couture, forwards; Kelly, J. Tombari and Murphy, guards.

The Emeralds will lineup in the following order: Burke, center; Makoski and Pheno Tombari, forwards, and P. Labenski and Cimikoski, guards.

The Emeralds will be backed to the fullest extent as their followers are confident of victory.

In the second game the Battery B five will line up against the Y. M. H. A. team of this city in the rubber game of their series. The Battery triumphed in the first game by a close score while the Y came back strong to win by a rather large margin in the second tilt.

The Battery will take the floor with the following: Goodrow, center; Berberich and Robertson, forwards; Brown Lewis and Prodell, guards.

The Y. M. H. A., with Capt. Ellie Segal, Adnopoz, Brauman, Blinderman and Sadinsky, present a formidable array that should be hard to beat.

Tonight's game will be sort of a preliminary to the regular Battery B season which will open Saturday evening, Jan. 9, when the Battery A quintet, of New London, will be the visiting team.

The first game this evening will start at 7:30, sharp.

HARTFORD CRESCENTS TO OPPOSE JEWETT CITY PRO TEAM TONIGHT

This (Wednesday) evening, at Bijou hall, Jewett City, the crack Hartford Crescents will oppose the local hoopsters in what should prove a whirlwind rumpus for Hartford comes to Jewett City with the reputation of being a clean, hard playing outfit that refuse to quit until the final whistle is blown. They take the floor in the following order: Silverman and Welsh at the forwards, Dutch Leonard, Connecticut's most popular court star, at centre. Friedman and Cronin in the back court with Balfour as a utility man.

The same combination that has yet to be defeated on the local floor will represent Jewett City, namely: Cap Bud Benjamin and Mondi Normandin at forwards, Harry Mills at centre Blake, Barry and Joe Faber, who are scheduled to hold down the guard berths.

It will take a great team to defeat the Jewett City aggregation the way they have been performing the last few weeks but many think that the Crescents are the great team needed to win from the locals. All may rest assured that both teams will give the best that's in them, for a victory means much to either team. Jewett City does not want to be beaten on the home court and Hartford wants prestige in eastern Connecticut, so according to Hoyle, it should result in a rip up affair that no fan will miss the preliminary will be another fast game with the J. C. 2nd's opposing the all-Collegians.

PLAINFIELD CONFIDENT OF BEATING JEWETT CITY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PLAINFIEL, Dec. 28—Plainfield Community basketball champs of eastern Connecticut have agreed to take the Jewett City team on Friday night, Jan. 1, on account of the South Kingston team not filling their engagement on this night. Morley and Martin are playing in Boston on that date and would not be able to appear with the South Kingston team, so Manager Salisbury canceled the game until a later date. The manager of the South Kingston team stated that he would bring the whole worldwind team with him when they played at Plainfield.

Jewett City fans have been crabbing all season for a game with Plainfield, but anyone who has seen either team play would easily see what the result would be if these teams met. Manager Salisbury would not consent to a game because he always figures on giving the public their money's worth. Mr. Salisbury will explain and save Manager Faber the trouble of telling us about the Tri-City game, just why the game was a fluke. If Manager Faber wishes to know he will show him on paper. It would be too long to explain thoroughly in this item. One thing can be said and that is that the management was entirely unaware that such a poor team would represent the Tri City champs. Manager Faber has been yelping about his Jewett City team being able to defeat Plainfield, but if he fans will take notice of the Jewett City lineup they will see that Manager Faber has awakened to the fact that his former team was not quite up to the grade.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Peter Rabbit Thinks Quickly.

You'll almost always find it true,
Those quick to think are quick to do.
—Old Mother Nature.

Peter Rabbit was sitting not far from Johnny Chuck's house. It was a long time since he had seen Johnny Chuck. It was so. But he knew that that deep down in a snug bedroom below the reach of Jack Frost was Johnny, sleeping comfortably, as he had been sleeping for many weeks. Peter couldn't understand how any one could be willing to sleep all winter and miss all that was going on. At least that is how he felt most of the times, as when fierce storms of snow and ice made it almost impossible to get anything to eat, that Peter envied Johnny Chuck with nothing at all to worry about.

Down on the Green Meadows, now white with snow and not green at all, Peter saw a moving spot. "There is Reddy Fox," muttered Peter. "I hope he won't come up here, but I fear he will. He seems to be headed this way now. I don't feel like running this morning." He thought quickly. "I know what I will do. I will have some fun with Reddy if he does come up here. I'll pretend not to see him until he is almost within jumping distance and is sure that he can catch me. Then I'll dive down into Johnny Chuck's house. Johnny won't mind. In fact, he won't know anything about it because he is way down in his bedroom fast asleep, and I won't go way down there. I'll go down his long hall just far enough to be out of Reddy's reach."

It looked to him as if this time Peter was to be his

So Peter continued to sit where he was and watched Reddy Fox draw nearer and nearer. He knew that Reddy didn't see him, for he was sitting perfectly still and at a distance looked like a brownish-gray stone. It looked as if Reddy would pass without seeing him. Instead of being glad, Peter suddenly felt disappointed. He felt so sure of his safety with Johnny Chuck's house so close by that he wanted the fun of fooling Reddy. That wasn't at all nice of him. Of course not. He knew that Reddy was hungry. He knew that Reddy must have had hard work to get enough to eat during this bad weather, and that if he should feel sure of a Rabbit dinner and then miss it he would be dreadfully disappointed. Peter knew all this, but he didn't think about it. All he thought of was the fun it would be to fool Reddy.

So, when he saw that Reddy was going to pass without seeing him, Peter sat up. The instant Peter moved Reddy saw him. Like a red flash he turned and bounded straight toward Peter. He saw that Peter was not near enough to the old stone wall to get there. It looked to him as if this time Peter was to be his.

Peter almost chuckled inside. He waited just an instant as if too frightened to move. He wanted Reddy to be right at his heels when he dived into Johnny Chuck's doorway. That would make it more fun. Reddy was right at his heels. With his eyes rolled back Peter could see Reddy's look of hungry, eager pleasure in the thought of the dinner he was now sure of. And then with a final kick of his long heels Peter dived through the doorway of Johnny Chuck's house and started down the long hall.

Peter would have laughed aloud if he could. He thought himself very smart. He hadn't a fear. No, sir, he hadn't even a shadow of a fear as he dived through that doorway. He would go down that long hall a short distance and there rest comfortably until Reddy grew tired of waiting and went away. And right then Peter bumped his nose! Then Peter did some quick thinking.

RAILROAD AND STEAMER BUSINESS INCREASES ABOUT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 29—The New Haven railroad is said by local employes of the company to be doing a larger freight and passenger business this winter than it has done in many seasons. In the event of a settlement of the coal strike it is likely that the road would be taxed to capacity to transport over its lines all the coal that will be needed to supply the demand in New England. The road is passing along a great quantity of coal at present, but the volume is small compared with what will be hauled at the termination of the strike.

The steamer line that is operated in connection with the railroad is also doing a larger business than has usually come to it in the winter season, as is shown in the statement of earnings of the company during November. The December statement is expected to show even greater receipts than did the preceding thirty days.

No business showed up for the police court to hold a session for this morning. That is an unusual situation.

DISHONORABLY DISCHARGED, CHECK FRAUD ARRESTED

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 29—Chester H. Daly, a former member of the United States Coast Guard, state pier, has trouble aplenty in store for him, for this afternoon he received a dishonorable discharge from the service of the government only to be taken into custody by the civil authorities on a charge of negotiating a worthless check. When the New London authorities have finished with the prisoner, he will probably be taken to Providence, for the authorities of that city hold a warrant charging Daly with the passing of several worthless checks.

Daly was a member of the crew of the U. S. destroyer Ericson, and while aboard that craft he negotiated a fraudulent check upon Gregory Pappas, proprietor of a Bank street restaurant. The check was drawn upon a Boston bank for $50 with Daly as the maker. Pappas could not cash the check when it was tendered to him, but gave Daly $10 and informed him to appear at the restaurant the following day and receive the balance. Daly failed to put in an appearance and a day or two later Pappas deposited the check. Two days later the check was returned, with the information that Daly did not have funds at the bank. Daly was taken into custody a fortnight later, when the destroyer put into port and since that time has been a prisoner at the county jail for safekeeping. This afternoon, following advices received from the treasury department at Washington, Daly was dishonorably discharged from the federal service and the prisoner being liberated from his cell, he was at once placed under arrest by Sergeant John Cavanaugh. Acting Prosecuting Attorney Perry J. Hollandersky issued a warrant for Daly's apprehension several days ago. Daly was made a prisoner at the police station and will be presented in the police court tomorrow morning.

WM. SCHALL RESOLVED BATHHOUSES MUST GO

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 29—William Schall, who for many years has had a summer residence in the Pequot section, is said to be determined to secure the removal of bathhouses in front of his residence on the shore. He claims they are an encroachment upon the public highway and in the nature of a nuisance to other residents in the section where they are located. Mr. Schall petitioned the city council at the meeting last evening and asked that he be afforded some relief. He didn't get what he sought Monday evening, but he says he will attain his purpose later when an investigation is made, and the facts are known. Mr. Schall was in Europe when certain land was transferred in title at the point in controversy, therefore did not have a chance to be heard. He now says he wants a wrong righted. The Schall property is extensive in area and a sign on the premises declares that the property has been sold. It is likely that the land will be laid out in regular and symmetrical streets and that a desirable class of houses will be erected thereon. The planning board is yet to consider the matter and to recommend to the council some action in the premises.

The whole section below the Schall place, known as Hillside road, has been transformed and the Guthrie property has been and will be changed so that it will not be recognized as what it was when the Standard Oil company had built his elegant mansion there from designs procured in Italy. It is proposed to add to this picturesque section a class of residences that will attract well-to-do people who will make their homes there. The change that has been made in the Pequot section is the most pronounced in the city, but it is only in its beginning yet.

There is skating on Rogers pond near the dyehouses of the Brainard & Armstrong company, and on the Town Mill pond. The patronage of these ponds is very large because they are safe as the water is shallow and there is little chance of the ice breaking up.

The upper section of what is known as East New London has had more city money expended upon it in recent years than it ever had in five times that period. The establishment of Riverside Park was the beginning of the improvements and since then the expenditures have been fairly liberal. They are to be increased in the future. The location of Connecticut college led to the improvement of approaches to that institution so that the whole section is changed and made a desirable place of residence.

Mrs. Thomas Burke, of Westerly; Mrs. Dorset Aldous and infant son, 18 Masonic street; Frank Enaman, United States Coast Guard patrol boat, 121, state pier, and Roy Bowden, United States Coast Guard destroyer Mohave, state pier, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were dismissed today.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today caused the operator's license of Frank Delaporta, 35 West Colt street, recently suspended to be returned to the owner.

The funeral of Miss Mary Perry was held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Joseph's church and was attended by a large gathering of mourners. A mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. William C. Plissimpos. The bearers were Joseph Sousa, Antone Varrid, Joseph Frank, Manuel and Joseph Perry. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Another danger spot in the highway was discovered this forenoon when a manhole cover, corner of Williams and Main stret was found to be broken and creating a dangerous condition for automobiles and teams. The danger spot was reported to the highway department.

Police Sergeant Nelson Smith, who has been confined to his home on Rogers street for two days, by illness, was able to resume duty today.

The proprietor of a Bank street restaurant complained to the police this forenoon that quantities of beer and soda bottles, which he has been in the habit of storing in the rear of his establishment to await their collection by the owner of the bottles or his representative, have been stolen of late. As the restaurant proprietor is compelled to pay five cents for each bottle he fails to return, he declares he has suffered a considerable loss. The thefts, it is believed, were committed by boys.

Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Edwards, of Main street, have concluded several days visit with Mr. and Mrs. William J. Caulkins, of Chesterfield.

The state police, Hartford, who yesterday informed the New London police that a Ford commercial car apparently abandoned on a Hartford highway and owned by a New Londoner, George Hannon, 143 Ashcraft road was in their possession, today notified the local authorities that an error had been made in the identification of the automobile. The car, while owned by Hannon, belongs in Hartford for Hannon resides at 27 Edgewood avenue thers and not in this city.

O. P. Bourne, warrant gunner, stationed at the United States Coast Guard academy today visited the police station where he was given the .45 calibre Colt's automatic revolver found in the possession of George E. Sullivan and Sylvester ormley, two former members of the coast guard. They were fined and jailed in the police court yesterday on a charge of carrying concealed weapons. The delivery of the weapon was made to the representative of the government in view of the fact that the gun had undoubtedly been stolen and being government property some department of the government was entitled to possession of the weapon.

F. S. Pobula, paymaster of the United States Coast Guard, stationed at the state pier, will be tried before Judge Frederick Dimmock in the Waterford town court next Monday night, charged with reckless driving. The machine he was operating a week ago in Waterford collided with a public service automobile owned and driven by Abraham Davidson. Pobula would have been tried Monday night, but he desired a postponement of the case in order to arrange that a witness of the accident who was in Pobula's car might be present to give testimony.

Pobula was driving in a northerly direction on the turnpike and as the machine neared Mossbroker's corner, Pobula suddenly caused the course of the car to be diverted so that the machine was driven at a right angle with the highway. At the same time the public service car of Davidson, headed in the opposite direction to that in which Pobula's car was operated, was about to pass. Davidson, it is alleged, did not have any warning that Pobula was going to change the course of his machine with the result that both cars came together with terrific force, although none of the occupants sustained injury. Pobula's car, a Studebaker, received slight damage, but Davidson's car, a Packard, was badly damaged about the engine and body. State police officers from the Groton barracks, who were summoned, conducted an investigation and ordered Pobula into court.

Patrolman Patrick Sheehan was incapacitated from duty tonight, being confined to his home by illness.

The owner of the dog is not known, but the animal has been observed frequenting Stewart street and vicinity several days. The ugliness of the dog was reported to Dog Warden John Sweezy and that official is conducting an investigation.

Charles Fresna, of Waterford, arrested a week ago by State Police Officer Henry J. Albright, Groton barracks, charged with violation of the automobile law in failing to give a signal, was found not guilty of the charge when before Judge Fred Dimmock in the Waterford town court last evening. The car that Fresa operated was in collision with a gasoline truck of the Standard Oil company, and operated by John Beaney on the Norwich road. Beaney alleging that the collision resulted through the failure of Fresa to give a signal.

ing to $15. In the printing and advertising fund was $27.12 with several hundred dollars worth of bills against it. The street light fund showed a balance of $763.46 and a bill of $712.56 was voted paid. In the town advertising fund appearing $,000 against which had accumulated and were paid various bills for the erection of a V-shaped advertising sign board for the town of Westerly at the junction of the Boston Post road and Shore road. On motion of Councilman Colman all the bills possible were voted paid.

A. Clifford Holdsworth, chairman of the street lighting committee, reported a new 1,000 candlepower lamp located in Dixon square and another 1,000 candlepower lamp moved from in front of Dr. Savage's house on Elm street to in front of the Industrial Trust Co. building. Two new lights were located in the lower end of Beach street and progress was reported in placing guywires in Broad street for the installation of an overhead traffic officers spot light. The report was voted approved and placed on file.

Highway Engineer Adolph E. Leon appeared by direction of the Westerly board of highway commissioners and stated that a vote had been passed at the highway commission meeting at 5 o'clock that afternoon asking the town council to withdraw the petition presented by them asking for the widening and lowering of Union treet, "As one of the parties most benefited did not care to incur any expense and would probably put in a claim for damages." The commission had voted to dispense with it for the time being. In answer to Councilman Colman's request as to whether any member of the town planning committee had looked into the matter, he said that one of the number had talked with that property owner, with the result that he did not wish to go on with it. Councilman Smith said that this rendered unnecessary a report of the town council committee's activities. The whole matter was summed up in that no dutfooted yes or no answer could be explained. On motion of Councilman Trainor the council voted that the highway commission's request be granted and leave given for withdrawal of its petition.

The moving of hackney-carriage stands under the direction of Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown, superintendent of hackneys, in which he recommended there being located so as to remove them from the main thoroughfare was discussed. The following changes will be made: The stand in front of the Alba Inn, Canal street, and the stand in front of the Westerly's United Theatre building, by request, will be removed to new positions, just around the corner on Railroad avenue and on the southwest side of Canal street, between the Martin House and Railroad bridge. Removal of one stand to High stand opposite Dr. Rulai's house and beyond the park entrance did not meet with general approval. The removal of the Broad street stand near the Westerly high school will be made to the east side of Main street by the Washington Trust building. Councilman Colman spoke of lack of clear space to stop in front of the Rhode Island hotel, but on this no action was taken.

Complaint had been made to Councilmen of the charge of $1 to nurses to and from the Westerly hospital and Attorney Ferguson said that directions had been given that names of jitneymen who charged 50c as far as to the hospital be reported, as only one tariff of fares on file permitted this charge.

A bond of $25,000 for the town treasurer, with premium of $109 was reported for authorization.

Recommendation came from the Westerly highway commission that Westerly's legislators to the general assembly be requested to use their office to recommend that the Rhode Island state board of public roads take over Tower street from Granite street to Oak street. The council added a further recommendation that it be carried through to the new Hopkinton Westerly state road and thus form a connecting link between three Rhode Island state roads. This cutoff would care for much traffic which now goes through Westerly.

Councilman President John Nichols, moved that the board go into executive session, to consider matters brought up by Councilman Peter Nardone. Before the executive session was held Councilman Smith asked if the town council would be responsible for accidents resulting from the poor condition in which the sewer contractor had left the town highways. Solicitor Ferguson asked for time to look into the contract and this matter will come before the next regular council meeting the first Monday in January.

The plans are to make the frolic bigger and better than last year and with this end in view the committee in charge of entertainment has secured Manager E. L. McEvoy of the Palace theatre to secure the talent. Manager McAvoy has lined up 32 vaudeville stars and the entertainment is entirely on the cabaret style, featuring some of the best talent ever seen at a Knights of Pythias time.

The committee in charge of dancing reported that Thumm's orchestra had been secured and that the program is to start at 8.30 o'clock and continue as long as the dancers desired to use the floor.

Another meeting of the committee is to be held this (Wednesday) evening when all arrangements will have been completed to make the affair a success from start to finish.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

This is your last chance to see the laugh classic of the screen, Sally of the Sawdust. Patrons of the Palace will welcome the news that the two leading stars of this picture will be back at the Palace again in another Griffith picture, That Royal Girl. The management announces a strong holiday program of vaudeville and the return to the screen of one of the greatest favorites of yesterday, William S. Hart, in a picture that the New York Telegram, of last Sunday, said was the best thing Hart has ever done. They further state that one of the fiercest and most thrilling stampede scenes that has been filmed in a long while is shown. Its the answer to those who said that Hart was all through that he didn't know how to make western pictures for the audience of today. At the Strand theatre, in New York, last week, according to Variety one of the leading trade journals, "The only picture that done any business along Broadway was Tumbleweeds." It's safe to say that Hart has the well wishes of the entire motion picture audience in the country and youngsters and the adult audience haven't forgotten the days when he carried his arguments with the strength of his forty-fives. In the vaudeville bill, the management promises the greatest sensation in the theatrical history of Norwich. The four casting aces with Queenie. This is one of the few times that this act has ever been seen outside of the higher priced theatres and through the kindness of their manager and the management's willingness to pay their city salary, Norwich will have an opportunity to see this wonderful aggregation of sensational casters. Another big time attraction on the bill is Kramer and Griffin, who are a comedy sensation everywhere. Then comes the Carson and Kane revue, four girls and a boy A dancing act that introduces everything in dancing. Another sensation predicted by the management, will be Joseph Condello, the six year old boy accordianist. This youngster plays some very fine classical and as well popular numbers. Frank Jerome, one of the cleverest single men in vaudeville, and the Bandle Sisters make up the rest of an excellent bill.

Coming to the Breed

Tom Mix, famous William Fox star, will be the attraction at the Breed Theatre Thursday, beginning a three day run. "The Lucky Horseshoe" is the name of his latest picture and he is supported by one of the most brilliant casts ever assembled in one of his productions.

Playing opposite Mr. Mix is dainty and delectable Billie Dove, who has been seen before as the heroine of dashing Toms Romances of the West. Ann Pennington, Follies dancer, also is in the cast, playing a character part as well as doing some of her famous dancing.

J. Farrell MacDonald, ranking as one of the greatest character men on the screen today, is the comedy relief of the picture, together with J. Gunnis Davis; but MacDonald, the "Corporal Casey" of "The Iron Horse," carries the burden of the laugh-making; Davis, though, is a competent foil.

Malcolm Waite, who has won renown as a screen villian, is the "heavy" of the picture, with Clarissa Selwyn figuring as his side.

A decided feature of "The Lucky Horseshoe" is a Spanish sequence in which Tom Mix enacts the role of Don Juan greatest lover of medieval times. J. G. Blystone directed.

Broadway Theatre

New Year's Eve will see one of the finest midnight shows that has ever been seen in a local theatre.

The Broadway Theatre management has arranged to have ten acts on the bill including professionals and try-out acts. That the whole will be a riot of fun and of unusual value is readily conceded.

In the forthcoming Royal picture, "Big Pal," which comes to the Broadway Tweatre for the special performance New Year's Eve, William Russell is the star, with the famous Mary Carr in a prominent role. Russell, former light heavyweight amateur champion of the ring, has the part of a successful fighting man and Mary Carr impersonates his lovable old mother.

Others in the cast are Julanne Johnston, "Mickey" Bennett and William Bailey.

The story is the original narrative of a square fighter in the squared circle, who not only battles a powerful adversary on the resin, but who fights crooked gamblers and unexpected "breaks" of bad luck to a knock-out.

At the Breed

Do you remember—

The "curly" little derby that daddy wore?

Those leg-o'-mutton sleeves that ma used to muff out?

That tandem bicycle built for two?

The days when a glass of beer was a nickel.

When a ride on the trolley was a family treat?

When McKinley was president and Bryan still a possibility?

When "A Bird in a Gilded Cage" was the song hit of the day?

And actresses carried pug dogs instead of poms—.

All are reproduced in Norma Talmadge's latest photoplay, "The Lady," showing at the Breed Theatre today for the last time.

"The Lady" is a First National attraction produced by Joseph M. Schenck. It was directed by Frank Borzage from the stage success.

Wallace MacDonald is Norma's leading man.

STOCK PRICES LOWER.

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—(By The A. P.)—Stock prices moved lower today under the weight of a large volume of profit taking and better selling, although temporary outbursts of strength developed in the oil, motor and rail shares. Trading was in large volume, the day's sales again exceeding 2,000,000 shares, bringing the year's total to date above 450,000,000 shares as compared with 275,000,00 in the corresponding period of 1924.

An advance of 3 to nearly 8 cents in wheat prices, sending May futures to a new high level for the season, featured the rising commodity markets. Cotton closed steady at net advances of 3 to 33 points and coffee and sugar futures displayed a firm tone. Bullish demonstrations in the stock market centered largely in the railroad shares. Atchison was bid up about 3 points to a new record high at 140 1-2, then eased to 139 3-8 and New York Central closed over a point higher at 134 after having touched 134 3-4, the highest quotation since 1909. Chicago and Northwestern, Southern Railway, Texas and Pacific, Rock Island, Northern Pacific and Omaha preferred also broke through their previous 1925 maximum qutations.

Buying of the rails, which is a large measure represented the heacy January re-investment demand, was influenced by the favorable showing of the November earnings reports. The first 45 Class One roads to report for that month have shown net of $83,-559,000 against $72,554,000 last year.

Pennsylvania, with net of $8,496,000 more than doubled last year's figures.

Oils which have been bought heavily in the last few days on merger reports and constructive trade statistics ran in considerable realizing, although Marland, Union Oil of California, California Petroleum and Texas Company were elevated to new high levels for the year. Pacific Oil showed a net loss of 3 5-8 at 75 1-4 and General Aphalt, Barnsdall B, Colorado Fuel and Pan-American, Western B, lost a point or two.

United States Smelting and Refining responded to the anouncement of an increase in the dividend by touching a new 1925 high at 51, but lost all of the day's gain on subsequent profit taking.

American Smelting, Calumet and Arizona, Continental Can, Coty and National Tea sold at the year's best prices.

Mixed price movements characterized the merchandising group despite official reports of record breaking holiday department store sales. S. S. Kresge soared 24 points to 799, or within a point of the record high, buying of Gimbel Brothers which closed a point higher at 76 1-4, after having touched 77, was based on large current earnings and reports that negotiations were pending for the acquisition of another large store. Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, Associated Dry Goods and Woolworth closed 1 to 3 points lower and National Cloak and Suit common and preferred each broke about 5 points to new low records for the year.

Marked heaviness also developed in DuPont, General Electric, nited States Rubber, Atlantic, Gulf and West Indies, Commercial Solvents B, Federal Mining and Smelting, Postum Cereal, Remington Typewriter, Sloss Sheffeld Steel and Eber and Heilbroner, all of which showed net declines of 3 to 5 points.

Call money held steady at 6 per cent. all day. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

A further recovery of five points to around 3.75c cents in French francs on buying based on the French cabinet's approval of Finance Minister Doumer's fiscal programme featured the firm foreign exchange market. Demand sterling held steady around $4.84 7-8 and most of the other European rates showed nominal gains.

The church was prettily decorated with Christmas greens, wreaths and flowers and a nicely arranged programme was carried out. It was in charge of Mrs. Herbert L. Peckham and Mrs. Henry Sebastian. George A. Howard, superintendent of the Sunday school, announced the programme as follows: Song, Oh, Come all ye Faithful school; Scripture reading, Superintendent Howard; prayer; exercise, The Christmas Wishing Well, primary dept; song, The Bethlehem Star, Mrs. Peckham's and Mrs. Maynard's classes; recitation, Your Star and Mine, Elinor Howard; recitation, A Christmas Story, Rhoda Koven; exercise, Five Clock, five girls; song, The Angels story, primary dept.; recitation, Another Christmas Wish, Leroy Sebastian; exercise, The Ladder of Joy, seven girls; recitation, The Time When I Am Good, Lee Quinley; solo, Bethlehem Lowly, Mabel Quinley; exercise, The Basket of Good Wishes, six beginners; recitation, The Announcement, Winifred Haydon; song, Out of the Silence, seven girls; recitation, The Old Log Road, Mabel Quinley; announcements and offerings; song, O Little Town of Bethlehem, school; closing prayer.

On Monday night, at seven o'clock, the Sunday school enjoyed their annual Christmas tree and visit of Santa Claus in the chapel. An interesting programme of songs and recitations was given by the children and several well rendered readings pertaining to Christmas were given by Mrs. James Spicer. Santa Claus distributed a box of candy to everyone present and the members of the school were all remembered by gifts from the school and teachers. Mr. Howard, Mrs. H. L. Peckham and Mrs. Henry Sebastian arranged the pleasing affair.

Last Sunday afternoon, the children of the county home were pleasantly entertained by friends who are interested in their welfare and each child was given a box of candy and a gift through the generosity of these and other kind friends. After a programme of music and recitations, the gifts were distributed which gladdened each little heart. Among those who were responsible for the pleasant treat were Peter Petersen, Mr. Moyer, Miss Petersen, Mrs. Alice Cousins and other friends. The committee is very grateful to all who gave and made the affair possible.

Mrs. J. D. Sass has returned to her home on Prospect street, after spending a few days in Danielson, the guest of her daughter, Mrs. James Blackford.

In place of the regular meeting Thursday night, at the Third Baptist church, a watch-night service will be held from nine to twelve o'clock.

FIVE HURT WHEN AUTO SKIDDED AND OVERTURNED

Otto Krueger, proprietor of a restaurant at 324 Main street, was cut about the face, Mrs. Harry Rosoff, wife of Harry Rosoff, proprietor of the Motor Mart, No. 321 Main street, sustained a fractured collar bone and possible internal injuries, and three other passengers of the Chevrolet car driven by Mr. Krueger were slightly injured Tuesday afternoon at 3:15 o'clock, when the car skidded and turned over on Laurel Hill avenue, just north of the school house.

When the car turned over it smashed against a wooden fence, which stopped its further progress, preventing a plunge several feet down an embankment. In the car besides Mr Krueger and Mrs. Rosoff, was Mr. Krueger's wife and two children. Medical aid was summoned by John Kane and Mrs. Rosoff was taken to the office of Dr. William T. Driscoll where her injuries were cared for. Mr. Krueger refused to have his injuries treated until he had taken his family home. The party was on its way to New London for registration numbers when the slippery surface of the road caused the car to skid.

NORWICH TO CONTINUE AS SEAPORT CITY THROUGH CHANNEL DEEPENING

The development of the Thames river channel will mean that Norwich will continue to be a seaport city, says the monthly letter of the Norwich Chamber of Commerce for the month of December. With regard to the Thames river development the letter says.

The favorable report of the board of army engineers for the deepening of the channel of the river to eighteen feet from Allyn's Point to Norwich, was received with much joy by the members of the chamber of commerce.

One of the chief functions of a chamber of commerce is the promotion of public benefits for development, and the prosperity of the community in which it is established.

The development of the Thames river channel will mean that greater increased water borne tonnages by modern boats, are well within the realm of possibility. It will mean that Norwich will continue to be a seaport city. The saving to shippers in this section of the state, as well as this community, will be considerable in the yearly aggregation of shipments.

The first step of prime importance has been successfully taken. There are other difficult steps to surmount and your organization proposes to do all in its power to "carry on" until this project is brought to a successful conclusion.

The chamber has been fortunate in having members of ability, possessing a spirit of self-sacrifice and a loyalty to Norwich that is most commendable, who have given much time and study, to this project. Their efforts were made possible through the support given them by the membership in general. Their work and devotion has been an inspiration and proves again in no uncertain manner, "That a city worth living in, is worth working for."

Slogan Contest: This contest conducted by your organization was successful. Over sixty persons sent in a total of two-hundred and thirteen slogans. The one chosen by the judges as most representative of Norwich was—"The World Uses What Norwich Produces."

A casual analysis of this slogan will prove its merit.

First, from the view-point of manpower. The history of this community shows that Norwich men have been national public benefactors. The ancestors of five presidents of the United States—Fillmore Grant, Garfield, Hayes, Cleveland, were residents of Norwich. Others, prominent in colonial, civil war, educational and world literature, history were products of Norwich.

Second, from the view-point of manufactures. Our leather belts, braids and cordages, brass fixtures; our fine cotton goods and cutlery; our envelope machinery and firearms; our paints, stains and paper products; our childrens shoes and beautiful silk velvets and dress goods; our Thermos bottles; our fancy woolens and uniform cloths, all state truly that "The World Uses What Norwich Produces."

The chamber urges every business man to print this slogan on his letterheads and to make use of it whenever and wherever possible. Norwich is known as "The Rose of New England." It is a title of which we are proud. According to tradition this title was given to Norwich in 1859 by Edward T. Clapp when plans were being made for the bi-centennial celebration: At that time an arch was erected on Broadway near Broad St., upon which this memorable title was first inscribed. "The World Uses What Norwich Produces", is full of local meaning.

New Industry: About the first of the year the Norwich Manufacturing Company will begin the production of their product in a space leased by them in the Majestic building on Water street. This company manufactures men's pajamas and night-shirts, and will employ about fifty people, nearly all of whom will be women.

The company has a New York office and manufactures a good grade article with a well known trade name. This company's payroll will run from seven hundred to one thousand dollars a week. It can be stated that it will be a high grade factory. The officers of the company stated that it will provide steady employment the year round, and will not be a seasonal proposition.

The officials of the company looked over several other cities in Connecticut and Rhode Island, and came to Norwich last November at the request of Abner Schwartz to see what Norwich could offer in the way of factory spaces. We are sure our members will be pleased to know Norwich won out in securing this industry in competition with other cities.

The officers of the chamber are always willing and anxious to do their share in securing additional factories for Norwich and often a suggestion from some member, similar to the one made in this case, will produce results. Every member is urged to be on the alert for an industrial prospect and to report it at once to the chamber of commerce when the members can rest assured the officers of this organization will then do their part.

Christmas Tree: With the approval of Mayor Waters, and co-operating with the gas and electric department, a novel Christmas tree decoration is to be seen in Union Square.

Attached to the central white way standard in the square is the tree. Five streamers of varied colored lights attached to as many standards are joined to the tree.

This is our city's manifestation of the faith that is ours. Faith in our God, faith in our country, our state and our city.

HALF A BILLION IN STATE SAVINGS BANKS

Deposits in savings banks of the state were more than half a billion dollars, the exact figure being $503,137,244.53, at the close of the fiscal year, September 30, according to the annual report of Bank Commissioner John B. Byrne presented to Governor Trumbull. This amount represents a gain of $24,263,551 over 1924. In addition savings deposits in trust companies reached a new total of $104,457,072.14, a gain for the year of $12,665,716.

The aggregate savings deposits of $613,644,316.67 represent the savings of 1,174,305 persons. Interest dividends to these depositors for the year amounted to $24,967,869.

The combined assets of trust companies and savings banks reached $869,414,884.93 during the year, a gain of $65,554,041 over the previous year. The briskness of new business during the year is indicated by the fact that more than $30,000,000 was added to the amounts loaned on real estate by savings banks alone, bringing the total to $276,147,278.

Other asset items of the savings banks at the end of the year were $11,804,151 in loans on collateral security; $2,454,588 in loans on personal security; $30,027,190 in state, town and district bonds; $43,578,040 in United States government bonds; $33,874,397 in bonds of other countries; $102,248,360 in railroad bonds and stocks; $20,897,397 in bank stocks.

Following the strong popularity of public utility bonds, the savings banks increased their holdings in these items from $14,447,232 to $20,897,737. Cash on hand at the end of the period amounted to $10,743,749.37.

HOURLY SERVICE NORWICH TO CENTRAL VILLAGE

In regard to the hourly bus service between Norwich and Central Village, the U. C. T. Monthly, published by Norwich council, No. 309, U. C. T., says:

As a proof that the U. C. T. is ever ready to stand by and assist the local bus service that has been installed on the Norwich-Central Village line. When this line was being operated through the agency of the trolley cars, a two-hour service was the best there was to be had, notwithstanding that from Central Village to Putnam an hourly service was maintained.

At the hearing in Norwich, held before the public utilities commission, for the purpose of substituting busses for trolleys by the Connecticut company, your civic committee was represented and, in the interest of fair play to Norwich merchants, demanded of the Connecticut company that they cease discriminating against Norwich merchants and provide an hourly service the entire length of the line, all of which they agreed to do, and it is now in effect.

ANNUAL NEW YEAR'S RECEPTION AT Y. M. C. A.

The Norwich Y. M. C. A. will hold its annual New Year's reception at the association building Friday evening, from 8 to 10 o'clock. The invitations have already been sent out by the social committee in charge of the arrangements. SALVATION ARMY ENTERTAINS 140 AT ARMY CITADEL

The Salvation Army entertained 140 children and adults at the Salvation Army citadel Tuesday evening at a Christmas party. There were gifts for all present and there was a pleasing programme of recitations and dialogues. Included in the gifts were dresses for the girls, house dresses for the women and toys and candies for the children. Captain and Mrs. William Cashman were in general charge of the arrangements.

GREENEVILLE SUNDAY SCHOOL HAS PROGRAMME

A Christmas entertainment was given by the children of the Greeneville Congregational Sunday school in the Sunday school room Monday night. A large tree beautifully decorated was the center of attraction around which the audience was grouped. The entertainment opened with a pleasing selection by the orchestra and was followed by reading of the Scripture and prayer by the pastor, Rev. Charles H. Ricketts. The following programme was presented by the children:

Ruth Abel, Our Programme; Margery Buchanan, The Snow Bird; Marian Drescher, Suppose; Rose Morton, Sonny Raymond and Charlie Buchanan, The Christmas We Like; Margaret West, Christmas Weather; Alice Quinley, Another Christmas Wish; Jabez West, My Christmas Dream; Helen Anderson, On Christmas Eve; Miss Fowler's class, Christmas Morn; Donald Wallace, The Time When I Am Good; Natalie Anderson, Merry Christmas; Archie Buchanan, Just For Christmas; Jean West, Christmas Questions; William Wilson, Why the Bells Ring on Christmas; Mildred Turner, Another Christmas Day; Natalie Sevice, Beautiful Christmas; Ruth Thompson, The Christmas Star; Rose Morton, piano solo.

After the children's programme the superintendent, Mrs. Harry H. Boydens, presented gold pins to twenty pupils and teachers who had been present every Sunday this year. She congratulated the school on having such a record and also on being so fortunate as to have one pupil, Miss Florence Tilly, who holds the state record for Sunday school attendance, twenty-two years. Miss Tilly was presented with a special gold pin encircled with a gold wreath to which is attached a bar marked "22nd year." Following are the names of the teachers and scholars receiving the perfect attendance pins:

Florence Tilly, Alice Brown, Mrs. Janet Young, Miss Helen Hayes, Mrs. Annie Spenser, Charlotte Fowler, Janis Service, Lois Zahn, Miss Annie Hansen, Harold Wallace, Jabez West, Clinton Drescher, Natalie Service, Helen Suthill, Lillian Wallace, Bertha Wallace, Elsie Jacobson, Elizabeth Buchanan, Nathan Sears and Fred Heller.

In behalf of the Sunday school, Mrs. Boyden also presented gifts to the treasurer, Miss Alice Brown, and to Fred Heller and Earle Kramer, who had acted as secretaries during the year, also to Miss Viola Levitsky and Miss Fowler, who had so kindly played for and led in the singing for the school.

Alice Quinley, Raymond Pionkowsky, Lorraine Prentice, Lois Bausch, William Wilson, George Geer, Donald Wallace and Jean Mitchell, who had graduated from the primary department to the junior class on Sunday, were presented with Bibles by the superintendent in behalf of the Sunday school.

Mr. Finlayson then announced that Santa Claus had arrived and Santa Claus and his pack were received with great glee. Much merriment followed as he distributed the presents to the children keeping up a running fire of jokes and comments. When his pack was empty he started on his way again to the North Pole and the children reluctantly departed for home.

Alex Finlayson had charge of the entertainment ably assisted by Mrs. Archibald Torrance and Mrs. W. H. Stebbins.

Mrs. Azarie Gauthier and family of South Second avenue have moved to a house on Merchants avenue.

Many of the hills about the village are still covered with ice and snow, and are furnishing the youngsters good sliding.

While the Christmas rush at the local postoffice is about over, the mail continues to be above normal because of 1926 calendars, and belated holiday cards and packages.

NORWICH TOWN

Troop No. 20, Boy Scouts, of Norwich Town, Frederic H. Wyant, scoutmaster, held a Christmas party Monday evening at the scout's cabin on Mediterranean Lane. There were sixteen present, including nine scouts and several young girl friends, with Scoutmaster Wyant as chaperon. The cabin was heated by the large fireplace at one end and a stove at the other, making the room most comfortable in spite of the cold outside.

The scouts decorated the cabin with Christmas greens and on the mantel was a small Christmas tree.

Upon arriving at the cabin the company at first listened to a radio concert, during which sandwiches and cake, doughnuts, cocoa and homemade candy were served.

The feast was prepared and served by the scouts, who demonstrated their training by washing the dishes at the close.

This was followed by several games, and in closing there was dancing until 10:30 o'clock. The music for dancing was furnished over the radio from a hotel ballroom in Schenectady, N. Y. Those present were Scouts Walter Haun, Luther Whaley, Franklin LaPierre, Joseph Sullivan, Harold Smith, William Brosofske, Jr., and Norman Johnson, from Troop 20; also as guests, Scouts James Mullen from Troop 12, and Albert Smith, of Brooklyn, Conn., with Misses Bernice Hopkins, Eleanor Moore, Betty LaPierre, Claire Sullivan, Lucile Browning and Ruth Hyde.

POETRY

The Reverend Mister Me

Along about the Old Year's end
There always seems to be
An old man camping on my trail—
The Reverend Mister Me!

His parsonage is in my heart,
He holds possession there
As though to pay his tenant-fee
With piety and prayer.

He preaches to me night and day,
Reveals my Old Year sins,
Then says: "Repair your tattered soul
Ere next New Year begins!"

The Reverend Mister Me, I find,
Has every friend outclassed
As reader of my very soul—
That old boy knows my past!

I think I do such clever things,
Secretive as can be,
Yet, as the Old Year wanes and dies,
He tells them all to me.

The wreckage in my Moral Code
I shield with studied art,
But, oh, this probing minister
Knows all my sins by heart!

I try to shake the old pest off,
His citadels I storm,
Yet he keeps shouting in my heart:
"Reform! Reform! Reform!"

Dear, good old Reverend Mister Me,
Soul-balancer of men,
I'll do my best—but don't forget,
Next year, to come again!

—William Herschell in Indianapolis News

Winter Twilight

Soft-sandaled twilight, handmaid of the night,
Before her noble lady's radiant face
Doth slowly come, with gentle, quiet pace,
And draweth rose and azure curtains light
Around the snowy couch, so pure, so white,
Whereon her mistress soon will rest. With grace
Celestial she doth cover every trace
Of, toil, and daily soil doth hide from sight
So would I that before thy face my love
Might gently move, and ever from above
Such tender beauty draw about thy way
That when thou 'llest down to nightly rest
Earth-thought should fade, and there should only stay
The peace of heaven within thy tranquil breast.

—George Tracy Elliott.

ESTATE OF FRANK A. MUNSEY ESTIMATED AT $40,000,000

Bulk of the Estate Will Go to the Metropolitain Museum of Art—More Than $550,000 in Cash Bequests Were Made to Relatives, Friends and Institutions—F. B. Walker, Manager of the Mohican Hotel, New London, is a $10,000 Beneficiary—The Trustees of the Estate Are Given Five Years, or More if Necessary, to Dispose of Newspapers and Other Interests.

NEW YORK, Dec. 30—(AP)—The Metropolitan Museum of Art in this city will receive the b lk of the vast estate of Frank A. Munsey, publisher, under the terms of his will filed today.

Th. trustees of the estate are given five years, or more if necessary, to dispose of this n wspapers, The Sun and The Evening Telegram as well as his other interests, and to convert his considerable assets, inc[illegible]g real estate holdings, banking interests and other properties into cash or securities.

M. Munsey never married. His nearest kin, a sister, Mrs. John M. Hyde of Lewiston, Me., and her children were bequeathed 9,000 shares of stock of the Munsey Trust company of Washington, D. C. Cash bequests of $550,000 were made to relations, friends and business associates.

Bowdoin college receives $250,000; the Maine State ho pital of Portland $100,000 and the Central Maine Central hospital at Lewiston, $50,000.

The value of the estate was not indicated in the document, which was executed five years ago but friends recently estimated it at $40,000,000.

William T. Dewart, one of Mr. Munsey's closest associates, who was recently elected president of the various Munsey corporations issued a statement saying there was no plan looking to sudden sale of the properties or change in their policy.

He also disclosed that had Mr. Munsey lived, his large and profitable businesses would have been mutualized, or partially so.

"This intention," he said, "Mr. Munsey expressed to me with great earnestness only a few weeks before he was stricken."

"But now that Mr. Munsey has gone from us his written testament must be our chart and guide, but under its broad discretionary provisions the trustees will do what is legally permissable to carry out Mr. Munsey's known desires."

Mr. Dewart said that within the last five years the Munsey newspapers and business properties have almost doubled in value and that "within the next five years, by a combination of policies now familiar and firmly established, the value of these properties should be still further enchanced."

Speaking of the various bequests, Mr Dewart said: "Generous and thoughtful as they are, the aggregate of Mr. Munsey's specific bequests constitutes only a small fraction of his total estate. The very ample residue is to go where hundreds of thousands of the citizens of New York would wish it to go, to the Metropolitan Museum of Art, to serve the ends of education, enlightenment and culture for the countless generations of all time to come."

The executors and trustees named are Mr. Dewart; Richard H. Titherington, a business associate of Mr. Munsey for many years, and the Guaranty Trust company of New York.

The will provides that Mr. Munsey shall be buried at Lisbon Falls, Maine, where his father and mother are buried.

All of his pictures, jewelry, furniture, personal and household effects go to his sister, Mrs. Hyde.

Mrs. Hyde's children, Mrs. John R. MacNaught and Fred G. Hyde will share 5,000 shares of the Munsey Trust company of Washington. It was provided that in case of Mrs. MacNaught's death, her shares should go to her children: Mrs. Maude MacNaught Small, Mrs. Mildred MacNaught Mansfield, Miss Emma G. MacNaught, Harold MacNaught, John A. MacNaught, Jr., and Frederick Earl MacNaught.

Among the specific bequests were:

Jean Rushmore Patterson, wife of Captain Charles H. Patterson, $25,000.

Sophie Meidrim Coy, former wife of E. L. Coy, Yale football star, $10,000.

To his cousin, John A. Hopkins, of Dodge, Mass., $10,000; Mrs. R. E. Wallace, formerly Miss Grace Spinney of Bath, Me., $25,000; to each of the two daughters of Ida F. Newell of Lewiston, Me., $10,000; Mrs. Louis Hopkinson Hopins, $10,000.

On the theory that childhood is the "susceptible period" for response to treatment for tuberculosis, the organization plans a national campaign to alleviate the disease now believed to be affecting one million of the twenty two million school children in the United States.

WOMAN MURDEROUSLY ATTACKED BY NEGRO

BETHLEHEM, Conn., Dec. 30—(AP)—Grappling in a fierce hand-to-hand struggle with a tall negro armed with a long knife, Mrs. Anna Alexson successfully defended herself from a murderous assault when confronted on the state road this afternoon. With the arrival of rescue from a neighboring farm where workers were informed of trouble by the terrified woman's screams the negro fled through neighboring woods. Following tracks in the snow, Constable Vernon Raymond and others captured a negro named Ralph Bell, who is being held in the Litchfield county jail. Bell denies making the assault.

Mrs. Alexson stated that Bell, whom she identified as the negro, who attacked her, overtook her on the road and attempted to start a conversation with her. He asked her if she would be his sweetheart. Then he seized her, held the point of his knife at her breast and told her that if she would not, he would kill her. A grapple followed in which Mrs. Alexson, who is middle aged and the mother of a family, succeeded in disarming her assailant. Both she and the negro suffered cut hands and arms.

BOSTON, Dec. 30—(AP)—Thomas J. Brown of North Weymouth, charged with conspiracy to smuggle and smuggling liquor, was found guilty by a jury in federal court today on all three counts of the indictment. George W. Hunt of Quincy and John J. Schlieff of North Weymouth, indicted with Brown, pleaded guilty and testified for the government.

In the course of their testimony yesterday Schlieff and Hunt said that traffic between Rum Row and the shore had been carried on with the knowledge of the coast guard. Brown informed them, it was testified, that if accosted by certain coast guard boats they should say, "this is George Talbot's boat. We will see you later." They told of successfully reaching shore with liquor and of being arrested by customs authorities.

Rum Running Was A Losing Venture

Sir Broderick Hartwell Declares That He Has Liabilities of $1,200,000, With Dubious Assets.

LONDON, Dec. 30—(AP)—The seven hundred investors who took a flyer in rum running, many of them women, got little comfort out of a statement which Sir Broderick Hartwell, England's titled rum-runner, made today at a meeting of his creditors.

Sir Broderick appeared in the bankruptcy court. He declared that his liabilities were £250,000 ($1,200,000). And that his only assets were amounts due from dealers who got the liquor in the United States and have not paid him, and apparently never will.

The final shipment which Sir Broderick sent to the United States, he asserted, alone was worth $20,000, but in this case his partner and the dealers to whom the liquor was turned over never paid a cent.

The baronet explained that he met an American in 1923, who asked him to ship liquor to the United States. Eventually several shipments were made, and in September, 1924, the seventh and last shipment containing 36,000 cases of proprietery brands of whiskey was dispatched.

Possimistic reports about the weather and the activties of prohibition officers reached him; then came the report from the captain that the ship's crew was in mutiny and he had put in to Halifax, later he was advised that the liquor had been transferred to smaller ships and that 36,000 cases had been seized by prohibition officers.

The creditors gloomily passed a resolution for bankruptcy, and adjourned for the appointment of a trustee.

ERUPTION OF MT. M'KINLEY MAY CHANGE THE CLIMATE

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, Dec. 30.—(AP)—The return of volcanic activity to North America's loftiest peak, Mount McKinley, 20,390 feet high, indicated by the volume of smoke and steam seen rising from the mountain and an earthquake felt here yesterday, is one of a series of volcanic phenomena in which many observers today saw a promise of radical permanent climatic changes for this southern part of Alaska.

Since Mount Shishaydin, in the Aleutians, 800 miles southwest of McKinley, erupted Nov. 11, this region has experienced a spring-like November and December unparralleled in the memory of the oldest inhabitant. Streams, usually frozen at this season, have remained open, and in place of the usual snowbound landscape is green vegetation. The affected area covers several hundred square miles, all along Cook inlet, to the northwest of which Mount McKinley rises, and far up into the valley of the Sushitna river. Anchorage had a Fahrenheit temperature of 28 degrees above Christmas day, when the mercury usually is around zero.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION FOR LABOR LEGISLATION

NEW YORK, Dec. 30—(AP)—The value of workingmen's compensation laws, old age pensions, labor insurance, out of work benefits and other means of making the lives of wage earners more comfortable were outlined here tonight by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, in addressing the American Association for Labor Legislation.

Mr. Green emphasized that American ways must be used to correct American wrongs. He mentioned the growth within the last five years in the number of labor banks, thirty three now having been established with resources amounting to $94,000,000. A labor life insurance company has been established, he said, and is preparing to sell insurance on both the individual and group plans.

"Through its support of workmen's compensation legislation," he said, "through the opportunity offered for insurance against sickness and death, and through the education and agitation which is being carried on against the evil of unemployment, labor is contributing very substantially and in a most helpful way to bringing about an ultimate solution of these varying social problems.

Year's Business Kept Good Level Average

Good Profits by Manufacturers and Unusually Large Earnings by Workers in New England.

BOSTON, Dec. 30—(AP)—Good profits by manufacturers and merchants and unusually large earnings by workers have been made in New England in the year 1925, the monthly review made public today by the federal reserve bank said. The volume of production and trade has not been remarkably large at any time during the year, but has been quite constant at a good average level.

The maximum variation between the rate of business activity during the quiet period early last summer and the most active periods of the year, which occurred in January and October, was far less than the minimum variation between the most active and the most quiet periods of any recent year. It has been a "year of prosperity" for an unusually large number of people, and New England has received its share of the toll. The net results of the entire year, however, are somewhat more favorable than the results of the last two months of the year.

"Business was quite active in October, but in November and December there was a noticeable recession, seemed to affect the three basic industries of New England rather more than it did the same industries in other parts of the country. The amount of cotton consumed by New England mills in November was much less than in October, whereas the mills of the cotton-growing states consumed the largest amount of cotton of the current fall season or of the corresponding period in either of the two previous years. For the fourth successive year the New England woolen mills consumed less raw material than in the corresponding month of either of the two previous years, and November consumption also was less than that of October.

"The production of shoes during the last half of the year is usually largest during October, but this year the New England shoe factories were less active in October than in September and in November there was a smaller output of shoes during the month than in either of the two previous Novembers. The building industry continues, as in months past, to be one of the most active industries in New England. Contracts awarded for construction are sufficient to keep the building trades very active throughout the winter, weather permitting. The metal trades report that their active business is due not alone to the supplying of current needs, but most of the production is being used for plant expansion involving capital outlay.

"One of the most noteworthy features of the past year has been the low rate of labor turnover, such a large volume of production as has been made naturally calls for a large number of employes, yet employment office records show that the demand for workers has not been large, nor, on the other hand, have many people been looking for work. The fact seems to be that workers have been efficient and have been well paid for their production.

"Department stores sales have reflected the higher purchasing power of consumers, sales of representative New England stores for the first four weeks of December clearly indicating that Christmas trade this year was the largest on record.

"There has been little change in the banking situation during recent weeks, although money rates have tended to strengthen."

WORTHLESS STOCKS SOLD AT RATE OF $1 FOR 1,000 SHARES

NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Wall street lost hopes and failures represented by 400 batches of "gilt-edged securities" were knocked down by the auctioneer today at the rate of $1 for 1,000 shares.

Worthless stock representing many notorious swindles and honest but unlucky promotion schemes was sold in the exchange sales-room. Few of the sellers were in hand for, as the auctioneer explained, it was "too much like taking a mirror to one's own hanging." The stock was bought in by brokers hoping for a lucky rise.

SECRETARY HOOVER GIVES OPTIMISTIC VIEWS ON ECONOMIC PROSPECTS FOR 1926

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30, In response to many requests from the press Secretary Hoover has made the following statement on economic prospects for 1926:

Any business forecast must be simply an appraisal of the forces in motion at home and abroad, for and against progress. All signs indicate that if we will temper our optimism with a sprinkling of caution we shall continue our high level of prosperity over 1926.

The United States has produced and consumed more goods in 1925 in proportion to population than ever before in its history. Our standard of living has therefore been the highest in our history, and is of course the highest in the world. This improvement, however, has been greater in the urban centers than in agricultural communities.

The dominant favorable factor in our outlook is our increased productivity, due to fundamental and continuing forces—such as the cumulation of education, the advancement of science, skill, and elimination of waste. Other favorable indications on the immediate horizon are that the stocks of commodities are moderate; there is employment for practically everyone; real wages are at a high level; savings are the largest in history and capital is therefore abundant; and the whole machinery of production and distribution is operating at a higher degree of efficiency than ever before. While wholesale prices for the year as a whole have averaged about six per cent higher than for the previous year it is largely due to needed advance in prices of agricultural products.

There are some phases of the situation which require caution. Continuation of real estate and stock speculation and its possible extension into commodities with inevitable inflation; the over-extension of installment buying; the extortion by foreign government-fostered monopolies dominating our raw material imports; the continued economic instability of certain foreign countries; the lag in recovery of certain major agricultural products; the instability of the coal industry; the uncertainties of some important labor relationships—all these are matters of concern. But, as said above, with caution we should continue a prosperous year over 1926.

Agriculture, while it is better than it was two years ago, still leaves the farmers with much accumulated debt, and generally has not gained a stability that makes for contentment because its basic economic problem of market is unsolved. Also it suffers from continued distortion in price relationship of the middle west to the competing foreign countries because our transportation costs to sea board have had to be increased more than those of its foreign competitors. The projected enlarged program of improvement in waterways is of great importance in this matter.

The construction industries have played a very large part in the high business activity of the past three years. The volume of construction has been unprecedented during the past year with consequent great activity in the construction-material industries, iron, steel, lumber, cement, etc. Contrary to normal expectations this increased demand has not increased prices, for there has been a slight reduction in building costs due in a large measure to the gradual lengthening of the building season. The increasing Federal, state, and municipal public works programs for next year together with the promise of large

COAL MINERS AND OWNERS DEADLOCKED IN PARLEYS

Arbitration For Ending the Controversy Remains an Obstacle to Be Surmounted—While the Operators Continue to Urge Arbitration Clause, the Miners Adhere to Their Strong Opposition to That Provision—To Continue Sessions Over the Holiday in Effort to Arrive at Agreement.

NEW YORK, Dec. 30—(AP)—Anthracite miners and operators, deadlocked in their efforts to end the four months coal strike, held another long session today and got no where.

When the joint conference took a recess late today for dinner a brief statement was issued that the discussion took a "wide range" and that a night session would be held.

It was announced that the operators and miners had agreed "that efforts be continued to complete an agreement at this conference."

This announcement confirmed an earlier report that both sides were prepared to sit here on the New Year's holiday and in fact, every day until an agreement is reached.

Little informati n came from the conference room, but such as was publicly made known showed that arbitration as a form for ending the controversy was still the big obstacle to be surmounted.

The agreed statement issued when the recess was taken was as follows:

"The anthracite committee met today at one o'clock and continued discussion of the various plans submitted.

"Chairman Markle again urged adoption of the plan formulated by him, or a better plan if one could be devised to accomplish the same results.

"The operators continued to urge that an arbitration clause be included in any contract. Their position was that arbitration was the only way to prevent deadlocks.

"The miners continued their strong opposition to arbitration."

"Operators and miners agreed that effort be continued to complete an agreement at this conference.

"The discussion took a wide range and continues at the present time."

Neither side would admit that any material progress has been made except to discuss plans that had been submitted to both sides since the joint conference broke up in Atlantic City last August. The only new proposition offer since reaching New York was that of Alvan Markle, chairman of the joint conference, who offered his panacea for the ills of the anthracite industry yesterday.

The Markle plan has occupied the center of the conference stage most of the time and from this the discussion has wandered into many avenue. The miners announced they are opposed to the part of the plan which provides for the appointment of three "impartial citizens" to have the deciding vote in breaking the deadlock on disputed points. They again made it known that they are as strongly opposed to any arbitration as ever and that they will not sign a contract embodying that kind of settlement.

Chairman Markle did not share the opinion of the miners that his plan provided for arbitration as generally understood. He contended that his plan embodies the conciliation board idea only on a larger scale. The conciliation board created by the Roosevelt commission in 1903 interprets the terms of the contract under which the men work. If disputes cannot be settled at the mines the matter is referred to conciliation board which is made up of three operators and three miners. If they fail to agree the dispute is sent to an umpire for final decision. Mr. Markle claims his plan is the same except that instead of having one umpire there are to be three, because the job is a large one.

The operators say that the Markle plan has good features. They have not yet announced complete acceptance of it and this led to a report that they do not like that part of the plan which provides for public accountants, not selected by them going over the books of the coal companies. This feature of the plan also provides that accountants can go over the books every year when modifications in the existing contract are asked for by either side.

Heretofore operators have said they have been perfectly willing to show their books in arriving at a settlement of the strike.

Both President John L. Lewis, of the miners and W. W. Inglis, head the operators negotiating committee, expressed themselves strongly today for continuing negotiations until an agreement is reached. Major Inglis said that there is too much at stake to take a recess over the New Year holiday and so far as the operators were concerned discussion will continue without interruption.

Each side is thoroughly familiar with the other's views on all points of contention and the conference has practically reached the stage where concessions or some other important development can be looked for. Leaders of the miners have made known that they were here to reach a settlement and that they proposed to stick until one is reached.

If it were not for the fact that both sides are anxious to bring an end to the long suspension, it would take very little to break off negotiations. The best of feeling, it was said, continued and operators and miners were again the guests of Chairman Markle at dinner at the Union League club where the conferences are being held.

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, was in New York today to speak at the meeting of the American Association for Labor Legislation. He said he had not come to this city in connection with mining matters.

BOTH SIDES CONFIDENT OF REACHING AGREEMENT

NEW YORK, Dec. 30—(AP)—The anthracite miners' and operators joint wage conference adjourned at midnight without coming to an agreement after being in session eleven hours. They will meet again tomorrow afternoon.

Arbitration on which both sides are deadlocked was again under discussion tonight, with some consideration of the check-off. Opinions were expressed by both sides that a wage contract can be negotiated at the present conference.

The following statement was given out:

"The night session of the conference continued the discussion of arbitration, the operators favoring and the miners opposing the proposition. There was also some discussion of the check-off.

"Both sides expressed the opinion that a contract can and should be negotiated at this conference."

ADMITTED PLANNING THE MURDER OF HER HUSBAND

CHICAGO, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Mrs. Elisa Nusbaum, 58 years old and a grand mother, tonight admitted, police say, that she and four others planned the murder of her husband, Albert Nusbaum, 65 years old, contractor, whose battered body was found early today on a city limits prairie.

The plot was made and executed, Mrs. Nusbaum said, in order that she might be free to marry John Winn, of Clover Point, Ind., an ex-convict and one of those named in the plot. The others named are Edward Gosf, Marion Stringham and Mrs. Delilah Martin. Mrs. Nusbaum's statement completely exonerated her 20-year-old grand-son, who was arrested earlier in the day.

Those who helped her in the plans were to receive money, she said, admitting that she had carried on a love affair with Winn for 15 years. The details of the murder were not revealed, but Mrs. Nusbaum said the three women and two men planned it Monday night and arranged to break into Nusbaum's garage Tuesday and take his automobile in order to have a car to dispose of the body.

Mrs. Nusbaum said it was planned for Gosf and Stringham to kill her husband and take his body to some isolated point in the automobile while she stayed at the home of a son a short distance from her home in order that no suspicion might attach to herself. The plan worked without a hitch.

Gosf was arrested tonight, and Winn is sought. Mrs. Nusbaum's son, Roscoe, told the police of her love affair with Winn which led to her confessions.

Nusbaum's body was found near the point where young Robert Franks, victim of the Loeb-Leopold murder was found.

The head had been battered, but no blood was found on the clothing. A short distance away was an axe with blood on it.

Mrs. Nusbaum said that in 44 years of married life, her husband's one kind act was to bring her ice cream once. Although Nusbaum was paralyzed and unable to walk far, she was so much in terror of him she said that she kept a club handy to ward off possible attacks.

NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Mayor John F. Hylan and Police Commissioner Richard E. Enright resigned today, effective at midnight. Both names went on the city pension lists, the resignation in each case being filed a day in advance of the change in administration to protect the pension rights.

The mayor's pension, approved by the board of estimate this morning, amounts to $4,205.83 a year, and that of the retired police commissioner $6,000 a year.

Mr. Enright's last official act was to announce a list of promotions in his department, including the addition of twenty women from the civil service lists to duty as policewomen, and three promotions in the ranks of inspectors and deputy inspectors.

CITY'S POPULATION 13,286 JUDGED BY TAX TOTALS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 30—Wednesday the personal tax enumerators handed in their lists, disclosing the fact that in this city women are 481 in the majority. Incidentally these figures offer an explanation of the fact that a large percentage of the marriages within the past few years have involved grooms from other cities.

There are 3,563 women and 3,081 men, a total of 6,643 enumerated for the payment of the personal tax during February, 1926. Of this number there are 353 exemptions, leaving 6,090 persons who must pay the tax in the town of Windham. Five workers covered the field, one each for the four wards of the city and one for the Windhams. The list was increased by several hundred names, for the most part in the third and fourth wards where persons coming from other cities to work at the American Thread company plant are liable for the tax payment. The names of men and women from 21 to 60 appear on the lists. Figuring on the basis of double the number of names on the enumerators lists the town's population can be estimated at 13,286. This comparatively low figure is explained by the fact that not as many new people have arrived since the strike last March as have left the city. The 1920 population was 13,801.

The total of 553 exemptions was made in the following order: World war veterans, 264; Spanish war veterans, 37; active firemen, 13; ex-firemen, 108; active militia, 23; ex-militia, 63; active U. S. army, 1; ex-U. S army 7; active U. S. navy, 3; ex-U. S. navy 18; active policemen, 10; ex-policemen 1; widows of soldiers, sailors and marines, 5; students in colleges, 9 war nurse, 1. The enumerations by wards are: First ward, F. Wilbert Jacobs, enumerator, men 589, women 648 total 1,237; second ward, William Palmer, enumerator, men 845, women 1,086, total 1,931; third ward, Helidore Trudeau, enumerator, men 749, women 856, total, 1,605; fourth ward, E. F Ellsworth, enumerator, men 545, women 625, total 1,170; Windhams, Everett Potter, enumerator, men 353, women 347, total 700.

The exemptions in the first ward total 97; in the second ward, 134; third ward, 104, and fourth ward 175; the Windhams, 43. In the fourth ward there are 91 World war veterans exempted and 41 ex-firemen. Windham Center has one Spanish war veteran and 17 World war veterans.

JEWETT CITY

BOROUGHITES ASSURED OF 1926 ICE SUPPLY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, Dec. 30—Ice cutting in this section will commence within a few days. The two local ice dealers were on their fields at the Dorrville pond Wednesday afternoon, where cuttings were made and the ice measured. The thickness was found to differ on different parts of the pond, varying from 6 inches on the mainfields, to 9 inches in quiet coves.

Shea Bros. will start cutting at a mean thickness of 9 inches; they have practically none left in their five big houses, having sold more last summer than ever before When cutting began a year ago, Shea Bros. had 500 tons of the crop of 1923 remaining untouched.

The ice is fine and clear, it froze quickly, and late Wednesday evening was hard as flint.

When cutting begins, nothing will stop the harvest until 3,000 tons are housed.

Mr. Bellavance, has enlarged his house on Hawkins' cove during the summer, and expects to cut close to 2,000 tons, some of which will be stacked outside. Mr. Bellavance will have full nine inches Thursday morning, but he thought Wednesday evening he would wait for 10 inches.

Not all the volumes of Jewett City's history have been completed, with the long list of benefits that marks the turning of the last leaf of 1925. In many of the years that have passed there has been chronicled tales of unstable business conditions, stories of the ravages of disease, and for the year 1936, the volume would tell of the great flood that all but relegated this town to the list of those that were. The year just passing, finds Jewett City and the town of Griswold, not only wide-awake to in every branch of business and manufacturing many opportunities, but thriving [illegible]

The industrial plants are running on fair weekly schedule, paying a fine operating organization a living wage.

There is no rumor of strike, dissatisfaction or business depression within the local border. Many stores of various kinds are rejoicing in increased neighborhood trade, and upon their shelves and counters good values are offered for sale. Thanks to the finest of water and an alert medical fraternity, the health of this town has never been better. Efficient teachers are giving fine results in the town's schools, with Riverside ranking with the best grammar schools in Connecticut.

The borough has fine banking facilities and an excellent library. Second to no others of the institutions of the borough is its fire-company. The town is a unit in its belief that no condition of whatever sort must exist to handicap its efficiency, or make its duties more than necessary hardship.

Tangible evidence of prosperity is noted in the fact of the thousands of dollars that have been used in the erection of new property, both of a private and business nature. Then, too, none who avail themselves of their invaluable blessings, will fail to appreciate the church facilities of Jewett City, with helping hands and open doors, they stand as a lasting instrument for the public good.

After a string of five days during which the mercury here has hugged the cypher most of the time, never rising above the freezing point, Wednesday evening, the "snap" showed evidence of breaking. DANIELSON

PROPOSED GREEN HOLLOW LINE SURVEY PROBABLE SOON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Dec. 30—In all probability a survey of the proposed Green Hollow trunk line highway route will be made during the course of the winter. Indications are that the present Green Hollow route through Killingly and Plainfield, to a point near Central Village, will not be followed in its entirety. The prospect is for certain changes in the interest of better grades and elimination of curves. The Green Hollow route is largely a good route as it is, but there are opportunities to be rid of certain sharp curves that were not considered as dangerous in old-time traffic movements and to have easier grades than at present. Undertaking of the survey does not necessarily mean that the state highway department is on the verge of undertaking the construction work. There may be considerable delay about that, especially in view of the fact that the Green Hollow project is in for some stiff opposition in Killingly and Plainfield so long as the state insists that it will abandon to town care the present state highway route between Danielson, Wauregan and Central Village once the proposed Green Hollow route is constructed and ready for use.

COLUMBUS SMITH'S FUNERAL HELD ON WEDNESDAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Dec. 3—At the home of his sister, Mrs. C. H. Pellett, North Main street, Wednesday at 11 o'clock, a prayer service for Columbus Smith, a native of Caeterbury, was conducted by Rev. C. J. Armstrong, of Danielson Baptist church. A motor cortege proceeded from Mr. Pellets at Westminster, where the funeral service was held in the Congregational church, Rev. C. J. Armstrong officiating, assisted by Rev. T. E. Davies, venerable pastor of the church. Burial was in Westminster cemetery. The bearers were three nephews, Clinton Pellett, Ray W. Pellett and Everett Pellett, and Rodney Lloyd. A. F. Wood was the funeral director.

Though all hunting and fishing licenses of residents of the town of Killingly expire at midnight tonight, few appeared to be much agitated about it up to Wednesday afternoon. At that time Town Clerk Frank T. Preston had issued but 12 combination licenses (hunting and fishing) and two hunting licenses.

The combination licenses are something new. They may be had for $3.75 and are good for all of 1926. A separate fishing license or a separate hunting license costs $2.25 for either one for the coming year, so there is a saving for the man who likes to both fish and hunt in taking out the combination license.

In view of the fact that there is good ice fishing now, the first of the season and considering the fact that game officials will be out checking up fishermen on New Years day and thereafter, it seemed strange Wednesday that so few new licenses had been taken out up to that time. Several hundred licenses have been held in town during 1925.

For this eve of the New Year, Danielson people have many and various plans. All of them have something to do with watching the old year out and the new year in. It would appear that there is to be both and exodus and an influx of people. Many will go from here to other places for their New Years party and many will come from other places to Danielson for their good time. Dances, special entertainments home gatherings figure in the programs of those who would be gay, and there appears to be a great tendency in that direction. But not all are pleasure bent. More serious-minded people have different plans for this evening. Watch Night services will hold the attention of some of these, while others will watch the passing of the old year and the birth of the new in serious contemplation of what the next twelve months may hold in store for them.

When the weather permits, work is being done on drains and shoulders of the new state highway between Morin avenue and Danielson. Considerable work remains to be done along the route of this new construction. Much of this will not be done until spring, because of the nature of it. A removal of what remains of the trolley line along the route of the new state highway is looked for in the spring. This means the taking away of the rails and ties and possible the overhead. The new motor coach line having demonstrated that it can adequately care for the traffic to be handled, there is no possibility of the unprofitable trolley service being resumed. The line to the north has gone the way of the line once existing between East Killing and Providence, insofar as operation is concerned.

Like an unexpected forward pass that gets away nicely for a good catch and a 70 yard run for a touchdown, old winter handed out a surprise to Killingly people Wednesday morning, by producing the lowest sub-zero temperature of the season. Observations made between 5:30 and 7 a. m., in various sections of the borough and other parts of the town showed readings of from 7 to 13 below zero. Reports of 12 below came from a number of people. There was no indication during Tuesday evening of this unexpected downward plunge of the mercury. Though the temperature was so low, Wednesday morning was not near so disagreeable nor so chilling as Sunday morning, when the temperature was considerably higher. The high wind prevailing Sunday was charged with causing the undue severity of the day. Wednesday morning was calm, but really Arctic in its cold.

New Year's day, the postoffice will be open until 10 a. m., after which hour no further business will be transacted, excepting the despatch of mails. The office lobby will remain open during the day, so that box holders may get their mail. No money order business will be transacted and there will be the other usual holiday restrictions.

At the end of the year, Postmaster E. H. Keach, for himself, and on behalf of the entire force, expressed great satisfaction over the manner in which the local public responded during the Christmas season to the department's appeals to mail Christmas packages early. The promptness of the public in getting packages into the mails better distributed the work of the force and made possible the giving of better service to the public. Appreciating all of this Postmaster Keach and the postal workers were wishing all a very happy New Year.

Statements to be issued the first day of the year will show that Danielson's banks have total assets pressing close to the $11,000 mark, this representing a remarkable growth during the past decade. It is the high mark for Windham county.

Two to three more inches of ice on Quinebaug lake and harvesting of the season's crop can begin down there, a prospect in which the borough is interested.

There's no telling how many will be at the county jail in Brooklyn as prisoners on New Year's day, but there were 48 in the institution on Wednesday.

Joseph Owen, 44, who died Tuesday as told in Wednesday's Bulletin, was for years a resident of Danielson.

Maria Irene St. Germaine, 7 months old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henri St. Germaine, died Wednesday at their home on Dyer street.

Some fairly good strings of pickerel have been taken from nearby bodies of water the past two days by men fishing through the ice.

Among the basketball teams playing at the state armory are the Radio and the Static fives. Static, if it lives up to its name, should win at least as many times as it loses, this winter.

Watch today for the first display of 1926 motor vehicle markers on cars operating hereabouts. Scores of people have them ready to use.

Arthur A. DelMonte, of Holyoke, is spending the holiday season with friends in Danielson.

Failure to get any action in opening up the new Main street bridge and to eliminate a detour is becoming more irksome every day and the complaints about the matter are multiplying.

A non-support case to have been tried before Judge W. Fenner Woodward in town court Wednesday was continued until today (Thursday).

In honor of Misses Claudia and Florida Bernier, who are leaving Friday night to spend the winter in Florida, numbers of their friends tendered them a going away party Wednesday evening at Pellett's hall, and it was a very delightful event.

Royal C. Rawson, long a well known resident of this town, was reported Wednesday afternoon as critically ill at the Day Kimball hospital, in Putnam. Mr. Rawson, who has been in failing health for two or three years underwent a surgical operation a few days ago, rallied and then became more seriously ill again.

At the close of the year and following a meeting of its directors, it is announced by the Danielson Trust company, that it has declared a regular semi-annual dividend of three per cent., and an extra dividend of one per cent. The Trust company's final statement of the year issued today will show that the year has been a very prosperous one and that the assets of the institution, founded in 1914 are now in excess of $2,000,000, the savings department, founded three years ago, having over a million in deposits.

See display adv. of School Street garage, this page today.—adv.

At All Hallows church, in Moosup Wednesday morning, there was a solemn mass of requiem for Guilleime Benoit, uncle of Rev. Oscar Normand curate of All Hallows' parish. Rev. Oscar Normand, Rev. J. C. Mathieu and Rev. J. E. McCarthy were the officers of the mass, which was attended by a large congregation. Burial was in All Hallows' parish cemetery. PUTNAM

ALDRICH INFANT DIE AS THE RESULT OF BURNS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Dec. 30.—Eva May Aldrich, nine months old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Wesley Aldrich, died this morning at Day Kimball hospital from burns caused by her baby carriage being set on fire. Her two sisters, the older only four, had secured some matches and lighting one threw it at her baby sister, setting fire to the drapery of the buggy which blazed up in an instant. Their screams brought their mother from another room and when she saw the baby enveloped in flames she fainted. The attention of neighbors was attracted by the smoke and they rescued the child and sent in a fire alarm.

Dr. Karl T. Phillips was called and took the child to the hospital but its back and the back of its head were so badly burned that death resulted this morning. Mrs. Aldrich is still prostrated over the affair. The father is an employe of the Putnam Woolen company.

FEW CHANGES EXPECTED IN NEW COUNCIL OFFICERS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Dec. 30.—The first meeting of the newly elected city council will be held next Tuesday evening, January 5. Mayor Victor Chapdelaine and Alderman-at-Large Charles A. Richard succeed themselves, as do all of the ward members with the exception of the democratic representation from Ward 1, Charles A. Ryan taking the place of Eugene Berthiame.

Mr. Ryan has spent the last month in the Naval hospital at Newport, R. I., being treated for eye trouble that followed gassing which he suffered at Verdun seven and one-half years ago. The medical authorities at the hospital do not think he will have any further trouble with his eyes.

So far as is known the organization of the council and the selection of officers will be practically the same as now. This means the reappointment of William Jarvis as captain of police and Ralph E. Thurston as head of the fire department. The other members of the police force will also be the same as far as is known. Thomas P. Ryan, who has been the very efficient city clerk during several past administrations will succeed himself as will Frank Dumas as superintendent of streets.

PUTNAM, Dec. 30.—Mrs. Adeline Johnson Modock, 83, widow of Henry Modock died at Woodstock town farm after a brief illness from influenza. She had a little home of her own but as she was in failing health and her mind becoming affected she was taken to the town farm where she could receive good care.

The funeral service was held Wednesday and burial was in the Center cemetery. Mrs. Modock was part negro and part Indian. Her husband was born in slavery and when given his freedom came north when quite young. Mrs. Modock was born on Fifth avenue, New York city, where her mother was at that time in service for a wealthy family. Her father was employed on a ship that plied between New York and the West Indies and on which her mother had been a stewardess. When Adeline Johnson was 7 years old she came to North Woodstock to live with her grandmother, Mrs. McCoy. She was a good scholar and always a great reader. She was a regular attendant at church and was to be seen at almost every funeral, sometimes walking miles to attend. She was 83 years old last August and leaves no near relatives.

A four days session of the Association of American Schools and Department of Journalism began in New York Monday and was attended by many noted scientists and college instructors. Prof. Malcolm Willey of Putnam, an instructor in sociology at Dartmouth college, who has been spending part of his vacation with his mother, Mrs. Helen Willey on Oak Hill, was on the programme for an address on "The Country Weekly."

The Putnam Masonic club was organized Tuesday night with a charter membership of sixty and it is expected that this number will soon be doubled. The following officers were elected: President, William E. Moss; vice president, Everett Packard; secretary, Stanley Shaw; treasurer, Lucius P. Merriam. Directors, members of a house committee, membership committee, and entertainment committee will be named later. It was voted to lease the Arcanum club house and the furnishings. Judge Geissler submitted a constitution and by-laws based on the government of the Masonic clubs in other cities, modified to meet local requirements. He also referred to the fact that the property itself, which has a frontage of 64 feet on South Main street and extends a distance of 167 feet through to School street, would certainly increase in value; that at some future date it migh prove an ideal site for a new Masonic Temple. The title of the property is invested in the Arcanum Club Association in the form of shares of $100 each, nearly all of which is owned by members of the Masonic order.

Miss Priscilla Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur E. Smith, of Seward street, has resigned as operator of the X-ray machine and labratory technician at the Day Kimball hospital. Miss Smith goes to the Evans Memorial in connection with the Homeopathic Hospital in Boston and will begin her new duties January 4, 1926.

At a meeting of the Putnam Rotary club, the president, Ralph C. Jenkins announced that Rev. James C. English had been appointed secretary of the club to succeed Henry A. Lyon who goes to Norwich. A discussion was held on the subject of equalization of taxation. Judge Geissler gave a few statistics of towns where it had proved beneficial to town and tax payers. Other members also voiced their opinion on the subject. After the discussion the club voted that it be recorded in favor of equalization.

R. G. Deming will be the speaker at the Americanization rally to be held in the auditorium of the High school Tuesday evening. Mr. Deming is state director of Americanization. Besides the address there will be shown a picture "The Land of Opportunity".

The public is privileged to attend this meeting.

Mrs. Phoebe Louise Eaton Weeks, 86, who died at her home in Pomfret came from one of the oldest families in New England and whose members helped to develop the country. She was born at Fitchburg, Mass. Her grandmother was a Fitch and her ancestors founded the town which was named after them. George F. Works her husband, died twenty years ago just after they had moved here from West Newton, Mass. He was a Harvard graduate and a successful lawyer at West Newton but gave up the practice of law in hope of regaining his shattered health. Mrs. Works body will be taken to Fitchburg for burial.

Attorneys from different parts of the county are here today (Thursday) to confer with State's Attorney Howard C. Bradford, in reference to criminal cases. The criminal side of the supreme court will open here Tuesday, January 5 and the docket is a lengthy one. Included in it are three cases of manslaughter the result of fatal automobile accidents. None of them is from Putnam.

Compared with other towns there were but few arrests in Putnam for undue celebration of the Christmas holiday. An automobile party from Providence was before the city court. The driver was drunk and his three companions were in a similar condition. They were given light sentences. Monday morning there was one plain drunk and that constituted the list of violators of the Volstead law during the three-day holiday.

Postmaster Macdonald reports that all Christmas packages were delivered by eight o'clock on Christmas eve. The postmaster, clerks and carriers of the Putnam post-office are grateful to the public for the early mailing and cooperation during the holiday season.

Guy L. Baker now located in Florida, was here this week on a brief business trip. Mr. Baker was the assistant cashier of the First National Bank of Putnam.

William Mansfield, Jr., who drove to Florida in company with E. C. Rogers of the Putnam Inn has returned to his home on Ring street. Mr. Rogers returned to Putnam several days ago.

The presentation of "The Midshipman" at one of the local theatres this week had a special interest for Putnam people as Luke White, a midshipman at Annapolis was one of the numerous actors in the picture. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael L. White.

Clarence Cutter of Jersey City, N. J., a visitor with relatives at Wilsonville chopped off his left thumb on Tuesday. He is receiving care at the Day Kimball hospital here.

TOO CLOSE

Taking chances at a railroad crossing is an old story. It has resulted in many untimely deaths and yet there are those who seem to think that they bear charmed lives and can do what other people have been unable to. They actually seem to accomplish this for a while, but they are the ones who invariably pay the too high price for their carelessness.

Rushing up to the gates at a railroad crossing in the expectation of sliding under them before they descend, or planning upon stopping suddenly if it becomes necessary may satisfy some people that they are playing safe. And yet it should be remembered that what can be done under favorable conditions is out of the question under others.

At the Saugus, Mass., railroad crossing a driver approached under the icy conditions of the past several days. A train was coming and the gates were descending. The speed was such that the car could not be brought to a stop on the icy roadbed, because the attempt to do so was not made early enough. The alternative was to crash into the gates and get across in front of the train. He put on speed and went through the gates to the other side just as the engine crossed the spot where he car has been but a few seconds before.

The crossing was known and marked, but there was no disposition to slow down in approaching it until it was suddenly disclosed that a train was coming. Then it was too late to stop the car. The driver by good fortune and rare presence of mind managed to get out of the bad predicament, but it was altogether too close. There is no justification for the taking of such chances and there would be no need for it if there were the proper respect paid to such danger spots and a desire on the part of the highway users to avoid the near accidents as well as the actual and distressing ones. A little less speed as crossings are approached will prevent the close and the actual accidents.

SAILING VESSELS PASSING

When the Edward J. Lawrence was burned in Portland harbor this week it marked the passing of the six masters. There was a time a couple of decades or so ago when such vessels were regarded as important in coastwise trade, and in trade with foreign ports. A number of them were built. Some of them have been wrecked and some burned, but they have all disappeared in one way and another. The Edward J. Lawrence has changed hands a number of times and had come to be regarded as outliving its usefulness and destined soon for the scrapheap. Its unexpected destruction, however, only hastened the end.

But while this type of sailing vessel has gone it is also apparent that the windjammers of other days are greatly depleted. The sailing vessel is too slow for present day requirements. Most have gradually yielded to steam and even the steamers which depended upon coal are giving way to the oil burners and the vessels with Diesel engines.

It was not so many years ago that a steady stream of sailing vessels was to be seen skirting the coast most any day in both directions. There were the days when two and three stickers and occasionally a four sticker brought lumber and other commodities to this city. It is a long time since a sailing vessel was seen here and those along the coast are decreasing every year. Where there used to be fleets of them leaving shelters after a storm or a fog, the number is few today. It cannot be said that they have gone but they are going. The proud and stately six masters were not replaced as they dropped out. They were large carriers and capable of making much money, but they were slow and unable of compete with the fast moving vessels which were not dependent upon the wind, and which did not have to lay to during a calm.

The passing of the sailing vessels carries its regrets quite the same as the dropping out of the horses in fire departments. It is however in keeping with the demand for more speed and general progress.

PROGRESS IN FRANCE

After floundering about for some time France seems to be headed for an adjustment of some of its financial problems, temporarily at least. Premier Briand has been encountering enough opposition to discourage most people. He has received more threats that the financial programme would not be supported unless it met the approval of the radicals, but he has obtained the consent of those in the cabinet who have been maintaining an insurgent compromise but it nevertheless means progress and that is what France is greatly in need of. It is time that something was done.

While the approval of the cabinet members does not mean the adoption of the programme it nevertheless gives hope that the yielding on the part of the cabinet members and their agreement to stand by it will be reflected in the action that is to be taken by the chamber of deputies. It gives indication that the Briand ministry is going to be permitted to do something toward solving the problems it faces even though politics yields.

A start never means ultimate success, but it must be made in order to get anywhere. As long as politics was choking discussion of the remedies that are called for to meet the situation in France there could be no hope. Progress was stalled. France was not without means of acting but it was being prevented from doing anything. The cabinet approval of the Doumer plan paves the way for similar action by the chamber. There will be plenty of opposition to be overcome is that body, but it is long since time that politics should give way for the welfare of the country and it is to be hoped that this is being realized by those who have been furnishing the obstruction.

USING THE TROLLEYS

The report of the street railway company in Baltimore for the eleven months of this year is being used to uphold the claim that the people are once more turning to the trolley cars for city transportation and giving up the use of the auto. This report shows that there were nearly 445,000 more persons who rode on the Baltimore cars in 1925 than in 1924, or at least that many more fares were collected.

Perhaps those figures may justify the claim that is being made but it doesn't appear that there are not other factors to account for this increase which of course means only a little over a thousand more fares a day on the average. But Baltimore is attributing it to the parking restrictions and the impatience with traffic regulations.

That there is ground for such feeling can be appreciated. What is true in Baltimore concerning them is true everywhere else. Driving downtown and finding a parking place takes longer and creates a worse disposition than using the trolleys. In Philadelphia the trolley company is even encouraging the use of the carbarns for parking and riding into the center on the electrics, and it is a proposition that must make a strong appeal.

In the cities there is no reason to expect that the end of the street cars is in sight. Too many depend upon that mode of transportation and only when something else is tried is there full appreciation of the reliance that can be placed in a well managed and carefully scheduled service. Others may differ with Baltimore on figures and opinions but there's no getting away from the fact that an increased patronage of its trolley lines does not mean an abandonment of that type of service.

CHRISTMAS TREES

This is the time of year when the greatest amount of attention is being given to the much discussed wasted Christmas trees. They have served their purpose and they have been thrown into the backwards, except in some instances where they are allowed to remain for decorative purposes.

The Christmas tree at best is in use but a few days. Then there is nothing else to do but throw it away or possibly cut it up for stove wood, and it is against this casting aside of the many trees that there has been so much protest.

When the American Forestry association and others who are deeply interested in forestry take the position that raising Christmas trees is a commercial enterprise which conflicts in no serious manner with the forestry work that is needed there is likely to be less agitation on this subject. Christmas trees if allowed to grow would not provide the timber that is required in this country, for the most part they are not the type of trees that furnish the lumber supply.

The Christmas tree demand is a legitimate one. It is catered to in northern states and much time and attention is given to providing the necessary supply. The idea of getting the people to devise and accept a substitute hasn't met with any appreciable response and it seems highly improbable that it will. With enough new trees being set out each year to offset the inroads that are made in the supply there is no menace that the Christmas trees will disappear. As long as there are dollars enough to buy they will be provided.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Perhaps the lengthening of the days is the reason for the cold snap.

The man on the corner says: What are you going to quit on the stroke of twelve tonight?

It will be necessary for those in conference to move lively if they expect the coal strike to be settled this year.

Clung to persistently all through the year there's little time now before the 1925 calendar goes into the discard.

Whip the resolutions for the New Year into shape before the eleventh hour. A hurried job is frequently a poor job.

Tobacco sheds seem to be about as bad for inviting fires as do ice houses and summer hotels that are about to open.

How many of those who heard the Liberty bell ring when last sounded will hear it when tapped on the entrance of the New Year?

Next to the burden of millions of Christmas cards the postmen will be loaded down with the last of the old year's bills this week end.

Those who are complaining of the severity of the December weather in this region can even sympathize with those who are sweltering under 110 in the shade in Argentina.

Getting together for a conference is one thing but coming to an agreement on the questions in dispute is not going to be quickly done by the coal miners and operators.

When the successor of General Butler in Philadelphia insists the hotels in that city will be dry New Year's eve he is promising a great deal and displaying much confidence.

INCONSITENT MAN

"Men are the most inconsistent creatures on the face of the earth," remarked Annette, as she was finishing her typing.

"Did you just wake up?" demanded Geraldine, who was waiting for her so that the might go home together.

"Well, you know how they are—forever talking about women being inconsistent. But believe me, they've got nothing on us, my dear. You remember my telling you about that man I met at Lina's party?"

"Uh-huh. Mr. Lantry, you mean?"

"Mr. Lantry," nodding her dainty bobbed head with feigned sternness. "Well, ever since that day—I guess it was about three months ago—Mr. Lantry has been urging me to go out with him. And I haven't gone yet!"

"I thought you liked him."

"I do," confessed Annette, blushing. "And his persistency led me to think that he felt the same way, but I can see now that it was only the fact that I didn't go that made him so anxious. The very next day after the party he phoned me at home and asked me to go to a show with him. Well, an old aunt of mine was staying at our house, and she stepped right in and slipped me some advice before I could say anything.

"'Tell him you can't make it this week, she whispered, with her hand on the mouth-piece. 'Don't ever show a man how anxious you are.'"

"Well, Aunt Lorinda was a belle in her day. Mother says she had enough beaus for every day in the month, with extra ones thrown in for holidays. So I took her advice, and very sweetly told Mr. Lantry that I was very sorry, but I had just glanced through my engagement book and every single evening, bi, week was taken."

"Sheer suicide."

"Yes, I know. But somehow it seemed to work. Perhaps Mr. Lantry's the kind that comes back harder every time he gets knocked down. Anyway, he immediately asked me to name some evening the following week. But Aunt Lorinda was standing beside me, shaking her head at me like mad—she's a very masterful sort—and some demon prompted me to say that I couldn't arrange for anything right then. Well, he hung up after a few minutes, and then I realized what I'd done.

"'He'll never call again,' I turned upon Aunt Lorinda. 'What else can he think but that I didn't like him?'

"'Nonsense!' Aunt Lorinda retorted. 'Your Uncle Lionel never let a little thing like that stop him from courting me. He had to wait three weeks the first time I went out with him, but it only made him more anxious than ever. Mr. Lantry'll be the same, you mark my words Annette,' she told me."

"Aunt Lorinda must have been some beauty," admired Geraldine.

"She was. But I was sure her advice was all wrong until two days later, when he called me up again. We made a date that time, and then I came down with that horrid sore throat and had to call it off. I didn't know I'd have to have my tonsils out, so I just phoned Mr. Lantry that I was ill and couldn't keep the engagement."

"And didn't he run up to see you while you were sick?"

"That was the worst part of it. He called me on the phone the same afternoon to see how I felt, and our new maid, who's always wrestling with the English language, couldn't say anything except 'Miss Annette not home!' I was at the hospital having my tonsils out then."

"That's rich," giggled Geraldine.

"I learned about that two weeks later, and finally we did arrange to lunch together. I was all set for the occasion, new dress, marcel and everything. And that morning his stenographer phoned that 'Mr. Lantry was sorry, but he was at a conference and couldn't leave.'"

"Maybe he was," defended Geraldine.

"Well, then he might have got in touch with me since. That was two weeks ago. It just goes to show how inconsistent men are. Just as soon as he was sure of my going——"

The phone bell interrupted and Geraldine watched her friend's eyes brighten as she answered it.

"It's Mr. Lantry," announced Annette hanging up at last. "He's been out of town for two weeks. We're going out for certain tomorrow, and he said that he'd kill anything that got in the way."—Exchange.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Mail Clerks and Congress

Mr. Editor: Not many moons ago the mail clerks held a meeting at Springfield, Mass., to pave the way for the seventh game that is to come down out of the sleeve for the consideration of our brilliant statesmen at Washington, D. C., at this session of the 69th congress.

Our brilliant statesmen have already put six games across in recent years and ably not the seventh?

Doubtless the leaders of the Mail Clubs association have our statesmen sized up for just what they are, weaklings on business principles.

Our statesmen instead of basing their acts on business principles, base their acts on cheap John excuses, goldbrick agreements, hard-hit propaganda, high morale philosophy, and 500,000 votes that are cast contrary to the spirit and lettering of the law; last, but not least, a swelled vote on election day as a reward for being a skingame statesman!

Solution of Yesterday's Puzzle

A Year of Interesting Centenaries

NEW YORK, Dec. 30—The year about to begin will be marked by many interesting centenaries, both in America and in Europe. A century ago both continents were emerging upon a marvelous era of industrial expansion, due to the birth of the steam railways and the invention of labor-saving machinery. The year 1826 also was marked by notable progress in science, the arts and literature.

The people of the United States commemorated the semi-centennial of their independence. The Fourth of July, the great day of celebration, became noted in American history by the simultaneous death of two patriots and former presidents, Thomas Jefferson and John Adams.

In the annals of the American stage the year 1826 is remembered for the first appearance of the three great actors, Edwin Forrest, William C. Macready and James H. Hackett. Cooper brought out his "Last of the Mohicans," and James Kent published his "Commentaries on American Law." In England arts and letters flourished in the same degree. Scott and Coleridge were at the height of their fame. Alfred Tennyson published his earliest verses in conjunction with his brother; Elizabeth Barrett also brought out her first poems and Macaulay was adding to his fame with his essays.

The first railway in the United States, a horse-power line 3 miles long, was completed at Quincy, Mass., for carrying granite to tide-water. Western Reserve college was founded in 1826, and the state libraries of Massachusetts and Maryland came into existence the same year. The first large suspension bridge in the world was opened across the Menai Straits.

The Society of the War of 1812 was organized in New York. A charter was granted for the Mohawk and Hudson railroad, the first link in the New York Central system. Kerosene was first used for illuminating purposes. Nashville became the capital of Tennessee.

Throughout the greater part of the year 1826 Brazil and Argentina waged a war for the possession of Uruguay. The military ambition of Nicholas I, the new Czar of Russia, found vent in a war of conquest in Persia.

In the domain of science, Thomas Drummond perfected his limelight. Herschel worked out his spectrum analysis, and Fox Talbot contributed his share by his observation of the orange

What Peter Bumped His Nose Against

Sometimes by being brought up short A needed lesson we are taught.
—Peter Rabbit.

When Peter Rabbit bumped his nose just after he dived through the entrance of Johnny Chuck's house he bumped it hard. But it wasn't the pain of the bump that Peter minded. He didn't even think of that. It was the sudden fear that sent shivers to chasing each other all over him. Something was blocking that hall, and he was only a little way inside and Reddy Fox was just outside. In fact, Peter wasn't far enough in to be at all sure that Reddy couldn't reach him. He was quite sure that Reddy couldn't get through that doorway, because it was between two rocks, but he could reach in.

"You may as well come out right now," declared Reddy.

That is just what Reddy did do. With first one black paw and then the other black paw Reddy reached in and felt around for Peter. He could just touch Peter, but that was all. However, that was quite enough for Peter. It kept him flattened against the thing he had bumped his nose against and trying to make himself as small as possible. And all the time Reddy was saying unpleasant things. He was telling Peter that the time had come at last when he, Reddy, would have Peter for his dinner. He promised Peter to wait right outside that doorway until Peter should come out.

"You may as well come out right now, for you can't get any farther down that hall of Johnny Chuck's," declared Reddy. "I can stay out here as long as you can stay in there, and I am going to stay until you come out."

For a time Peter was too much occupied with keeping beyond the reach of Reddy's black paws to think of anything else. But, when Reddy stopped reaching for him and sat down to keep watch, Peter began to wonder what had happened in that long hall and what it was he had bumped his nose against so hard.

He soon found what it was. It was a wall of frozen earth. It filled that hall completely. There wasn't even a tiny hole through it. Peter tried to dig through it, but it was frozen so hard that he knew he would simply wear his toe nails off for nothing. How did it get there? That was what puzzled Peter. Once in the summer Peter had been down in there when Reddy Fox had been at his heels, and he knew that hall was a long one. He knew that Johnny Chuck and Polly Chuck had gone down to their snug bedroom late in the fall and hadn't come out again.

Then how did this wall of frozen earth like a closed door happen to be there? And if Johnny and Polly Chuck were still down below what had happened to them? How could they breathe without air? Perhaps their back door was still open and they were getting air in that way. If not, how could they live?

Peter was sorely puzzled. There was something queer about this. There was something he couldn't understand at all. Where had this wall of frozen earth come from and who had put it there? Peter's curiosity was almost as great as his fright. Why was it that Reddy Fox seemed to know all about it? How was it that Reddy knew that he, Peter, couldn't get any farther? Peter had thought that he knew all about Johnny Chuck and Johnny Chuck's home, but here was something he didn't know about. And not knowing about it had nearly cost him his life. If that back door had been a little nearer, a very little nearer the entrance, Reddy could have reached him.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognised by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Company, Atlanta Ga. (adv.)

LEDYARD MAN FACES $10,000 SUIT AS RESULT OF AUTO CRASH

As the result of injuries which he received in an automobile accident last June, Carl Johnson, of Groton has brought suit against Kirk H Wilcox, of Ledyard, for damages of $10,000. Mr. Johnson, according to the complaint was riding in an automobile, driven by Daniel G. Chesebro, along the Norwich road, so called. A machine driven by the defendant, collided with the machine he was riding in, throwing him out and onto the ground.

Plaintiff claims he suffered bruises that his back was injured, his nose broken so that several bones had to be removed from it, his hip was cut and bruised and his forehead lacerated. Negligence on the part of the defendant is alleged as the cause of the accident. The papers in the case were filed Wednesday with the clerk of the superior court in this city.

Another $10,000 damage case was also filed Wednesday with the clerk of the superior court here. This one is brought by Edward Flynn, of Groton, against John Oakes, of Stonington. The suit has been instigated as the result of an alleged slanderous remark which the plaintiff claims the defendant made about December 1, this year. Sullivan attempted to pass the Shurtleff auto, by going around the left of the Shurtleff auto, and in an attempt to pass, Sullivan, operated his car carelessly and negligently, causing the wheels of the two cars to interlock and causing both cars to swerve to the right and off the highway into and against a fence, to break the fence and go down a steep embankment where the car owned by Shurtleff turned over on its side. The plaintiff's clothing was ruined, and she was injured.

George A. Garrett, of Hartford, has filed an appeal from the probate court for the district of East Lyme in the matter of George Coates Garrett, of East Lyme, a minor. He is the boy's father. On Dec. 14, 1925, the probate court, East Lyme district, issued the following order:

LIONS BANQUET AT THE WAUREGAN HOTEL

"Eat and be merry" was the slogan that dominated the supper at the Waureg an hotel Wednesday evening given the members of the theatrical profession, who helped the Norwich Lions club entertain the children of Norwich at the New Year's party on Wednesday noon. Seventeen of the actors with Manager Edward L. McAvoy and Assistant Manager Harry Alwalter were the guests of the Lions and it is safe to say that everyone present had a bang-up good time.

The evening opened with a brief speech of welcome by President "Bill" Anderson who admonished his guests to feel at home and dispense with all formality. They heeded his wishes to the letter and the party became one of those in a thousand. Everybody entered into the spirit of the occasion and the guests entertained the Lions with stories and song and the Lions in their turn reciprocated.

To say that everyone present had a good time would be putting it mildly for entertainers and those being entertained were as one from the start the banquet being voted one of the most pleasing ever by the members of the theatre troupes.

In giving the dinner the Lions expressed their appreciation of the efforts of the actors and actresses without charge to entertain the children of Norwich and the guests expressed themselves as more than repaid by the spirit of friendship shown by the Lions in making their final evening in Norwich a joyful one.

HOLY CROSS DANCE AT WAUREGAN HOTEL

The Wauregan ballroom was the scene of one of the most pleasing late year dances, Wednesday evening, when the first annual semi-formal dance of the Norwich Undergraduate club of Holy Cross college took place.

Over 150 couples attended the dance and enjoyed the various numbers of the programme, which continued until early this (Thursday) morning. Music was furnished by Worthy Hill and his band, of Hartford, and the programme included many special and novelty numbers, among them several spot light dances, the coloring effects being in charge of C. L. Crowley.

The ballroom was most artistically decorated for the dance, color effects and decorations being in purple and white, Holy Cross colors. This effect was nicely handled by Hawkins the Florist, assisted by members of the club. In the center decorations consisted of a massive center piece of purple Uva leaves, with leaders of greens running to the dome lights in the hall. Suspended from the center drop of green, crowned with purple illuminating lights the effect was charming. The patrons corners and entire ballroom was decorated with palms, ferns and wambanked in firs and Holy Cross banners and pennants, the same coloring effect being used on the many lights in the ballroom. The beauty of the hall was commented on by those attending the dance as being most novel and of unusually choice blending.

Beautiful floor lamps, loaned by the several local furniture houses added greatly to the beauty of the ballroom setting.

The list of patrons and patronesses, to whom the committee gives all credit for the success of the first annual dance, is as follows:

SAMUEL COOPER RESIDENCE DESTROYED BY FLAMES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 30—The Samuel Cooper home at Brick Top hill on the Willimantic Windham Center road was totally destroyed by fire which started from an unknown origin about 9 o'clock Wednesday night and was discovered by the Cooper family as they returned from attending a local theatre at 8.15 o'clock. Willimantic firemen under Assistant Chief Michael J. English responded with the chemical truck and succeeded in saving a two car garage which stood a short distance from the burning structure. All that was saved from the building were minor articles, including a washtub and doll carriage.

FAREWELL GIFT FOR PRESIDENT JOE WEYMOUTH

Many were the tugs at the heart strings at the noonday luncheon of the Norwich Rotary club, on Wednesday for it was the last meeting at which J Nelson Weymouth presided as president of the club, he leaving Norwich at the end of the year to take up his duties at New Haven, with the Southern New England Telephone Co. There was a feeling of sadness at the meeting for President Joe has been one of the most devoted members of the club and his heart and soul has been in the work of Rotary.

President Weymouth was one of the charter members of the club and for four years served as its secretary Last March he was elected president of the club, an honor which he richly deserved. Throughout his term of office the affairs of the club were in capable hands and it is with a sincere feeling of regret that the members of the Norwich Rotary club relinquish him to New Haven but their best wishes go with him to his new field.

President Weymouth does not go to New Haven without taking with him some material evidence of the esteem and affection in which he is held by his fellow Rotarians. Dr. Hugh B Campbell, with the past presidents of the club, presented to President and Mrs. Joe, a beautiful mahogany clock and candlesticks, a farewell gift of the club. In making the presentation Dr Campbell spoke of the significance of the clock reminding President Joe that when he looked on the face of the clock to remember the many faces of his Rotarian friends in Norwich, and the hands represent the hands of the Rotarians, always extending a welcome to you and the candlesticks should remind you of the high lights of your life in Rotary. Dr. Campbell expressed the regret of the club in losing Mr. Weymouth and also conveyed to him the best wishes of the club.

President Weymouth feelingly expressed his appreciation of the gift and also spoke of the feeling of sadness with which he was parting from the club. He said that it had been a mighty hard problem for him to decide when he was offered the opportunity to go to New Haven as the ties of friendship formed in the Rotary club were very strong, and he was loathe to break them. President Joe assured the club members that he would always hold dear the memories of his six years in the Norwich Rotary club and that he would endeavor to pay them a visit as time permitted.

Past President Charles A. Saxton, who recently returned from North Carolina, spoke feelingly on the departure of President Weymouth, saying that not only would the Rotary club miss him but that all who knew him in Norwich would regret his leaving. "You were once voted the best Rotarian in the club," said Mr. Saxton "and I think that honor was not misplaced."

The club gave hearty cheers for President Joe and united in singing Auld Lang Syne

At the business session, Dr. Hugh B Campbell acted as song leader and there were the usual chorus numbers and solos. The reports of the various committees were accepted. Alex McNicol announced the following programme for January:

Jan. 6th.—Business methods committee, in charge of W. C. Burry, as five minute speaker; Jan. 13, meeting in charge of the educational committee, with Bert Gager as speaker; Jan. 20th Rev. Alexander H. Abbott in charge with Charles F. Wells as speaker; Jan. 27, business meeting with Mayor Milo R. Waters as speaker. James Roantree will be the song leader for January.

The speaker of the day was William H. Oat, who in a five minute talk gave a brief review of prominent world national and local happenings during the year. Mr. Oat spoke as follows:

As the year nears its close we are wont to cast a reflective eye over the happenings of the past twelve months that have left an indelible impression on the mind of the world. The year 1925 has been a year crowded with events that have made for world progress. In the newspaper circles it is commonly understood that a sensational story or happening is practically dead after nine days and it is forgotten. So it might be well to refresh our memories on things that have taken place during 1925, politically, financially and from a standpoint of world progress.

Politically we find Calvin Coolidge assuming the command of the ship of state guiding it through rough seas and perilous channels into the smoother waters of political calm. President Coolidge had as his mate of this ship Charles G. Dawes who in his opening address to the senate laid down the law to what had been a mutinous crew. The insurgents were dealt with promptly and in more or less drastic measure and with the close of the year we find some of them repentant and falling into line. As has been the rule, and probably always will be, there were many investigations, prominent among them being the aircraft investigation and the court martial of Col Mitchell and the investigation of the Shenandoah disaster. Every one has his own opinion as to whether Col. Mitchell was justly dealt with or not and no comment is necessary. The present indications are that there will be [illegible]

FRANK HINKEY FAMOUS END ON YALE ELEVEN 1891-1894 DIES IN SOUTH

SOUTHERN PINES, N. C., Dec. 30—(AP)—Frank Hinkey, 55, one of Yale's best known football players, died here early today. He had been ill fourteen months with tuberculosis.

Frank Hinkey ranked among the outstanding gridiron stars of all time. In the days when mass play was the vogue, Hinkey played end four years at Yale, from 1891 to 1894, and in the opinion of veteran critics established himself as one of the greatest wingmen of all time.

Hinkey was picked by Walter Camp for his all-American team in each of these four seasons. He captained the Eli team in his last two seasons, an aggregation that also included such famous gridiron figures as "Pudge" Heffelfinger and Butterworth.

Hinkey, despite his diminutive size was one of the fiercest tacklers of the game ever produced. Tremendously strong, fearless, agile and alert, he handled men almost twice his bulk with ease and it was a Yale tradition that Hinkey's end was never turned during his four years of play.

Hinkey had a style of his own and was without a rival as a "ball hawk". His favorite method of tackling was to take on rushing players over his back and throw them with terrific force.

Hinkey, famous as the "silent captain" in his playing days, returned to New Haven after graduation and was end coach for many years, developing such crack men as Tom Shevlin, another of Yale's greatest players, Kilpatrick and Bomeisler. About 12 years ago, Hinkey became head coach, but failing in health he was forced to retire.

Hinkey was born in Tonawanda, N. Y., and prepared for Yale at Andover academy.

While sanatarium officials late today had not received any advices from relatives at his home at North Tonawanda, N. Y., preparations were being made to send the body there.

Hinkey entered the football world in preparatory school at Andover, where he played for two years. He then entered Yale, to make as wide reputation for himself as a gridiron star. He played at right end on the Yale eleven.

YALE EXPRESSES REGRET AT DEATH OF HINKEY

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Yale men expressed keenest regrets here tonight at the death in Southern Pines, N. C., today of Frank Hinkey, Yale football star of 30 years ago.

Tad Jones, head coach at the university, and Harold F. Woodcock, general manager of the Yale Athletic association, see in his "passing a great loss to all Yale men and to football." Frank Butterworth, who was a teammate of Hinkey's for three seasons, said: "Frank Hinkey was the greatest end that ever played football. He always played a hard game which led many to believe that he was a dirty player, but such was not the case. As a coach, Hinkey was a great believer in the lateral pass, which was his specialty. We will all miss Frank—particularly those few of us left who played with him and knew his characteristics and traits better than anyone else."

Coach Jones, who also believed that Hinkey was the greatest "end that ever lived," said he first knew the former Eli captain when he (Jones) was a freshman.

"I have numbered him as a personal and dear friend ever since," Mr. Jones said. "Hinkey as a coach was years ahead of his time and he played no little part in the placing of the gridiron game on the high plane it now occupied."

YALE REGARDED HINKEY AS GIANT AMONG FOOTBALL PLAYER

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 30—(AP)—Frank Hinkey, whose death occurred at Southern Pines, N. C., today was regarded by Yale men as a giant among football players of his own generation and a figure which towered high above players who have followed. It was Chauncey M. Depew who called him, in 1891, the silent man of destiny, as he handed Hinkey his golden football, the material reward for his work on the gridiron in his first year of collegiate playing. The presentation was at a dinner which marked the end of what was to Yale a great year in football.

Hinkey had come to Yale from his preparatory school, with a great reputation as a player. Almost with his first appearance on the field for practice he jumped into a lineup and became a varsity player. He proved himself a giant in a time when many teams played against Yale themselves had giants, and strange to say physically Hinkey failed to measure up to the title. He probably never weighed over 150 pounds but as an end, and a tackler, he became one of the most feared of players. For four years he fought in Yale's gridiron battles, and in 1893 and 94 was captain. No rival player ever flanked his end.

In play he was a wizard, and his style was his own. He had the knack of folding himself up like an accordion, and when down his knees were against his chest. He took onrushing players over his neck and with a peculiar motion flopped them over so that they went down with a thud, and, if carrying the ball, they invariably dropped. Hinkey followed the ball in a way no other Yale player has ever done in the opinion of those who have followed the game all these years. In those days he crowd was kept back by ropes and when out of bounds he thought of ducking under the ropes and into the crowd with a headlong dive and even under the feet of horses which might have been standing along the side lines.

His defensive play Hinkey was noted for his ability to fall on a ball, and in this respect he led the way to a style of play which is now regarded as a fundamental and teaches sure handling of the ball.

Hinkey in his playing days stood about 5 feet 11 inches high, was cadaverous looking and rarely smiled. About thirteen years ago he was called out of retirement in sports to coach the Yale team but his own genius could not be transmitted to the players and his season was not marked with success and he went back into retirement. In recent years he had been heard from only occasionally by his classmates of 1895, and probably had not been back here since the days he coached. A year ago he was known to be in ill health and was in a sanatorium. Early in the year he went to Southern Pines, N. C., and some weeks ago Frank S. Butterworth, a team and classmate, visited him there.

Yale men of his day placed Hinkey on a pedestal as the greatest football player the university ever had.

COEN LEADS 15 SURVIVORS IN JUNIOR TENNIS PLAY

NEW YORK, Dec. 30—(AP)—Fifteen players out of an original entry of more than one hundred and fifty youthful stars for schools and colleges in the east, south and west, remained in the fight for the national indoor boys' and junior tennis championships tonight after three days of gruelling play across the nets of the Seventh Regiment armory.

Warren Coen, Jr., a stout-hearted stripling from Kansas City, capped his brilliant performances of yesterday, by winning four more strenuous matches today, advancing to the semi-finals in the boys' fixture, and to the third round of the junior doubles. He is the only entry in all three competitions and his exhibition, calling for an abundance of skill and stamina from one of the slightest physiques in the tournament, was again an outstanding achievement of the play.

Coen was nearest to defeat in a third round boys' match against Maurice Perlow, of New York. With a severe forehand drive and a hard service Perlow opened with a rush to take the first set, 6-6. Coen rallied at this point and saved the match, 6-1, 7-5. He then eliminated in quick succession, two junior players, William Rand, of Tuckahoe, N. Y., and Morton Baker, of Baltimore.

Coen's baseline game improved with each match and he was still in excellent stroke when, paired with Donald Strachan, of Philadelphia, he triumphed over Rand and J. H. Pitman, in the doubles.

Favorites again won in both competitions, Edward Jacobs, of Baltimore winner of the boys' event last year Gregory Mangin, of Newark, N. J., Julius Seligson, of New York, John Millen, of the University of Pennsylvania, Eugene McCauliff, of Yonkers N. Y., and Strachan all reaching the round before the semi-finals.

In the boys' event, Frank Shields, national outdoor champion, Donald Frame, of Windsor, Conn., and Waite, Thomas, of Elizabeth, N. J., were among the winners.

Announcement was made by the tournament committee that the semi-final round would be completed tomorrow. Coen and Shields are in the upper half of the draw, with Thomas in the lower half, matches in the junior event tomorrow will bring together Jacobs and Mangin, Millen and Strachan, Seligson and McCauliff. Coen will play the winner of the latter match.

ESTATE OF BATTLING SIKI TOTALS LESS THAN $600

NEW YORK, Dec. 30—(AP)—"Battling" Siki, Senegalese boxer who once held the world's light-heavyweight championship, left an estate of less than $600. It was shown by papers filed in the surrogate's court today by the widow asking for letters of administration. During his ring career Siki won what was regarded as a considerable fortune.

He was found murdered two weeks ago in a street on the west side in the district known as "Hell's Kitchen." Attached to the widow's application was a paper from the French consul general in New York renouncing his right of letters of administration for the estate. Siki was a citizen of France and served with the French forces in the war.

BATTERY B FIVE AND NUTMEGS WIN THEIR GAMES

Before a rather large sized gallery of basketball enthusiasts at the Armory last night the Battery B five defeated the Y. M. H. A. team of this city by the score of 35 to 31 and the Nutmegs defeated the Emeralds by the score of 19 to 14. Both games were very fast and hard fought from start to finish and the spectators went home well satisfied with the evening's proceedings.

The luminaries in the Battery B-Y. M. H. A. game were Coleman, Berberich and Prodell for the winners and Segal, Brauman and Blinderman for the losers.

The following are the lineups:

Battery B—Center, Coleman; forwards, Berberich and Goodrow; guards, Brown, Prodell and Lewis.

Y. M. H. A.—Center, Sadinsky; forwards, Segal and Brauman; guards, Blinderman, Kelly and J. Tombari.

In the Emeralds-Nutmegs tilt Pheno Tombari was surely the outstanding star for the losers with Burke and Mackoski not far behind. For the winners J. Tombari, J. Burns, Couture and Kelly were the shining lights.

The lineups:

Emeralds—Center, Clark; forwards, Mackoski and Labenski; guards, Cimikoski, Stefano and S. Tombari.

Nutmegs—Center, Burdick, Kelly, forwards, J. Burns, Couture, and Kelly; guards, J. Tombari, W. Burns, Murphy and Williams.

NUTMEGS TO PLAY C. F. C. TEAM FRIDAY

New Year's afternoon at 4:00 p. m. the Nutmegs and C. F. C. fives will meet in what should be a fast game from beginning to end.

The Nutmegs will have their strongest lineup in the fray and should make the claimants of last year's city championship travel to win. The following will appear for the Nutmegs: Segal, J. Burns, J. Tombari, Kelly, Brauman, Couture and W. Burns, along with a dark horse whose name will be withheld until game time.

The C. F. C. five have practiced hard for this contest, their first of the season, and expect to lineup as follows: Center, Ludlow, forwards, Lambert and Leffingwell, guards, Brown and Armstrong. There will also be able substitutes on hand in case of emergency.

RIGID ENFORCEMENT OF SUMMER BASEBALL RULES

NEW YORK, Dec. 30—(AP)—More rigid enforcement of the summer baseball rule as it effects intercollegiate athletes was demanded today by a committee headed by Major J. L. Griffith, commission of the western conference, in its report to the delegates of the 26th annual convention of the National Collegiate Athletic association.

At the same time convention went on record as favoring the present football playing code with few changes and pledged its support to the Walter Camp memorial which will be erected at Yale university in memory of the "dean of intercollegiate football."

Speaking before the convention this morning in a plea for support of the "sports bay" to be included in the completed cathedral of St. John the Divine, Bishop William T. Manning said he approved the playing of golf and tennis on Sunday.

"I can see no reason why a well-played game of polo or football is not just as pleasing to God as a beautiful service in a cathedral," he added.

Brigadier-General Palmer E. Pierce, president of the N. C. C. A., in his opening address, took occasion to denounce the practice of colleges bidding for coaches services in their eager desire to win games.

In making its report of its investigations into the summer baseball activities of college athletes, the committee said that the rules which govern this practice are not being rigidly enforced.

The committee further reported that some colleges, finding it impossible to enforce the rule, have dropped baseball from their activities and in others the sport has deteriorated into a minor sport where only a few years ago it was ranked as a major sport along with football.

Edward K. Hall, of Dartmouth chairman of the football rules committee, reported that no radical changes are contemplated or considered necessary in the football code.

"Professional football has left its field and entered the college field and even the high school field," he said.

"If there is a demand for professional football it will be met but the committee will do all in its power to keep the two apart."

Mr. Hall, in pleading for the association's support of the Walter Camp memorial, said that the present plans call for an open plaza to be erected in New Haven, near the Yale bowl, at Chapel street and Derby avenue. The plaza will be surrounded by a high wall leading into an immense gateway which will serve as an entrance to the Yale bowl. In adopting Mr. Hall's report the association pledged itself to support the project.

Reports were also read by the chairman of the various rules committees but in no instance were radical changes recommended.

The afternoon session was concluded by a debate in which Major Griffith of the western conference, upheld the affirmative and Professor F. G. Folsom, of the University of Colorado, upheld the negative on the question: "Resolved, that the amateur law should be enforced in all intercollegiate athletic competitions."

Both speakers advanced arguments in favor of their issues but no decision was made as to a victor, the debate resolving itself into a discussion.

MORE RECORDS SMASHED BY WOMEN SWIMMERS

NEW YORK, Dec. 30—(AP)—Miss Ethel McGarry and Miss Agnes Geraghty, of New York, achieved record breaking feats in a 55-yard pool at Coral Gables, Fla., today, the Women's Swimming association announced.

Miss McGarry returned an 800 meter (874.88 yard) free style swim in 12:45 1-5, shattering the world's long course record of 12:56 she set at Indianapolis on August 15, 1925. Miss Geraghty swam 300 meters breast stroke in 5:28, clipping exactly four seconds from the American standard she established in winning the national 220-yard championship at Detroit on August 9. Both feats were accomplished in sanctioned unpaced trials against time, supervised by officials of the Florida Amateur Athletic union.

The former records quoted actually are accepted marks for 880 and 220 yards, respectively, but as they represent the fastest time made at 800 and 200 meters, they receive recognition as records for the latter distances also. Allowing for the difference in distance, Miss McGary's new mark is better than the old by about seven seconds and Miss Geraghty's by approximately two seconds.

AMERICAN SPEEDBOATS ISSUE CHALLENGE TO ENGLISH

NEW YORK, Dec. 30—(AP)—For the first time in more than five years America has issued a speed boat challenge and will contend for the Duke of York trophy in England next July, it was revealed today.

C. F. Chapman, secretary of the American Power Boat association racing commission, has cabled the challenge to England and are now being worked out for construction of the three smallest speed craft ever built on this continent. Arrangements have also been made to bring the challengers together for a conference here on January 22.

Carl G. Fisher of New York, B. B. Davis of New York and Tampa, Fla., and Harry Greening of Hamilton, Ont., will be the contenders. Efforts are being made to have Edsel Ford, son of Henry Ford, enter a fourth boat.

In return the English have promised to send over three boats of the same type to race for the Carl G. Fisher one and one-half liter trophy at the Gould cup regatta in New York next August.

ATTEMPT MADE TO FORM INTERNATIONAL HOCKEY LEAGUE

BOSTON, Dec. 30—(AP)—Organization of an international intercollegiate hockey league is being attempted by Connie Smythe, graduate hockey coach of Toronto university, who arrived here tonight with his teams for a series of games with American college. Smythe says his plans call for a league of four Canadian and four American teams.

The Canadian members, who have been approached and have received his plan enthusiastically, he said, are Toronto, McGill, Montreal and Queens. The American colleges would include Harvard, Yale, Princeton and one other college as yet named. Smythe said that his idea had received encouragement from Princeton and Yale authorities to whom he has written, Harvard apparently favors the idea, also, he said, and he will confer with Cambridge officials before he returns to Canada.

JEWETT CITY TRIMS HARTFORD FIVE IN FREE SCORING ENCOUNTER

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, Dec. 30—In a free scoring game here tonight the Jewett City Pros won from Jess Scheer's Hartford Crescents 48 to 40. The Hartford team was crippled through the inability of Dutch Leonard and Abe Silverman, two of the Crescents' strongest men, to be in the lineup. However, the Crescents will return to Jewett City next week on a winner-take-all basis and the basketball fans may anticipate a contest that will provide all thrills of fast basketball.

The game this evening see-sawed back and forth with each team shooting baskets almost at will. Harry Mills, Bub Benjamin, and Mondi Normandin were the star performers, Mills getting eight hoops, Benjamin 7 and Normandin 5. McKernan, the auburn haired flash, was the shining light of the Hartford aggregation and piled up a total of 14 points for the invaders. Balfour also played a brilliant game in the forward berth.

After the game Manager Scheer of the Crescents made the proposition of winner take all to Manager Faber but emphatically stated that an out of town referee must supervise the game. The Hartford manager was not at all pleased with the refereeing and Manager Faber will have an outsider officiate at the next game. The Hartford team is confident of beating the locals and their defeat tonight is a very sore spot with them. They have cancelled a game in the western part of the state just to get another crack at Jewett City.

GREAT DEAL EXPECTED OF NEW MAYOR OF NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Dec. 30—(AP)—When James J. Walker is inducted into office as mayor of America's largest city, on Friday, for a four year term, it will be the first time in the history of greater New York state sons of Tammany hall have simultaneously been chief executives of both New York city and the state. Mayor John F. Hylan received the support of Tammany hall, but he was not actually a member of that organization. Governor Alfred E. Smith and Mayor-Elect Walker are pretty.

Mr. Walker's inauguration will place at the head of this city of six million persons a man whose political watchword has been economy and efficiency in government, and the mayor-elect has stated that he will immediately set afoot a plan for the complete reorganization and modernization of the city administrative machinery. His assumption of office also will bring to an end the feud which has existed between the office of the mayor and that of Governor Smith.

Governor Smith and Mayor-Elect Walker have much in common. They are personal friends, and the governor is the new mayor's political sponsor. Both are products of New York city and their political experience has been somewhat similar. Governor Smith has been a consistent advocate of reform in the state government similar to that now demanded for the city by the new mayor.

Gambling and vice will not be tolerated by the new administration, Mr. Walker has stated. This matter, he said will be the first to receive the attention of his newly appointed police commissioner.

The mayoralty of New York city ranks in importance and power with the governorship of the state. It carries more patronage than the governorship, and the city spends considerably more than twice as much money as the state. That there is room in this expenditure for economy and reform, the new mayor has stated emphatically. As a first step toward effecting such reform, Mr. Walker expects to appoint a non-partisan commission of experts to make a thorough survey of the city and its government. Such a survey, he believes, will deal with such individual problems as reorganization, transit and traffic, garbage and sewage disposal, health and parks, markets and housing, as one large and co-related problem.

M'GRAW TRADES BENTLY AND DEAN TO PHILLIES IN EXCHANGE FOR JIMMY RING

NEW YORK, Dec. 30—(AP)—On top of intimations that they intended to "stand pat" on their team for 1926, the New York Giants today surprised baseball men by announcing the acquisition of Jimmy Ring, veteran right-handed hurler of the Philadelphia Nationals, in exchange for Wayland Dean, young right-hander and Jack Bentley, southpaw.

In announcing the deal on behalf of Manager McGraw, who has left for Florida, Secretary J. J. Tierney declared no cash was involved. The trade bolsters the Giants twirling staff with an experienced star while giving the Phillies the benefit of youth and batting as well as pitching material. According to Tierney, Bentley, who gained a reputation as a home run hitter as well as pitching star, with the Baltimore Internationals before coming to the Giants in 1922 will play first base for the Quaker City team.

Bentley and Dean both were costly acquisitions, the former Baltimore star being priced at $65,000 while Dean, who came from Louisville, was said to have cost close to $50,000 in cash and players two years ago. Dean was a salary hold-out before donning a Giant uniform and then was handicapped by an injury.

Dean and Bentley both had better percentages than Ring last season but neither performed as regularly or consistently as the Philadelphia veteran. Dean won ten and lost seven games while Bentley won eleven and lost nine. Ring showed 14 victories and 16 defeats with a seventh place club. He came to the Phillies in 1921 after four years' previous service with Cincinnati.

electrical and railway extension and improvement, indicate a continuing demand for heavy construction. While it might be thought that the war deficiency in housing has been overcome, yet the high real wage in industry creates a demand for better housing and this condition, combined with the migration to suburbs due to the motor, promises to continue as long as employment remains general. We could hardly expect so exceptional a construction activity to repeat itself, but there will be a large volume in any event.

The textile and shoe industries as a whole are running at high levels of production, although the tendency in some branches of these industries to develop more rapidly in the south and west is affecting New England pending readjustment of her economic relationships. The automobile and tire industries will record an unprecedented output. The coal industries show increased production despite the anthracite strike and the production of all other minerals has increased.

In transportation, our railways are giving the best service in our history and are recovering in average earnings to near the Interstate Commerce Commission standard of earnings of five and three-fourths per cent. There is some improvement from the acute depression in the shipping world; and progress has been made in plans for internal waterway improvement. The electrification of the country has made further great strides during the year toward central generation and interconnection. There has been some pyramiding of power holding companies, much criticized within the electrical industry itself, but the solid progress of the industry is marked by the extension of use of electricity with all its economies in production of goods and saving of labor. Furthermore, taking the country as a whole, there has been a reduction in rates for power and light indicating that the public is securing benefits from the economies introduced in production of electricity.

Our foreign trade in 1925 has been exceptionally satisfactory. Both exports and imports have risen materially, the former reflecting an increase in agricultural exports and the latter reflecting the large demand for foreign raw materials and tropical foodstuffs. Exports will total around $4,900,000,000 or about seven per cent more than in 1924. Roughly, one half of this increase in both exports and imports is attributable to greater qualities exported, and the remainder to advance in prices. The major explanation of our favorable trade balance is, of course, to be found in the continued heavy investment of American capital abroad; in essence we are lending foreigners the wherewith-all to buy goods from us, or are sending goods to convey our investments abroad. It is probable that the final figures will show that this country has added to its foreign investments during the year by more than a billion dollars.

The most remarkable thing about the foreign trade of the United States is that, after making allowance for the higher level of prices, both exports and imports are much greater than before the war, in contrast with the quantitative decrease in the trade of the other foreign countries engaged in the war. According to British calculations the exports of that country were in physical volume nearly 25 per cent less in 1925 than before the war, and Germany's exports have fallen off still more. British imports are practically at their pre-war level, and those of Germany materially below it.

In finance, the year has been characterized by increased savings, comparatively easy money conditions, the issuance of a large volume of both domestic and foreign securities, and by an extraordinary rise in the prices of stocks accompanied by marked speculation on the New York Stock exchange. This fever of speculation is also wide spread in real estate and unless our financial policies are guided with courage and wisdom, this speculation may yet reflect into the commodity markets, thereby reversing the cautious buying policies of recent years. Psychology plays a large part in business movements and over optimism can only land us on the shores of over depression. Not since 1920 have we required a better informed or more capable administration of credit facilities than now if we are to continue an uninterrupted high plane of prosperity. In any event there should be no abatement of caution in the placing of forward orders, particularly in view of the great increase in sales of a great variety of merchandises on the installment basis.

In the foreign field as a whole the situation is more promising than at any other time in twelve years. Each year one nation after another abroad gains in economic and fiscal stability, in production and in employment. War-inherited famines have disappeared from the earth, standards of living are everywhere higher than at any time since the war. In fact no one in 1919 would have believed that so great a measure of recovery would be attained in Europe by 1925—a proof of a high quality in European statesmanship. The Locarno Agreement promises much greater political stability, and paves the way for another stage of disarmament with consequent improvement in the economic outlook. Of the disturbed areas England and Germany have not recovered employment in full; France shows economic strength among her people, but popular resistance has so far made it impossible to stabilize the fiscal system; China continues in the throes of civil war, but business nevertheless continues; Russia makes progress as the government slowly abandons socialism. The quantity of goods moving in international trade as a whole has recovered to the pre-war level although some countries are below and fully 90 per cent of international business is now based upon stabilized currencies.

On the whole, both our own country and the rest of the world face a more favorable outlook at this turn of the year than for a long time past. We ourselves, however, need to be on our guard against reckless optimism. What we need is an even keel in our financial controls, and our growing national efficiency will continue us in increasing prosperity.

GEOLOGICAL SOCIETY OF AMERICA END SESSION

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 30—(AP)—Earthquakes were touched upon but slightly by the Geological Society of America, at the closing session of its 38th annual meeting here today, the speakers devoting their papers and addresses to mountain building, rock formations, glacial theology and earth oscillations of long ago.

Describing conditions in New England thousands of years ago, Ernst Antevs, of Cambridge, Mass., said that the Boston region once stood 20 feet higher in relation to sea level than at the present time. Judging from conditions found in that region, the speaker placed the date of this condition in the early part of the post-glacial temperature maximum or between 5,000 and 7,000 years ago.

POETRY

The Death of the Old Year

Full knee-deep lies the winter snow,
And the winter winds are wearily sighing:
Toll ye the church-bell sad and slow,
And tread softly and speak low,
For the old year lies a-dying.
Old year, you must not die;
You came to us so readily,
You lived with us so steadily,
Old year, you shall not die.

He lieth still; he doth not move;
He will not see the dawn of day.
He hath no other life above,
He gave me a friend, and a true, true love.
Old year, you must not go;
So long as you have been with us
Such joy as you have seen with us,
Old year, you shall not go.

How hard he breathes! over the snow
I heard just now the crowing cock,
The shadows flicker to and fro;
The cricket chirps; the light burns low;
'Tis nearly twelve o'clock.
Shake hands, before you die.
Old year, we'll dearly rue for you;
What is it we can do for you?
Speak out before you die!

His face is growing sharp and thin,
Alack! our friend is gone.
Close up his eyes; tie up his chin;
Step from the corpse, and let him in
That standeth there alone.
And waileth at the door.
There's a new foot on the floor, my friend,
And a new face at the door, my friend.
A new face at the door.

—Alfred Tennyson.

The New Year

A song for the Old
While its knell is tolled,
And its parting moments fly,
But a song and a cheer
For the glad New Year,
While we watch the Old Year die.
Oh! its grief and pain
Never can come again,
And its care lies buried deep;
But what joy untold
Doth the New Year hold,
And what hopes within it sleep!

A song for the Old,
While its knell is tolled,
And the friends it gave us true!
But, with hearts of glee,
Let us merrily
Welcome in the bright, bright New!
For the heights we gained,
For the good attained.
We will not the Old despise;
But a joy more sweet,
Making life complete,
In the golden New Year lies.

A song for the Old,
While its knell is tolled,
While a grander, broader zeal,
And a forward view,
Let us greet the New,
Heart and purpose ever leal!
Let the ills we met,
And the sad regret,
With the Old be buried deep!
For what joy untold
Doth the New Year hold,
And what hopes within it sleep!

—George Cooper.

FIRE IN RECENTLY BUILT HOUSE NEW LONDON, DOES $3,000 DAMAGE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, DEC. 30—The residence of Joseph Gargona, 464 Vauxhall street, a two story wooden structure and but recently built, was partially destroyed by fire of unknown origin this afternoon. The entire southerly side of the dwelling was gutted and with a loss to Gargano, estimated at between $3,000 and $3,500.

The fire was discovered shortly before 2 o'clock when members of the Gargano household, who were in the front rooms of the house, detected the odor of smoke. The fire was located in the pantry, on the ground floor. The fire had gained considerable headway for the flames completely enveloped the small room and had made their way into the partitions and were working to the upper floors. An occupant of the house realising that the flames were beyond control of immediate assistance, caused an alarm to be sent in from Box 293, corner of Vauxhall and Phillips street. With the arrival of the half dozen apparatus, Chief Charles Rose had several lines of chemicals directed upon the flames, but this attack did not keep the fire from spreading and soon three lines of hose poured volumes of water upon the burning structure; but not until the firemen had battled the fire a half hour was it subdued.

How the fire originated is a mystery for Chief Rose conducted an investigation immediately after the subduing of the flames in an endeavor to ascertain the cause, but in this he was not successful. Two stoves were used in heating the lower floor, but both of these were located a considerable distance from the pantry, where the fire originated. Neither did electric light wires indicate that the blaze started from that origin.

Miss Anna Simpson, of 166 Monument street, Groton; James Gutherie, 67 Squires street, and Master Lebolo Mel, 24 Allen street, Groton, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were dismissed today.

The funeral of Mrs. Lucy A. Pratt, widow of John R. Pratt, was held this afternoon at 3 o'clock, at the residence of her brother, Captain Nathaniel S. Keeney, 345 Pequot avenue and was attended by many mourners. The services were conducted by Rev Edward E. Chapman, retired Congregational clergyman. The body was forwarded to Brooklyn, N. Y., for burial tomorrow morning in Greenwood cemetery.

Patrolman Henry Sylvia, in making his rounds on Bank street early this morning, discovered an alleged fire hazard at No. 414, a two story building occupied by Rapp's lunch room. The alleged hazard was reported to Chief Charles Rose this forenoon that that official might conduct an investigation. The restaurant is located on the ground floor and the rooms of the store are used for purposes of storage. The officer found access to the upper part of the structure unhampered for the doors were not even locked. In one of the rooms was found a quantity of loose paper that could be easily ignited and might be, should tramps discover that the building was easily entered.

The final day for the obtaining of automobile registration being at hand, there was the usual crowd of delinquent automobile owners today at the office of the motor vehicle department, Bank street, seeking to obtain the 1926 registration plates. At times there were as many as 150 automobile owners in line and many were compelled to wait several hours before they were able to obtain entrance to the building and be given their new plates.

Dog Warden John Sweezy, in passing through Masonic street this afternoon found a small sized arsenal, for that official came upon a bag containing 51 rounds of ammunition. Sweezy noticed the bulky bag on the sidewalk and deciding to make an investigation found the ammunition inside. Sweezy carried the ammunition to the police station; from where the ammunition was taken from, or how it got to where it was found it is not known. The ammunition is now stored at the police station, where, in a few days, it is believed, it will be taken charge of by the proper authorities. It is believed that the ammunition was stolen from one of the local military reservations or else was stolen from storage at one of the local shooting ranges of the coast artillery.

At the Hotel Mohican this evening about 150 Filipinos assembled to pay tribute to Dr. Jose Rizal Y. Merrado, former noted Filipino statesman, soldier and patriot and recognized as a martyr by the Filipino populace, both here and in the Philippines. The event took place in the banquet hall of the hotel and was attended by Filipinos in the federal service, former service men and their wives, together with members of the city government: Commander E. J. King, commanding at the submarine base; Capt. William H. Munter, commander of the United States Coast Guard, sectional base No. 4, State Pier; officers of the chamber of commerce, Lions club, Rotary club and residents of the city interested in public welfare and patriotism. During the evening remarks were made by Mayor William C. Fox, Commander King and Captain William Munter. Following the exercises there was dancing for several hours, music being by an orchestra composed of Filipinos. The banquet hall was elaborately decorated, the decorations being furnished by the Filipino population.

The confectionery store of Frank G. Crocker, was threatened with serious damage by fire last night when a blaze was discovered in the place. Ernest Burdick and James Wood, members of the fire department were passing through Washington street, when they observed the blaze in the store. They notified Mr. Crocker, who resides nearby and an investigation revealed that a tube leading from a gas cock to a gas heater had become disconnected, allowing the gas fumes to ignite. The gas supply was quickly shut off, before damage of consequence resulted.

The pumper used by the Thomas Hose company, which was the apparatus formerly used by the Konomoc Hose company, prior to the purchase by the city of the new aerial truck, was today sent to a paint shop to be repaired. GOVERNOR'S COAL COMMISSION VISITS NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 30—Members of Governor John H. Trumbull's coal commission came to New London this evening at 8 p. m. and conducted an open meeting at Bulkeley school auditorium for the purpose of explaining to New Londoners the proper and safe use of coal substitutes. The meeting was not largely attended. The members of the commission explained minutely the proper use of the substitutes for hard coal. The commission explained that with the coal strike still in the course of settlement, it will be many weeks before any supplies of hard coal can be received in port and with the most severe weeks of the winter at hand, it is a certainty that the substitutes will have to be resorted to by New London's populace. It is estimated that 20,000 tons of hard coal are needed to supply the residences of New London with fuel, to say nothing of factories, industries in general and large business concerns, but other than having a small quantity of hard coal, a little more soft coal and substitutes, New London is bordering on an acute situation.

ICE DEALERS HOPEFUL OF AN EARLY HARVEST

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 30—Ice dealers hereabouts consider themselves favored in having a crop of ice in sight before the end of the year, for the indications are now that they will get to cutting tomorrow and thereafter. The New London ice company will cut tomorrow and the Perry company has ice that is about seven inches thick on its ponds. In recent years the ice dealers have not been fortunate to be able to cut till well along in January, and often they have not had ice that was suitable for harvesting till February. In old times, when the Rogers company harvested its ice with horses and men, the cost of the work averaged but seven cents a ton; but that figure will not represent the cost of harvesting now, even though artificial power is used in the work.

COAST GUARDSMAN'S FALL WAS ONE TO A SPREE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 30—Chester H. Daley, a coastguardsman, should join the prohibition army even if his efforts thereafter are not directed toward stopping the bringing of liquor into this port. Had he associated himself with those who "taste not, touch not and handle not", prior to the beginning of the month he would have been spared a great deal of annoyance, some expense and he would have preserved a good record in the coast guard service. He was in the police court this morning, charged with having perpetrated a fraud on one Nick Pappas, who conducts a restaurant here, and who caters largely to sailors. Daley found himself short of cash so he gave Pappas a check for $50 which the former claimed had been given him in a transaction that was absolutely legitimate. The check was in payment for work Daley drew $10 from Pappas and left the check as security, according to his defense. He didn't keep his promise to take up the check, so Pappas deposited it and then found that there was no cash to meet it in the Boston bank upon which it was drawn. Pappas saw visions of the loss of his $10 and sought relief from the prosecuting attorney. When Daley showed up he was arrested. Today he explained that on the last pay day at the state pier he began a spree that kept him away from his station. He declared that he had no intension of cheating Pappas and has no such intention now. Pappas displayed stupidity by failing to appear against Daley when he was presented in court, so there was nothing left for Judge Prince to do, in view of the statement Daley made, but to suspend judgment. When Daley was released a warrant for his arrest and presentation in Providence, for another check transaction in which the sum of $23.50 is involved, was served upon the coastguardsman and he will now answer for that. He waived extradition and seems confident that he can explain so that no criminal intent will be shown. Daley's trouble seems to have come to him from indulgence in liquor. Whether he hunted it aboard ship or obtained it elsewhere is not known.

Don't Get Up Nights

John Lumpkins, Dayton, Ohio, says: "Come to 7 Carrie St., and I will show you 25 pieces of gravel that passed after taking Lithiated Buchu (Keller Formula). Had to get up 15 times at night for two years. All right now." Lithiated Buchu cleanses the bladder like Epsom Salts do the bowels, thereby relieving irritation, driving out foreign matter and neutralizing excessive acids. These are the causes of unnatural action of the bladder at night. Lithiated Buchu (Keller Formula) is not a cheap medicine. The tablets cost 3 cents each. Sold at leading drug stores or Keller Laboratory, Mechanicsburg, Ohio. Locally at the Geo. Engler Drug Store.

Breed Theatre

Spine-tickling thrills abound in "The Lucky Horseshoe," the newest William Fox production starring the redoubtable western actor, Tom Mix, which opens a three day engagement at the Breed theatre today.

Tom, always the vortex of a whirlpool of exciting events in his productions, has incorporated in his latest picture a greater number of hazardous feats than ever before. The dynamic Fox star, aside from jumping Tony the wonder horse, over treacherous hurdles, hurtles through space on the end of a long rope during a fight with his enemies; drives an infuriated team of horses, hitched to a huge stage coach, through a densely crowded street; leaps from a window to a slender sapling growing nearby bending it bow fashion, to the earth; ropes a runaway team of horses on the very brink of a steep precipice and culminates his bold adventures by scaling the sidewall of a castle to the lofty parapet above.

In all these feats Tony, his celebrated cow-pony, aids the daring western actor.

A large cast of widely-known screen players including Billie Dove, J. Farrell MacDonald, Malcolm Waite, J. Gunnis Davis and Anna Pennington supports Tom in his latest picture.

MARKET FLUCTUATED

NEW YORK, Dec. 30—(AP)—Indecisive price movements characterized today's stock market, which witnessed the usual year-end readjustment of speculative accounts. Inasmuch as it was the last day in which losses for income tax purposes could be established on transactions cleared in the regular manner, trading was on an unusually broad scale. Total sales fell just short of 2,000,000 shares with 622 individual issues dealt in, a new high record, the previous maximum of 619 having been established November 6.

Major speculative activity was on the up side with the railroad average mounting to a new record high level New York Central was the outstanding individual issue in that group, moving up over 3 points to 137 1-2, the highes price since 1909.

Commodity prices were reactionary. Cotton futures declined 25 to 43 points on selling presumably inspired by the announcement that Manchester spinners had decided to continue operations on part time for the present. Heavy profit taking by speculators who had followed up the recent spirited advance in wheat, brought about recessions of about 3 to 4 1-2 cents a bushel in the distant options although December contracts closed about a cent higher on the apparent congestion in that position. Coffee prices advanced on reports that the state of Sao Paulo had obtained a loan in London after being unsuccessful in the New York market. Sugar quotations were unchanged.

Steel shares failed to respond to the tenor of the weekly trade reviews. Iron Age states the year closes with the steel industry producing at high rate, backed by a volume of orders exceeding those of a year ago, but with prospects considered bright for a continued high pace of operations for several months. United States Steel common showed a net loss of three quarters at 124 5-8.

Speculative activity in the oils broadened on talk of additional mergers inviolving several of the large independent companies. Associated Oil, which has been mentioned in connection with a possible merger with the Texas company, as well as a likely unit in the new Barnsdall combination, was bid up over 2 points to a new high record for the year at 47 1-4, later yielding a point on profit taking. Shell Transport also touched a new top. Wall street also heard reports that the Pan-American Petroleum and Transport company was negotiating for the Lion Oil company, which operates in the Smackover field and that Edward L. Doheny was sponsoring a proposed merger between the Pan-American Western Petroleum and General Petroleum companies, but these reports lacked confirmation.

Rock Island's activity revived rumors of a possible merger with Southern Pacific next year, the stock touching a new high record of 58 3-4. 'Big Four" jumped 11 points to 600 on a few sales. S. S. Kresge was the outstanding individual feature, soaring 86 points to a record high for all time at 885, or an extreme gain of 530 points above the year's low. Other industrial issues which reached Porto Rican Sugar, National Biscuit, American Smelting, Mathieson Alkali, National Tea, Archer Daniels, and National Acme. National Cloak and Suit common and Cudhy Packing sank to their lowest prices in all the year.

Call money held firm at 6 per cent all day. Time money rates softened somewhat, the shorter maturities being available at 4 3-4 per cent, instead of 4 7-8, the prevailing rate of the last few weeks. Prime commercial paper held firm at 4 1-4 to 4 1-2 per cent. Foreign commercial paper held firm at 4 1-4 to 4 1-2 per cent. Foreign exchanges moved within narrow irregular limits with trading of a holiday character. Demand sterling ruled around $4.84 1-32 and French francs were slightly easier at 3.72 1-3 cents.

TAFTVILLE

Postmaster D. C. Murphy has announced that the schedule of hours at the local postoffice on New Years day will be as follows: 7 to 8 a. m.; 12.30 to 1 p. m.; 6 to 6.30 p. m.

New Years day being the Feast of the Circumcision of Our Lord and a holy day of obligation in the Roman Catholic church throughout the world, there are to be special masses at Sacred Heart church.

A flock of wild ducks estimated to number between 400 and 500 birds, were swimming in the open water on the Quinebaug river at the spot known as Reed's Point, Wednesday. A number of hunters were out to try their skill, and although a few birds were brought down, most of them were lost to the sportsmen, as they dived under the ice as soon as they dropped into the water. There appears to be two species of duck in the flock, some having long pointed beaks and other broad short ones.

Paul Grover of Annapolis is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Ricketson of North Third avenue.

Cases of measles have been reported in the village.

Trappers state that catches are quite plentiful this season and that there is a good demand at high prices for raw furs. Muskrat pelts are bringing from $1.10 to $1.50 each according to quality, and mink furs are running up to $15 according to size. The demand for raccoon is not so heavy but there is a good market for otter because this animal is getting scarcer each year.

Girard Marceau has resigned his position with the spinning department of Ponemah mills.

Work is progressing rapidly on the new residence of Mr. and Mrs. Stanislas Bance on Pratte avenue.

During Monday night an automobile skidded on Post Office hill and collided with a telephone pole, taking a big slice off the side of the pole.

When measurements were taken on Lisbon pond one day this week, the ice was found to be between 7 and 8 inches in thickness.

Repairs have been underway at the local postoffice for the damage caused by last week's fire.

The Misses Wunderlich of Norwich avenue moved this week to the Dombrowski block on lower Norwich avenue.

James Murphy of South A street has entered the employ of the cloth department of the local mills.

Joseph Blais, Jr., of South C street who has been confined to his home with an injured foot, is able to be at his work again.

Wherever the streams are frozen to a sufficient thickness to bear the weight, ice fishing has become a favorite sport.

Miss Signe Wennerberg of the Ponemah house is spending several days in New York.

Miss Violet Blanchard who has been confined to her home on Providence street by illness has recovered and has returned to her work.

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Mather and their daughter Miss Mabel Mather of North A street are in Fall River, Mass., having been called there by the death of Mr. Mather's mother.

The New Year will be ushered in with feasting at the Taftville Mannerchor Club this (Thursday) evening when the members, their wives and lady friends will sit down to a turkey supper in the club banquet hall.

WOMAN'S LIFE SAVED BY LOCAL FIREMEN

Although residents in the house at 93 Talman street, badly damaged by fire about 2:45 o'clock, Wednesday morning, reported that everyone in the house had been accounted for, Mrs. Antonia Santos, of 123 Talman street, had been overcome evidently, and she was found in an unconscious condition after the fire had been extinguished, on the third floor of the building, by Deputy Chief Henry R. Taft, Captain Dennis Brennan, Lieut. Walter Huntley and Fireman Harold Lieberman, who were engaged in throwing open windows on this floor.

A form was seen lying on the floor and the firemen ran to it and carried the unconscious woman outside the building. Fireman Lieberman worked on her for about a half hour and the H. H. inhalator, purchased by the city about a year ago, was brought into use, this probably saving the woman's life.

It was believed that Mrs. Santos ran into the house to save the children she believed to be sleeping on the third floor, not knowing that they had been taken from the building previous to her arrival. Reaching the third floor she was overcome by smoke and fell to the floor.

While the inhalator and prone artificial respiration were being used, word was sent for Dr. A. C. Freeman. Breathing started when the inhalator was used but the work of Fireman Lieberman also aided greatly in keeping life in the woman. Dr Freeman, upon his arrival, gave the woman a hypodermic injection and had her taken to the Backus hospital for further treatment. It is expected that the woman will recover, due to the heroic work of the firemen before the arrival of the inhalator and the doctor.

The fire was in the house occupied by Joe Vincent and family and evidently started from an overheated stove in the store, for most of the damage was on the lower floor. Vincent did not know where the fire alarm box was located and he ran to Fern's restaurant on Main street to telephone in an alarm. In the meantime someone sent in Box 6, Talman and Main streets, calling out the department.

Chief Howard L. Stanton, in speaking of the fire, stated that people should take pains to learn the location of the nearest fire alarm boxes While Vincent was making his long run to Main street, the flames were spreading rapidly and with a few more minutes' start they would have been out of control and the entire structure would have been burned to the ground.

LIONS ENTERTAIN CHILDREN AT PALACE THEATRE

The Palace theatre was crowded to capacity Wednesday morning when the annual New Year's entertainment for Norwich children was held under the auspices of the Norwich Lions club. The program opened with a few words of welcome by William A. Anderson, president of the club, after which America was sung. The entertainment was put on under the direction of Edward V. McEvoy, manager of the Palace theatre, the entire show at the theatre being produced for the amusement of the children. Members of the various acts gladly put on their entire show for the benefit of the young guests. The Three Victors, sensational hand balancers, were an instant hit and Dot Jargon, in her song and dance act, also pleased. Burns and West, in a make-up comedy act, scored instant favor with the youngsters, especially with their two-man band. To close the programme, Miller Mark Entertainers, jazz band and novelty dancing act, topped a fine bill and the children insisted on several encore numbers.

The entertainers seemed to enjoy acting for the children as well as the children enjoyed watching them and altogether the show was a hit with the audience.

Manager McEvoy and the officials of the theatre generously gave their services and did everything possible to make the children happy and contented. Besides children from local homes guests of the Lions included children from the New London County home, Rock Nook home and others, all being conveyed to and from the theatre in automobiles loaned by members of the club.

At the close of the entertainment, each child received a prize, a Mother Goose box of cookies.

The committee in charge of the New Year's party comprised, Max Hanover, Rudolph Henschel, William O'Neil, William Frisbie, Benjamin Pullen, Earl Taggart and Louis Fontaine, assisted by other members of the club.

WATCH NIGHT SERVICE AT TRINITY M. E. CHURCH

Watch night is a traditional Methodist service and is now observed by almost all churches but almost universally by the Methodists. It is to be observed this year at Trinity Methodist church from ten to twelve o'clock on New Year's eve, tonight.

The first notice of this service is in John Wesley's Journal of 1742. The early watchnight services usually began at 10.30. They commenced with singing and prayer, a sermon or address and closed with silent prayer. The custom was begun at Kingswood, England by the coal miners there, who before their conversion, used to spend every Saturday night in the alehouse.

In early American history the first moments of the new year were spent in singing the covenant hymn while kneeling.

At the Trinity Methodist church Miss Harriet Newbury and Mrs. William Crowe will each render solos. Harvey Mousley will speak on "Some Convictions for 1926." A letter from Bishop William F. Anderson will be read. A short sermon by Rev. Dixon A. Brown on "New Year's Resolutions" will be preached.

Your DOCTOR WILL ADVISE YOU

never to allow a cough to settle on the lungs, especially if you are subject to lung coughs. Whenever this happens you will find yourself burdened with a cough that is hard to get rid of and that opens the door for germ diseases.

Each repetition of these lung coughs weakens the lungs and they become more resistant to medical treatment.

The only safe course is to check a cold or cough in its early stage, before it has time to get seated or to settle into an obstinate or chronic cough.

A few doses of effective cough medicine at the right time, is worth more than bottles of medicine after the cough becomes settled.

For this purpose, we believe there is no remedy quite so effective as

ALLEN'S MULSICOF

A NEW NAME FOR AN OLD REMEDY

which has been widely used throughout New England during the past 37 years, and which has the enthusiastic endorsement of thousands of people in every walk of life.

It is not like ordinary cough mixtures, being an emulsion and cough remedy in one, and does the work when others fail, because it is different.

Contains no narcotic or other harmful drugs, and is equally effective for adults or children of tender age.

Don't wait till you have a cough, but get a bottle today and be prepared.

Sold by your druggist for 60 cents and $1.00 per bottle.

H. J. Allen Co., Druggists, Lynn, Mass.

AUTO AND GAS TAXES NET OVER SEVEN MILLIONS

Combined receipts by the state from motor vehicle registrations and gasoline tax in Connecticut during the last fiscal year aggregated $7,062,352, it is shown in the annual report of the state highway department which is now being prepared for the governor. This entire sum, together with direct additional appropriations by the legislature, was used for road construction and repairs. The law requires that all such receipts be turned over by the motor vehicle department directly to the highway department for road improvements.

Of the sum, $5,617,617 was received for automobile and truck registrations, and the remainder $1,444,734, was the amount of the gasoline tax for the twelve months.

The report shows that December and January, the two months in which the bulk of the state's automobiles are registered each year, account for practically one-half of the registration receipts. During December last year, the sum totalled $1,162,809.07, and in January receipts aggregated $1,446,399.85.

Gasoline tax receipts reached their highest point in June, when the sum received was $172,874.45. The low point during February when many vehicles were undoubtedly idle due to the winter and the fact that quite a number of motorists register their machines in March. The amount during that month was $56,043.30, or about one-seventh the sum during June, a striking illustration of the variation of summer and winter automobile traffic through the state.

BIBLE CLASS HOLDS SESSION AT Y. M. C. A.

The Men's Bible class at the local Y. M. C. A. held an intensely interesting session Wednesday evening with a good number present. The topic was "A Christian Patriot," and the scripture was taken from Nehemiah, the first chapter, eleven. Among other points the following were brought out in the discussion: Artaxerxes was king and Nehemiah was his cup bearer, a very responsible position, one that brought him near to the king. His brother and some friends paid Nehemiah a visit, and he asked them how things were going in Jerusalem, and when he was told of the terrible condition there, he wept and fasted and prayed. This indicated a deep interest on the part of Nehemiah in his countrymen. The average man does not take such keen interest in others who are in trouble as did Nehemiah.

There are conditions in America that menace the safety of the nation. There seems to be too much selfishness, which is often a phase of sin. There is too little altruism and also too little real vital religion in the average life. Nehemiah was living what might be called luxury, but his heart opened wide in interest in his brethren's troubles at Jerusalem. His love was three fold, for his country, for his people and for his God. A man cannot be a true patriot in the finest sense unless he is a Christian man. Nehemiah prayed; first he asked forgiveness for his people and for himself and then he claimed the promise of Jehovah. We cannot expect a favor from God unless we first ask forgiveness. The highest interest of America is not its great wealth or its great crops or its large population, but its moral and religious interests.
